Wood's contention was the indictment is not evidence and that it is the duty of the Government to establish beyond a reasonable doubt the existence of conspiracy. He stated, "Hardy has carefully refrained from enlightening you what the case is all about. The indictment does not charge a combination in restraint of trade. The only charge being tried is that the defendants entered into a conspiracy in restraint of trade. During the period starting in August when we opened the Shubert-Rialto to the time of the indictment, Jan. 11, 1935, 167 pictures were exhibited here in contrast to 146 in the previous corresponding period. That's how we restrained trade," Wood said.

Points to Evidence Conflict

"The Government relies on circumstantial evidence, not direct," the Warner counsel declared. "RKO and Paramount individually negotiated and made deals without concert," he stated. "The law of circumstantial evidence is that every man is innocent until proved guilty and this excludes every supposition and inference but that of guilt."

Wood drew attention to a conflict in the evidence, stating frequently a man leaves a conference with the impression of what happened and not what actually was said.

"It was not until Harry M. Warner got on the stand that a connected story of what we did and why was related," Wood asserted. He then detailed Warners' $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 investment in the local properties and the unsuccessful attempts to negotiate with the bondholders' committee, whom he declared "sat in the driver's seat" and could drive Warners out if they wanted to, and which the company tried to prevent.

Notes Theatre Changes

Wood pictured the change in the local theatre situation in February, 1934, when Koplar assertedly gained control of five first runs, shutting out Warners, whom he claimed would have to deal with a monopoly at their own terms. He went on to relate how Gradwell L. Sears suggested to Warner the opening of a company show window as a self-protective measure and how deals with Paramount and RKO were made.

He said Warners wanted to reclaim their former position when they operated an uptown and downtown house by taking over the Orpheum. He added RKO had been having trouble with Koplar and protected themselves by signing with Warners. He described Koplar as "an arch enemy of Warners," who didn't pay his bills, and added his associates submitted false box office reports, which he called "crooked."

Gentry brought out that the testimony of most of the witnesses did not apply to Paramount and Schaefer.

Koplar Curious

St. Louis, Nov. 7.—When Harry Koplar appeared in the court for the first time, he asked a Motion Picture Daily reporter:

"Are those guys surprised to see me here?"

Few realized that the much publicized Koplar had been subpoenaed by RKO, which didn't put him on the stand after all.

Short Subjects

"Bugles from the Blue Grass"

(Van Beuren-Radio)

Bill Corum is the guide on this tour of the thoroughbred horse camps that raise and train the horses for the Kentucky Derby and other great races. Every shot is interesting. There are scenes at the Vanderbilt, Sagamore Farm in Maryland, Joseph E. Widener's, Elmendorf and finally the Derby. Of especial interest is a shot of Man O' War, now 18 years old in retirement. With horse lovers and the general public this should go over. Production Code Seal, No. 0471. Running time, 10½ mins. "G."

"Pathe Topics, No. 1"

(Pathe-Radio)

The U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey at work and Dr. Rockwell's humorous dissertation on Social Credit lead up to a series of shots made by a National Geographic Society expedition to Alaska in the St. Elias range which are described as the American Himalayas. The mountains and snowfields and glaciers are majestically photographed and provide a treat for the eye. This short should be found interesting and entertaining by most audiences. Recommended. No Production Code Seal. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Screen Snapshots, No. 2"

(Columbia)

Interesting spots in and around Hollywood as usual make the subject matter of this effort. Off the screen activities of the various satellites such as their hobbies and where they seek their entertainment are described by an off screen voice that appears to have a strange sense of humor. The subjects clown in a way for the camera's benefit. When the program has two good features this might be played for diversion. Production Code Seal No. 1202. Running time 10 mins. "G."

"A Returned Engagement"

(Radio)

Ford Sterling and Marjorie Gateson, when they set out to prevent their son, George Stuart, from marrying a manicurist run into all the usual complications that make standard comedy fare. Sterling meets an old flame, another manicurist, and has his troubles getting rid of her without arousing his wife's suspicion. Tom Kennedy, house detective, is about the hotel in the approved manner. There are some interspersed surefire laughs. It classes as reliable comedy fare. Production Code Seal, No. 949. Running time, 21 mins. "G."

"A Happy Family"

(Columbia)

When Krazy Kat's uncle and relatives come to visit him they come en masse and sing what a happy family they are while the children proceed to wreck the house and generally raise hell. Krazy gives the business up and looks for peace in the dog house but even there he is not welcome. Production Code Seal No. 879. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Mary Burns, Fugitive"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 7.—Stark drama, keyed to stir sympathetic emotion and enfolding a similarly grounded semi-comedy romance, this appears capable of handing audiences a real wallop. It is a picture that showmen can sell with enthusiasm. Based on a sound, topical headline news story, and written in a characteristic Gene Towne-Graham Baker style, with intelligent direction by William K. Howard, its plot is simple yet no production detail is lacking for the realization of its full power. The picture is paced by exceptional performances by Sylvia Sidney, Melvyn Douglas and Alan Baxter.

Miss Sidney's love for Baxter, who she does not know to be an ace public enemy, permits circumstantial evidence to jail her. G-men arrange for her escape, believing that she will lead them to Baxter's hideout. Hating her erstwhile lover and trailed by Federal operatives, she obtains a hospital job in which a comedy-romance with human interest twists involves her and Douglas.

Hounded by Douglas, gangsters and G-men, Miss Sidney eventually flees to Douglas's mountain retreat. Suspense common to all previous action pictures is intensified here as Baxter, attempting to escape from the Federal trap laid for him, is about to kill Douglas, only to have Miss Sidney exact her own revenge by slaying the public enemy. A pardon gained for her through Douglas's influence is her reward, assuring her happy future with him.

Meaty and grim in all but its romantic phases, the action, dialogue and situations are skilfully blended to create and maintain interest. If sold with sock and color matching that of its theme, and with efforts made to attract feminine attention, the picture should make a deep popular impression. With Miss Sidney, Douglas and Baxter carrying the main exploitation load, other featured names, especially those of Wallace Ford, Pert Kelton and Brian Donleavy, should not be overlooked. Walter Wanger produced.

Production Code Seal No. 1,664. Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

Looking 'em Over

"False Pretenses"

(Chesterfield)

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 7.—This one unquestionably is designed for neighborhood and twin bill houses. It has an illogical plot and, what's more, insincere acting by a cast headlined by Irene Ware. Sydney Blackmer, Betty Compson and Russell Hopton support her in a so-so manner.

The heroine is fired as a waitress because of her impetuous and obstreperous boy friend. At a chance meeting with Blackmer Miss Ware sells an ex-millionaire the idea of promoting her in a stock selling proposition. The gag is to get Blackmer's friends to put up a wad of money so that the heroine and Blackmer can swank it up with his friends. The heroine is supposed to fall in love with one of the rich associates of the co-schemer and after she becomes heir to a fortune she is to pay back the money with interest.

The plot doesn't work out that way. Instead, Miss Ware falls for Hopton, a racketeer, and when she gets into a jam over a missing tiara, Hopton comes to her aid. Later Blackmer convinces Hopton the heroine is on the level and said hero heads straight for his loved one, pays off the creditors and gets himself a cute bundle of Ware.

Blackmer, who all along couldn't make up his mind about marrying Miss Compson, finally consents.

Everything ends well when there's a scenario to guide you.

Production Code Seal No. 1,314. "G."

"His Marriage Mixup"

(Columbia)

Harry Langdon has his difficulties in this one with his bride who resembles an escaped axe murderess. On their wedding day they are annoyed by Langdon's uncle, Vernon Dent, who is out to warn Langdon. Production Code Seal No. 1512. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

"Aladdin's Lamp"

One of the Terry-Toons series of cartoons, this subject rather burlesques the old fairy tale. In this version, Aladdin finds his magic lamp producing Ed Wynn to save him. Rates as average cartoon material. No production code seal. Running time, 6 mins. "G."

Quip of the Day

Goosie, Goosie Ga-ga
Is going to sue for Slan-da,
Because he's dumb and high up
He thinks we fear his fly-up.
Caring little for figures or facts,
Overlooking percentages and tax,
Avoiding playdates that annoy me,
Boosting first runs that destroy me,
Shoving the small business man
Like so much film, in the can.
If with complaints we persist,
He yells "cease and desist."
After he stirs up a hot-stew
From weakness, he weeps "I'll sue."
But his talk fast and screw-loose,
Will only get him a gander or a goose!
Choose your weapons, Ali Gaga,
Max Shobbus is on the quee-vee.

High Brow!

The other day an old school film salesman remarked to us: "Motion Picture Herald is a swell book, but it's too classy, too highbrow—they don't get it, etc."

That, we deem, is a great compliment and a great error—a compliment too to the 13,844 showmen readers who so cheerfully and promptly pay three dollars a year to get it.*

Motion Picture Herald's standards of the printed page represent the normal evolutions of a journalism which has kept abreast of the best in the attainments of the art and industry which it serves. The nickelodeon is a fossil and along with it the journalism that served it.

If "The Herald" does not go there, it isn't a theatre. For those who yearn for the sawdust on the floor and the carnival patois of the long ago there are fossiliferous journals to serve them.

Motion Picture Herald is edited for the showmen of today, with the knowledge that the intelligence of its audience is as high as that of any numerically equal audience in the world.

'Stepchildren' on the Bill Very Often Save Program

They Are the Short Subjects, Six of Which Soon To Be Released Are Herewith Reviewed.

By GERALD BREITIGAM.

IT is the custom of many people attending the movies to feast on the features and sleep through the short subjects. Did they but know it this is the sleep of indigestion which often follows a poorly cooked meal. Likewise, it might be much wiser to stay awake through the shorts and sleep through the feature, as was amply demonstrated yesterday at a preview of no less than six short subjects soon to be released through the metropolitan district.

Even the assorted collection of film executives, exhibitors and critics who watched the program in the Twentieth Century-Fox Little Theater seemed moved to general approval. And that's saying a lot, for they are all behind the counter.

It really seemed too bad that such charming travelogues as Ernest Truex's "West Indies Cruise," such sprightly comedies as "Ladies Love Hats" and such thrilling adventures of the newsreel camera as "Hazardous Occupations" should have to go out into the world as stepchildren of the program. However, as long as movie theaters are run for middle-aged ladies who like to hiss villains and crumple handkerchiefs over Dolly Dulcy in a he-man's arms, you'll have features, no matter how indifferent. And as long as you have lovers who like to sit in the smoke-filled darkness of the balcony lethal chamber and cuddle you won't have a program all of shorts.

Gerald Breitigam.

Off on Magic Carpet.

"WEST INDIES CRUISE" used a great new flying boat for its magic carpet on which to whisk the observer away to Nassau and the Bahamas, to Haiti and Emperor Christophe's mighty fortress in the clouds, to lazy tropic seas curling on white beaches, to Negroes cutting sugar cane and oxen turning the ancient stone wheels that grind it out, to coral isles and palm trees fronded against skies of galleon clouds, to mountains as high as the glory of God bulking up from the placid sea.

Then there was "Hazardous Occupations," in which the newsreel cameramen do their old stunt of thrilling you, but this time with the restraint is admirable. some details of the man who slipped left out. This particular film and builds a far greater thrill than gory details. This time with the gruesome ranges the world, showing workers on New York's newest bridges, skyscraper window cleaners, steeplejacks swinging around like monkeys, workers in the Saar steel mills, the man who rides every day above Niagara Falls in a basket suspended from the sky in order to paint and inspect the Suspension Bridge cables, fire in the forest and the asbestos-clad gnomes who combat an oil well fire in Oklahoma, and a host of others. Biggest thrill of all is seeing a cameraman climb with his bulky equipment to the top of a Chicago skyscraper in order to picture the town. You remember and like the diminutive Ernest Truex, and here in a snappy story from the pen of Ray McCardell entitled "Ladies Love Hats" is the same Broadway star in a real mirth maker. As a porch-climber he's only a volunteer, but he thinks fast.

Music, Mirth and Pickaninnies.

ANOTHER comedy, this one a musical, is "Moonlight and Melody," in which the jointless Lucille Page, as the star of a Broadway show, gracefully ties herself in pretzels; in which the brunette Rita Rio croons huskily, and sways sinuously; in which Buster West and Tom Patricola do wegman service to help the girls get through a light but engaging story, and in which Johnny Johnson and his Hotel Commodore Orchestra discourse catchy music.

Of the others, there is "Aladdin's Lamp," which is fun ..... It's a Paul Terry-Toons. And there is "Way Out West," with those five little Negro kids invading a frontier saloon in search of Alabama Sam, cook at the Bar Z Ranch, who is their daddy. They call them "The Cabin Kids." Like Little Tommy Tucker of the old nursery rhymes, they sing for their supper. The amusing thing to see yesterday, which, incidentally, you won't be able to observe when this one plays your neighborhood house, was the smallest of these five little darkies roaming the theater aisles in search of the little boys' room.

It was a good bill, and food for reflection upon the thought that the stepchildren of the program often save the show.

Summations in Trust Action Are Finished

Charge to Jury, Verdict Due on Monday

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 8.—Summations by George S. Leisure, Jacob M. Lashly and ex-Senator James A. Reed for the defense and Russell Hardy for the Government were concluded at 2:55 this afternoon, winding up all arguments in the anti-trust trial which has been before the court for six weeks.

Despite repeated efforts by defense counsel to have Federal Judge George H. Moore instruct the jury this afternoon or Saturday, the court ruled this would be done Monday when the session will be reconvened in the new court house at 12th and Market Sts. The jury will undoubtedly hand down a verdict on Armistice day. Counsel for Warners, Paramount and

While Pettijohn's in Rome Republicans Burn at Home

HARRISON, N. Y., Nov. 8.—It's getting so a statesman never knows what is going to happen next. With Councilman-elect Charles Clyde Pettijohn in Italy trying to convince Premier Mussolini that the Fascists need plenty of American films to keep their minds off meatless days and Addis Ababa, along comes a Republican here and tries to apply a sanction to C. C.'s election last Tuesday.

Pettijohn went off to Rome in the midst of the campaign, leaving a swell season's golf score and a sound film short intended to convince voters that what Harrison needed was a good Democratic councilman.

From the Biltmore Theatre and Westchester Country Club screens he said: "Don't let anyone think I've been run out of town. I have a previous business engagement in Italy. I shall come back on Thanksgiving Day. I shall return either as a town father or as the quietest little boy in Westchester County.

"I hope that the whispering campaign that has developed since I left will not influence anyone. Don't believe any of the lies told about me."

It wasn't argumentative in the usual campaign way. It was a simple exhortation done with the Kaw Indian —or is it Escrow?—poise for which Pettijohn is famous on and off the links.

Voters were convinced. On Tuesday they turned down two Republicans and elected Pettijohn and Raymond J. Funkhouser by heavy majorities.

Now County Register Arthur S. Maudlin says Pettijohn's election was illegal because he doesn't own property in Westchester. Maudlin is a Republican.

The county clerk says he received a telephone call on Election day to open his office so property deeds could be filed by Pettijohn and Funkhouser. His deputy opened the office and received the deeds, but Maudlin says the office wasn't open officially.

Pettijohn is so busy in Rome that his friends haven't heard yet whether he will take the case to Geneva or Yonkers. Mussolini is reported neutral.

U. A. Finishes Argument on City Sales Tax

Case Is Expected to Go To Court for Ruling

United Artists completed the presentation of its arguments against the taxability of local film rentals under the city sales tax ordinance at a hearing yesterday before a committee of the city finance department, which reserved decision on the validity of the proposed levy.

The assessment by the city against the U. A. rentals is being contested as a test case for all local distributors, whose rentals would be subject to an estimated aggregate tax of $700,000 if the city is successful in establishing the validity of its levy. An assessment was also made against Universal's local film rentals, but further action on this has been held in abey-

Wiseman Move Sets Back Para. Hearing

Sir William Wiseman, partner in Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and a former director of Paramount Publix, yesterday forestalled the beginning of examinations before trial of former officers and directors of Paramount who are defendants in an action brought by trustees of the company to recover large sums involved in the issuance and allotment to subscribers of Paramount stock in 1931.

Wiseman was the first of the defendants to be subpoenaed for examination yesterday before Special Master John E. Joyce. Prior to the hearing he moved for an order to have the subpoena vacated, and his motion was set for hearing next Wednesday in Federal district court. No other defendants have been subpoenaed yet.

Former U. S. Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware, receiver for G. T. E., was the first witness called.

Due to what Murray W. Garsson, attorney for the Sabath committee, described as "the importance of the testimony involved in the investigation," it was decided to make the subcommittee's proceedings exploratory in character and, if the preliminary

Court Fight Looms On Penn Film Vote

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 8.—Sunday films in this state are being threatened by an injunction and a court test case by Blue Law leaders, it was revealed here last night by the Rev. William Forney, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, on the ground the measure didn't pass according to the terms of the Referendum Act which states that a majority of the voters must approve.

While the question received an overwhelming majority vote at the election, a total of 352,832 votes for Sunday shows was not half the total of the 715,569 votes that were cast for mayoralty candidates.

Exhibitors believe the courts will interpret this phase to mean that a majority of the voters voted favorably on the question.

Milwaukee Council Opposes Dual Bills

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 8.—The Better Films Council has adopted a resolution protesting double features. The resolution points out that duals are "making a demand for quantity rather than quality" and make the "family night program" impossible.

The council has been endeavoring to induce exhibitors to have family night programs the end of the week. Programs need news reels and "refreshing shorts" to make them satisfactory, the resolution stated.

Despite an overwhelming preponderance voting in favor of single features during the poll conducted several months ago by the I. T. P. A. in Milwaukee county, duals are shown in practically all neighborhood spots as well as in several first runs.

As a result of the charges of misrepresentation, which Garsson said were received from "thousands of bondholders," Inspector Moore of the Postoffice Department, N. Y., put in an appearance at the hearing rooms yesterday and will observe the proceedings for possible evidence of misuse of the mails.

Similar complaints from security holders of Fox Metropolitan Playhouses figured in the Sabath committee's investigation of reorganization of that company, Garsson said. The commitee's report on its study of that reorganization has been turned over to the Federal district attorney here for study.

ance pending the outcome of the test case.

The U. A. defense was based upon the industry contention that films are licensed under Federal copyright laws and not sold, and hence are not subject to a local sales tax. Witnesses who testified yesterday for U. A. included Paul Lazarus, Edward Mullen, U. A. branch manager here, and Harry Muller, U. A. treasurer. Gabriel L. Hess, M.P.P.D.A. attorney, was an observer at the hearing.

Indications are, according to those close to the proceedings, that the city finance committee will hold film revenues to be taxable under the city ordinance in order to pave the way for a formal court opinion and precedent on the subject. The committee is empowered to pass upon the validity of the levy, but its findings are subject to review by the courts. In the event of the almost certain adverse ruling from the city committee, the industry, through U. A., will appeal the case to the Appellate Division of the N. Y. Supreme Court for a ruling.

Accountants for both the city and U. A. were given an indefinite period in which to agree on items of exchange income which would be taxable in the event the levy was held valid.

RKO anticipate a favorable decision within an hour after the 12 jurors leave the box.

Reed was the most effective talker of the day. He spoke for almost two hours, several times stamping his feet, waving contracts before the jury, pointing his finger and removing his horn-rimmed glasses at intervals. Leisure was calm, never raising his voice, while Lashly at different intervals pitched his voice as high as he could and bent his knees almost to the floor to emphasize certain points.

Hardy talked in low tones and directly to the jury. He was interrupted twice, once by Frederick H. Wood and another time by Reed, who were cautioned against the practice. When he completed his closing arguments, Hardy had 70 minutes of the five hours allotted to him unused. All statements by Arthur and a number of other Government witnesses were refuted by the defense.

Leisure Speaks First

Leisure, the first to take the floor, argued that Ned E. Depinet could never have made a statement about Warners bringing pressure because of a clause in the contract between the two companies which provides that in the event RKO re-enters exhibition here the pact would be canceled. He stated Arthur got John S. Leahy to the Park Plaza Hotel in New York on false pretenses as Depinet had never been Arthur's "friend of long standing."

Arthur's interest in the case, Leisure said, is that he expects to gain fame and wealth by collecting triple damages and sending the defendants to jail. F. & M. were in mischief in St. Louis and will be in more before they get through, the RKO attorney declared.

"I don't believe any man on the jury has any doubt Depinet is an honest man," Leisure stated after sketching the RKO head's history. He also said Hardy was inconsistent when the Government held a letter signed by both parties was not a binding contract. In reference to Cresson E. Smith testifying falsely, Leisure said, "I'd like to take Hardy 10 months from today and ask him what he said on the stand here and see if he remembers his testimony."

Case Groundless, Says Reed

Lashly described the issue as "just an ordinary business dispute between men over money and properties." He said that if the bondholders had gone through with the agreement reached with Warners on Sept. 18, 1933, "we wouldn't be here."

He stated, "It's strange the jury couldn't hear Harry Koplar's story," and asked, "why don't we hear from him?" He recited the alleged trouble RKO had with the Koplar-Arthur-F. & M.-Snyder group about so-called false box office reports, how Arthur had claimed he had lost $33,000 on RKO pictures, holding this was good enough reason for Depinet closing a deal with Warners.

"All these things are part of peculiar and sinister fights by Koplar who sets them into motion and then disappears," Lashly stated.

Reed reviewed the Warner situation thoroughly, going over the ground covered previously. He pointed out how the company had tried to salvage its $4,000,000 equity and work out a plan of reorganization with the bondholders for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central; the decision to take the Shubert-Rialto for its own pictures and later the Orpheum to give the company representation in the uptown and downtown districts, and the individual negotiations with Paramount and RKO for product.

The former Senator said he had never seen as groundless a case in all his life. "We are seriously handicapped by Abel Carey Thomas' absence," he added. "I never heard a speech to a jury so unfair as Hardy's." He declared that the Government tried to keep out the facts.

Calls Trial One-Sided

"Neither the Government, Congress nor President Roosevelt ordered this case," Reed stated. "It was just Hardy who did."

The ex-Senator held the grand jury investigation and trial were one-sided and "Hardy says with a sneer that there are so many lawyers here. When can you indict 15 parties and not have a lawyer for each?" he inquired.

Lambasting the prosecutor again, Reed said "he's had the grand jury notes for weeks. He's had sleuths all the time and it only came out when Samuel W. Fordyce put him on the stand and asked him about it."

Refuting Hardy's previous statement about certain of the Government witnesses not having an interest in the case, Reed pointed out that Thomas N. Dysart, chairman of the bondholders' committee, tried to secure his job for 16 years when he insisted on the committee getting control of the voting trustees instead of Warners.

Joseph Grand and Frederick H. Kreismann, he said, were on the bondholders' committee. Most everyone had an interest, Reed asserted, and "I can show some lied and have very treacherous memories."

Charges Distortion

Reed declared Hardy distorted everything that took place at the conferences, saying, "How willing he is to give a false impression." In answer to Hardy's query why Paramount and RKO did not commit their films to all three bidders for the houses, Reed said, "How in the world could they do it?" Referring to the Park Plaza meeting, the ex-Senator stated, "John Barleycorn was talking instead of John S. Leahy when the latter said in substance and effect that Depinet should break the contract with Warners."

The ex-Senator then lashed into a trenchant delineation of Government witnesses, calling J. M. Ulmer of Cleveland "as sharp as a rattlesnake, full of malice for Warners" because of a dispute over a lease of the Capitol, Wheeling, W. Va. He compared the character of Sam B. Jeffries, Arthur Simpson and Miles Alben with some of the Government lawyers who testified, adding, "if Hardy can write a better history for himself than Jeffries he's a better man than I think he is."

Reed asked why Harold Schilz, who had attended the Washington meeting and queried Herman Starr at the time on the purchase of the defaulted bonds, was not put on the stand. "He's the man who blasts on the bugle horn with a 1,000 toots and never lets one out." He then wanted to know why Will H. Hays, Charles C. Pettijohn and Gabriel Hess were not subpoenaed and interrogated. "What happened to Adolph and Eugene Zukor and Ralph Kohn about whom so many questions were asked of George J. Schaefer?" the Warner chief counsel queried.

"All we did was fight a conspiracy," Reed stated.

"Mosaic of Falsehood"

"The contradictions of Hardy's witnesses make a mosaic of falsehoods and are hardly worth while going over," the former Senator said. Reed reviewed Arthur's advent into the local theatre situation with acquisition of the St. Louis in November, 1933, the Fox in January, 1934 and the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central in February of last year, all of which the Warner attorney declared happened in 60 days. "The Arthur group was violating the Sherman law by trying to take away pictures that didn't belong to them," Reed held. "We got about 100 pictures from Paramount and RKO. Are we to be punished because the other people with five theatres couldn't get enough product?"

"The only thing in this case is the charge we conspired to restrain interstate commerce by preventing the shipment of films to three theatres. It's a bottomless case, as inflated as a balloon," Reed concluded.

In concluding summations, Hardy again charged the defense counsel with the use of an old trick by their insistence F. & M. had a monopoly. "It's a lot of claptrap," the prosecutor said. "You don't have to decide," he informed the jury, "whether I'm a rascal or a saint."

Apologizes for Gentry

He said the reason for objecting to the introduction of many exhibits was because he only wanted "reliable evidence." He contended the reason Paramount brought in the minutes of the Campi session of Mar. 12, 1934, and the report on Schaefer's long distance calls from Miami was "to deceive the jury." He declared the men who were responsible for the records should have been brought to the stand to testify.

Hardy apologized for William R. Gentry describing Arthur as a "perjurer." Gentry objected, but the prosecutor insisted on entering the fact into the record whether the Paramount attorney liked it or not. He denied Arthur had lied on the stand. Hardy said the fact Wood called the Koplar group "crooked" is hearsay and had not been proved. He called it an unfounded accusation, holding if it were true RKO should have brought suit in the courts to collect monies due.

"Why should we bring Koplar in? Anything he knows or does is utterly irrelevant to the case," the prosecuting attorney stated. He also described as "perfectly ridiculous" the statement made by Reed that "Koplar tried to get Warners over a barrel."

"I don't know if you've ever seen Koplar, but he is the last man in the world to get a man over a barrel," Hardy said.

Interest High-Pitched

The Government representative explained the reason for not putting Schilz on the stand was because of independent evidence of the purchase of the bonds and the use made of them.

"If a monopoly existed the defendants should have taken recourse of the courts," Hardy insisted. "If they were fearful of the Dept. of Justice they could have obtained an injunction."

None of the defendants and principals in the case will go to New York for the week-end. Interest is at a high pitch here and everyone is on edge awaiting the decision on Monday of the 12 jurymen who have patiently sat through 29 days of the trial.

Looking 'em Over

"She Couldn't Take It"

(Schulberg-Columbia)

B. P. Schulberg has built a picture around the comedy angles of a reformed gangster placed in charge of the estate of an irresponsible family of aristocrats for the purpose of curbing their extravagances.

A good old fashioned automobile chase with the police coming to the rescue of the imprisoned maiden is depended upon for the outdoor action and thrills.

With an ordinary cast the picture would be entertainment for the type of patrons who crave action and not much credibility. With Joan Bennett, George Raft, Walter Connolly and Billie Burke, it is an hour and a quarter of moving celluloid that leaves one wondering why such high priced talent couldn't have something worthy of its efforts.

At the start Connolly goes to jail rather than fight an income tax charge because he wants a rest. He forms a cell friendship for Raft and makes him trustee of his estate on his death bed after exacting a promise to curb the family extravagances. Miss Bennett, as the daughter, rounds up Raft's former gang and suggests that they kidnap her so she can share the ransom money with them.

Raft tries paying ransom money, but runs into complications after Billie Burke has informed the police without his knowledge. The big police chase is hung on this. Raft eventually scares the gang out of the family estate, where they are holding Miss Bennett captive, and they run into the pursuing minions of the law. She falls into Raft's arms in tears.

An audience at the Center seemed to take it quite calmly.

Sales of theatre supplies in this section are up 30 per cent over last year, according to C. H. Badger of the Stebbins Theatre Equipment Co.

Camera Noise Tests To Be Finished Soon

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 8.—Camera noise tests started some weeks ago by the Silent Camera Sub-committee of the Academy Research Council will soon be completed. The experiments involve several cameras, some of new design and others of the blimped type now used. They are being tested with a noise analysis meter. From the data obtained it will be possible to determine the relative loudness of each of the various component frequencies that make up "camera noise."

From the research mentioned the sub-committee hopes to be able to make recommendations for the gradual elimination of a portion of the camera noise that is a source of trouble on the set.

G.T.E. Bondholders Lose In Kansas City Case

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 10.—Six bondholders of General Theatres Equipment, Inc., have been denied the right to review proceedings in bankruptcy of Fox Rocky Mountain and Fox Midland Theatre companies by Judge Albert L. Reeves of the Federal district court.

In the memorandum opinion Judge Reeves at the same time dismissed the bondholders' ancillary and dependent position.

The debenture bondholders had, in a legal move instituted just before the sale of the theatre properties to National Theatres Corp. here this spring, sought to impose, in their favor, a lien on the assets of the bankrupts. Judge Reeves based his opinion on the ancillary petition, filed originally on April

Predicts Missouri Sales Tax Will Stay

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 10.—The sales tax is in Missouri to stay, and the state cannot rely upon any other form of taxation to provide funds for old age pensions, Jerome Joffee, state senator and author of the Missouri old age pension law, said here.

While Joffee regards the "bottle cap" tokens as a successful collection method, he believes the legislature will provide for metal tokens at the next session.

Unemployment is increasing in the state, he said, and a large number of the unemployed will prove to be permanently unemployable. Senator Joffee advocates an unemployment insurance law in Missouri providing payment to unemployables of a specified sum over a specified period.

Standard Not To Build Film Interests Now

May Do So Later, Says J. Cheever Cowdin

While an extension of Standard Capital Co.'s financial interest in the industry is probable at some future date, there is little likelihood that new film investments will be undertaken by it in advance of a conclusion of its current dealings with Universal, J. Cheever Cowdin, head of Standard, said on Saturday.

The Universal deal is expected to occupy the company's attention for many weeks to come, Cowdin said. He added, however, that if good investment opportunities in the industry presented themselves they would be investigated.

Cowdin stated officially that Standard's option to purchase Universal for $5,500,000 in addition to the $750,000 loan recently made to the company had not been exercised yet and probably would not be for several weeks

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

MORE notes from a bedside rest: S. A. Lynch, whose status as advisor on theatre reorganizations for Paramount during the past two years, has kept him in the forefront of the company's executive ranks while at the same time it created speculation concerning his future status there, is expected to wind up his duties with the completion of a reorganization plan for Olympia Theatres, the New England circuit. This is expected any time before the first of the year and perhaps within the next few weeks. . . .

The election of Y. Frank Freeman to a vice-presidency offers the answer to the speculation concerning Lynch's future in Paramount. The inference to be drawn from Freeman's elevation, and the correct one, so say those in Paramount who should know, is that the vice-presidency will carry with it full authority over the company's theatre affairs. Additionally, with decentralized operation continuing as a company policy, there is no need of two top-flight theatre executives such as Freeman and Lynch in the organization, the same sources point out without qualifying statements. . . .

Lynch, whose former Southern Enterprises brought him a tidy fortune when sold to Paramount in the late '20's, came into the home office at the request of the Paramount trustees to advise on theatre reorganizations. He was asked by John E. Otterson to continue in the same capacity following the launching of the new company. In that capacity, Lynch has been engaged primarily on the rehabilitation of Olympia, which is now nearing its conclusion. Freeman, former general manager of Southern Enterprises for Lynch, came in about the same time to direct actual theatre operations. His record in that capacity earned him the new and permanent label—so says a well-pleased Paramount management. . . .

Robert K. Cassatt, Philadelphia broker, is mulling over the idea of resigning from the Paramount board. There is no haste about his inclination and the board, itself, while it knows of his attitude, has not been asked to consider a resignation yet. Press of business affairs which limits the time Cassatt is able to give to Paramount duties, makes an eventual resignation appear likely. This and other changes in the board are not unexpected. Neither should these various steps, as they develop, occasion any undue surprise. From the very beginnings of the revamped company, it was made clear, apparently to be forgotten by those who remember lightly, that the board would ultimately compress its numbers to a sort of handful total to permit of a more facile administration. This, exactly, is what is happening. . . .

About George J. Schaefer and a Paramount theatre participation. It's simple to figure. Less limelight, less title—yes. Greater reward—also yes. For the Paramount partners generally are doing handsomely for themselves. Schaefer's shuttling between New York and St. Louis has slowed up arrangements, but the understanding seems quite set now that the spot proposed for him is with the old F. and R. circuit operating in and out of Minneapolis. If Schaefer steps down from his distribution post, indications are Neil F. Agnew will step up. . . .

The blue laws of two centuries' standing now give way to modern thought in Pennsylvania's important cities where the public, furnished its inalienable right to express its viewpoint by the referendum, voted generously for Sunday shows. The step puts that state in the normal column by giving the masses on Sundays what they get the other six days of the week. Any other procedure would be like continuing to keep apart Astaire and Rogers, Goldwyn and anecdotes, Yates and handball, Aylesworth and "21," Laemmle and "Straight-from the Shoulder" talks, Breen and production codes, Joe Schenck and rhumba. . . .

Warners' Buildings Over Half Finished

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 10.—Warners' big building program is well over half completed, and is expected to be finished by Dec. 15.

Seven of the nine new stages are finished and working, and foundations have been laid for the other two, which will bring the total of stages on the Burbank lot to 18. The new property building will be ready for occupancy Dec. 5.

The new crafts building will be the biggest single edifice on any lot. It covers five acres, and will house the mills, foundries and shops which were destroyed last year by fire.

The experimental laboratories for sound and camera research will be housed in a two-story building, 170 by 65 feet, which also will house a research library and museum.

The old stage No. 7 now is the only frame building left. It has been moved to the back lot. After being stuccoed, it will serve as a storage and labor department building.

Court Denies Action Aimed At Fox Setup

22, but amended and filed again in June, because it contained all the points raised by the petitioners.

The petitioners—Jacob Smith, Lee H. Hamlin, William Snower, Ray D. Jones, Anna Kupper and Katherine K. Mosher—asked the court to prevent the sale; to stay the bankruptcy proceedings; to have the estates reappraised and the "actual value thereof determined and established;" to declare that the assets of Fox Rocky Mountain and Fox Midland part and parcel of "the assets wrongfully and illegally diverted" from General Theatres and that the petitioners were entitled to have a lien impressed upon the assets in their favor; that the lien "be foreclosed and said assets sold to pay off said bonds, principal and interest, and costs;" and asked for an accounting by Chase National, Fox Film and subsidiaries "as to the assets so wrongfully diverted."

Their chief contention was that the corporations in bankruptcy had been fraudulently formed.

Fox Film Stock Pledged

General Theatres, a Delaware holding company organized in 1929, owned, among other assets, the voting stock of Fox Film. Fox owned the capital stock of Wesco, which directly or indirectly owned the stock of Fox Rocky Mountain and Fox Midland.

Chase Securities Corporation, subsidiary of Chase National Bank, promoted the issuance and sale of $30,000,000 of six per cent 10-year debenture bonds for General in April, 1930. General executed an indenture to secure the bond issue and Chase National was named as trustee. Under the indenture, or mortgage, General contracted not to "create or suffer to be created or to exist any pledge, mortgage or other lien of or upon any of the shares of stock of subsidiaries or other assets owned by the corporation so long as any of the debentures remain outstanding."

Among assets pledged as security for the debentures was the stock of Fox Film.

Petitioners claimed this violated the indenture.

Bankruptcy proceedings were closed in July, this year, and the theatre properties involved proceeded to reorganize under National Theatre ownership.

The present decision clears up the bankruptcy proceedings. It has no bearing on the rights of petitioners to proceed against Chase National, General Theatres Equipment, or some other corporation, but it indicates Judge Reeves' opinion that they cannot proceed in this court, in this case, against the bankrupt corporations.

to come. Examinations of Universal's books are still in progress on both coasts and Standard will make no decision in advance of their completion, Cowdin said. He estimated that the study would require "a few weeks."

The Standard head reiterated that no sweeping executive changes are contemplated for Universal in the event the option is exercised, adding that he wanted Carl Laemmle to remain with the company if a sale is consummated. He also confirmed the fact that no arrangements have been made for Charles R. Rogers to take over direction of the Universal studio in advance of a decision on the purchase option. If and when that occurs Rogers will immediately become studio head, Cowdin said.

He added that it was not his policy to participate directly in the management affairs of firms in which he was interested, inferring that full authority and active direction of Universal would be left to the executive appointees. All employees of the company, executive and otherwise, would be judged solely on their performances before replacements of any kind were made, he said.

Cowdin stated that Standard Capital is his own organization and has no association with other banking or investment firms. In reply to a question, he said that while he had known Dr. A. H. Giannini for 20 years neither he nor the Bank of America National Ass'n were in any way identified with the Universal deal or other Standard activities.

In the informal interview with Cowdin the banker evidenced a keen understanding of the industry and revealed indications of having made a penetrating analysis of the problems and needs of Universal. His attitude toward the company's future is definitely optimistic.

Later there followed a conference between Rogers, Taylor and Levey when it was proposed to have Taylor's book, "Stranger Than Fiction," adapted for the movies. After negotiations had been entered into with Columbia Pictures Corp. the defendants formed a new corporation, Rex Film Corp., it was charged, which eventually entered into an agreement with Columbia. He charged further that Voe Picture Corp. should have been the party to that agreement and that the contract entered between Rex and Columbia was the property of Voe Pictures Corp. Gaumont British Theatre, Manchester, a 2,350-seater on the site of the old Hippodrome, has been opened. Sidney Bernstein initiated the rebuilding scheme but G.B. took over the theatre before completion in order to obtain a key house in the centre of Manchester.

"No statement," is still the official K.R.S. reply to all requests for details of the society's attitude on the Gaumont-H. & G. deal in its latest form. Since distributors refused to recognize the transfer of the Hyams theatres to Gaumont British Super Cinemas, Ltd., stating that they would book only to H. & G., the latter company has gone out of existence and the H. & G. theatres have become the property of the G. B. subsidiary, in which Major A. J. Gale and the Hyams brothers are associated. Major Gale is acting as booking manager, as he did for H. & G., but it is generally believed that the question of the closer association of these halls with the major G. B. circuit, for booking purposes, must arise in the near future.

mer U. S. Senator James A. Reed, who Saturday celebrated his 74th birthday. Next is Frederick H. Wood of Cravath, De Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, New York. Both have been representing the Warner group. William R. Gentry of Watts & Gentry, St. Louis, and Samuel W. Fordyce of Fordyce, White, Maine & Williams, St. Louis, have been representing Paramount and Schaefer, George S. Leisure, partner of Donovan, Leisure, Newton & Lombard, New York, and Jacob M. Lashly of Lashly, Lashly & Miller, St. Louis, have been presenting the case of Depinet and RKO. Russell Hardy, special assistant to the attorney general, has been prosecuting the indictments for the Government.

Attorney Was Fined

Many exhibitor leaders from all parts of the country have made special trips to attend the sessions, including James Coston, Ed Dubinsky, John and Barney Balaban, Harry A. Cole, Don Thornburg, Elmer C. Rhoden, Frank L. Newman, Sr., Harry Singer, David Idzal, Moe Silver, Clayton Bond, Jack Miller and former exhibitors L. K. Brin and Claude Ezell. Numerous theatre owners from surrounding cities have dropped in from time to time.

Two of the highlights in the last few weeks have included the presence of Harry Koplar, whose name has been flaunted as "the man behind the conspiracy" action, and the imposing of a $25 fine on Harold Schilz, one of Hardy's assistants, for shouting "That's a damn lie" to Leisure when the latter insisted that a copy of Cresson E. Smith's memorandum of Aug. 17, 1934, returned by the Government was a duplicate and not an original.

40 Witnesses Called

Of 40 witnesses subpoenaed. the Government put 23 on the stand, excluding Gordon E. Youngman, RKO attorney, who voluntarily testified in connection with the drafting of the RKO-Warner contract. The men called to the stand by Hardy were Harry C. Arthur, Jr., vice-president of F. & M.; Thomas M. Dysart, chairman of the bondholders' committee for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central, and head of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce; M. A. Rosenthal of Securities Service Co., Chicago; David Levinson, Windy City attorney who drafted the reorganization plan for the three theatres; Frederick H. Kreismann, former St. Louis mayor and the president of a local insurance company; Jack Allen Partington, president of F. & M.; Jacob Chasnoff of the local legal firm of Taylor, Chasnoff & Wilson and a member of the bondholders' group; Frederick W. Strauss of Strauss Securities, Chicago, and a member of the bondholders' committee; Joseph Grand of Greensfeld & Grand, St. Louis legal firm, and member of the bondholders group; John S. Leahy, local attorney, counsel for Allen L. Snyder and the two trustees of the Fox Theatre here; Clarence M. Turley, real estate operator and co-guarantor with Spyros Skouras on the bonds of the three theatres involved; Cresson E. Smith, Southern and western sales manager for RKO; Hall Walsh, manager of the local Vitagraph exchange; J. M. Ulmer of Ulmer, Berne & Gordon, Cleveland legal firm; Maurice Schweitzer, St. Louis Paramount exchange head; Clarence D. Hill, local Columbia branch manager; Clayton D. Lynch, M-G-M manager here; Joseph Garrison, pilot of the Universal office; Ben B. Reingold, Fox exchange manager; William Feldstein, United Artists chief here; Jules Levy, RKO general sales manager; Allen L. Snyder, who had $25,000 invested in the lease for the three theatres, and Edmond T. Koeln, one of the two trustees for the Fox.

Hardy on Stand

Hardy himself was on the stand twice, first at the opening of the trial and secondly when Fordyce asked him to testify in the presentation of Paramount's case. Among Government witnesses not called were Milton B. Arthur, Irving Lesser, Spyros Skouras, Sam Dembow, Charles Kurtzman, Harry Greenman, Fred Wehrenberg and Dinty Moore. B. D. Gordon of Cleveland, who took the stand to testify, was not permitted to talk when an objection by defense counsel was sustained.

Warner witnesses who gave testimony included the president of the company, Starr, Sears, Sam B. Jeffries, local counsel for Warners; Charles and A. D. Cella, owners of the Shubert-Rialto and Orpheum; Arthur Simpson, Jeffries' partner; George L. Weigand, treasurer of St. Louis Amusement, Co., and Miles Alben of the Warner home office legal staff.

Schaefer, Neil Agnew and A. A. Tyson, auditor of the Roney Plaza, Miami, where Schaefer spent a three-week vacation last year, were the only Paramount witnesses. Depinet and Smith comprised the duo who testified on behalf of RKO. Jules Levy, Walter Branson and Lou Ellman were expected to be called but a last minute change in plans prevented their taking the stand.

Numerous exhibits had been subpoenaed by both sides and were not introduced. About 100 exhibits in all are in evidence for the jury to scan before it hands down the momentous verdict.

Counsel Bitter

Bitterness between defense and prosecuting counsel has been rife since the start. Hardy has charged his adversaries with "officious" interference in the Government's case and on numerous occasions has decried the number of lawyers opposing a single Government attorney. He has made other accusations from time to time and in return has been denounced by defense counsel for making the statements.

Reed has openly expressed his opinions of Hardy, calling him "unfair" in addition to "distorting everything that took place." The ex-senator struck a blow at the prosecutor when he said Friday: "This is the first time I ever heard of the Sherman law being used to defend a monopoly and assist it in carrying out its nefarious purpose." Defense counsel several times has maintained Hardy's objections to introduction of certain conversations and exhibits were not in good faith after he had declared he wanted "all the facts."

In their limited summations, Reed, Wood, Gentry, Leisure and Lashly refuted all the statements by Government witnesses after the defendants themselves and other witnesses had made categorical denials. Gentry and Leisure held that Arthur's conversations with Schaefer and Depinet at specific times and places were "imaginary." They also asserted that the deals made with Warners were independently negotiated and signed "for good business reasons."

Claimed Legal Right

Warner counsel has contended that after failure to reach a final agreement with the bondholders' committee for the reorganization of the properties in which the company had an equity of approximately $4,000,000, the Shubert-Rialto and Orpheum were leased as a self protective move against a "monopoly." Reed and Wood have argued Warners had a legal right to lease these theatres and when RKO and Paramount product was purchased the company did not overbuy. Reed pictured Snyder as "a straw man" in the Arthur-Koplar-F. & M., charging that "the conspiracy and scheme originated out of the malice and cupidity of Koplar against Warner."

Arthur's contention has been, in substance, that he had oral agreements with Schaefer and Depinet before Paramount and RKO films were committed to Warner by letter. These statements, however, have been repeatedly denied by the two defendants.

None of the principals attending the trial left for New York over the week-end, but Leisure managed to spend Saturday and Sunday in Wichita.

Indictments Jan. 11

Indictments in the action were handed down on Jan. 11 last. The Government charged the defendants with conspiring to deprive Fanchon & Marco's Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central of first run product, under pressure from Warners.

The case has been watched closely by all branches of the industry because the Government had stressed the importance of the case at the outset, and had indicated that if it should win, other cases were likely to be filed with little delay.

The action grew out of transfer of control of the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central theatres from Warners to a company organized by Allen L. Snyder, and operated for that company by F. & M. Snyder and Harry C. Arthur, executive of F. & M., are understood to have been instrumental in bringing the matter to the attention of the Department of Justice. It was charged that the defendants conspired to shut off first run product from the three theatres for the benefit of the Orpheum and Shubert-Rialto, operated by Warners.

Immediately following the close of this case the equity action, on an application for an injunction to prevent the defendants from continuing their alleged refusal to supply first run product to the theatres, will be heard.

Jury Named Oct. 2

After several continuances from the date originally set for the trial by Judge Moore, court action got under way on Sept. 30, the jury finally being selected on Oct. 2. Throughout the length of the trial, however, Hardy carried the burden of the Government's case.

Throughout the trial, which was studded with dramatic episodes, some accidental and others designed for effect, the attorneys for both sides fought every step of the way, registering innumerable objections as witnesses were questioned and cross-examined. Judge Moore on one occasion denied motions of the defense for a mistrial, on the ground that Hardy's address to the jury had tended to prejudice and inflame the 12 men.

Arthur, a key figure in the entire proceeding, was the first witness for the prosecution. Hardy finally finished the Government's presentation of the case after 16 days of the trial.

The defense went into action immediately, concluding its side last Tuesday after 14 days. Hardy immediately took up his rebuttal. Summations by both sides occupied last Thursday and Friday, the court making his charge after a holiday on Saturday.

Complications

Hollywood, Nov. 10. — Tay Garnett expects to spend some time in Japan on his round-the-world tour, so, when the Japanese consul, Tomokazu Hori San, came out to watch him shooting "Professional Soldier" at Twentieth Century-Fox, Garnett practically gave him the set.

He made Freddie Bartholomew tell a funny story. Victor McLaglen shook hands. Everybody shook hands. Everybody ate a long, elaborate lunch.

Garnett felt he had a cordial reception in Nippon practically cinched by the time the consul, wreathed in smiles, was taking his happy leave.

Then the fly in the ointment turned up.

Someone had stolen the hat of Tomokazu Hori San.

Rudy Vallee, president, and his orchestra filled a conspicuous place on the program.

Among the performers were: Belle Baker, Phil Baker and his Bottle, Milton Berle, Ben Bernie, Edmund Breese, Eddie Dowling and Ray Dooley, Jimmie Durante, Stepin Fetchit, J. C. Flippen, N. T. G. and the Paradise revue, Beatrice Lillie, the "March of Time" principals, Ed Sullivan, Ken Murray, Herb Williams and the orchestras of Phil Spitalny, Abe Lyman and Isham Jones. The program lasted far into the night.

Variety Club Chatter

Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, Nov. 10.—The enlarged quarters, which are expected to be the last word in modern appointments, were dedicated Nov. 9 with an "open house," at which dancing, entertainment and other activities were provided for barkers and their guests.

NAT LEFTON, dough guy of Cleveland No. 6, was a week-end visitor here. He was to be joined by EDDIE GOLDEN, who, however, telegraphed his regrets from Indianapolis, as he had to hurry back to New York to deliver a short wave radio talk to Republic Pictures delegates meeting in London.

JOE KOLLING, property master, is handling the publicity for a local "Better Homes" campaign currently in progress.

EDDIE WEBBER, New York, pianist for ESTELLE TAYLOR, playing a local engagement, is among the names appearing on last week's club register.

Detroit

DETROIT, Nov. 10.—An even dozen active members have been elected by the Variety Club of Detroit. They are: S. K. DECKER, divisional manager First Division; CLARE H. TOWNSEND, salesman, Republic Pictures; JOHN E. RYDER, salesman, Paramount; BEN J. COHEN, Senate Theatre; SAM H. BARRETT, booker, Co-Operative Theatres of Michigan; IRVING and ADOLPH GOLDBERG, Royal Oak Theatre; WADE E. ALLEN, Arcade Theatre; JOSEPH PORTELL, Virginia Theatre; FRANK LORENZEN, florist; ADAM WEISSMULLER, sports promoter, and AL MERTZ, branch manager RKO Radio.

GEORGE MORIARITY, American League umpire, was elected to non-resident membership.

Baseball, hockey and radio stars were guests of the club at its first fall luncheon last week in the Mayfair room of the Book-Cadillac, which was attended by a crowd of 150. H. M. RICHEY and MAURICE CAPLAN were in charge.

Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 10.—Saturday night becomes "rendezvous" night at Tent No. 8 beginning Nov. 9. Kings for a night were named, and a special appeal was made to salesmen for exchanges who are out of town and unable to attend mid-week functions. First to be named kings to handle the job Nov. 9 were FRANK BOWEN, RUSSELL BORG, and FRED BREDEHOFF.

TRULY WILDMAN, DOUGLAS DESCH and ERNIE BLOCK will be kings for a day Nov. 18.

GEORGE W. FULLER was the butt of some good natured raillery Nov. 4. On Nov. 1 he became the father of a seven and a half pound girl—MARY JANE.

Guests included MAX KRAVETZ, I. A. ANDERSON, and E. L. "BUDDY" HARRIS.

Luncheon Nov. 11 will be impromptu.

Commenting on the Kansas City Public Service Co.'s movie contest, AL WOOD, head of the commercial department, told film men he believed they had only scratched the surface of a relationship between the street railways company and the film industry.

Omaha

OMAHA, Nov. 10.—Despite the fact the food and beer were free, the entire membership (with only a few absentees) was unable to dent into the generous buffet lunch Saturday. It is understood the financial status of the club at this time is etched in deep black ink, which is remarkable, considering the swanky clubroom layout has been open only since last June. The membership has been closed with 70 names on the rolls.

The clubrooms see plenty of activity, especially over the week-end with salesmen coming in and visiting out-of-town executives as guests of members. The club gets a big play Saturday night.

Praise for Variety Club and for the harmonious relations it establishes within the industry was expressed here by Nebraska's famous divorce and juvenile magistrate, District Judge HERBERT A. RHOADES, at the Ladies' Day luncheon. About 24 wives and friends of club members were guests. After the lunch, the women spent the afternoon playing bridge.

"If men in other businesses would organize as you film men have in a social organization, they would find their daily relations much happier," Judge RHOADES said. "I am deeply impressed that men in competitive and deeply rivalrous business should come together weekly for lunch."

Washington

WASHINGTON, Nov.10.—Local barkers of Tent No. 11 journeyed to Baltimore Tuesday for the first out-of-town function to be staged by Variety Club. More than 50 made the trip. They were escorted by Maryland State Police.

FRANK H. DURKEE and WILLIAM K. SAXTON were the kings for a day.

Guests of honor were: Mayor HOWARD JACKSON, State's Attorney HERBERT O'CONNER, Chief Censor DR. BEN PAUL SANDY, Police Inspector THOMAS MOONEY, and WILLIAM MCKIMM, representative of Philadelphia's Tent.

Barker J. LOUIS ROME acted as master of ceremonies.

A smoker scheduled for Nov. 11 has been canceled and the mobilization of Kentucky Colonels slated for that date will take place at a luncheon Nov. 18, with Barker HARRY P. SOMERVILLE as generalissimo.

Saenger Not to Act

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 10.—Saenger Theatres will not reinstate vaudeville, no matter what other houses do, it has been stated officially.

ALBANY, Nov. 10.—Elephant Prod., Inc., has been chartered here by David B. Friedland, Roslyn Soldinger and Louis M. Greene.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Your Uncle Dudley"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 10.—Built for laughs, this is a small town atmosphere business, domestic, comedy drama. Slyly satirizing the Babbitt theme, it's a yarn of a sappy club-joining civic worker and female-relative-pestered family head, who, driven to desperation, turns into a lion-like he-man, go-getter and master of his own destinies.

Victimized by fellow club members who reap a fat profit as a result of their community prestige-building stunts while his reward is a flock of loving cups, Edward Everett Horton is derided as a spineless worm by his shrewish sister-in-law, Marjorie Gateson. His domestic difficulties are more than matching the fun of his folly in business and civic affairs. Horton has more than his hands full trying to straighten out the love match between his niece, Rosina Lawrence, and John McGuire, bashfully in love with Lois Wilson. The proverbial suffering mother, Miss Gateson, figures on developing her daughter, Miss Lawrence, as a concert singer to guarantee her own future security. Messing up the prize singing contest by her underhand work, Miss Gateson gets the grand bounce as Horton, after turning the tables cleverly on his business rivals to his great personal profit, fixes things nicely for Miss Lawrence and McGuire.

Adapted by Dore Shary and Joseph Hoffman, with the screenplay by Allen Rivkin from the play by Howard Lindsay, Bertrand Robinson's picture is capably directed by Eugene Forde.

Horton's usual first class performance is matched by those of Miss Gateson, Miss Wilson, Miss Lawrence, McGuire, Allan Dinehart, William Benedit and Florence Roberts.

Production Code Seal, No. 1693. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

"Coronado"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 10.—Tuneful melodies, clever dancing and low down comedy place this one in the top notch entertainment. The picture shines in all its departments and should rattle a musical tune for exhibitors' coffers with the box-office results depending largely on the first exploitation splash. Word of mouth will take care of the rest.

The story spots Johnny Downs as the musically inclined son of wealthy Berton Churchill and Nella Walker. The three are spending the summer at the California resort, Coronado, as the yarn opens. Downs immediately goes hook, line and sinker for Betty Burgess, a resort crooner who thinks Downs is a penniless song plugger. From here on the story is the usual hokum garnished with unique and very funny comedy situations and sparkling dialogue, refreshingly different dance routines backgrounded with Eddie Duchin's music. Jack Haley and Andy Devine, as a couple of dumb gobs, and Leon Errol carry the comedy to hilarious heights. The story has the usual ending with the boy getting the girl.

Norman McLeod has endowed the picture with his usual keen humor, showing his aptitude for comedy timing. Performances by the entire cast hit a high C. Richard Whiting and Sam Coslow contribute several good song numbers for ether plugging. David Hoehm penned the screen play. This should be good in all spots.

Production Code Seal No. 1661. Running tine, 70 minutes. "G."

"Just My Luck"

(New Century Pictures)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 10.—Charles Ray works very hard in this picture to revive the character of the abused awkward boy which he made famous, but handicapped by a weak story and production which lacks professional finish, only in occasional flashes does he achieve his purpose.

Ray is cast as an employe in an automobile tire factory. He has perfected a rubber substitute which he is unable to make his employers inspect seriously. Buffeted about, and made the butt of practical jokes, Ray drifts through the picture until his employers, faced with a rubber shortage, send for him to investigate his substitute. His company's competitors have meanwhile engaged labor agitators to call a strike at the plant, and keep Ray away from the office. In the ensuing melee Ray is knocked down many times before things are settled and he wins the girl, Anne Grey, his employer's daughter.

The original screen play by Wallace Sullivan and Scott E. Cleethorpe loosely joins elements of drama, melodrama and slapstick. The direction by Russell Ray Heinz also suffers from these faults. In the supporting cast Snub Pollard, Eddie Nugent and Matthew Betz contribute the best performances. The picture is suitable only for the lower half of dual bills. Previewed without Production Code Seal. Running time, 76 minutes. "G."

YOUR FIRST 4 DAYS AT N. Y. STRAND WERE BIGGEST SINCE "G-MEN"!

And here's just about the highest praise a gentleman of the press can pay to the leading lady of the screen—"Kay Francis reaches new heights. JURY ACQUITS DEFENDANTS IN ST. LOUIS TRUST CASE

Depinet Will Stay at RKO, Asserts Spitz

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—Ned E. Depinet, president of RKO Radio Distributing Corp., will continue with the company in his present capacity as head of RKO distribution, Leo Spitz, newly designated president of RKO, said today following a meeting here yesterday with Depinet and J. R. McDonough, president of Radio Pictures.

Spitz's statement is regarded as the answer to recent reports that Depinet might assume a high post tendered him by United Artists—possibly the presidency of that company, which was vacated with the resignation of Al Lichtman. Asked specifically about the reports of a United Artists alignment for Depinet, Spitz replied that

Labor Seeks Share in New Code Confabs

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Demands that labor be given a voice in the writing of any new codes which may be imposed upon industry and equal representation in the administration thereof will be presented next month at the conference for consideration of new industrial control legislation called for Dec. 9 by George L. Barry, President Roosevelt's coordinator for industrial control, it was learned here today.

Unless such demands are granted organized labor will not support new legislation, feeling that without a voice in the writing and administration of codes labor would gain nothing.

Because of the fact that it has no such privileges and also because no machinery has been set up for enforcement, labor is opposing the voluntary codes which have been submitted by a few industries, dooming to failure President Roosevelt's plan thus to protect the advantages gained by workers under the old recovery codes.

This opposition, labor leaders warn, will be extended to any new code recommendations unless their demands for representation are met.

Ontario Premier to Retire in December

TORONTO, Nov. 11.—A political sensation followed the announcement of Premier M. F. Hepburn of Ontario that the stiff amusements tax schedule imposed last June over loud protests from exhibitors would be modified appreciably in the low-price brackets when Hepburn came out with the information that he would retire from office as soon as the next session of the Provincial Legislature gets under way. The Ontario Premier had been the target for condemnatory resolutions ever since the unpopular increases were made in the amusements levy.

Word of the Premier's withdrawal was followed by the official announcement by R. C. Buckley, director of

H. M. Warner, Sears, Starr, Depinet and Schaefer and Three Major Companies Are Freed After 34 Minutes

By BILL ORNSTEIN

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 11.—With a swiftness that caught courtroom attendants by surprise, the jury hearing the anti-trust cases against five film executives and their companies returned a verdict of "Not guilty" at 6:08 o'clock tonight.

The jurors were out 34 minutes.

The curtain fell with a thud on a courtroom drama that had been in progress for six weeks. Every resource of the Department of Justice has been brought to bear to prove a conspiracy in restraint of trade and an imposing array of legal talent had fought every inch of the way in defense. No trick of law had been overlooked.

From court opening to lunch time Judge George H. Moore read his charge. He stopped at 1 o'clock and resumed again at 2 o'clock. The verdict might have been rendered then, had not the defense attorneys objected to portions of the charge.

Throughout the afternoon they filed protests. Frederick H. Wood talked for 25 minutes, William R. Gentry took 20; Jacob M. Lashly consumed 20 minutes, and George S. Leisure held his remarks down to 10 minutes. The burden of their complaints was that some portions of the court's charge had been prejudicial to the defendants; that others were improper; that the court had invaded the province of the jury.

The jury listened wearily and swept all technicalities aside in a few moments. One of them was heard to

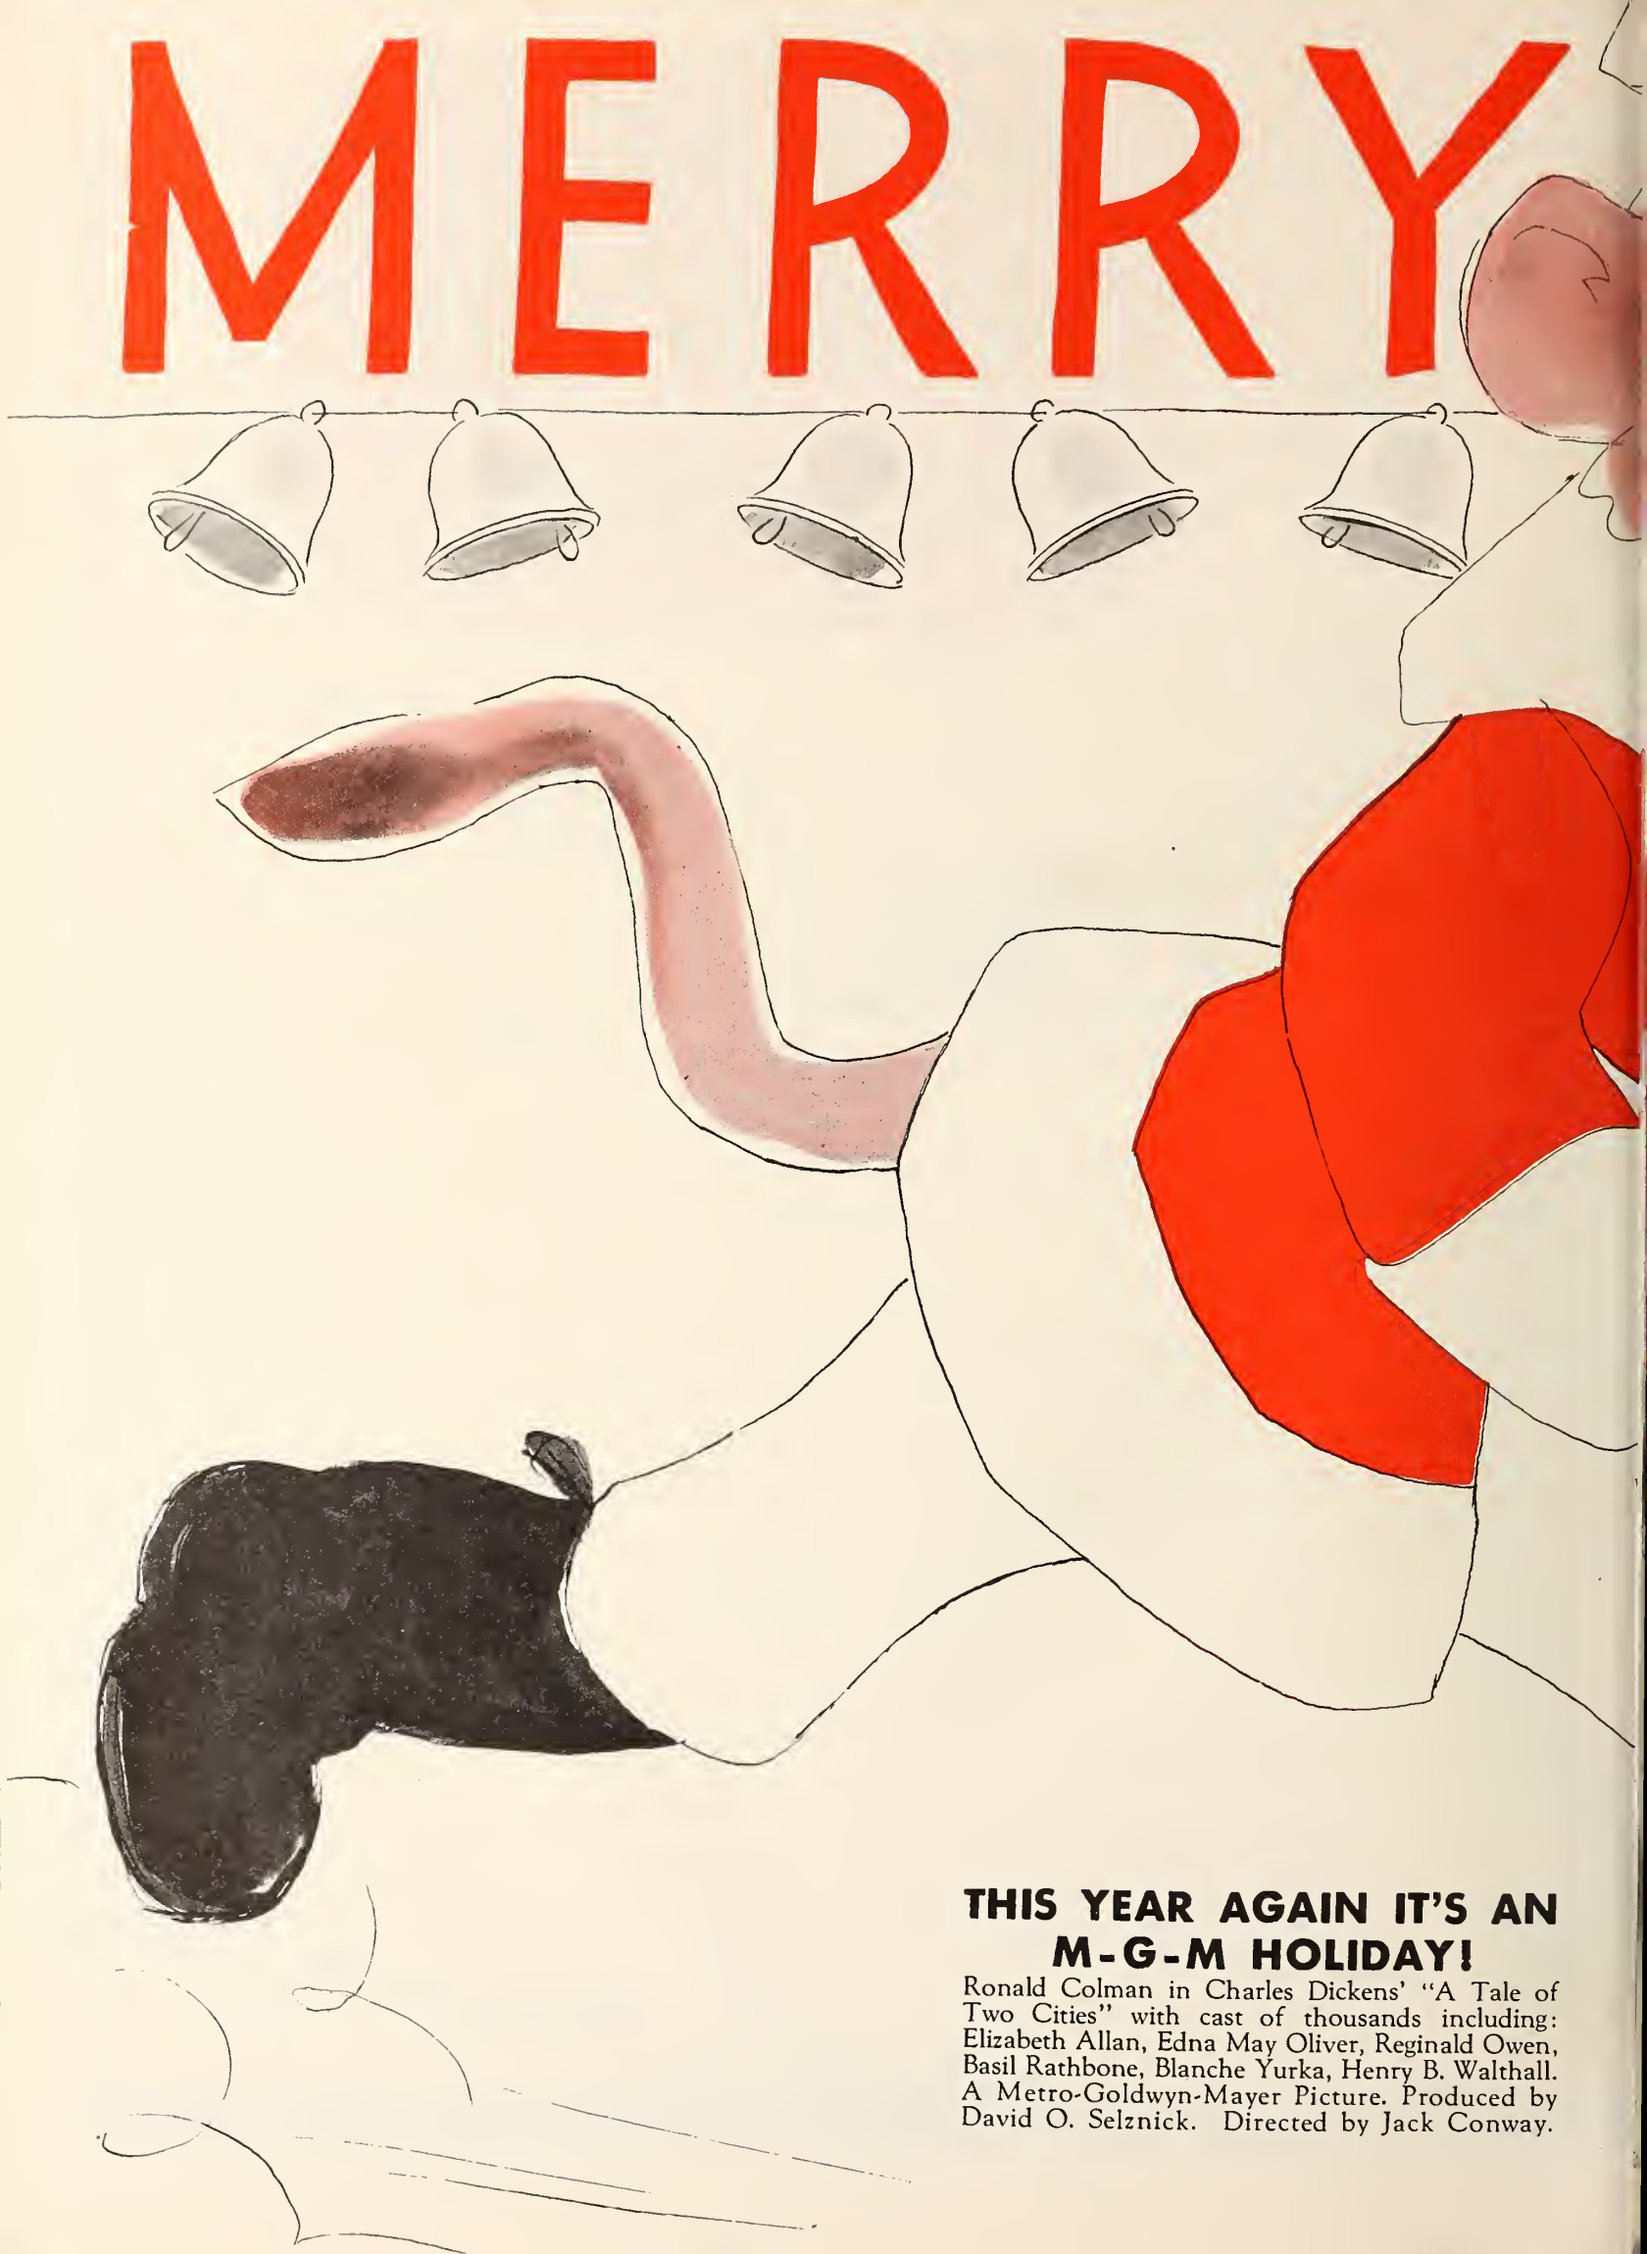
WE HAD TO DIG FOR THIS ONE!

As you lads know, a tough assignment is to dig up a combination tear-jerker and action picture that's got something on the ball.



WALTER WANGER and his gang had the neat little job of getting one to fit SYLVIA SIDNEY, the gal who, given a picture that's up her alley, can knock 'em in the aisles from Times Square to 'Frisco. Remember how she sold tickets with "Ladies of the Big House," "An American Tragedy" and "Jenny Gerhardt "?

We didn't want another "G-Man" picture, nor a courtroom picture, nor a prison picture. They're old stuff. We wanted something new. We found it, after plenty of digging, in "MARY BURNS, FUGITIVE," the drama of an average American girl whose first innocent romance gets her into a jam with the law.

"MARY BURNS, FUGITIVE," fits Sylvia's talents like the well-known glove and once more proves the old saying that...

Vaudeville Renews Battle in Lincoln

LINCOLN, NEB., Nov. 11.—Vaudeville, returning to the Varsity, has renewed the recently quieted duel between J. H. Cooper and L. L. Dent houses. Result is that Cooper's Orpheum is matching day and date with a big stage show.

The latter's practice has been vaudeville Friday, Saturday and Sunday, but when news of the Varsity's intentions hit the street, the first half was started Thursday, so the second half would be a fresh competing show Sunday. Varsity's attraction is Tom Gentry's unit and the Orpheum has "Transcontinental Revue" with Roy Atwell. Varsity has had straight pictures for five weeks, after giving shows a try earlier.

of flux begun with the resignation some weeks ago of Frank A. Vanderlip and followed by that of William S. Gray, Jr. Vanderlip, who had been elected to a three-year term, was succeeded last week by Stanton Griffiths of Hemphill, Noyes & Co., representative of holders of a considerable amount of Paramount securities. The vacancy created by Gray's resignation, and involving a one-year term, is not likely to be filled, it is said. Gray went on the board with the understanding that he would be permitted to resign at the earliest possible date.

No other immediate changes in the board are expected although if current discussions which would give George J. Schaefer the operating management of Minnesota Amusement Co. are consummated, it is assumed that Schaefer would resign from the board. Schaefer, too, is serving a one-year term and, in the event of his resignation, it is not believed that this vacancy, either, would be filled. This would be in keeping with the objective of the company's reorganizers to provide Paramount with a small, actively working board on which management representation would be held o a minimum.

Bowes Rents Warner House in Hartford

HARTFORD, Nov. 11.—Major Bowes has rented the State from Warners' for a two-day engagement of one of his amateur units and his own personal appearance, beginning Nov. 29.

The State is a 4,200-seater. Although dark for the past two years, it is stated that Warners' may reopen the house at a later date as part of a statewide move to open closed houses.

Six Warner houses, closed from two to seven years, are on the reopened lists. The Empress, Danbury, will be in first run operation in a week, it is announced, supplementing Warners' Capitol and Palace in this town. The Bristol, Bristol; Broadway, Norwich; Tremont, Ansonia; Gem, Willimantic, and Circle, South Manchester, are the remaining theatres which have now taken a new lease on life.

The Gem, which had to be refurnished with seats and sound equipment, will be a one-day house. The Rialto, South Manchester, has been dropped by Warners.

Amateurs in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 11.—Major Bowes' Amateurs, appearing in conjunction with the Auto show at the Arena this week, are expected to dent box-office takes.

This is the first time automobile dealers have engaged amateurs to draw patronage. Admission is 40 cents for both matinee and evening performances.

there was no truth to them. Depinet came here from St. Louis for the meeting with Spitz and McDonough and returned to the scene of the Federal court conspiracy trial last night. Spitz said that he would leave for the coast by plane next week to pay his first visit to the Radio studios and that Depinet, St. Louis court developments permitting, would accompany him.

The new RKO president said that no discussions of a new contract for McDonough had been held and that the production head's present agreement has 10 more months to run. He reiterated his statement made to MOTION PICTURE DAILY before leaving New York that no changes in the RKO executive setup are planned.

"I haven't even received an application for a job from anyone," Spitz remarked.

Paramount Agrees To Withdraw Film

demand. The fact that no time limit was set for completing the withdrawal of the Marlene Dietrich picture from circulation makes it possible for Paramount to negotiate contract settlements with accounts which have bought the picture and have not yet played it, it was said. If Spain had insisted upon immediate world wide withdrawal of the picture the company undoubtedly would have been faced with numerous lawsuits for breach of contract if it had complied, a Paramount official said.

The edict on the removal of the picture from circulation as quickly as possible was described as "very satisfactory." This solution for Spain's objections to the picture was reached by the American State Department through the Embassy at Madrid working with Spanish officials. It is understood that Spain has instructed its Embassies throughout the world to observe the progress of the withdrawal of the picture and to expedite it wherever possible.

Spanish national sensibilities were shocked at the picture's portrayal of Civil Guards of that nation in drinking scenes, it is reported. Spain had first demanded that the picture be withdrawn from world circulation and the prints destroyed by last night, failing which Paramount pictures in Spain would be confiscated and the company's product would be barred from Spain in the future.

DeFiore has been called on by several down-State members to sponsor a reorganization of the group. This is a result of some of the wildest competition ever on the Delaware peninsula. Jack Pots and Bank Nights were largely responsible for the struggle among independents.

Jury Returns Early Verdict Of Acquittal remark: "We just couldn't see the case."

Gradwell Sears' aged mother, who has sat through many of the sessions, listened to the verdict and wept softly. She stepped over and thanked the jurors individually.

Harry M. Warner was not present to hear the verdict. He has not returned from the coast, where he went to attend the funeral of his father. The other defendants—Sears, Herman Starr, Ned E. Depinet and Schaefer—were obviously relieved. Abel Cary Thomas, secretary and general counsel of Warners, who was named in the original indictments returned last spring, was not tried because of illness.

Cites Decision

The indictments charged that the individuals and their companies—Warners, RKO, Paramount and their subsidiaries—had entered into a conspiracy to prevent the Fanchon & Marco-operated Missouri, Ambassador and New Grand Central theatres from getting first-run film. The origin of the controversy dated back to the conflicts resulting from loss of control by Warners when these properties were in financial difficulties.

In his instructions to the jury Judge George H. Moore ruled the Harry Koplar suits and differences Koplar had had with RKO and Paramount must be disregarded as not an issue in the case. He also stated that Warners' three plans of reorganization submitted to bondholders had no bearing on the case and immediately afterwards cited a decision of Federal Judge Davis, who had held in favor of the bondholders' plan.

Judge Moore also told the jurors that the defendants' charges of monopoly against F. & M. must be disregarded as immaterial. He also said that Reed's statement about John Barleycorn speaking instead of John S. Leahy at the Park Plaza Hotel session in New York on April 7, 1934, was out because Depinet had testified no one was drunk. He told the jury to decide credibility of the witnesses by comparing statements made on the stand of both defense and Government men. Exception was taken to the Judge's assuming the existence of a conspiracy. It was declared this was something for the jury to decide.

Many references were said by Wood to be improper because the Judge had failed to regard certain contentions made by Warners. In some instances the Judge was declared as not having completed the statements of witnesses, leaving an unfair impression in the minds of jurors.

Court Dust Storm

Moore made two attempts to stop Wood and Gentry from presenting lengthy exceptions by telling each attorney not to argue them. The defense counsel insisted on giving their reasons for exceptions.

A homemade dust storm hit the jury room this morning when the ventilating system in the new courtroom was turned on. The chandeliers were swept clean by the gust of wind and the Judge had to call a recess. The system was so cold top coats were donned in court.

In his opening address, Judge Moore ridiculed the new courtroom as inadequate. There was no court reporters' table, no press table and not enough tables for defense and Government counsel. Moore described the room as "the bottom of a well hole." Samuel Fordyce noticed a goat engraved in the black marble of the Judge's entrance and asked what the significance was. The Judge failed to answer this question.

"In order to find the defendants guilty two points must be taken into consideration," Judge Moore stated. "One is that refusal of the defendants to supply films to the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central restrained interstate commerce, and, two, that the defendants conspired together to that end."

The Judge had made a thorough analysis of the case since Friday afternoon when court adjourned until this morning and gave a resume of what he thought to be the undisputed evidence and certain connections and conversations which he held to be the case.

40 Exceptions Taken

Defense counsel objected to practically every statement made. Warners noted more than 40 exceptions alone.

It was expected that the jury would be out for some time. When it was sent into consultation the court was left with about 10 persons. When the 12 men returned it was first thought they were to be excused until tomorrow because of the late hour. It was 6:08 o'clock when the jurors filed back and were ready to hand down the verdict. About 25 persons were in the court and not one defendant or Government attorney to hear the acquittal.

When Schaefer was informed by MOTION PICTURE DAILY of the decision he thought the reporter was joking. He was in the lobby of the Federal building at the time and some of the jurors were just going home. Seeing his mistake, he called the jurors back and thanked them individually.

There was general rejoicing all around. Starr immediately left for Sam B. Jeffries' office where he telephoned the news to Warner in Hollywood. It was drizzling here today, but that didn't dampen the ardor of the five defendants. All will leave for New York tomorrow. No planes are flying east tonight and the boys are celebrating.

May Dismiss Equity Case

The equity case for an injunction is scheduled to come up tomorrow. Reports are that Judge Moore may dismiss it. If not, an adjournment is expected to be sought by defense counsel.

In his instructions Judge Moore pointed out all the alleged phrases attributed to Starr at meetings with the bondholders' committee and other Government witnesses. He said that the testimony of Harry Arthur had been corroborated by other Government witnesses, but defense attorneys found numerous loopholes and pointed them out in their exceptions.

Representatives of Warners, Paramount and RKO were shocked this morning as the Judge proceeded. Long faces were apparent as the many spectators, witnesses and defendants grouped in the hall during recesses.

In his opening exception, Wood

How They Took It

Herman Starr: Justice has been done and righteousness has been upheld

Gradwell Sears: I am naturally glad of the 100 per cent acquittal for each individual and corporation. I am pleased no end, and realize others know we were honest in our intentions regardless of what constructions were placed on them. The good old Missouri jury of 12 tried and true men would not let another Missourian down.

George J. Schaefer: The promptness of the verdict speaks for itself. The case shows we can still depend on our jury system.

Ned Depinet: I am very happy that we were acquitted and vindicated, and that these 12 men gave me this decision.

declared the whole charge of the court was unduly argumentative and comment on the evidence was invading the province of the jury. Wood said over and over again that it was for the 12 men to decide who was telling the truth on the stand and no inferences should be drawn from any statements unless all surrounding facts were given.

When Judge Moore stated that only two valid defenses could be offered by defendants and no others, Wood declared this prejudicial, in that it was the burden of the Government to prove the defendants guilty without reasonable doubt rather than to force the defendants to prove their innocence.

Much Ado About Letters

Defense attorneys claimed the alleged monopoly maintained by F. & M. should not have been ruled out, as this was one of the reasons why Warners had acquired the Shubert-Rialto and Orpheum. RKO objected to the Koplar differences being disregarded on the ground he and his group had been "unfaithful customers." Between Wood, Gentry, Lashly and Leisure the defense, in taking exceptions to the Judge's charges, managed to get home to the jury many important points.

Much ado was made over letters which had passed between Lester Kreiger, Joseph Bernhard, Depinet and Schaefer. The court argued they were not binding, but all defense counsel argued this was not a proper interpretation of the law. Wood caught Judge Moore on the law when he argued he had a right to give reasons for his exceptions. Despite Russel Hardy's objections, the Judge had to ask the clerk to get a brochure on the subject and when it had been brought and looked into, Wood continued in his relentless breakdown of Government and court charges.

Wood Follows Leisure

The statements of Cresson Smith and Neil Agnew to Arthur were gone into in detail by the Judge, but Gentry and Leisure gave their version of what was said to have taken place. The connecting of isolated facts by the Judge was held by Lashly to be unwarranted.

After Leisure had finished Wood took up two points he had forgotten. These were that the undisputed evidence showed the pictures of three companies were sufficient for the two Warner theatres, which on a dual policy required 208. He also stated there was no evidence in the case that Warners had brought any pressure to bear on RKO or Paramount in the sale of their product. Defense attorneys have maintained all day there has not been any evidence introduced to show the three companies conspired either directly or indirectly.

Joseph G. Eddy was foreman and presented written decisions to the clerk of court who read individual verdicts of "Not guilty." It took less than five minutes to hear the decisions. There was an intensive silence as the clerk stammered out the verdicts.

On the Lighter Side

St. Louis, Nov. 11.—During the final summations, former U. S. Sentor James A. Reed stirred laughter when, in the midst of his argument, he recited a poem, as follows:

"He is not drunk who from the floor
Cannot rise again and drink some more.
He is drunk who on the floor prostrate lies
And can neither drink some more nor rise."

Reed was discussing John S. Leahy's drinking party at the Park Plaza, April 7, 1934, when the analogy was drawn.

Ed Dubinsky came all the way from Kansas City, and Harry Singer from Chicago, to hear Frederick H. Wood and the 74-year-old ex-senator sum up.

The entire local theatrical industry attended the biggest court sessions in six weeks on Thursday and Friday. The S.R.O. sign was up and as soon as court adjourned Friday afternoon moving men started to divest the room of its treasured etchings and paintings of old time judges, the benches, tables, seats and everything else.

Many of the boys from New York were all set to return home Saturday for good, but had their plans changed when Federal Judge George H. Moore declined to charge the jury until today.

George J. Schaefer has been patiently waiting for weeks to hear Judge Moore charge the jury. His patience was rewarded today.

Interest Runs High

Interest in the outcome of the St. Louis anti-trust trial was at high pitch in home offices and along Broadway yesterday and was reflected in numerous phone calls to Motion Picture Daily throughout the afternoon requesting the latest information on the court developments.

The inquiries were from high ranking executives of many companies and from attorneys prominent in the industry's legal affairs. Many asked to be advised of the verdict the moment word was received from St. Louis.

Motion Picture Daily* informed a number of film executives of the verdict by telephone as soon as word was received from the courthouse.

British Turn Down "Booking Holiday"

By BRUCE ALLAN

London, Oct. 30.—Manchester branch of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n. has tabled a resolution for discussion by the general council calling for a "booking holiday" at the expense of distributors making a 50 per cent price demand for any of their features. No bookings would be placed in such firms for three months.

The directors' scheme for the reconstruction of Baird Television, implying a reduction of from 28 to 58 per cent in the value of existing shares and the raising of $1,500,000 new money, has been withdrawn, owing to shareholders' opposition. A new scheme is being drafted for submission at a special meeting.

Empire Film Men Shift

Toronto, Nov. 11.—Because of the enforced retirement of Maurice M. Davis, widely known exchange manager of Montreal, because of injuries received in an automobile accident, several changes have been made in the personnel of Empire Films, Ltd., by General Manager A. W. Perry.

I. H. Allen, manager of the Winnipeg office for several years, has been named successor to Davis at Montreal, while I. Coval, Calgary manager, has succeeded Allen at Winnipeg. Frank Fisher, formerly at the Toronto head office, has been appointed manager at Calgary.

Empire Films, of which Oscar R. Hanson is president, is the Canadian distributor of Republic, Educational, Monogram, B. I. P., Twickenham, Associated Radio and other pictures.

Fifty-three Films In Cutting Rooms

Hollywood, Nov. 11.—Most of the current season's unfinished product continued in studio cutting departments last week. A total of 54 features was being edited. Camera work, which has been fluctuating spasmodically for the past month, jumped substantially over last week's figures with the weekly checkup charting 39 features and three short subjects in production. The preceding week there were 33 features and two short subjects shooting.

Most of the major lots registered an increase in production. Columbia had three features working, three in preparation and slated for cameras in two weeks and five in the cutting rooms. Fox had six, three and three; Goldwyn, one, zero and one; M-G-M, six, zero and 13; Paramount, six, one and 11; Radio, five, four and five; Roach, two, zero and zero; Universal, two, two and three; Warners, seven, zero and 10; independents, one, one and three.

Short subject production remained about the same. Columbia had none in work, two in preparation and three cutting. M-G-M had one, four and four; Radio, one, zero and four; Roach, zero, one and three; Universal, zero, one and zero; Warners, one, one and zero; independents, zero, one and one.

Japanese at Work on New Films Setup

By TETSUYA MORI

Tokyo, Oct. 24.—Plans are under way for the early establishment here of a new film association, to be composed of producers, exhibitors, distributors and Governmental officials. It is in furtherance of an idea recently expressed at a meeting called for the discussion of national control of the film industry under the auspices of the Home Office. The new organization will be unlike the M. P. Ass'n of Japan and will work only for the development and improvement of the industry by joint effort.

E. Yokota, former president of Nikkatsu Cinema Co., has contributed 20,000 yen as part of the initial association fund.

The Shochiku Co. has nearly completed the production of "Semete-Koyoio" (Tonight at Least) at their new studio at Kamata, to which it recently moved. The picture is designed for audiences abroad, and is in the nature of a Tokyo gangster picture. The company also plans to enlarge its newsreel organization and build an equipment plant. The buildings will be modern in every respect.

The best box-office results recently in Tokyo have been grossed by Warners' "G-Man," which is out-grossing Paramount's "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer," an unusually heavy grosser recently.

It is reported in local trade papers here that M-G-M's Japanese branch plans a theatre under its own management, possibly at Shinjuku, one of the busiest amusement centers in the city. Japanese capital is reported interested in the venture. Paramount has had its own house here for some time.

Maryland Censors Cut

Baltimore, Nov. 11.—Three members of the Maryland Board of Censors had their salaries reduced because of the classification of state salaries, it was ruled by Herbert R. O'Connor, attorney general, during their term of office, could not be raised or decreased.

The Board of Public Works therefore deducted from them the added compensation which had been given by the new administration. Dr. Ben Paul Sandy, chairman, was reduced $100; Marie Presstmann, a member, was cut $100 and Asa Sharp, member, $100

Twin Openings Planned

Three forthcoming London Films productions will have simultaneous openings in both London and New York. Wells' "Things To Come" opens late in January and another Wells opus "The Man Who Could Work Miracles" opens in February.

Frisco's Top To "Socrates" And "Payoff"

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11.—In a week of slim grosses "The Payoff" and "Dr. Socrates" pulled the heavy money among the first runs, $12,750 at the Paramount. This tops normal by $1,250.

The only other attraction to make much of an impression was "Hands Across the Table," which was $1,000 up on a $22,000 take at the Warfield. "A Man's Children," Scandinavian picture, reached $1,050 at the 400-seat Clay.

Total first run business was $77,100. Average is $80,100.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Ah Wilderness"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 11.—This picture mirrors life. It reflects ordinary human emotions, ambitions, tragedies, triumphs with sincere conviction. It does so with the simplicity that makes for power, giving audiences and the showmen the most to be desired in screen merchandise, a good story that was intelligently acted on the stage. It is hardly to be doubted that the picture will make a popular impression. It is of a character that is apt to arouse controversy but is certain to win approval. Its locale is a small town of three decades ago. The comedy drama glows with homey humor.

The drama is natural. Following vivid contrasts it builds to a sock climax when the father tries to explain the facts of life to his son. Eric Linden, the prototype of modern youth, is convinced that he is misunderstood. Lionel Barrymore is the average man, bearer of everyman's problems. An amusing high school graduation whirls the audience into the trials and tribulations of a middle class home. Linden deems his father and mother, Spring Byington, crusty old fogies; brothers Frank Albertson and Mickey Rooney, and sister, Bonita Granville, pests. Furious at his sweetheart, Cecelia Parker, for not kissing him, the youth becomes involved in an episode with Helen Flint. Welcomed home by his distraught family, Barrymore attempts to explain the facts of life. With the boy adjusting himself to new conditions, there's an all's-well-that-ends-well finale with Linden and Miss Parker.

No production code seal. Running time, 100 minutes (to be cut). "G."

"The Bride Comes Home"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 11.—Here is a deft, clever comedy of lovers who fight all the way to the altar. The slight plot is directed and played so expertly that the film rates as a good, light laugh-provoker.

Claudette Colbert, the spoiled daughter of wealth, meets the depression when there is little left in the family mansion. She gets a job with Robert Young, millionaire playboy who is publishing a magazine. Fred MacMurray, as the editor, and Young's former bodyguard, resents her in the office until he discovers she is broke. By that time the quarrels are chronic and even after they decide it must be love the battles continue and Young, who has been proposing for years, gets Miss Colbert on the rebound and the film ends with MacMurray racing to head off the elopement and an unroarious scene with the justice of the peace.

Miss Colbert is delightful as the victim of the peppery romance. MacMurray scores as the suitor. Young is engaging as the persistent lover, and William Collier, Sr., makes the most of a funny father part. Excellent in support are Donald Meek, Johnny Arthur and Edgar Kennedy under the direction of Wesley Ruggles, who also produced.

A full measure of credit goes to Elizabeth Sanzay Holden for the story and Claude Binyohn for the clever screen play. Emphasis on the lighthearted human comedy and the charming cast are the best angles.

Production Code Seal No. 1,723. Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

"East of Java"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 11.—Melodramatic thrill action, with a trend toward horror, this is red meat for those liking that type of entertainment. Full of vivid, menacing danger, yet artificial to the point of unreality, the picture is for thrill fans.

It is the yarn of a bad man, whose reward for a lifetime of meanness is to be devoured by wild animals. Fugitive Charles Bickford takes command of a tramp freighter, when, during a tropical storm, the panic of the passengers is increased by the escape of a deck load of wild animals. Forcing the passengers and crew to land on an isolated, animal-infested island, Bickford is determined to keep away from the law. Conspiring to steal Chinese Captain Leslie Fenton's treasure, and forcing himself on Elizabeth Young, Frank Albertson's sweetheart, Bickford stops at nothing. With food running low and the animals becoming more menacing, Albertson sends a rescue plea via carrier pigeon. Bickford kills Fenton, his efforts to stop the rescue are futile, and as the others escape, he becomes the prey of the animals.

There is no comedy in the picture. George Melford directed from a story by Gouveneur Morris.

"Down East" Pittsburgh's Top, $4,500

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 11.—Grosses all over town took a nosedive last week, with only the Fulton showing any improvement at all. "Way Down East," on a double bill with "Thunder Mountain," was credited with this, getting around $4,500 for the best showing this house has made since it reopened several weeks ago following a summer shutdown.

At the Stanley, the combination of "Dr. Socrates" on the screen and Ina Ray Hutton's band and Jane Froman on the stage held up fairly well, turning in a $17,000 take, while "The Big Broadcast of 1936" fell off to $9,000 at the Penn after an exceptionally good start. Not much better was the Alvin, with "Charlie Chan in Shanghai" and "The Girl Friend." St. Louis Defeat Stirs Government to New Study

Defense Seeks To Disqualify Moore on Stay

Want Injunction Hearing Before Another Judge

By BILL ORNSTEIN

St. Louis, Nov. 12.—Defense counsel, through Paramount, today filed an application to disqualify Federal Judge George H. Moore from hearing the preliminary injunction sought by the Government against the defendants in the criminal anti-trust trial. Russell Hardy, special assistant attorney general, insisted that a hearing date be set immediately, because "business of these people is being destroyed by a ruthless conspiracy."

George S. Leisure, RKO attorney, asked for a dismissal of the injunction move and cited a case where a Federal judge had dismissed an injunction suit in a similar case after the defendants had been found not guilty

Important Only to Defendants—Myers

Detroit, Nov. 12.—Commenting on the St. Louis anti-trust verdict here today, Abram F. Myers, general counsel for Allied, said:

"The verdict in itself is important to the defendants only. I personally do not believe any good could be accomplished by sending industry leaders to jail. The prosecution did not involve the interests of any Allied member and was not instigated by Allied.

"The important question is whether the heads of the industry will be chastened by the ordeal, or whether the verdict will be interpreted as a license to rush contemplated mergers, resume invasion of the exhibition field, and continue old and devise new monopolistic and oppressive practices.

"The verdict settled no proposition of law as to the right of producers and affiliated chains to freeze out independents and it behooves those possessing great power to bear this in mind."

Pittsburgh Sunday Films Start Nov. 24

Pittsburgh, Nov. 12.—This city, and other Allegheny County communities, will not have Sunday films until Nov. 24. The local return board has been unusually slow in certifying the official vote, with the result that no official report is expected before the middle of next week.

Anti-Climax of Trial Is $100 Fine for F. H. Wood

St. Louis, Nov. 12.—Frederick H. Wood, who leaped into prominence with his defeat of the NRA in the Schechter poultry case, was fined $100 today for contempt of court by Federal Judge George H. Moore.

Wood was seated in the vacated jury box when Judge Moore called for him. The Warner lawyer took his position before the bench and heard the Judge say: "Throughout the trial your conduct has been contemptuous. You have shouted and yelled at witnesses to 'Shut up,' and this was culminated yesterday when you referred to the court's charge to the jury as a 'stump speech.' This is a flagrant contempt and I fine you $100."

Former U. S. Senator James A. Reed tried to pacify Judge Moore, who turned and asked the Warner co-counsel if his remarks were in reference to Wood. If they were, he said, they were needless, as Wood had been judged by his actions.

"If Wood were a young and inexperienced lawyer, it would be a different matter," Judge Moore told Reed, "but the cool and deliberate manner in which he made the statement yesterday was an aggravation."

The local newspapers had played up Wood's remark. Reed, after advising the judge he would not talk about his associate counsel, stated: "No one on our side of the case had any thought of bringing about a contempt of court. We have tried to be respectful throughout the trial."

Judge Moore ordered Wood into the custody of the bailiff until the fine had been paid. Defense counsel went into a huddle and talked of filing a petition for a writ of habeas corpus with the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, but after a 15-minute consultation they decided to contribute $10 each.

Seek Stay to Stop Warners' Meeting

An action for an injunction and an accounting, naming Harry M., Jack L. and Albert Warner, as well as all other officers and directors of Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., Goldman, Sachs and McClure, Jones & Co., since Sept. 1, 1928, was filed in Federal court at Brooklyn yesterday by Martin J. Clougherty of Boston, who described himself as a stockholder.

The action seeks to have Warner officers enjoined from voting proxies

One-Year Deal with Hoblitzelle Talked

A one-year extension of Karl Hoblitzelle's Interstate Circuit operating agreement with Paramount is under discussion and may be decided within the next few days, it is understood.

A. H. Blank continued discussions yesterday of an extension of his operating agreement for Iowa and western Illinois theatres. A short term extension of Blank's agreement is understood to have been proposed, pending conclusion of a new agreement.

Court Upholds Ban On Empire Pickets

Justice Samuel I. Roseman in the Supreme Court yesterday signed an order granting a permanent injunction to Edjomac Amusement Corp. against the Empire State M. P. Operators' Union to end picketing in front of the plaintiff's theatres.

Justice Roseman ruled: "The injunction heretofore granted in this case has been affirmed by the Apellate Division. Unless the record of the trial discloses some basis for a conclusion other than that reached by the Appellate Division, it is obvious that the determination of the Appellate Court is the law of this case and conclusive upon this court. Begins Survey of Other Cases to Make Them Impregnable

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

Washington, Nov. 12.—Smarting under the sting of utter failure in their St. Louis prosecutions, Department of Justice officials today began a new survey of film cases with the apparent determination of making their position impregnable before proceeding with any more suits.

At the department, officials had nothing to say about the St. Louis case, in which a jury brought in a verdict of not guilty as to all defendants, other than to point out that conspiracy is one of the most difficult of all charges to prove.

Whether any more cases of similar character will be pressed could not be learned, but there were indications that nothing further would be done for some time. Before any new proceedings are undertaken, however, the material secured by the department will be carefully checked.

Acquittal of all the defendants in St. Louis was considered a serious blow to the department, which heretofore has prided itself upon the high record of convictions it has attained. To make that record, only such cases were instituted as the Government felt assured could be supported adequately, and it was with a feeling of deep confidence that the St. Louis case was brought.

Probe Is Promised For Texas Charges

St. Louis, Nov. 12.—Assurances that independent exhibitor complaints emanating from the Texas region will be investigated by the Department of Justice was given Col. Henry A. Cole, president of Allied of Texas, by Russell Hardy, head of the anti-trust division, recently.

Accompanied by R. Z. Glass, vice-president of the unit, and Charles Hefley, Cole conferred with Hardy here twice and outlined certain alleged malpractices.

Dwight L. Savage, former Arkansas attorney, who is assisting the special assistant to the attorney general in the alleged conspiracy trial here, had been investigating the asserted Texas complainants until he was called to St. Louis. Whether he will return to Dallas after the local trial could not be learned.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

IT'S time to republish that hardy, but as always truthful, perennial, of Nick Schenck's:

"There is nothing in this business which good pictures cannot cure."

Applicable to anybody's and everybody's pictures, it is interesting to note that the attraction which again prompts mention of the Schenck statement is one of his own, "Mutiny on the Bounty."

The picture is getting the Capitol here in New York crazy in a pleasant and easy-to-take sort of way what with terrific crowds jamming the theatre morning, noon and through the evening into the midnight show as well. Business over the opening week-end was the best that theatre of many handsome grosses has seen since the days of "Anna Christie" which is to say five and one-half years ago. The Metro bunch already is figuring on four weeks and is not discounting the possibility of five. That would equal "David Copperfield" in point of length of run. Money comparisons will be difficult in view of the elimination of stage shows and a revised downward price scale. . . .

At the risk of boring you with an observation old and familiar, the temptation is too pronounced, however, to allow overlooking the point so obvious in all of this. This business may rant at its public for not supporting worthwhile attractions, and certainly the reason for such criticism has been plentiful over the years. And yet, given what it wants to see, the current goings on at the Capitol demonstrate now, as they always have and will, the generous response which is ready to greet that which the public has decided to support. There is another angle which impresses us as somewhat different in the instance of the "Bounty." People having no connection with the industry tell us this is one picture they will want to see immediately and without awaiting its arrival at neighborhood houses. Whether the popularity of the published work, the Metro advertising, the cast or a combination of all three are responsible for these evidences of a quickened interest, is something not apparent. What is, however, is the intention of going now and while the picture is fresh in its New York run. . . .

The other day Omaha reported Will Singer, manager of the Brandeis, had delayed the installation of seats for the hard - of - hearing because he couldn't dope out a method of keeping regular patrons out of deaf patrons' seats. Yesterday Edwin M. Hartley, RCA Photophone manager, stepped neatly into the situation by referring to a survey recently completed among theatres which use such devices. He answered Singer and all others who may be confronted by the same sort of dilemma. This is Hartley:

"Most exhibitors, including the Radio City Music Hall, accept reservations in advance for loge seats so equipped; some set aside a number of seats exclusively for deaf patrons, provided the picture is not running full houses, otherwise it is left to the discretion of the ushers; others favor the use of seats ordinarily difficult to fill, such as near the screen or at the sides. Hard-of-hearing organizations, of which there are many throughout the country, generally favor scattering the installations so that deaf patrons will not feel conspicuous. Properly handled, deaf patrons are easily educated into attending shows early in the evening or during the day."

George J. Schaefer, heading into New York from the St. Louis trial and its attendant strain, denies any arrangement has been made for his entry into a Paramount theatre partnership, the circuit being Minnesota Amusement. A deal, of course, is under way and this is what others say about it:

That the arrangement is at hand. So much at hand, in fact, that Schaefer will step down as general manager of the parent company as early as Saturday this week.

That on the other hand, matters have not been quite so definitely determined; that there is a question and an important one regarding terms and perhaps the extent of Schaefer's personal investment in the circuit.

One point, quite definite, is that he is not interested in a management deal; that it is participation in which Schaefer is only interested. . . .

Mark Ostrer's word that G. B. planned to make a limited number of pictures in this country has been followed, as might have been expected, by a mild flood of offers from this producer and that. With Mickey Balcon on his way to Hollywood on talent and looksees and Ostrer checking into the production equation from this end, some weeks may be expected to pass in probing before any decision is made. It is also probable that final word will not be uttered until Ostrer returns to London, in time for Christmas naturally, and further deliberations on that side of the pond. . . .

by a jury. William R. Gentry said he didn't think his clients, Paramount and George J. Schaefer, would have a fair trial, inasmuch as no preparation had been made on this case. He informed the judge he would prepare an affidavit setting forth his reasons for seeking a disqualification, and Judge Moore said the filing would be proper.

Former U. S. Senator James A. Reed pleaded that no temporary injunction should be granted until a full hearing has been held.

Hardy again insisted upon going ahead with the hearing. Reed remarked: "Nothing can change the opinion of Mr. Hardy."

Judge Moore held that it would be impossible for him to give the case an immediate hearing, as the docket was full for a month. He put the matter over until tomorrow, when Judge Kimbrough Stone, presiding justice of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, is expected to act on the Paramount application, and decide whether a new judge will hear the application for a temporary restraining order to prevent the defendants from continuing to carry out an alleged conspiracy to refuse first run films to the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central theatres operated by F. & M.

9 to 3 on First Ballot

Reed asked Hardy: "What about the indictment against Abel Carey Thomas?" The prosecutor objected to having the subject brought up at that time, and it was dropped.

Motion Picture Daily learned today from one of the 12 jurors that on the first ballot taken 15 minutes after the jury had retired, the tally was nine to three for acquittal. The three for conviction are said to have been George W. Fullerton, colored waiter at the Hotel York; Emil H. Lauter, coal salesman, and Charles L. Krause, all of St. Louis. W. H. Stubblefield, real estate man, is reported to have said then that he would sit up all night and argue for a not guilty verdict. Nine jurors then began a discussion with the minority, it is said. The second ballot was taken 15 minutes later.

More than 1,000,000 words appear in the transcript which runs slightly over 3,000 pages.

at the Dec. 9 stockholders' meeting at Wilmington in favor of an out of court settlement of a suit brought against the company some time ago by Max Goldberg, a Warner stockholder, and asks for an accounting of the settlement made with Goldberg. The complaint alleges that as part of the settlement Goldberg's stock was acquired by the company and an "excessive" price was paid for it. The action also asserts that proxies sent out for the Dec. 9 stockholders' meeting provide only for approval of the Goldberg settlement and make no provision for the registering of disapproval by stockholders.

Clougherty's complaint charges that Goldman, Sachs and McClure, Jones were the recipients of blocks of Warner stock valued at $6,500,000 on Dec. 1, 1928, for which Warners received "no consideration." A return of the stock is asked. The suit also recites that the three Warners, Harry M., Jack L. and Albert, on Dec. 1, 1928, voided a contract by which they were to render their services exclusively to Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., and made a similar contract with Renraw, Inc. Warner Bros. Pictures, it is alleged, transferred to Renraw 90,000 shares of Warner common with a market valuation of $12,000,000 at the time, and paid to Renraw $10,000 weekly for the period of the new contract.

Renraw was described in the complaint as "a cloak and alter ego" set up by the defendants to permit them to deal directly with Warner Bros. Pictures. It is also alleged that the three Warners sold the property at 321 West 44th St., Manhattan, to Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., for $929,516 in Feb., 1929, and charges that figure was "excessive."

Warners have 20 days in which to file an answer to the complaint. Officials of the company's legal department could not be reached yesterday for a statement on the action.

Speed Hutchinson Suit

Edward Hutchinson, who has filed a $500,000 libel suit against Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., and Vitagraph, Inc., was granted a preference in the Supreme Court yesterday by Justice John E. McGeehan. The case was set down for trial during the present term of the court. Hutchinson charges he is portrayed as a racketeer in "Go Into Your Dance." Hutchinson asserts that he established the original Casino de Paree on Broadway and that the portrayal of the Casino in the picture represents him in the light of a gangster. The charges have been denied in full.

Court to See "Ecstacy"

Judges Learned Hand, Thomas W. Swan and Harrie B. Chase of the circuit Court of Appeals will view "Ecstacy," Czecho-Slovakian film, which was recently banned as immoral by a jury before Judge John G. Knox. A new print of the film, originally destroyed, has arrived, it was revealed when Max Silverman, counsel for Eureka Prod., asked a writ restraining Federal operatives from destroying the new print until an appeal could be decided. A stay was granted.

mate and recognized labor union members. A rival labor union, also legitimate and recognized, is aggrieved and wishes to have its members substituted for those of the other union. In order to accomplish its end it has pickets parading in front of the employer's theatres with signs which read as follows: 'An appeal—do not patronize this theatre; it doesn't employ members of the Empire State Theatrical Stage Employes Union, Inc.' These signs are accurate so far as the letter of truth is concerned. The implication therefore is untruthful. They represent, and are intended to represent to passersby that the employer refuses to employ union help. The intent so to represent is obvious. The patrons of a theatre who are in sympathy with the principles of labor unionism are interested primarily in whether or not the theatre employs members of a legitimate labor union and not in whether or not one union has been preferred over another.

"It is to these patrons that the defendant addresses its appeal. To the reader of these signs the impression is given that union labor is not employed. The temporary injunction now in force prohibits the signs unless there are added thereto words in substance as follows: 'Edjomac Amusement Corp. employs union labor to operate motion picture machines.' The temporary injunction is therefore made permanent substantially in its present form."

Selznick Adds Four To Production Staff

Hollywood, Nov. 12.—David O. Selznick has made four additions to his production staff at Selznick International Pictures, which releases through United Artists. Hal Kern, film editor and technical asistant to Selznick at M-G-M, will join when he completes work on "A Tale of Two Cities." Eric Stacey, formerly with Samuel Goldwyn, will be assistant director on "Little Lord Fauntleroy." Casey Roberts has been added to the art department headed by Sturges Carne, and Charles Walrod has been named purchasing agent.

U. A. Films Honored

At the International Film Festival, held recently at the Brussels Exposition in Belgium, honors were awarded to "Escape Me Never," Herbert Wilcox production; "Sanders of the River," Alexander Korda film; "Clive of India," "Call of the Wild," Zanuck films, and "The Band Concert" and "Who Killed Cock Robin?" Disney cartoons. All the pictures named were released by United Artists.

Reinhardt Tries His German on Cheesers

Max Reinhardt was guest of honor of the Cheese Club at its luncheon meeting at the Friars' yesterday, presided over by Harry Hershfield. Reinhardt addressed the meeting in German in order, it was explained, to avoid being misquoted. On the dais, in addition, were Louis Sobol, Dr. Henry Moskowitz, Sam Forrest, Sigmund Romberg, Donald Flamm and Willie Robard.

WPA Film, Drama Projects Attacked

Washington, Nov. 12.—Presaging the bitterest presidential campaign in many years, the National Republican Congressional Committee today countered the denial of Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, of any boondoggling in his program by issuing a pamphlet entitled "Roosevelt, the Waster" in which circuses, eurythmic dancing and other "cultural" projects are cited as examples of the waste of relief funds.

The pamphlet calls special attention to the employment of Pare Lorentz, film critic of Judge at $25 a day to aid in the preparation of a film of the Tugwell organization.

In the field of entertainment, the committee charges, the Government program under Hallie Flanagan contemplates the production of plays which the commercial stage has refused, the authors of which have been regarded by the public as left wing propagandists.

"An undertaking of this kind is not unexpected when Miss Flanagan of Vassar runs it, because she studied Russian drama under the direction of the Soviet Society for Cultural Relations with Foreign Countries, is a member of the American Advisory Committee of the Moscow State University, and also the recipient of a special ballet performance given for her in Leningrad," it was asserted.

Texas Tax Projects Disturb Exhibitors

Houston, Nov. 12.—Theatre operators of Texas have watched with some apprehension the progress of tax proposals in the state legislature to raise funds for the old-age pension voted last summer. An amusement tax of one and one-half per cent has been under consideration, applicable to admissions above 50 cents.

An omnibus tax bill has passed the Senate, but action in the House has been held up by consideration of liquor control legislation. Few film theatres in Texas charge more than 50-cent admissions, but other types of theatres, night clubs, and amusements would have the state tax added to the Federal tax.

Bank Night Owners Sue

A suit charging Bank Night copyright infringement was filed in Federal Court yesterday by Affiliated Enterprises, Inc., against the New Theatre, Inc. and Harry Schiffman. The defendants control the Ritz and Strand Theatres in Port Jervis, N. Y. Affiliated asks $10,000 damages and an injunction to restrain the defendant from making further use of the system.

"When I met Don Wilson, I fell in love with him. He was tall, good-looking, an ex-college hero, an all-American football star, with plenty of money. I promised to marry him. Now the police tell me Don is a Public Enemy, and I'm in the hands of the law for helping him. All I did was love a man and help him when he was in trouble. Does that make me a criminal?"

"In Two Seconds My Whole Life Changed!"

"One moment I was Mary Burns, who never harmed a soul. The next instant all was changed. They took away my name and gave me a number. Said I was guilty of aiding, abetting and harboring a criminal. But all the law and all the judges in the land can't make me a crook. If I am guilty, then all I'm guilty of is love. Did they have the right to give me fifteen years in the Penitentiary for that!"

"Hunted by the police...driven from pillar to post. Wanted by Don Wilson, murderer . . . the man I couldn't love. That was me Mary Burns, who only wanted a chance to live my life...to be let alone. I'll never forget the terrible day when Don, himself, followed me to a church in Salt Lake City and got away from the Federal men after forcing me to go with him. Lowenstein Again MPTO President

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 12.—Morris Lowenstein was reelected president at the annual meeting of the M. P. T. O. of Oklahoma, at the Biltmore Hotel here today. Lowenstein is national secretary of the M. P. T. O. A. Five new directors elected were: Ralph Talbot, Homer Jones, Harry Lowenstein, Max Brock and L. C. Griffith.

Ed Kuykendall was guest of honor at a luncheon and chief speaker at the convention. He said Miami has bid for the next national convention. The old age pension tax of two per cent occupied most of the convention's attention. The convention voted to raise a $2,000 fund to fight the tax, which will actually be five per cent, when distributor taxes are passed on in the form of rentals.

No action was taken, but Wehrenberg has notified the chairman of the legislative committee of the Board of Aldermen, to whom the bill will be referred for public hearings prior to a report, that the unit will await the hearing before taking action.

The rest of the day's session was devoted to reports from officers.

Palace Goes Bankrupt

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in the Federal Court here yesterday by the Palace Amusement Co., 1,270 6th Ave. Liabilities were listed as $258,801 and assets at $6,940. The chief creditor was Orpheum Circuit, Inc., same address, for cash advanced and miscellaneous transactions amounting to $227,568.

These notes were endorsed to the Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corp. as security for advances for it to Orpheum Circuit, Inc. Under an agreement of April 1, 1933, the Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corp. endorsed the notes to the Stadium Theatres Corp.

The RKO legal department said that Palace Amusement Co., the bankrupt, is not the subsidiary operating the Palace on 7th Ave. No definite information concerning the operations or identity of the bankrupt was available from the department.

Party for Melton

The stage, screen and radio were represented at a midnight party Monday for James Melton, radio singer, at Jack Dempsey's. The party was in honor of Melton's screen debut in Warners' "Stars Over Broadway," opening tonight at the Strand. Rudy Vallee, S. L. (Roxy) Rothafel, Louis Sobol and Gertrude Niessen were among the guests.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Crime and Punishment"

(Schulberg-Columbia)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 12.—This is a powerfully different version of criminal-police conflict. Moving in an aura of complex metaphysical collision, "Crime and Punishment" is something which understanding intelligentsia will probably appreciate. Yet an effort has been made to bring it into the realm of mass appeal through the force and expertness of its acting.

Slow tempo, accenting its somewhat morbid plot, irrelevant comedy and bizarre, symbolic photography are contrasted. While the picture impresses as of dubious box-office promise, it, nevertheless, provides exhibitors a novel and unique feature to sell in that manner.

Peter Lorre, an anonymous and highly regarded amateur criminologist, poverty-desperate and hateful of human greed, kills pawnbroker Mrs. Pat Campbell in the "perfect crime." Brought before Inspector Edward Arnold on a minor and unrelated charge, the latter's police instincts arouse his suspicions of Lorre's guilt as they discuss the murder.

The ensuing development is that of mental conflict. Arnold, cleverly advancing entangling, physical, theoretical and incriminating circumstantial facts, has each one controverted by Lorre.

Cracking under Arnold's logic that a criminal may beat the law but not his own conscience, Lorre confesses to Marian Marsh, with whom a meager romantic thread is carried. Suicide-bent, Lorre, responding to Miss Marsh's religiously inspired plea, gives himself up.

Lorre and Arnold dominate with fine performances. The principal supporting players are Miss Marsh, Tala Birell, Elisabeth Risdon, Robert Allen, Douglas Dumbrille and Gene Lockhart.

Based on Dostoievsky's Russian literary classic, the screen play by S. K. Lauren and Joseph Anthony is completely modern in atmosphere. The direction by Josef Von Sternberg is in his typical manner, allowing imagination to outstrip movement and dialogue.

Production Code Seal No. 1,625. Running time, 88 minutes. "A."

"Two Faces"

(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 12.—With elements of farce melodrama and satire this picture will go places when word passes, despite the lack of draw names.

Situations develop after Brian Donlevy, a hoodlum, undergoes a plastic surgery operation which transforms him into a matinee idol. Disposing of all who might identify him with the exception of Molly Lamont, a nurse who assisted with the operation, Donlevy journeys to Hollywood and lands a picture job. Wallace Ford, a press agent, mistaking Donlevy for a wealthy playboy, plans a great buildup and is astounded when Miss Lamont, who is also in Hollywood, identifies the gangster. Sensing the biggest newsbreak in history, Ford plans having Donlevy captured while acting. This leads to studio complications with the police and personal difficulties between Ford and Phyllis Brooks, his fiancee. In the ensuing melee Donlevy runs riot and is finally taken and the other characters resume their business.

Director Christy Cabanne has built good suspense and gotten the most from the comedy. Donlevy's transition from a ham actor into a gangster at bay is neatly done and the balance of the cast, which includes Erik Rhodes, Alan Hale and Charles Wilson, is uniformly good. Garrett Graham and John Twist wrote the screen play from a story by Thomas Dugan and Ray Mayer. The Cliff Reid production takes full advantage of the backstage studio angles. With its natural exploitation possibilities the picture should click.

No production code seal. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

Wells in Tomorrow

H. G. Wells is en route to New York on the Washington, and will arrive tomorrow. He will go immediately to Hollywood, to visit Charlie Chaplin and view production.

Canadian Business Gains 40%—Devaney

Canadian houses are doing at least 40 per cent better business than at this time last year, according to Leo M. Devaney, RKO Canadian district manager, in New York for home office conferences.

The increased business is a reflection of a general improvement in business, he said. He pointed out that at least 15 new houses will be opened by next spring. Numerous others are being renovated. Double-featuring is general in Canada, he said.

Philadelphia Argues About Sunday Shows

Small Spots Uncertain; Circuits Pleased

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 13.—While the industry as a whole is cheered by the victory of Sunday shows here, which will take effect after 2 P. M. this Sunday, there has been a steady group of dissenters among exhibitors all through the campaign.

Sharp lines were drawn among independent exhibitors on the subject, some backing Warners, prime movers in the campaign, while another large group, including a big percentage of I.E.P.A. members fought the measure.

Many independents hold to the theory that while the circuit will unquestionably benefit from Sunday films, the neighborhood theatres will be faced with additional expense, the possibility of antagonizing local church patronage and a problematical profit. Several have signified their intention of remaining closed. Whether they can maintain this policy in the Brooklyn Paramount Offers Turned Down

Si Fabian's offer of $1,500,000 for the Brooklyn Paramount has been turned down by U. S. District Court Judge Inch with the advice that the trustees of Allied Owners' Corp. should wait until they see whether they can get taxes cut before a sale is attempted.

Two other offers made by Riker & Co. for $1,750,000 and Samuel Strausberg for the same amount with a different mortgage clause also failed to get the court's approval.

Judge Inch in his decision said: "It is my opinion that of the three pro-

Washington Tax on Distributors Void

SEATTLE, Nov. 13.—The State Supreme Court has ruled that distributors are exempt from the state business tax of one-half of one per cent on gross income. The ruling upholds the recent Superior Court decision which held the tax was an unlawful levy upon interstate commerce.

The suit was brought originally by Paramount, RKO, Universal, Fox, M-G-M, U. A., Vitagraph and Columbia against the State Tax Commission.

Cleveland Expansion Planned By RKO; Several Deals in Air

While the RKO circuit has definite plans in mind for expansion in Cleveland, no deals have as yet been made, although seven or eight are pending. Two of them call for new theatres in neighborhood districts which the circuit would not build itself, but operate under long leaseholds. Others embrace houses now standing.

The circuit currently has the Palace and the Allan downtown. These are operated in a pool with Warners' Hippodrome. In addition, the chain has the 105th St. on the east side of Cleveland and on Nov. 22 will take over the Lincoln.

RKO officials stressed yesterday that the proposed extension of their interests in the Ohio city goes back to an idea originally conceived a year ago; that it has nothing to do with operations of the RKO Dist. Corp. and is not designed as a "spanking" of any theatre interests in that key point.

New England Allied Charges "Coercion"

BOSTON, Nov. 13.—"Three instances of attempted coercion of exhibitors to buy product have come to our attention," states the Independent Exhibitors of Massachusetts, Inc., Allied States affiliate, in the November bulletin. The three alleged grievances are listed as follows:

"Columbia has sent a circular letter to many residents of a town in which an Allied leader has a theatre, urging them to demand that this exhibitor show Columbia pictures.

"France Film, Inc., has written to another Allied leader threatening to establish competition, and even to build a theatre in his city, if he does not show French pictures. Consider the audacity of the following passage in the letter:

"'We ourselves have already had

Kuykendall Shifts Stand on Giveaways

DENVER, Nov. 13.—Ed Kuykendall, M. P. T. O. A. head, has changed his mind on giveaways and is now for them, he told a luncheon meeting of exhibitors here. No company puts out more than a few good films, with perhaps one whopper, he said, and many theatres would have been forced to close if they had not adopted giveaways.

Warning that Congress intends to lower the exemption on the admission tax, he urged exhibitors to cultivate friendships and write to Congressmen. He also stated that M. P. T. O. A. hopes to have score and seat charges removed in the coming session.

Kuykendall demanded that the companies give more power to exchange managers, a decentralization in the selling end.

Court Declines to Order Fox Met Stock Purchase

Judge Martin T. Manton yesterday denied an application made by the Stockholders' Protective Committee for an order directing the receivers of Fox Theatres Corp. to purchase 50 per cent of the capital stock of the Metropolitan Playhouses, Inc., pursuant to the option granted on Mar. 25, 1935.

He ruled: "Fox Theatres Corp. can realize no gain from an increase in the value of the stock because of the limitation offered. Before the stock may be sold or pledged, it must first be offered to the United Artists Theatre Circuit, Inc., at cost." Judge Manton further pointed out that the creditors of Fox Theatres Corp. with claims amounting to $13,245,066 oppose the purchase, declaring they do not want a settlement of Fox Theatres Corp. in which Metropolitan Playhouses stock is distributed to them, but that they want cash. He also declared that the United Artists Theatre Circuit owned 50 per cent of the stock and that if the remaining 50 per cent should be distributed to creditors of Fox Theatres the United Artists Theatre Circuit would be able to purchase a few shares in the open market and thereby acquire control of Metropolitan Playhouses, Inc.

Expect Moore Will Accept Substitution

Affidavits Are Filed by Paramount, Warners

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 13.—Federal Judge George H. Moore is expected here to agree to the personal disqualification sought by Warner, Paramount and RKO relative to the Government's application for a preliminary injunction in the equity proceedings following the criminal trial at which officials and the three companies were acquitted.

Judge Moore said today that he had not yet completed the examination of two affidavits charging him with personal bias and prejudice against the defendants in the action. It is believed that under a guiding ruling of the Court of Appeals Judge Moore has little choice but to agree to the disqualification.

The preliminary injunction sought

St. Louis Price War Reports Are Denied

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 13.—Reports circulating here to the effect that a price war would follow the acquittal of Harry M. Warner, Gradwell L. Sears, Herman Starr, George J. Schaefer, Ned E. Depinet, five Warner companies, two Paramount corporations, and RKO Distributing Corp. of alleged conspiracy charges are unfounded, it is learned as a result of a checkup with various parties interested in the first run theatres.

An important Warner executive says there is no truth to the rumors, while Harry C. Arthur, vice-president of F. & M., also denies the story. Harold (Chick) Evens, manager of Loew's, holds there is no plan as far as he is concerned to reduce admissions, give away articles, or adopt chance games.

BOSTON, Nov. 13.—John A. Deery says he will file an appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court from the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruling sentencing him to a year and a day in prison for transactions in connection with the Federal National Bank.

St. Louis Tax Move Not Taken Seriously

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 13.—Local exhibitors are not taking seriously the recent ticket tax bill introduced by Alderman John R. Slay. Theatre owners do not believe the bill will get much support from the board, although it is possible the measure may be referred to a committee where it may be pigeon holed.

For the past five years a tax bill of this sort has cropped up in one form or another. The only time a bill of this kind was taken seriously happened about four years ago when a levy was hooked on to a relief measure. Even then it was beaten by concerted efforts of exhibitors and Fred Wehrenberg, head of the local M. P. T. O.

At present the state has a one per cent tax on all purchases and the issuance of mills in which to pay the tariff has stirred up plenty of commotion. It is believed the new bill was designed to increase the revenue from baseball, boxing and wrestling. The city now collects a $150 license fee from the Cardinals and Browns on the local baseball park and there is a 10 per cent state tax and five per cent city levy on boxing and wrestling.

"Rose" to Open in Southern Capitals

Elaborate plans have been made by Paramount for simultaneous openings tonight of "So Red the Rose" in the 11 cities which were Confederate capitals during the Civil War. The cities are: Austin, Tex.; Jackson, Miss.; Montgomery, Ala.; Tallahassee, Fla.; Baton Rouge, La.; Richmond, Va.; Raleigh, N. C.; Columbia, S. C.; Nashville, Tenn.; Atlanta, Ga., and Little Rock, Ark.

At Raleigh the father and family of Randolph Scott, who plays opposite Margaret Sullavan in the film, will attend the premiere, with Gov. J. B. C. Ehringhaus, U. S. Senator Josiah Bailey and Josephus Daniels, Jr., son of the Ambassador to Mexico.

New York trade press representatives will attend the Richmond opening. The picture is set for the Paramount on Thanksgiving Day.

DES MOINES, Nov. 13.—One-man booth operation on a two-year contract is reported to have been agreed upon by the Orpheum and Tri-States Theatres and Local 286 of the I. A. T. S. E.

Ed Fox, secretary of the union, denies that contracts have been signed and says that negotiations are still under way. G. Ralph Branton, general manager of Tri-States; Stanley A. Brown, district manager, and Hale Cavanaugh, Orpheum manager, have been handling the theatre side of the negotiations.

Reorganization Plan For GTE Presented

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 13.—A plan of reorganization for General Theatres Equipment, Inc., was presented today before Chancellor Josiah O. Wolcott in Chancery Court. Aaron Finger represented a committee of debenture holders which became a reorganization committee, and presented the plan. Murray N. Becker, New York attorney representing All Continent Corp., asked that Wolcott disqualify himself because Mrs. Wolcott held 90 shares of stock in Chase National Bank, one of the receivership interests. Wolcott recessed court until sale of his wife's stock could be arranged. The new company would acquire practically all the General Theatres assets under the plan.

No decision has been handed down by Chief Justice Layton on the proposed agreement between General Theatres and Chase, which would release Chase from obligations and enrich the estate in receivership.

To Appeal at K. C.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 13.—General Theatres Equipment Corp. bondholders will appeal the decision of Judge Albert L. Reeves of the Federal district court, in which Reeves last week (Nov. 6) dismissed the bondholders' petition to review the bankruptcy proceedings of Fox Midland and Fox Rocky Mountain theatre companies, and their ancillary suit in equity.

R. R. Brewster and C. A. Randolph are attorneys for the six General Theatres bondholders in the action. They have 30 days in which to take their appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Study GTE Finances

Finances of General Theatres Equipment Corp. were again studied Tuesday by the Sabath Congressional Committee. Chase National Bank officials were witnesses. The hearing was closed, and the only member of the committee present was Martin J. Kennedy of New York.

"U" Sues Over Film Use

A suit for $250 damages for alleged infringement of copyright of a series of 41 films entitled "News" and 12 entitled "Jungle Mysteries" was filed in the Federal Court yesterday by Universal Pictures Corp. and the Big "U" Film Exchange, Inc., against the R. T. Amusement Corp., Irving Fineman and Paul Meltzer.

The complaint stated that the defendants operate the Rex, 205 E. 67th St., and exhibited the pictures without the license of the plaintiff. An injunction is sought to prevent any further infringements. No answer has been filed to the complaint.

Short Subjects

"Custer's Last Stand"

(Stage and Screen)

The first three episodes of this 15-chapter serial set a pace that ought to stir up plenty of excitement for the Saturday afternoon kid trade as well as those adults who go for outdoor action in a big way.

George M. Merrick has hung his story on the fact that the Sioux must have a sacred arrow which has been captured by white men during a wagon train attack. Renegade whites want the arrow because it is supposed to have directions to a sacred Indian cave with gold in it.

It happens that the arrow is in the possession of Joseph Swickard, former Confederate army doctor, who is traveling with his daughter, Nancy Caswell, and an orphan boy, Marty Joyce.

After two wagon train attacks, some spectacular riding, and a pursuit, the first episode ends with Rex Lease crawling out on a wagon tongue to pry an Indian loose. The wagon crashes over a hill. It's hot stuff.

The second episode has a huge buffalo stampede as the climax with Lease and Lona Andre lying on the ground in their path. Very spectacular. In the third episode a disgraced officer and Lease clash in a fight for the arrow in the midst of an Indian attack on a town.

The cast has 38 principals and a flock of Indians. Some historical characters are impersonated—Buffalo Bill, General Custer, Wild Bill Hickok and Calamity Jane. The exploitation ought to be easy where westerns are popular. Elmer Clifton directed.

No production code seal. Running time, first episode, 44 minutes. Second and third episodes, 22½ minutes each. "G."

(RKO)

Held to three news subjects in this, its eighth release, the current issue of "The March of Time" continues to maintain its intensely interesting pace.

First is the story of Pearl Louis Bergoff, for years in the business of supplying industrial interests with strike-breakers. It tells how his tentacles of manpower reach into taxi cab drivers, park bench warmers and strong arm individuals with an ability to crack skulls whether of men, women or children; how the pleasant Bergoff ran into difficulties in connection with a mill strike in Georgia where Governor Talmadge ordered his brutal brood out of the state in short order with arrest the alternative and the final revocation of Bergoff's license. Very well done.

The second deals with the efforts of the Government to preserve wild duck life. Produced in collaboration with the U. S. Biological Survey, it graphically tells the story of "duck butchers" and their slaughtering and in itself, is a complete yarn.

Third, titled "G.O.P.", is a swell clip fastening attention on the forthcoming Presidential race with camera picking up new intimate and public scenes of Herbert Hoover in Palo Alto and elsewhere, of high office timber, including Borah of Idaho, Vandenberg of Michigan, Knox of Illinois, Landon of Kansas and ending with a breakfast shot of Jim Far-

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Broadway Hostess"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 13.—A dramatic romance, torch song music dabs and a situation comedy triangle conflict, plus one oddly contrived spectacle feature, are this show's entertainment. Average in caliber it affords little in the way of novel sock appeal to recommend other than as an average attraction.

Lyle Talbot, a Broadway character, appoints himself manager of an embryo torch singer, Winifred Shaw, who, under his guidance and with the girl's ability, makes her the talk of the night club world. Her love unrecognized, Talbot goes Park Avenue with socialite Genevieve Tobin. Comedy is provided by punch drunk Allen Jenkins and dizzy dowager Spring Byington, pepping up the romantic action as Miss Tobin thumbs Talbot down. Opening a gambling night club, Talbot, after a debt dispute with Miss Tobin's wastrel brother, Donald Ross, is jailed on suspicion of theft. Freed through Miss Tobin's influence after learning of the identity of the real culprit and Miss Shaw, who would go bail, the pair are married and Miss Shaw goes into retirement. She is brought back in triumph in a Talbot-backed show but has her happiness shattered when Ross shoots Talbot. At his bedside the girls make an understanding peace and Miss Shaw is married to accompanist Phil Regan, who loved her all the time.

Miss Shaw, singing several torch numbers, is alright for those liking that kind of music. Every opportunity is given her to impress audiences. The artificiality of the Talbot-Tobin romance is peppily contrasted by the affair between Jenkins and Miss Byington. The spectacle feature creating the illusion of dancing girls rising from champagne bubbles is a colorful sequence. Marie Wilson in a chorus girl comedy bit won audience applause.

Produced by Bryan Foy the show was directed by Frank MacDonald from George Bricker's original screenplay with the music and lyrics by Allie Wrubel and Mort Dixon.

Production Code Seal No. 1478. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Looking 'em Over

"I Give My Heart"

(Associated British Pictures)

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Built on "The Dubarry" stage hit, and with much the same story values as "Passion," of happy box-office memory, this marks a definite advance in A.B.P.'s production standard and is useful audience material.

Gitta Alpar, from Vienna, has a series of good numbers and sings them all, particularly the title theme song, very well. She is the main appeal of the picture and her voice compensates for some shortcomings as a screen actress.

The story pictures the elevation of Jeanne, a Paris milliner, to the role of King's mistress in succession to the dead Madame Pompadour. The intrigue by which she is first married to the penniless Count Dubarry and then introduced to the King, in preference to the candidate of a rival court faction is treated in a musical comedy vein and her previous devotion to a penniless poet is represented as having been displaced by a real affection for Louis XV. The lover reappears to turn the Paris mob, which has been inflamed against the new mistress, into her champions.

Owen Nares, Arthur Margetson, Patrick Waddington, Margaret Bannerman and Hugh Miller are leading members of the cast and the acting is adequate in a film appealing chiefly by its spectacular and musical values.

Running time, 85 minutes. "A." ALLAN

"The Last of the Clintons"

(Ajax Pictures)

Produced by William Berke and released by Ajax Pictures Corp., this western is routine material of its kind, containing that amount and sort of action which is usually found pleasing by the youngsters and those of the adults who still enjoy western fare. It should find its best playing position on a double bill.

Harry Carey, with something of a following among western fans,

"Dream" Big In 4th Week On the Coast

face of competition will, of course, be decided later.

The theory advanced by these exhibitors is that Warners, with their large auxiliary staff and with percentage dates, will be able to operate seven days at an increased cost of only actual overhead plus operator while the average independent will find his cost directly increased by one-sixth. The more pessimistic in this class are dubious as to whether there is one-sixth more trade in their stands to overcome the expense. They cite experiences in Baltimore and Trenton to the effect, they claim, that while Sunday shows provided a quick boom, business averaged off close to normal within a year.

Neighborhoods Cheerful

There is a more cheerful side to the question, however, and it is being expressed by all downtown men. One exhibitor put it this way: "Our Labor Day and other holiday business indicates what we may expect from Sunday trade. While Philadelphians leave the city in great numbers over such holidays, we still have good business on such days from the vast influx of visitors to the city. We can count on a heavy attendance from the surrounding districts."

The point is particularly well taken in view of the fact that several large neighboring communities, Norristown, Ambler, Lancaster, etc., voted against Sunday shows. The liberal element in these towns will be logical customers for Philadelphia so far as first runs are concerned.

Many neighborhood exhibitors are in a like cheerful frame of mind, pointing out that Sunday gives them a chance to recoup if Saturday, the other big day in the week, brings bad weather. They figure the additional expense is worth the gamble.

Stage Show Houses Doubtful

The stage show houses are still in a quandary. Under the terms of the law, no stage shows are permitted. Violation becomes a misdemeanor and carries a $100 fine. If the authorities let the matter drop with the payment of the $100, it is possible that the bigger stage show theatres will operate as usual. Naturally the subject is a ticklish one and no one is committing himself on a policy.

Final certification of the Sunday vote has been made removing the last legal bulwark against showings this Sunday.

It is probable that there will be no court action of any sort against Sunday films until after the first showing. Whether Rev. William B. Forney, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, will go through with his plan to seek an injunction on the grounds that the pro vote was not half the total vote cast, is not known.

" 'The March of Time' (broadcast) is constantly urging the public to demand that theatres show the 'March of Time' (newsreel); never explaining, of course, that under the practices of compulsory block booking and the forcing of shorts and newsreels with features, thousands of exhibitors are constantly so overbought that they could not possibly add another newsreel."

The statement concludes: "These methods caused a great furore in the industry some years ago and since then have been abandoned by the better-managed distributors. Even the distributor-written code condemned these practices (Art. V, Div. D, Part 1). Exhibitors should not fail to make known to these concerns their resentment of such strong-arm methods.

Pettengill in Detroit

DETROIT, Nov. 13.—Before an audience composed of the members of Allied of Michigan and more than 100 representatives of various local women's clubs, Congressman Samuel B. Pettengill today explained his anti-block booking bill and told of his plans to secure its passage at the next session of Congress, as the highlight of the final day of the organization's convention in the Hotel Statler.

Prior to Pettengill's speech, Abram F. Myers warned the delegates of impending mergers in the film industry and urged stricter organization to combat adverse legislation. The following officers were named for the coming year: president, Fred De Ludder; vice-president, Frank A. Wetsman; secretary, Barney Kilbride; treasurer, William Schullenhelen.

It is also my opinion, expressed at the close of the hearing and confirmed by subsequent considerations of the testimony and the briefs, that none of these offers is sufficiently attractive under the terms proposed. No attempt should be made to sell the property or to part with the title until an effort to reduce the taxes has been made and the result, whether successful or not, is known."

An underwriting group, headed by Hemphill, Noyes & Co., today will offer 75,000 shares of $2.75 preferred convertible stock of Columbia Pictures Corp., said to be the first public offering of film company securities under the Securities Act. The stock is priced at $50 per share. Bancamerica-Blair; Goldman, Sachs; Eastman, Dillon, and Wertheim & Co. are in the group which is offering the stock.

Expect Moore Will Accept Substitution

would compel Warners, Paramount and RKO to make available first run product to the Fanchon & Marco-operated Missouri, Ambassador and New Grand Central here.

One affidavit was filed yesterday by Maurice Schweitzer, local Paramount manager. Herman Starr, Warner vice-president, filed the other today. Accompanying both were the required certificates of good faith by defense counsel. When Judge Moore certifies the sufficiency of the affidavits to Judge Kinbrough Stone, presiding justice of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, Judge Stone will name another judge to hear the injunction application and equity proceedings against the three companies.

Judge Stone may be here tomorrow, although the Appeals Court is not scheduled to sit until Monday. The affidavit of Starr discusses the charge of Judge Moore to the jury in the criminal case, citing the manner of its delivery, the judge's reaction to the exceptions taken by Frederick H. Wood of defense counsel, and the $100 fine for contempt imposed on Wood by the court. These points are offered to substantiate the contention that Judge Moore has prejudged the issue in the equity case, in a manner adverse to the defense and that therefore he cannot preside at the hearing fairly and impartially.

Columbus Given Aid For Big Auditorium

COLUMBUS, Nov. 13.—A Federal grant of $1,569,000 has been approved by President Roosevelt for construction of a Civic Center here which will house a civic theatre seating 6,400; a music hall with a seating capacity of 3,600, and a recital hall which will seat 1,000. Approval is conditioned on the city raising $300,000, which, sponsors of the project say, can easily be done.

The three auditoriums will be arranged so they can be thrown together, to form one large theatre with an aggregate seating capacity of 11,000.

Melton Film Opens

Warners' "Stars Over Broadway" opened at the Strand last night before a notable audience. Among those attending were: James Melton, who makes his screen debut in the film; Jane Froman, also in the cast; Rudy Vallee, Fred Waring, Gus Edwards, Dick Himber, Mitzi Green and Glenn Gray. A broadcast from the lobby went through WHN. Melton and Miss Froman were introduced and sang from the stage.

K. C. Widens Its Ban On Bank Night Signs

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 13.—Signs at all independent theatres which advertise Bank Night are to be taken down, Judge Henry F. McElroy, city manager, has ordered. Police are notifying the independents.

The action follows removal of signs from Fox Midwest's 12 houses here Saturday night under direction of the police.

McElroy claims the signs are misleading, that they advertise a large amount of money to be given away "tonight," when actually the money may not be given away for several days or weeks.

Action of the city manager complicates the problem of advertising the promotion. Postal authorities prohibit direct advertising in newspapers, so that theatres have resorted to indefinite allusion—"Extra added attraction tonight," etc. Some exhibitors have resorted to street promotion with an automobile equipped with loudspeaker playing music, the car surmounted by a large sign.

Beano Promoter Arrested

BOSTON, Nov. 13.—After issuing many warnings, Massachusetts authorities have finally clamped down on Beano. Following a raid on the offices of the Brookline General Hospital, during which 75,000 Beano tickets and a quantity of correspondence and records were seized, Thomas A. O'Connell, vice-president of the hospital, was arraigned in Municipal Court and held in $500 on the charge of setting up and promoting a lottery.

O'Connell states that he will take the case to the Massachusetts Supreme Court as a test if the Municipal Court turns thumbs down on Beano. Theatre men are watching developments.

"Opera" St. Louis Hit

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 13.—With more than double the average of $12,000 garnered in the first week when the picture hit approximately $25,000, "A Night at the Opera" is heading for a $14,000 take on the six-day holdover at Loew's.

The six-day tally is expected to end with at least $2,000 more than the average week's gross. "Thanks A Million" starts Thursday.

Empire State Appeals

Attorney Joseph A. Teperson filed a notice of appeal yesterday to the Appellate Division on behalf of the Empire State Theatrical Stage Employes Union, Inc., from a judgment in the Supreme Court enjoining his clients from picketing the Edgomac Amusement Corp. theatres. Justice Samuel L. Rosenman signed a permanent injunction order on Tuesday of this week.

Golden has just returned from a seven weeks' tour of exchanges throughout the country.

"New York Uncensored"

(Celebrated)

Built around the idea of a columnist getting his stuff in under the deadline, this short has Paul Yawitz, tabloid columnist, on his rounds for material. There are shots of interesting places about Times Square. The camera tour takes in the Hollywood restaurant, the Versailles, backstage at the Hippodrome where "Jumbo" is being made ready, with clowning by Jimmy Durante, a scene of James Barton in "Tobacco Road," Murray Korman photographing the showgirls, Victor Moore and Billy Gaxton in a bit of stage door buffoonery and winds up with a finale from the floor show at the Hollywood. The short should go over for the novel inside shots on current celebrities and the Broadway scene. No production code seal. Running time, 15 mins. "G."

"Oh, My Nerves"

(Columbia)

This one is based on the time-worn plot of a nervous wreck's reaction to suggestion. In this case Tom Kennedy and Monte Collins are the cause and effect. En route to Florida they are lost in the rain and pitch their camp to awake the next morning and find themselves on the White House lawn. In Florida there is a burlesque of a fishing trip with some time worn gags and finally both principals wind up in an insane asylum. It contains some humorous moments and may be found enjoyable by undiscriminating audiences. Production Code Seal No. 1165. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

has the lead, while Betty Mack takes care of the comparatively minor romantic aspect of the story. Carey comes to the western town which is harassed by cattle rustlers and joins their gang, aided by an old crony. The brother of the gang leader who has had nothing to do with the rustling, is in love with the daughter of the town's leading citizen, head of the Vigilantes.

With the expected complications, gun fights and hard riding spotted through the film, Carey eventually cleans up the gang, and the girl and boy finish with the anticipated romantic conclusion, while Carey and his pal go in search of more adventure. Harry Fraser directed.

"Crime et Chatiment"

(Lenauer International)

Stark, unrelieved drama, this French picturization of the famous novel by Dostoievsky, "Crime and Punishment," moves slowly, yet powerfully, as it tells the story of a murderer's battle with his conscience, and his eventual breakdown and confession.

Performed in excellent fashion, the picture is well-photographed and strong in atmosphere. It is an adult attraction exclusively. In French entirely, it is adaptable only to those houses in metropolitan areas which are able to draw a patronage interested in the better foreign importations, or to those communities where French-speaking people are to be found.

A poor student, unable to bear his condition, murders a woman pawn broker and her younger sister, and robs them, in St. Petersburg in 1865. He is called to the police station on a minor charge of debt and the official's suspicions are aroused. The two fence with one another, while the bitter mental struggle of the student is apparent. He falls in love with a girl he meets by accident, and eventually, and chiefly for her sake, he confesses his crime. The conclusion finds him en route to Siberia, the girl with him.

Strong material, for the "class" audience, the picture is one of the better foreign films. No production code seal. Running time, 100 minutes. "A."

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 13.—Backed by strong promotion, "The 39 Steps" made the best comparative showing for first run houses at the Newman, taking $7,800, $800 over par.

Other shows, handicapped by bad weather, did only a fair job. "The Gay Deception" and "Charlie Chan in Shanghai" grossed $3,900 at the Uptown, which is $400 more than average. "Paris in Spring" at the Tower disappointed with a take $1,000 off the normal $7,000.

"Metropolitan" did $9,800 at the Midland. This is well below the house's average of $11,500.

Expect a New Judge to Sit In Equity Case

Moore Seen Replaced In St. Louis Action

St. Louis, Nov. 14.—A new judge to supplant Federal Judge George H. Moore in the hearing for a preliminary injunction sought by the Government against Warners, Paramount and RKO for allegedly withholding product from the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central is expected to be appointed by Judge Kimbrough Stone, presiding justice of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, within the next few days.

Paramount and Warners have filed affidavits to disqualify Judge Moore on the ground of prejudice after listening to arguments pro and con in the alleged conspiracy suit for six weeks. Filing of the affidavits automatically eliminates Judge Moore from the equity case, attorneys for the three distributors hold. Justice Kimbrough also will set the date for hearing of

Bishops End Parley; Make No Statement

Washington, Nov. 14.—Members of the Conference of Catholic Bishops today adjourned their annual meeting without making a public statement as to any of their proceedings. It is understood motion pictures and the activities of the Legion of Decency were discussed, the latter having been expected to submit a report on the improvement of the cultural level of films. Following the conclusion of the bishops' conference, the administrative committee of the Welfare Conference went into session for a further discussion of matters referred to it by the superior group.

Burn Dietrich Print To End Spanish Row

The master print of Paramount's "The Devil Is a Woman" was burned here yesterday in the presence of the Spanish Consul-General in New York as a first step in the company's move to accede to Spain's demand that the film be removed from world circulation.

Other prints are being withdrawn from international distribution and exhibition by Paramount as rapidly as is consistent with the company's desire to avoid law suits for breach of contract. Spain objected to the print on the grounds that it was derogatory to the nation's Civil Guard.

"Rose" Opening Is An Event in South

By J. M. JERAULD

Richmond, Nov. 14.—With all the pomp and ceremony this historic old city can muster—and it can muster plenty when it steps out of its prewar calm—Paramount's "So Red the Rose" was given a southern premiere at the Colonial tonight as well as in the 10 other Confederate capitals.

The Richmond Blues paraded up to the Colonial, the Dixie Jubilee Singers entertained from the stage, and Gov. George C. Perry made a short address which was broadcast. United Daughters of the Confederacy and other organizations which represent the aristocracy of this section were

Publicity Men on Pan Before Ampa

Film publicists received a polite but helpful panning for their wasted opportunities of crashing the public prints when Alice Hughes, merchandising columnist of the N. Y. American, faced them in their own council at the Ampa luncheon at Jack Dempsey's yesterday and told some of the things that are thought and said by the people on the receiving end of the pieces the boys write for the papers.

The first fault of film publicists, Miss Hughes said, and the one that must have hurt her listeners most, is that they show no initiative. The editors have to make the suggestions, whereas the ideas should certainly

Rogers Stage Dedicated in Nation-Wide Air Hookup

Hollywood, Nov. 14.—In impressive ceremonies today the new Will Rogers memorial stage at Twentieth Century-Fox's Westwood Hills studio was dedicated, following a luncheon. The ceremonies were broadcast over a nationwide N. B. C. and C. B. S. hookup to an estimated audience of 40,000,000. The full measure of the depth of feeling which the speakers had for the late humorist and philosopher was evident in their voices.

Rupert Hughes, as toastmaster, introduced the speakers in his capacity as California state chairman of the Will Rogers Memorial Commission. Joseph M. Schenck, the first to speak, declared he thought it would have been Rogers' wish that the occasion be a celebration, rather than one marked by solemnity. Hughes saw Rogers living in thousands of cities and homes throughout the world.

Louis B. Mayer cited as characteristic of Rogers the humorist's own phrase: "I never met a man I didn't like." Governor Merriam of California declared that the actions of United Artists Theatre Circuit, Inc., yesterday exercised its option to acquire the remaining 50 per cent of the common stock of Metropolitan Playhouses, Inc., the reorganized Fox Metropolitan Playhouses company. The action involved the payment to Fox Theatres Corp. of $150,000 in settlement of that company's claims against Fox Met.

Acquisition of the stock gives U. A. Theatre Circuit, which is wholly owned by Joseph M. Schenck, a total of 90 per cent of the outstanding stock of Metropolitan Playhouses. Keith-Albee-Orpheum has the remaining 10 per cent and, in addition, has the right to purchase an additional 10 per cent from U. A. Theatre Circuit. It is expected this will be done in the near future.

Action in W. B. Suit Up Next Wednesday

Federal Judge Grover M. Moscowitz in Brooklyn has signed a show cause order returnable next Wednesday showing why a temporary injunction should not be granted restraining officers of Warners from voting proxies in favor of an out-of-court settlement of a suit brought against the company by Max Goldberg, a Warner stockholder, at the annual meeting slated for Dec. 9 in Wilmington.

The order was issued in connection with a suit filed by Martin J. Clougherty of Boston, who describes himself as a stockholder. Howard W. Ameli is his attorney.

306 Meets, But Is Silent on Mergers

Members of Local 306 yesterday held a semi-monthly meeting at the Manhattan Opera House. Unfinished business, including claims members had against the union, was discussed.

Nothing was said about the pending merger with Empire State and Allied. Joseph D. Basson, president, wielded the gavel.

Several independent houses are reported to have been stench-bombed during the past week.

Burr Production Is Halted by the AFL

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 14.—C. C. Burr, filming at San Pedro harbor, was forced to halt production here today by the A.F.L. because Burr was using non-union men. Picket lines were established, and Burr was even prevented from moving equipment. The A.F.L. forced the issue when it was learned Burr was using non-union technicians as well as transportation men. I.B.E.W. men were ordered off location by their leaders.

Halperin Brothers, shooting at Laguna Beach, were temporarily stopped by a demonstration against the Talisman Studios, supplying them with equipment and using non-union men, but the matter was adjusted amicably, Talisman promising future cooperation.

Asks Quicker Action In GTE Proceedings

WILMINGTON, DEL., Nov. 14.—Albert Simon, attorney for Jay Carton of New York, filed a petition here today in Federal district court seeking quicker action in proceedings under Section 77-B of the Bankruptcy Law, pending against General Theatres Equipment for a year and a half. The petition seeks permission for a motion directing the debtors to answer at once. Judge John P. Nields set Nov. 22 for a hearing. Carton is the holder of $5,000 in gold debentures due in 1940, part of the $30,000,000 debenture issue. The petition claims reorganization would be handled better under 77-B than in Chancery Court.

The presentation of a reorganization plan for General Theatres was continued today before Chancellor Josiah O. Wolcott. The plan would bring a benefit of $4,750,353.70 to creditors without considering their option to purchase Twentieth Century-Fox stock on a two-year call basis, it was said.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 14.—Arthur W. Kelly, vice-president in charge of all sales for United Artists, plans to leave for New York the end of the week.

Would Solve Mexican Row By Flat Tax

By JAMES LOCKHART

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 14.—The climax of the long controversy between American distributors and the Government is expected to be reached on Saturday when there will be presented a plan to end the progressive income tax quota and substitute a straight six per cent levy on the gross. The plan has been evolved by the American companies in New York and forwarded here for presentation to the Finance Ministry by local representatives of the major American distributors.

The suggestion would bring the progressive tax plan to a conclusion by Jan. 1 when the new tax plan, much lower than the current rate but three times as great as the system in effect before last year, would become effective.

The settlement provides importers must bring in a greater number of prints in order to assure wider distribution and would fix the annual quota of each company at a maximum of 70,000 meters.

Takes New Step In Fox Theatres Action

A petition has been filed in Federal court by counsel for the Mortgage Service Co. of Philadelphia in connection with the suit brought by the Chicago Title and Trust Co. against Fox Theatres Corp. The Mortgage Service Co. is seeking an order permitting it to intervene as co-claimant with receivers of the Philadelphia Company For Guaranteeing Mortgages.

The original proof of claims and amended proofs are based upon guarantee to the Philadelphia company for guaranteeing mortgages of the Fox Film Corp. and the payment of the interest on a certain bond and mortgage of its subsidiary, Market-17th Sts. Corp., the taxes on the premises covered by the bond and mortgage, and the premiums due by the subsidiary on the policy of guarantee issued by the claimant, the Philadelphia Company For Guaranteeing Mortgages, to the mortgagee, the Philadelphia Savings Bond Society. In the reorganization proceedings the properties and assets of the Philadelphia Company For Guaranteeing Mortgages were transferred to the petitioner as operating trustee.

J. M. Schenck Now Controls New Fox Met

Wednesday of an application for an order directing Fox Theatres to acquire the 50 per cent stock interest in Metropolitan Playhouses. The order was sought by a Fox Theatres stockholders' protective committee and was opposed by Fox Theatres' creditors with claims exceeding $13,000,000. In order to acquire the stock Fox Theatres would have had to pay to U. A. Theatre Circuit $275,000. The majority of creditors was of the opinion that it was more desirable to waive the stock purchase right and receive, in return, $150,000 in cash. This view was upheld by the court in making its decision.

With the settlement of the Fox Theatres' claim against Fox Met and the balance of the new company's stock having been acquired by the Schenck company, Milton C. Weisman, receiver of Fox Theatres, and Samuel S. Allan, an associate of Weisman's will resign from the board of Metropolitan Playhouses and will be succeeded, it is expected, by a Schenck and a K-A-O representative in the near future.

the second suit at the same time he appoints another judge, it is expected.

Russell Hardy, prosecuting attorney, left for Washington Tuesday to confer with Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, after failing to get Judge Moore to hand down a temporary order in the equity case. Hardy held that, on the basis of the testimony given in the criminal case, sufficient grounds had been laid for the issuance of a preliminary restraining order. However, defense counsel insisted Warners, RKO and Paramount were entitled to a full hearing of the facts.

As far as his own docket was concerned, Judge Moore stated he could not hear the case before Dec. 2.

Meanwhile, local attorneys for Warners, Paramount and RKO have returned to their normal business until a date for the equity hearing is set. All out-of-town counsel who participated in the criminal action have left for their respective cities.

originate with the film companies' publicity departments, before an angle that is really alive is developed, she said. In the liquor business and the cigarette trade such things are done much better—and by a woman. Take it from Miss Hughes. She knows the female opportunist who handles the Schenley Distillers' account and who revitalized the fashion worlds of New York and Paris with her creation of the new "Dubonnet red," the latest color rage which has helped to send Schenley, to say nothing of Milgrim's, Patou's and Lanvin's, stock to new highs.

The same person, Miss Hughes revealed, will have the fashion world at her feet next spring with her new "Golden Wedding yellow," only now aborning. And if the color doesn't floor them, Schenley's Golden Wedding rye may.

Lacks Authentic Ring

The trouble with film publicists is, Miss Hughes added, that their copy, besides lacking human interest, doesn't have an authentic ring to it.

"You can't make a subject come alive with statistics," the columnist reminded the publicists. "It isn't enough to say that there are three acres of silk and 3,000,000 spangles on Joan Crawford's new gown. What the customers want to know is how they'd look in it and if it hurts the star to sit down on that many spangles."

She offered the opinion that film publicists were neglecting a good publicity field in not placing picture and story material on home interiors and decorating, as employed on studio sets. She recounted the experience of one publisher interested in using this material who was obliged to send to Hollywood for stills. All he received, she said, was bedroom art.

"Don't they do anything else in Hollywood?" exclaimed the exasperated publisher viewing the material.

Also on the program was Helen Hoerle, publicist, who gave her own views on selling people what they don't want and don't need by endowing their merchandise with an alluring name. The entertainment end of the program, as distinguished from the workshop end, was upheld by Rubinoff and, of course, his violin; Ferri La Franconi, tenor, fresh from Agua Caliente, and Elsie May Gordon, radio caricaturist.

On the dais, alongside Gordon White, Ampa president, were Lester Grady, editor of Film Fun; Pert Kelton and Max Hofstadter and Thomas J. Brennon. The latter two discussed color processes.

Rogers Stage Is Dedicated In Hollywood

Rogers throughout his career had made of him "an immortal American." The formal dedication address, although he earnestly denied that that was his purpose, was delivered by Irvin S. Cobb, himself a great humorist and friend of Rogers. He declared himself most impressed by the informality of all Rogers' speeches and actions, and likened his kindness and good humor to a well which never went dry.

Shirley Temple unveiled the memorial tablet. Under the kindly prompting of Cobb, the child star said simply, "I loved Mr. Rogers, too." The last speaker was Rogers' old friend, Fred Stone, who paid feeling tribute to the memory of the humorist.

More than 40,000 letters with contributions and suggestions for a memorial have been received at the national headquarters of the Will Rogers Memorial Commission, according to Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, director of the campaign to perpetuate the humorist's memory.

SEATTLE, Nov. 14.—Member theatres in the M.P.T.O. of Washington, formerly Allied Amusements of the Pacific Northwest, are cooperating in the current Will Rogers Memorial Fund Drive.

Each theatre throughout the territory is acting as a collection depot for the fund and money received in the fund boxes is being transferred daily to the banks that are acting as depositories. Success in collections is reported by James M. Hone, executive secretary.

Actress Wins Point In Suit for Damages

BOSTON, Nov. 14.—Lina Basquette, actress, won a point in her suits for $100,000 each against the Empire in New Bedford, operated by Harry and Fisher Zeitz, and the New Bedford Amusement Co., when Judge Hugh D. McClellan in Federal district court here today ordered a $10,000 attachment on the real estate and personal property of the Empire operators. The action charged the actress's picture was used in advertisements so as to imply she was appearing with a colored revue at the Empire, and therefore is herself colored. The Empire suit was filed in case the New Bedford Amusement Co. was not able to pay the judgment if the original suit should be won by Miss Basquette. The defendant has moved to vacate the order. A hearing is expected Monday.

Mazur, Swope Resign from RKO's Board

Further Shifts Under Reorganization Due

Paul M. Mazur of Lehman Bros. and Herbert Bayard Swope have resigned their posts as directors of RKO in what are viewed as initial steps under the proposed reorganization of the company and its ultimate emergence from bankruptcy.

Lunsford P. Yandell, a vice-president of RCA, is understood slated to fill the vacancy created by Swope's resignation. Reconstitution of the board to include Atlas Corp. and the Lehman representatives probably will be further deferred until the eve of RKO's reorganization. Mazur's post, therefore, may remain open until then.

Leo Spitz, who was formally elected president on Thursday, also has been named to the board. David Sarnoff, who resigned as board chairman, a

New York to Take Over Chicago Lists

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—At the conclusion of the annual conference of Catholic Bishops here Thursday and Friday it was learned that the classification of motion pictures, conducted for the past year and a half by the Chicago Council of the Legion of Decency, will be taken over and organized in New York by the original committee. The Chicago Council will abandon the work.

Stephen J. Donahue, auxiliary Bishop of New York, has been added to the committee, of which Archbishop John T. McNicholas of Cincinnati is chairman.

Allied Is Declared Not Company Union

Allied M. P. Operators was declared not to be a company union by Referee Robert McCurdy Marsh, former Supreme Court judge, in a decision handed down yesterday, it was stated by Murray Harstn, attorney for the I.T.O.A.

During the past eight months, Referee Marsh has been hearing testimony in the action filed by Allied against Local 306 and Stagehands' Local No. 1 to restrain the I.A.T.S.E. units from picketing theatres at which Allied men have been employed.

In emphasizing his decision, the

Samuelson Wary on Allied's Plans to Enter Production

Although he is acquainting various Allied units with the organization's production plans, Sidney Samuelson, president, is not yet ready to talk about them publicly.

Samuelson returned yesterday from Detroit, where he revealed the contemplated independent production setup to members of Allied of Michigan. On Monday night he will leave for Columbus to discuss the same matter with the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio at its annual meeting Nov. 19-20 at the Deshler Wallick. On Nov. 26 Allied of New Jersey members will be told of the plans at a meeting at the Lincoln.

Final Word on 2,000 Foot Reel Awaits a New Study

A meeting of distribution men to further consider the proposed adoption on next April 1 of a standard 2,000-foot reel is being deferred to await the results of a new study and report on the changeover being made by the research division of the Academy of M. P. Arts & Sciences, it was stated here yesterday.

The new Academy study involves cost estimates for a 15-inch standard reel, which some distributors have suggested will be more economical to adopt than the 15½-inch reel which has been proposed.

All major distributors with the exception of RKO and Universal have approved the changeover. If the new study indicates that it may be accomplished with any appreciable reduction in the present estimated costs, some objections to the changeover advanced by these two companies may be removed, it is said.

Kansans Delay Move For New Tax Levies

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 15.—The Kansas Legislative Council has adopted no proposals for presentation to the legislature at its next session. Some of its members have indicated they believed it would be premature to draft bills covering the social security program for the state until more complete details of the Federal plan are available.

Exhibitors have been interested in the council's actions because of the report some time ago that it was considering the levy of a tax on theatre tickets.

Missouri Sale Tax $800,000 in Month

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 15.—Figures on the first month—September—under Missouri's new one per cent sales tax, indicate the tax will yield $800,000 a month. Increased efficiency in collecting is expected to bring the total to almost $1,000,000 a month.

No change in the cardboard disc tokens will be made immediately, Forrest Smith, state auditor and collector of the tax, has indicated. No change will be made at least until the courts have passed on the tests of the constitutionality of the law, which are now pending.

Court Disallows Two Claims Against Para.

In Federal court yesterday Judge Alfred C. Coxe signed an order granting the petition of the Paramount Publix Corp. to disallow a claim of $156,784 by Paramount Pictures Dist. Corp. and another claim for $31,905 by the Afgar Corp. This was in connection with the reorganization proceedings of Paramount Publix. The claim for $156,784 by the Paramount Pictures Dist. Corp. is based upon an assignment dated Jan. 20, 1934, from the Sunrise Corp., a Florida corporation, to the Paramount Pictures Dist. Corp. This was for the guarantee on a lease of the Paramount theatre in Palm Beach. The lease was originally made by the Sunrise Corp. to the Publix Enterprise, Inc.

Bay State Cuts Only One in 48 Pictures

BOSTON, Nov. 15.—This state, which under its Sunday censorship law is one of the strictest surveyors of films in the country, directed eliminations in only one of the last 48 pictures passed by the Dept. of Public Safety. "Ship Cafe" was cut to the extent of eliminating "scenes showing muscle movements in parts 2 and 3." Only two vaudeville acts were given a clean bill during the same period.

Justice Dep't Sees No Halt In Equity Case

Will Proceed Despite Earlier Decision

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Decision of the St. Louis jury not to bring in a guilty verdict in the criminal proceedings which terminated last Monday night will have no effect upon the pending equity suit for a preliminary injunction, which will be pressed vigorously, it was made known today at the Dept. of Justice.

Trial of the second suit, delayed by the defendants' motions to disqualify Federal Judge George H. Moore from hearing it on the grounds of bias in his charge to the jury, will probably get under way sometimes next month, it is said.

Officials at the department declare they see no reason why the "not guilty" verdict earlier in the week should have any effect on the equity action.

Few Results Seen In NRA Discussion

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Lack of results from the NRA conference called by George L. Berry, coordinator of industrial cooperation, for Dec. 9, was seen here today in reports that while there will be no governmental interference with the discussions of the meeting the Administration does not feel itself bound to accept or even consider any suggestions which may result from the deliberations if they do not coincide with its plans for future Federal control of industry.

In a move to stem the increasing tide of opposition to another NRA

Suits Against Phone Company Delayed

Hearing on damage suits by a number of local independent exhibitors against A. T. & T. yesterday was put over until Dec. 13 by Federal Judge John C. Knox when attorneys for the defendant filed a motion for a bill of particulars.

The damage suits allege monopolistic practices on part of the telephone company to restrain trade. In one of the two actions, 70 theatres are named as plaintiffs. In the second, nine are listed. Weisman, Quinn, Allen & Spett, attorneys for the I.T.O.A., are representing the theatre owners.

Warner Injunction Denial Is Expected

Justice John F. Carew yesterday reserved decision on the injunction sought by Harris Pepper, small Warner stockholder, to prevent Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., from settling with Harry, Albert and Jack Warner for services rendered the company, including $23,000,000 of personally provided financing. Justice Carew indicated he would deny the application for an injunction, however.

According to Warners, Pepper bought 125 shares of Warner stock last June, and a week later applied for the restraining order. The court said: "If you have one share out of a million, do you want to hold up the other stockholders? I don't see any basis for enjoining the company or the stockholders. You simply want to stop them from doing business."

The meeting: At the Yankee Stadium, when Notre Dame plays the Army.

U. S. High Court Hears Muller Case

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

Washington, Nov. 15.—Arguments in the suit brought by Fox Film Corp. to recover from A. B. Muller, Minnesota exhibitor, for pictures which he refused either to play or pay for, were heard today by the U. S. Supreme Court.

Attorneys for the Fox company are seeking to have the court declare valid the standard exhibition contract under which films are sold, which the Minnesota courts had held to be invalid in their entirety because of the inclusion of the "dead" arbitration clause.

It was submitted to the court that this is one of the most important matters which has ever come before it in that the decision may involve hundreds of millions of dollars, and that a final opinion is highly desirable since suits raising the same question have been decided in various ways in lower courts throughout the country.

Counsel for Muller argued that the contract was void, because of the inclusion of the arbitration clause, which it was asserted was in violation of the anti-trust laws.

Members of the court questioned Muller at length upon the point whether a Federal question was involved, without which the Supreme Court will not decide an issue.

Few Results Seen In NRA Discussion

after April 1 next, when the present law expires, officials let it be known that the Berry conference, if it gets out of hand, will be considered merely as a "town hall" meeting.

Indications that President Roosevelt is desirous of continuing the NRA after March and is developing plans for new legislation to make it effective are seen in the reported failure of the Federal Trade Commission to secure from the White House funds with which to proceed against industries which are still continuing the monopolistic practices permitted under their former codes.

New Racing Tax in Massachusetts Near

Boston, Nov. 15.—Massachusetts is after $1,000,000 more in taxes on pari-mutuel racing, per recommendations of a special commission now considering the tax problem in the Bay State. The Commonwealth's take on dogs may be jumped from 3½ to 10 per cent, while that on horses seems due for an increase from 3½ to 5 per cent. The state collected $1,450,000 from the dog and horse racing events during the current season.

This tax came from a total pari-mutuel handle of $19,028,793 on horses and $15,455,072 on dogs, not so bad for any first year. If the amounts taken in by bookies and board rooms were known, these totals would be jumped considerably.

Sues Columbia, U. A. On Cartoon Series

A suit for an accounting and injunction proceedings was filed in the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday by Pedro Llanuza, newspaper cartoonist and artist, against Columbia Pictures, Winkler Film Corp. and Charles B. Mintz. Also named co-defendants in a second action were Walter Disney and United Artists.

In his complaint the cartoonist sets forth that in the summer of 1931 he conceived the idea of using caricatures of popular screen stars in animated shorts, which was an original and novel creation of his own. In September, 1931, he said he submitted a sample scenario accompanied by sketches to the defendants. He goes on to say that in the fall of 1932, in violation of the agreement which he had with the defendants, they wrongfully used for commercial purposes his scenarios and caricature sketches without his knowledge or consent. These were entitled "Seeing Stars," "Out of the Ether," "Auto Show," "Hollywood Babies" and "Hollywood on Parade," he alleged.

"The wrongful production and exhibition of the aforesaid animated screen shorts," according to the cartoonist's complaint, "had netted Columbia, Winkler and Mintz profits in excess of $500,000, no part of which has been paid to the plaintiff."

In the second action, which is directed against Walt Disney and United Artists, he states that Columbia, Winkler and Mintz wrongfully authorized Disney and United Artists to produce and exhibit animated screen shorts based on his idea. One, in particular, was entitled "Who Killed Cock Robin?" He is seeking an accounting of the profits and an injunction to restrain all of the defendants from making further use of his idea and also an award of money damages to whatever extent the court deems fit. No answer has been filed as yet.

The new vessel will contain a projection room and adequate quarters for cutting rooms. C. F. Stancliff will be left here as port captain in charge of maintenance of Garnett's other boats and the construction of the new one. Asa J. Harris has been signed as master of the Athene which sails Nov. 17.

Garnett expects to return to Hollywood about this time next year when he will complete the six films for which he is collecting background shots on the current trip. His 1937 expedition probably will not sail until late in that year.

Looking 'Em Over

"Song of the Damned"

(Columbia)

The story of an escape from Devil's Island, the French penal colony in South America, with a romance woven in, the sacrifice of one man to insure the happiness of the girl he loves, and considerable of pursuit through snake and animal infested jungle, this picture has little in it that has not been done and done again, and rates therefore as only average entertainment, best suited to the smaller and neighborhood houses.

Heading the cast are Victor Jory, Florence Rice and Norman Foster. Jory and Miss Rice's father are espionage agents and her father, captured, is sentenced to Devil's Island. En route, he and Foster, sentenced though innocent of robbery, become fast friends, and when Jory, taking a post as guard at the colony, plans their escape, Foster joins them. The escape is of the sort which has been seen many times before.

The father is killed, Foster and Jory separate, and Foster first reaches the cabin of Miss Rice on the edge of the jungle. They fall in love, but Foster, mindful of Jory's love for her, will not speak. Jory joins them, they leave via boat, and Jory puts Foster ashore when he sees the lovers together. But when he learns she loves Foster, he brings him back to her and goes to Devil's Island himself, as Foster's innocence is established.

Rather routine material, it was directed by Albert Rogell.

Skouras Pool With Loew Is Being Talked

Would Allocate Astoria, Upper B'way Product

Radical changes in the Astoria and upper Broadway booking setups loom in the event two important pooling deals now under way between George Skouras and Loew's in Long Island City and Skouras, RKO and Springer & Cocalis on upper Broadway are consummated.

In both Skouras pools operation of the houses will be retained by present management, the effect of the deals being to concentrate and allocate product of the various companies into the theatres declared to be most suited for each classification.

Skouras has the Broadway, Steinway and Grand in Astoria, while Loew's has the Tri-Boro and Astoria.

On upper Broadway, Skouras has the Riverside, Riveria and Nemo; Springer & Cocalis the Symphony,

Gov. Davey Asks for No New Ohio Levies

COLUMBUS, Nov. 17.—As predicted, Governor Davey delivered a special message to the General Assembly in which he said that if careful economy were practiced, Ohio would be able to meet its obligations without imposition of any new taxes.

He advocated reenactment of the taxes which lapse Dec. 31, which include sales, cigarette, liquid fuel and productive intangibles imposts.

Senator Paul M. Yoder, Democratic majority leader, says bills for reenactment of these levies, together with a bill to keep the current admission tax at three per cent instead of letting it automatically go back to 10

Expect Settlement Of E. M.Loew Suit

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—E. M. Loew and his attorney, George S. Ryan, declined to comment here yesterday on the possibility of an out-of-court settlement of Loew's $5,000,000 suit against Paramount, which District Judge Coxe has ordered liquidated here, following Ryan's petition. The damages agreed upon then will be presented to Coxe for approval.

It is understood a signed agreement was made some time ago between Paramount and Loew. A settlement is expected. Ryan also refused comment on the possibility of a settlement of the $5,000,000 suit he is handling for A. B. Momand of Oklahoma, also ordered liquidated in its own territory, where it was originally brought. It named practically all distributors and Regal Theatres, Inc., Griffith Amusement Co., Consolidated Amusement Co., and John B. Terry.

"Mutiny" Broadway Smash at $76,300

"Mutiny on the Bounty" was the outstanding attraction on Broadway last week, garnering a handsome $76,300 at the Capitol during its first stanza. The Roxy also saw plenty of profits with "Three Kids and a Queen." The take was $35,600 and warranted holding over a second week.

The second week for "Hands Across the Table" netted the Paramount around $19,000. "The Melody Lingers On" at the Rivoli grossed in the neighborhood of $15,000 for the first seven days. The Center was in the red with "She Couldn't Take It," which took in something like $9,000. "Way Down East" the week before ended with $8,500.

"I Found Stella Parish" for the first five days of the second stanza grossed around $17,000, while "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at the Hollywood wound up its fifth week with approximately $17,000, according to Warners. "Shipmates Forever" and "The Last Days of Pompeii" at the Palace were weak at $7,500. The second week of "The New Gulliver" at the Cameo hit $8,000, a good take for this house.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 17.—RKO will not file an affidavit to disqualify Federal Judge George H. Moore from hearing the equity suit filed by the Government seeking a preliminary injunction against Warners, RKO and Paramount for allegedly refusing to service the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central.

Attorneys for RKO feel that one affidavit is sufficient. Paramount and Warner have filed affidavits.

With all objectives covered in the notices already submitted, the matter of appointment of a new federal judge to hear the equity case now rests with Judge Kimbrough Stone, presiding justice of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

RKO Men to Confer At Hollywood Plant

Depinet left for the coast yesterday, but will stop over at Chicago today where Spitz will join him. Spitz left for the Windy City on Saturday to wind up personal business. The two presidents expect to be gone from three to four weeks.

"Wuthering Heights" On Wanger's Agenda

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 17. — Although Walter Wanger has more story properties now than called for by his Paramount releasing contract, he is considering two more. There is a strong possibility that the next Sylvia Sidney film will be "Wuthering Heights" from the novel by Emily Bronte. Wanger also is bidding for "Tovarich," now running in London and produced there by Gilbert Miller. "Tovarich" will be a Charles Boyer film if Wanger succeeds in getting it.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

IN our, as usual, left-footed way, we find it difficult to agree with the statement telegraphed out of Detroit last week quoting Abram F. Myers in this wise:

"The verdict [in St. Louis] in itself is important to the defendants only. . . . The verdict settled no proposition of law as to the right of producers and affiliated chains to freeze out independents and it behooves those possessing great power to bear this in mind."

Myers is a lawyer and, it is this opinion, knows the law, or substantial about it. We are and do not and immediately, therefore, it may place this commentator in a position of not knowing what he is talking about. . . .

But, while it may be a fact that the anti-trust case established no proposition in law, we fail to see how the "not guilty" decision is of importance only to the defendants. Here was a conspiracy case and a criminal action. It was tried lengthily and wearily and out of it the defendants emerged untouched except for the wear and tear, which was considerable, on their nerves and on their peace of mind. Yet the jury, hearing and deliberating over specific charges, by their verdict of innocence threw those charges out not only as they applied to the individual defendants, but to Warners, Paramount and RKO, the three companies enmeshed, as well. . . .

Certainly, that concerns the industry and the rules of business conduct governing it. Certainly again, the matter must be one of vast interest to the business at large. When Myers said further, as he did, that he saw no good accomplished "by sending industry leaders to jail," it becomes far easier to agree, for nothing would have been accomplished by such an unfortunate procedure. It occurs to us now, as it has often over the years, that the bringing about of a greater accord in the relationship between buyer and seller, both of them at best steeped in traditional and natural conflict, might best be reached through adjudication arrived at on the inside and not through legalistic pressure induced on the outside. . . .

Now that this has issued forth from the typewriter, we realize it appears like a clarion call sounding a quick path to Utopia. Yet we do not believe such a state of affairs is at all too mystical or too phantom-like to make concrete realization possible. The method is largely one of approach, an approach founded on understanding and cooperation of the sympathetic kind. Two men or two groups confronting each other with a genuine desire to jointly arrive at an acceptable middle ground can get there if they are so minded. Precedent insists that this has been so and that this can be so again. . . .

Olympia, Stoddard, 77th St., Thalia, Beacon and Carlton; RKO has the 81st St., Midtown and Yorktown.

Provided the Broadway plan is agreed upon, the recent suit instituted by Skouras against RKO and Fox alleging a breach of the clearance clause in his contract will be amicably settled, it is stated.

Under a reported allocation of product for the Broadway houses, it is understood one set of first class films will be booked into the 81st St., Stoddard, Riverside and Nemo. Another group of "A" films will go into the Beacon, Yorktown, Symphony and Olympia.

Two lists of second run theatres will be divided as follows, it is said. Riveria and Carlton in one group and the Midtown, Thalia and 77th St. in the second.

Skouras and RKO have jointly booked a number of houses in the local area. In addition to this, Skouras has for some time cooperated with Springer & Cocalis in dating pictures in theatres of the two circuits relatively in the same zones.

Several months ago, Skouras worked out a pooling arrangement with Warners in New Jersey. This deal had been on and off for three years and was finally consummated toward the end of the summer.

Wisconsin Reports Gain in Employment were $23.83, which is a new depression peak.

In Milwaukee, the recovery has been slower than in the state. It is understood that this slower comeback is due to spreading of work here, which results in more employment but less hours for each individual. Another factor is that firms here operating in the capital goods, or heavy industries, have not come back as far on the recovery road as those in consumer lines.

Milwaukee relief rolls in October dropped 365 persons, the seventh consecutive month showing a decline. There is still a total of 101,356 persons on relief with the outlook reported more hopeful than in October, 1934.

Pitt House Drops Films

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 17.—Films, combined with burlesque, have been a failure at the Variety and, after a week's shutdown, George Jaffe will reopen his house with the old policy of a two-a-day burlesque. The scale will be reduced, however, from one dollar at night to 75 cents top.

Under the combination policy, the Variety was showing pictures two and three years old.

City Seeking Levy On All Film Rents be subject to the tax, increases the assessment to an estimated $3,000,000.

The city is reported basing its new interpretation of the tax ordinance on the assumption that the delivery of films by carriers to any point from local exchanges completes a sales transaction and makes the revenues therefrom subject to the tax.

The city has assessed United Artists and Universal in an effort to apply the sales tax to film revenues and the U. A. assessment is being objected to as a test case. Arguments were heard by representatives of the city finance department a week ago and a decision is expected in the near future. It is expected that the city will approve the levy against film rentals and that an appeal will be taken by distributors to the appellate division.

Pittsburgh Fulton Is Being Remodeled

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 17.—The Fulton, owned by the Shea-Hyde interests, has closed to remodel the stage for presentations. The house has been squeezed for product, the result of the recent Warner-Loew pool and the Harris-Alvin's purchase of all G. B. product.

It is estimated that at least $10,000 will be necessary to fix the house for stage shows. Since reopening several weeks ago after a three-month shutdown, the Fulton has shown a profit only two weeks, first with pictures of the Baer-Louis fight and next with "Metropolitan."

Paramount to Build

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 17.—Paramount will soon start construction on a new two-story building, which will be used for storage, and which will also house the paint department. The building will be constructed of steel, and will cost $75,000.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"I Dream Too Much"

(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 17.—The successful blending of a high-calibre production with the artistry representative of all the departments, plus excellent portrayals by the new potential screen star, Lily Pons, and Henry Fonda, assures this one as mass entertainment. The operatic and musical comedy vocal numbers by Miss Pons are superb and smooth. Finely etched characterizations by both Miss Pons and Fonda round out a meaty, well-balanced story. Showmen should enjoy a musical jingle at the box-office wherever the film is booked.

A humanly interesting story, located in Europe, deals with Miss Pons, who becomes a famous opera star but who would rather raise babies, and her newly wedded husband, Fonda, who aspires to be a famous operatic composer, but isn't. Fonda becomes a fixture moving in the social and musical circles where Miss Pons' fame carries her under the management of Osgood Perkins. Fonda's pride finally breaks the bounds and he deserts his wife to become a tax driver, with a series of humorous situations bringing them together, placing them in jail and splitting them up again. The climactic windup finds Miss Pons changing Fonda's composed opera into a musical comedy which becomes a London sensation. Miss Pons temporarily retires to raise her baby and Fonda basks in his newly found limelight.

John Cromwell's direction is intelligently human and balanced with showmanship. The lyrics by Jerome Kern and Dorothy Fields are catchy, particularly "The Jockey on the Carrousel" and "I Dream Too Much." The excellent story by Elsie Finn and David Wittles is successfully adapted by Edmund North and James Gow. Eric Blore supplies droll humor with good performance dances by Hermes Pan creditably directed. Mischa Auer handles a small comedy part well.

Exhibitors should get behind this one with their heavy exploitation guns.

Production Code Seal No. 1604. Running time, 95 minutes. "G."

"My Marriage"

(Wurtzel-Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 17.—Essentially melodrama, this is a combination of situations and action that usually appeal to average audiences. Lacking ace personalities, the picture's well-acted story phases, sometimes in conflict and making for complications, all blend for suspense and set the stage for a happy ending.

It is the yarn of a girl, Claire Trevor, whose supposedly respected father is revealed at his death as a gangster czar. She marries into a snobbish socialite family and is loved by her husband, Kent Taylor, whose hypocritical mother, Pauline Frederick, makes the pair's existence a continual torment. It develops Miss Trevor's brother-in-law, Thomas Beck, led murderers Ralf Harolde and Noel Madison to her father. Her only friend is her father's old pal, detective Paul Kelly. Harolde is killed by Beck while making an effort to make Miss Trevor pay for his silence. Kelly rounds up Miss Madison, whose confession, clearing Beck of complicity, abets the efforts of Miss Trevor to keep within the law. The family name unsullied, the finale is Miss Frederick's confession of her error in estimating the kind of girl Miss Trevor is and her reconciliation with Taylor.

Miss Trevor, Taylor, Paul Kelly and Beck work hard to put sock and interest in the show. Miss Frederick overacts in the melodramatic, stricken woman style that was outmoded years ago. Harolde and Noel Madison are the typical racketeer menaces. Henry Kolker essays to inject meager comedy in contrast to Beryl Mercer, who won the audience's applause in a bit. The film was directed by George Archainbaud.

The story is an original screenplay by Francis Hyland.

"Mutiny" Sets Philadelphia Pace, $24,000

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—"Mutiny on the Bounty" registered big at the Stanley this week, doubling the average take with a splendid $24,000. The film is set for two and probably three weeks.

"Metropolitan" maintained its pace at the Fox, grabbing $16,000 for its second and last week. Were it not for "In Old Kentucky" and "Thanks a Million" pressing for release, it probably would have been retained.

G. B.'s "Transatlantic Tunnel" surprised at the Stanton with a neat $6,500 and came within an ace of being held over. "Rainmakers" and a stage show held their own at the Earle with $12,500, slightly above average. The rest of the town slumped but the total gross was well up in the black.

Halved Music Tax is Urged For Canadians

Judge Parker Reports on Government Probe

TORONTO, Nov. 18.—Judge James Parker, who conducted an investigation of the fees charged by the Canadian Performing Rights Society, has rendered an opinion that the rate of 20 cents per seat annually charged Canadian theatres is excessive and that the 10-cent rate established in 1931 under the Copyright Act is a fair return and should be restored.

Parker expressed the opinion, too, that reports to the society by theatres and other users of protected compositions on individual programs, are necessary to enable distribution of funds to composers or agents, but recommends that report forms for licenses should be greatly simplified.

The recommendations run to 25,000 words and deal with radio stations, hotels, fall fairs, orchestras and other public users of music, in addition to theatres.

Hearings were held in Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Halifax, Winnipeg and other cities earlier in the year.

Film Materials Get Canada Tariff Cut

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—A reduction from various higher figures to 15 per cent ad valorem is granted on film machinery, arc lamps, screens, sound equipment, etc., and parts, entering Canada from the United States, under the new reciprocal trade agreement consummated last week.

The Canadian duty on films for serial photography is reduced from 15 to 10 per cent ad valorem, and the rate on photographic instruments is cut from 30 to 22½ per cent.

American periodicals, which have been subject to duty, will be duty-free.

Injunction Delays Paper-Lincoln Case

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 18.—A temporary injunction holding up settlement of the Augusta Paper-Lincoln Theatres Corp. suit has been obtained by Homer Burket, Annie Leonard, Willard Folsom and Phoebe Miller.

Paper recently was awarded a verdict of $11,754 for breach of contract, but the plaintiffs in the new action claim that they hold a judgment for $7,597 against him which has remained unpaid since prior to the transfer of his property to his wife, Augusta.

Regional Boards Big Little Rock Topic

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 18.—Formation of regional boards to settle all differences arising with film distributors was the subject of general discussion among the hundred delegates to the I.T.O. of Arkansas convention which opened yesterday at the Hotel Marion.

The first day's session was devoted entirely to screening of shorts and features at the Arkansas Theatre by various distributors.

A meeting of the board of directors scheduled for yesterday was postponed to today because of the late arrival of a majority of the members.

Speakers today included Ray Morrow, state president, who reviewed six months' business; Ely Whitney Collins, first Arkansas president and former president of the M.P.T.O.A.; Very Rev. John J. Healy, who talked of films and the Legion of Decency;

H. G. Wells Reveals He Is An Enthusiastic Film Fan

By SHERWIN A. KANE

H. G. Wells, British novelist and one of the most prolific living writers, revealed himself at a mass interview with the press at United Artists' headquarters yesterday as a dyed-in-the-wool "movie" fan and one of the screen's sprightliest champions.

Facing 40 interviewers for as many minutes Wells had much to say about the virtues and the as yet unrealized possibilities of the screen, but not one cross or even critical mention of its shortcomings—if, indeed, he admits films have them. Wells has just seen his first two stories, "Things to Come" and "The Man Who Could Work Miracles," produced by Alexander Korda in London, for United Artists release. He will leave here next week for Hollywood, where he will be the guest of Charlie Chaplin while he observes production organization and functioning.

Wells regards the screen as "the very greatest art" and sees in the possibilities for its development a medium which eventually will supplant both the stage and opera. Nor has he any regret for the possibility of the two older entertainment forms being routed. "The old must give way to the new," and that sort of thing, he remarks rather placidly when questioned about this. He expects that the screen will influence but not do away with the novel form. He believes that the most "tragic" thing about films is that they all disappear. "After only a few weeks it is too difficult to see them."

He hopes that a new treatment of films will develop that will include

Philadelphia Jubilant Over Sunday Shows

Despite Storm, About 200,000 Attend

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.—Theatre men here are jubilant over the start of Sunday shows. In the face of a northeast storm that whipped rain at gale force and flooded streets in some places it is estimated that more than 200,000 attended shows in 300 houses.

Matinees were poor, but evening shows picked up. The Stanley was outstanding with "Mutiny on the Bounty." The theatre was forced to stop selling tickets for two hours during the evening.

Neighborhood business in congested districts was good. In Kensington and South Philadelphia it was big. In Germantown business was light, as was the case in West Philadelphia, where theatres are scattered.

Weisman to Stay in Metropolitan Post

Milton C. Weisman, vice-president, secretary and a director of Metropolitan Playhouses, Inc., will be continued in that post, according to William Phillips, vice-president and treasurer.

Federal Judge Martin T. Manton recently refused to issue an order to Fox Theatres for exercise of an option for the purchase of 50 per cent of the stock in Metropolitan Playhouses. Weisman is receiver for Fox Theatres. United Artists Theatres acquired the 50 per cent stock interest under terms which provide RKO can purchase 10 per cent.

Phillips yesterday told MOTION PICTURE DAILY that "Weisman is too valuable a man to let go."

First Division Set To Start New Lineup

Announcement of the completed nationalized First Division distribution setup is expected late this week or early next, following a meeting of the board of directors.

Harry H. Thomas, president, and Al Friedlander, vice-president, spent several weeks on the road effecting tieups with local independent exchanges in addition to the 16 already maintained by the company. Thomas returned yesterday from a four-week trip while Friedlander breezed into town last week, culminating a six-week tour of the south and west.

PAHDON OUR SOUTHE'N A-C-C-E-N-T

When STARK YOUNG'S novel--"SO RED THE ROSE"--topped the best-seller lists last year, we had a hunch that the country was ready for a really big picture about the "War Between the States". So we bought the novel. We got Laurence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson to do the screen play, and King Vidor to direct. (You'll remember that ten years ago Stallings and Vidor got together on another great picture--"The Big Parade.")

We cast MARGARET SULLAVAN, WALTER CONNOLLY and Randolph Scott in the leading roles. We spent six months giving the picture the production values it deserves.

Now, in day-and-date world premieres in nine Southern capitals, "SO RED THE ROSE" has played to actual cheers. "SO RED THE ROSE", we believe, is slated to top the year's best-seller lists in the picture business.

So please PARDON OUR SOUTHERN ACCENT as we add this to the long list of reasons why

It Pays to Play a Paramount Picture!

Charges Bankruptcy Of FWC Was "Fake"

Hollywood, Nov. 18.—William H. Neblett, attorney, testifying before a Senatorial committee investigating bankruptcies, declared today the F.W.C. bankruptcy was a "fake." He said Wesco, parent company, formed F.W.C. to declare an $8,000,000 dividend which Wesco carried on its books as a debt owed when F.W.C. entered bankruptcy. He declared Wesco, under another name, later bought the company back from the bankrupt estate, using the debt, an approved claim, as a major part of the purchase price.

Neblett said the bankruptcy was used for the purpose of disavowing leases and other contracts. He charged the real losers were the theatre building lessors and bondholders of two F.W.C. properties. He said he did not believe Federal Judge William P. James knew the circumstances when he granted the bankruptcy petition.

"Dangerous"

(Warners)

Hollywood, Nov. 18.—This is a dramatic romance. Convincingly portrayed in an atmosphere of directness, the intelligent handling of its sometimes intimate dramatic situations should preclude the possibility of moral objection from all but the most prudish. Pointed dialogue serves as the principal interpretative medium and action is at a minimum. A class feature with unusual feminine appeal, it has entertainment essentials that good showmanship may make interesting to the masses.

Bette Davis, once-famous actress, has descended to the gutter. Her glamorous career has brought tragedy to all who came within its fatal charm. In a drunken stupor, she is recognized by Franchot Tone and taken to his country home. There is conflict at first, but his kindness inspires her to siren-like affection. She fears it, but Tone, knowing its danger, is unafraid. He breaks his engagement to Margaret Lindsay. Jeopardizing his future, Tone backs Miss Davis in a show which promises to reestablish her. He pleads for marriage, but it is revealed she is married to John Eldredge. When he refuses to divorce her, she plans to kill him in an auto crash. When both escape, the finale brings the promise of future happiness with her return to Eldredge and Tone to Miss Lindsay. Miss Davis is outstanding. Tone is convincing.

The picture was directed by Alfred E. Green with intelligence and understanding, from an original screen play by Laird Doyle. Selling should capitalize the name and story values.

Production Code Seal No. 1,554. Running time, 80 minutes. "A."

"The Sagebrush Troubadour"

(Republic)

Hollywood, Nov. 18.—They seem to be putting everything into Gene Autry westerns as time goes on. Not satisfied with songs between all of the chases, Autry turns detective and solves a murder mystery in the newest of his series.

The film opens with Autry spanking Barbara Pepper for nearly running him down with her stage coach. She falls in love with him. Her grandfather has been garroted with a guitar string, but, in spite of all evidence, she will not believe that Autry would use any of his musical equipment for such a serious crime. Barbara is in line for the next fatal choking, but hard riding saves her as well as the swayback nag which is trained to head straight for the secret gold mine.

Smiley Burnette supplies comedy with a high and low voice and some misadventures with a mule. The cast includes Fred Kelsey, Hooper Atchley, Frank Glendon, Denny Meadows, Julian Rivero and Tom London under direction of Joseph Kane. Ths story is by Oliver Drake and the screen play by Drake and Joseph Poland. Armand Schaefer supervised.

The cowboy songs are the best angle to plug.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 68 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Splendor"

(Goldwyn-U. A.)

Samuel Goldwyn has attempted to blend the after-marriage emotional problems of a couple of youngsters into the struggles of an aristocratic family to maintain appearances in the face of genteel poverty for purposes of mass entertainment. It is smart and sophisticated, and presented with all the attention to lavish production values that Goldwyn always gives. These assets may make up for the fact that all the drama is motivated by the selfish conspiracies of a group with no troubles at all from the point of view of the average moviegoer.

Trying to keep the wolf away from the port cochere of a Fifth Ave. mansion by attempting to force a son into a money marriage or trying to maneuver his bride into a compromising situation isn't apt to stir the deeper emotions of young men and women saving for their winter overcoats.

Joel McCrea gums the plans of his family for a financial marriage by bringing home Miriam Hopkins as his bride. His mother, Helen West-

Boston, Nov. 18.—Musicians at the RKO Boston have been given notice that they may be released next month. This is only a protective measure, however, according to Manager Ben Domingo. BUFFALO, Nov. 18.—"Mutiny on the Bounty" took this town by storm, drawing $22,000 in its first week at the Great Lakes. Par for the house is $7,300.

Extra Girls Win Case

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 18.—As a result of their appeal to the State Industrial Welfare Board, 30 extra girls have been handed checks for $15 each, and have been tendered the regrets of M-G-M over any inconvenience.

The girls appeared in a storm scene for "Riff Raff," and, after being buffeted by water and wind machines, felt that they were entitled to stunt workers' minimum of $35 instead of extras' pay. Mrs. Mabel Kinney, commissioner of the Welfare Board, barred press and public from her hearing of the case. The Screen Actors' Guild is interested in the case to the extent of asking why the hearing was secret, and why the girls were not paid the full $35.

ley, then maneuvers so the girl stirs the interest of Paul Cavanagh. He puts McCrea in the way of making a lot of money, aided by Miss Westley's other son, David Niven, and her daughter, Katherine Alexander.

In the end McCrea discovers how he has been used by his family and returns to Miss Hopkins, who has gone to work in a gown shop.

Miss Hopkins is impressive at all times. She presents her role with earnestness and sincerity. McCrea is convincing, and Cavanagh does a fine piece of work in a difficult part. Billie Burke furnishes some of the few laughs. Elliott Nugent directed and kept his material up to the technical standards to be expected of a Goldwyn picture.

An audience at the Tri-Borough, Astoria, where the picture was previewed last night, applauded three of McCrea's more vigorous speeches. The picture is scheduled to open at the Rivoli Friday.

Production Code Seal, 1766. Running time, 77 minutes. "A."

"Racing Luck"

(Republic)

Conventional neighborhood fare centered about the turf track. It contains the usual amount of suspense, love interest and under-cover tricks which constitute horse racing. In addition, George Ernest has been cast as William Boyd's partner to hold the juvenile attention. Barbara Worth carries the feminine charm adequately, while Ernest Hilliard is the unscrupulous villain.

The story centers about Boyd and his trials and tribulations on the race track because of the dirty work of Hilliard. Ben Hall, who carried out one of the villain's assignments, confessed on his death bed and from this point on Hilliard is on the pan. Through the boy, Ernest, Boyd meets Miss Worth, the sister, and as you would suspect the moment the two lay eyes on each other, the final shot shows both embraced in a love touchdown. Sam Newfield directed.

Previewed without a production code seal. Running time, 59 minutes. "G."

"The Land of Promise"

(Urim Palestine Picture Corp.)

The return of the Jews from oppression and the rebuilding of their national life in Palestine in the past 25 years forms the theme for this record of their progress.

Juda Leman, a German refugee, has done a fine job in his handling of the theme, skillfully applying his directing talent to make this a splendid production.

Sincerity is evident in the portrayals by the pioneers in this reclamation of the Promised Land, for even in the film is the spirit of the project pronounced.

The camera work by Charles W. Herbert of the Fox Movietone Far East staff, achieves a high quality evident in the closeups of the various types and the earthy quality of labor. He has used light and shadow effectively.

Starting somewhat like a travelogue, the film shows the arrival of the refugees, their immediate application to the task before them, the gradual change, the building of a new life replete with a new culture and recognition among nations. The pace of the picture never lags, skillful cutting makes every frame count. The end shows the new Palestine, a modern city and a credit to the spirit that built it.

The musical accompaniment was under the supervision of Boris Morros and there is a narrative delivered by David Ross which is effective.

The picture is not regulation entertainment and, as such, will have a limited appeal among average audiences.

Previewed without a production code seal. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

Bob Hart to Houston

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 18.—Bob Hart, assistant manager at the Bijou, has been made manager of the Loew, Houston, Texas. Hart has been with the Poli New England circuit during the past three years.

A farewell dinner will be tendered him at Kaysey's Wednesday night, with Bill Henson, manager of the Bijou, acting as toastmaster, and Erle Wright, Bob Russell and Ben Cohen the committee in charge.

Ballyhoo Ted Lewis

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18.—Phil Phillips, FWC publicity head here, has been heavily exploiting Ted Lewis and his band, sharing the Warfield Theatre bill with "Hands Across the Table." Lewis, always a favorite in San Francisco, was put on the air in a special broadcast, and has been used in tie-ups with hatmakers, men's clothiers and on several other stunts which registered well in the news sections of local papers.

"Bishop" and Show Milwaukee Leader

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 18.—Biggest bet above par for the week here was "The Bishop Misbehaves" with Benny Davis' "Stardust" Revue at Fox's Palace, a 7,000 gate, $2,000 above par.

"The Last Days of Pompeii" and "The Rainmakers" were good for $6,000 at the Warner with "Metropolitan" and "Here Comes Cookie" nicking the Wisconsin box-office for $8,800, or $800 to the good.

Prime reason for the perk in business was a teachers' convention with over 10,000 with better lined pocketbooks in town due to restored salaries in part or in full. It was one of the best attended conventions in the 82-year history of the group.

Total first run business was $29,300. Average is $24,200.

Allied Unit Meets

DES MOINES, Nov. 18.—About 200 theatre owners today attended the opening session of a two-day meeting of Allied of Iowa and Nebraska, presided over by Leo F. Wolcott, president. Better attendance in the Middlewest was reported by Wolcott, who said the better films movement has brought results. A business session and election of officers will take place Tuesday. Wolcott declared the unit ready to cooperate with national Allied.

More Stars to Join Radio Benefit Show

Walter O'Keefe, Helen Morgan, Gertrude Niessen, Roland Young and Fred Waring will be among the stars to appear at the eighth annual dinner of the Radio and Refrigeration Division of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies' Drive Sunday night at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Louis Sobol and Ed Sullivan will be joint masters of ceremonies. The division has promised to raise $50,000 for the Federation.

More Loew Houses Will Show Screeno

Loew's will add Screeno in a number of its neighborhood theatres, it was learned yesterday. The particular theatres have not yet been set, but will be in a week or so.

Although the circuit recently dropped duals the big half of the week in 12 theatres, no plans are on foot to spread the single feature policy to other houses, it was stated. There also is no inclination on the part of the circuit's executives to return vaudeville.

Despite Loew's action, RKO holds adamantly to its idea of shying clear of giveaways and games. Duals in all of the circuit's units will be continued without change.

was elected jointly by RCA and M. J. Meehan interests.

Swope had resigned earlier from the RKO executive committee and from the boards of RKO Radio Pictures and RKO Pathe News. His resignation from the RKO board, although offered a year ago, was not accepted until last week's meeting which was the first to be held in more than a year.

Comerford to Build

SCRANTON, Pa., Nov. 18.—Comerford Theatres, Inc., will break ground soon for construction of a $50,000 theatre in Throop, near here. It will seat 900, and will be completed by March 1.

There is a High Intensity Lamp A.C. or D.C. for every theatre large or small

There is a NATIONAL Projector Carbon for every Projection Lamp

THEATRE patrons desire enough supplementary lighting for comfortable vision from the moment of entrance. They are annoyed when a dark theatre compels them to stumble and grope blindly for their seats.

High Intensity Projection permits ample side lighting for a comfortable level of general illumination. It improves the quality of black and white projection and brings out the full beauty and realism of color productions.

are that 175,000 attended in spite of the rain. This is better than an average day.

It may have been the novelty of Sunday shows, but crowds stood in line for a half hour or more before the scheduled opening of box-offices at 2 o'clock. In a few neighborhoods where proprietors were uncertain of the attitude of their patrons theatres did not open.

Clergymen, who had fought the openings, did not fail to criticize. Some of them pointed out that the storm was an indication that "the heavens were weeping over the surrender of Christianity." Rev. William B. Forney of the Lord's Day Alliance, who has talked legal action to halt Sunday shows, said Sunday School attendance was suffering.

Rev. Dr. Charles H. Long, rector of Zion Episcopal Church, took an opposing view.

"People who want to come to church will come anyway," he said. "I do not expect the Sunday movies to have any effect upon my congregation."

Larry Graver, manager of the Stanley, surveyed the crowds waiting for the opening, and said: "This proves the people want Sunday shows." He had 2,000 inside within a half hour. The Fox reported 2,000 at the first show and about 2,500 at the evening. Frank W. Buhler, manager, said he had noticed whole families were attending.

The Boyd had about three-fourths of capacity at its first show; the Aldine reported 1,200; the Arcadia was about half full during the afternoon; the Stanton, Europa, Earle, Keith's and the Palace also ran to about one-half their capacity.

Scranton Turnout Heavy

SCRANTON, Pa., Nov. 18.—With motor traffic practically paralyzed by a snow storm and trolley cars running on uncertain schedules, film theatres open for the first time here on Sunday reported large attendances.

Five Central City houses were in operation. In several of the boroughs on the outskirts of Scranton, theaters have been presenting Sabbath performances for several years without interference from either municipal or county authorities because of charities sharing the receipts.

Attendance at the afternoon performances in the Scranton theatres was large, but fell off slightly at night because of the snow.

The storm started at 8 o'clock Sunday morning and continued for more than 12 hours.

Storm Hurts Wilkes-Barre

WILKES-BARRE, Nov. 18.—Attendance at Wilkes-Barre and other Luzerne County theatres was limited because of the snow storm Sunday, the first open Sunday for films.

Managers declared the day could not be considered a test, since the weather prevented many persons from leaving their homes. The Shawnee Theatre, Plymouth, reported a larger attendance than on Saturday.

in the script everything that is in the picture—including its music—and that these treatments will be published and become the permanent records of screen production. Wells, himself, is endeavoring to develop such treatments of screen stories now, he said.

The novelist, who is under contract to Korda and who will devote the next three years to writing exclusively for the screen, proclaimed early in the interview that his remarks on films were those of an "enthusiast." He proved it by his replies to questions subsequently. One interviewer wanted to know what Wells thought of the "tripe" from Hollywood.

"The subjects of love and anger and other passions fill a perennial need," the novelist replied. "You're never going to be rid of what you call 'tripe' and," looking now at his youthful-appearing questioner, Wells said, "you probably call it that because you are an old and disillusioned man."

Sees Color Specialized

The novelist said that he felt color should be avoided by the industry for another 10 years except in short subjects. "Color has a specialized function," he said, "that limits its usefulness and therefore makes the already difficult telling of a story more difficult." Asked whether he thought producers "played down" to audiences, Wells told the assembled representatives of the press that he believed publishers of newspapers, books and magazines and the producers of films all play down to the public and play "too low."

"The public will accept better than it gets from any of them," he remarked.

A questioner wanted to know whether Wells regarded anything that had been done for the screen as "lasting art." "Give the medium a chance," was his reply. "It's only 25 years old. It's only now beginning to find itself."

Asked what had "sold" him so completely on films Wells indicated that the screen's possibilities as a new and greater entertainment medium enthused him. At first he believed films to be "hopeless," he said; then found it was possible to "come in and help a little," and gradually his enthusiasm grew. He said that the effects obtained in "The Invisible Man" contributed much of his interest in production. Admitting that this interest was comparatively recent, he insisted, however, that he had been a "fan" for years, seeing three or four pictures a week. Replying to his questioners at this juncture, the novelist said he was not a reader of the "fan" magazines and declined to state whether he liked "marble bath tubs with gold-plated fittings."

U. S. Ticket Tax Gains in October

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Marked improvement in theatre attendance with the advent of the fall season is indicated by figures on October admission tax collections made public tonight by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Treasury receipts from this levy last month, the bureau announced, totaled $1,488,922.68 against $1,173,507.03 in September. The ratio of improvement was greater than last year, when tax collections increased from $1,202,599.74 in September to $1,496,492.91 in October, the gain being $315,415 against $293,893.

New Booking Group Started in Phila.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 19.—Associated Theatres of Pennsylvania, viewed as a new booking combine, has been organized here. Its inception is believed to be the result of other booking combine moves in this area. Charles Segall is reported slated to head the organization, which is said to embrace more than 20 theatres, principally within city limits.

Ex-Congressman Ben Golder, attorney for the plaintiff in the recent double feature test case against local distributors, is expected to be the organization's counsel.

United Artists Exchange to Reveal All Funds for Tax

Accountants for the city finance department are completing new audits of the books of the United Artists exchange here for the purpose of preparing a sales tax statement based on the entire revenue of the exchange, it was learned yesterday. The action follows a week of unsuccessful efforts by accountants for U. A. to agree with the city's representatives on items of exchange revenue to which the tax might be applied in the event film rentals are found to be taxable under the enabling act for the city sales tax.

Originally the city attempted to levy only against revenues derived from theatres located within the city limits, but under a recent and broader interpretation of the sales tax ordinances it has held that all local exchange revenue, even that derived from theatres outside the city and state, is taxable. As the United Artists' assessment is in the nature of a test case the new interpretation of the tax pro-

The annual financial report for the year ended Aug. 31 will be issued the end of the week, it was stated yesterday.

Although no estimates of the total could be given, proxies for the annual stockholders' meeting are declared to be pouring in daily. It is anticipated that more than the necessary amount required will be on hand when the Wilmington session is called to order.

Currently before the cameras are "The Bohemian Girl" and "Three on a Bench," the latter starring Jimmy Savo. The next feature will be "Kelly, the Second," with Patsy Kelly and an all-star cast. An Our Gang short, "Divot Diggers," is in work.

Production Holds Up with 38 Going

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 19.—Production held to a fair level last week, showing slight change from the previous week's figures. Cutting rooms slowed down noticeably. Thirty-eight features and six shorts were in work. The previous week's checkup showed 39 features and three shorts on the sound stages and locations.

Columbia had four features shooting, three in preparation and five in the cutting room. Fox had five, two and three; Goldwyn, two, zero and one; M-G-M, six, zero and 12; Paramount, five, two and nine; Radio, five, three and six; Roach, two, zero and zero; Universal, two, one and two; Warners, seven, zero and seven; independents, zero, two and two.

Short subject production registered a gain. Columbia had one working, two in preparation and four editing. M-G-M had two, four and four; Radio, one, one and four; Roach, zero, one and three; Warners, one, zero and one; independents, one, one and one.

Hoblitzelle's Deal Extended To Year's End

Talk New Deal Later; No Schaefer Move Yet

Karl Hoblitzelle's operating agreement for the Interstate Circuit has been extended by Paramount to the end of the year, it was learned yesterday. The extension comes after week's of negotiation both here and in Hollywood between Hoblitzelle and John E. Otterson, Paramount president.

Interstate is one of the largest and most important of the Paramount theatre units, being centered in Texas and the neighboring southwest. Hoblitzelle has operated the unit for several years under an agreement which expired Sept. 28. Negotiations for a new agreement or the renewal of the old have been under way since several weeks prior to that date. They will probably be resumed again next month. Hoblitzelle has returned to visions means that local exchanges might be subjected to a $3,000,000 tax instead of one of $700,000, as originally contemplated by the city.

U. A. Exchange To Reveal All Funds for Tax

Failure of the U. A. and city accountants to agree on taxable items of exchange revenue is understood to have decided the city finance department on proceeding with the assessment against all local exchange revenue regardless of the place of its origin.

In this connection the city contends that film carriers are the agents of the distributor and the delivery of film to the carrier by the exchange completes a sales transaction. Distributors point out, in turn, that most pictures are now played on percentage and the exchange's revenue is determined at the theatre and, therefore, in the case of theatres outside the city limits, the returns are not taxable.

The city finance department is expected to rule this week that exchange revenue is subject to the sales tax, but distributors are prepared to take an appeal of an adverse decision to the appellate division.

Radio Issues Unique Pons' Picture Book

Radio studio has just issued a limited edition of a book of photographs and text that is probably unique in the history of picture exploitation, the purpose apparently being to impress the 500 recipients with the class angles of Lily Pons' "I Dream Too Much."

It has 24 pages, exclusive of heavy covers, all with photographs except the first and last. Each is autographed to the recipient by Miss Pons. The photographs were made and assembled by Ernest A. Bachrach, most of them being clever combinations of closeups with background effects.

On the back of each, so that it appears on the left as the pages are turned, is text giving a lightly written synopsis of the story. The front cover has a photograph of Miss Pons. The book is bound with wire.

Companies Approve New Length of Reel

being sent to all reel manufacturers who, between now and April 1, will prepare for making the new reels and cases. During the transition period, studios will cut all productions for changeover at 1,000-foot lengths to accommodate theatres not equipped for the new reel. The Academy believes the changeover will be necessary for only a year after adoption. To protect theatres receiving the 2,000-foot reel from getting false changeover cues in the middle of the reel, the Council recommends two alternative methods, one to be handled in the exchange, the other the making of a dupe negative of part of each reel in the laboratory.

The successful adoption of the new reel was negotiated over a long period by the Reel Length sub-committee of the Academy, a New York distributors' committee and the Academy Research Council.

New Answer Is Asked In Seidman-Fox Case

Keller, president of Fox Theatres Corp., explained that Seidman filed suit on Sept. 26, 1933, to recover $35,000 alleged to be brokerage commission earned by Seidman.

On Oct. 9, 1934, in proceedings entitled "In the Matter of Fox Theatres Corp., Debtor," in Federal court, Seidman, according to Keller, was one of the petitioning creditors seeking to have Fox Theatres Corp. adjudged an involuntary bankrupt. To establish his status as creditor, Keller explained, Seidman relied on the same cause of action set forth in this complaint. Objection having been made to the claim in Federal court, Seidman was required to prove his cause of action.

On last Oct. 22, averred Keller, after a trial on that claim, a decision was rendered in favor of the defendant. Keller said, "I am advised that the aforesaid adjudication constitutes a complete defense to Seidman's present action. Accordingly the defendants desire to incorporate that defense in the supplementary answer."

Hearing was set for this morning.

Only one other house succeeded in making average. This was the Lyric, where "Personal Maid's Secret" reached $7,000. "Hands Across the Table," "Red Salute" and "Last Days of Pompeii" were all in a bad way.

BOSTON, Nov. 19.—Just as Paramount's "Hands Across the Table" proved a surprise at the Metropolitan a few weeks ago, Universal's "Remember Last Night?" is pulling a similar stunt at Keith's Memorial, where it opened big and is building, largely from word-of-mouth publicity.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Littlest Rebel"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 19.—Shirley Temple is this picture's prime entertainment and commercial asset. The singing, dancing and smiling Shirley scores a personal triumph, her first straight, starring dramatic role.

The picture, in common with all Civil War stories, is melodramatic. Miss Temple so dominates that with few exceptions, sequences in which she does not appear tend to drag. However, her work blending tears with smiles, so atones for this shortcoming that it should not prove a handicap. The atmosphere of international conflict is vivid. It is war as it affects Shirley's father, John Boles, and her mother, Karen Morley. Narrated from a child's viewpoint, it is the story of a girl who is loved by her friends, who charms the enemy's heart.

A buffeted child of storm, war's horror is first impressed upon her when her mother dies. Boles is captured by a Union officer, Jack Holt. Her childish plea so touches him that Holt arranges Boles' escape. Boles, fleeing with Shirley, is recaptured. Holt is incriminated and both soldiers are sentenced to death. With Bill Robinson, Shirley gets an audience with Abraham Lincoln, played by Frank McGlynn, Sr. Her simple, straightforward story to the Emancipator of why her father was captured and Holt's part impels him to write a pardon for both.

The drama is handled with deftness. Miss Temple's singing and dancing with Robinson are fine amusement and commercial values.

With interest centered on her, David Butler's sympathetic, understanding direction of Boles, Miss Morley, Holt, Guinn Williams, Robinson, Willie Best and Frank McGlynn fills all showmanship requirements. Edwin Burke's screen play preserves the full emotional appeal of Edward Epeple's play.

Production Code Seal No. 1,727. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

"Miss Pacific Fleet"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 19.—Warners' stock comedians struggle valiantly with a slight story and turn in a routine comedy. The comedy of a tough girl's troubles in a navy town is the best angle to plug.

Joan Blondell and Glenda Farrell play stranded chorus girls who are running a pier concession. Allen Jenkins is the middleweight champ of the Pacific fleet and champion ring tosser and cleans out their stock of prizes. Jenkins is a Lord Bountiful at heart, however, and sets out to deliver the entire navy vote when Miss Blondell enters a popularity contest conducted by henpecked Hugh Herbert. Mina Gombell, as Herbert's suspicious wife, attempts to have Miss Blondell kidnapped, but is taken for a ride herself with Jenkins and his pal, Eddie Acuff, in a speedboat chase through the harbor. Warren Hull carries the romantic interest as Jenkins' rival for Miss Blondell. Marie Wilson stands out as a dim-witted navy chaser. Raymond Enright directed. The story is by Frederick Hazlitt Brennan and the screen play by Lucille Newmark and Peter Milne with additional dialogue by Patsy Flick.

The popularity of the comic foursome should be emphasized to put this one over.

Production Code Seal No. 1,555. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

Bar "Bolero" in Ohio

COLUMBUS, Nov. 19.—After considering for nearly two weeks, the Ohio censor board has barred "Bolero," foreign short subject. Specific reasons were not cited, other than "the film contains objectionable features."

The short, an elaborate ballet interpretation of Ravel's musical composition, devised by Ida Rubenstein, with musical backgrounds by the Orchestre Symphonique de Paris, was booked into the Mayfair, Cincinnati, to open Saturday in connection with "Loves of a Dictator," and was heavily advertised and exploited.

More than 100,000 people saw the picture during its first seven days. The engagement is being continued at the Stillman.

"It's in the Air" went 50 per cent over average at Loew's Stillman to $6,000, where $4,000 is par.

Davey Assures Ohio ITO 3% Tax Will Stay

Promise Dispels Fear of Return of 12% Levy

COLUMBUS, Nov. 20.—Reenactment of the three per cent gross receipts tax for another year upon its expiration Dec. 31 was pledged to Ohio exhibitors by Gov. Martin L. Davey at the annual I.T.O. banquet last night. The announcement was received with enthusiasm because it dispelled fear of a 12 per cent levy.

Governor Davey said he was opposed to discriminating against films in imposing higher taxes because smaller theatres cannot pass them on. He intimated that he will favor graduating the tax to fit the type of theatre to which it is applied.

By exercise of strict economy and with the cooperation of the Legislature, he said, the State Treasury will establish a record in Ohio history

New Taxes at Next Session Unlikely

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Probabilities of new tax legislation at the coming session of Congress today were held to have been dimmed as a result of intimations yesterday by President Roosevelt, in his meeting with the conference of mayors, that he was not desirous of having taxes made an issue in the Presidential campaign next year.

Inasmuch as Congress also is desirous of postponing as long as possible the disagreeable duty of informing the people that taxes are to be increased, present expectations are that the revenue question will be held in abeyance until Congress meets in 1937,

Can Zanuck Do New Film? Fortune Asks

"Can Darryl Zanuck do as well with the expensive, polished type of picture that he is now making as he did with the hasty melodramas of his apprenticeship?" asks Fortune, monthly magazine, in its latest issue.

Zanuck's rise to power rests upon two qualities: (1) the ability to create sensational dramas out of the day's news, and (2) the knack of making paying pictures cheaply, the article states. He has a "flair," says Fortune, "for hard, swift-moving masculine pictures which hold a double appeal for his employers; they shocked the public into coming to see them, and they were inexpensive to produce. Zanuck lived up to his reputation for economy by discouraging costly retakes, holding rigidly to his production schedules. He keeps one eye constantly on the budget."

"Will Twentieth Century-Fox need another producer with subtler tastes to supplement the peculiar Zanuck talent?" the article continues. "No answer to that question can be made until the box-office returns are in from a variety of sources. For though the cream of the domestic sale of a picture (around 80 per cent) is skimmed within three months after its release, the rest may take another year or two years to dribble in. The British theatres wait a few months and watch how a picture sells at home before they buy it. And then another six months may elapse before they show it."

Warner attorneys have applied for a counter order to have Clougherty show cause why the case should not be dismissed on the ground that the court has no jurisdiction in the matter and none of the parties involved reside in the district. The point was argued and decision was reserved pending the filing of briefs before Nov. 25.

Trendle says the recent agreement he reached with Paramount for operation of its houses here runs until July 1, 1940.

Sixth Bluebook on Projection Issued

mental sciences represented in the projectionists' craft, such as electricity and optics, receive theoretical attention as well as practical application to the everyday problems and processes of projection and sound reproduction. There are 32 chapters, and in addition, sections devoted to definitions of technical terms, mathematical quantities, etc.

Making the volume particularly handy for reference as well as for general study, is a system of paragraph identification designed to facilitate cross-reference and the finding of the answers to the study questions which precede each chapter.

This edition of what has become through the years a standard work on projection, is published by the Quigley Publishing Co. It is handsomely printed on coated paper and is profusely illustrated with diagrams and photographic reproductions.

In a foreword, Adolph Zukor, pioneer producer and chairman of the board of Paramount Pictures, Inc., gives glowing recognition to the part the skilled projectionist plays in the effectiveness of the motion picture as an amusement medium. Richardson has dedicated the book to the IATSE and MPMO, with the approval of George E. Browne, international president of the organization.

Judge Coxe overruled this contention in denying Wiseman's motion to vacate the subpoena. Indications are, however, that Wiseman will seek an appeal from Judge Coxe's ruling in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The examination of Wiseman is scheduled to begin tomorrow before Special Master John E. Joyce, but will be postponed if a decision to appeal to the higher court is made.

Republic Will Not Act on Long Reels

Republic Pictures probably will take no action on the adoption of a standard 2,000-foot reel scheduled for next April 1 and approved by all major companies with the exception of Universal, it was stated yesterday.

A company official pointed out that Republic could not commit its distributors to the changeover and that each would decide the question individually. The opinion was advanced that while Republic might favor adoption of the new reel at the studio, many of its individual distributors might be opposed to incurring the expense involved in effecting the changeover at the exchanges.

prior to which time, the President told the mayors, a conference will be held on the question of overlapping taxes with a view to the enactment of legislation ending the present conflict between Federal, state and local taxes. "Amateur Theatre of the Air, No. 4"

(Biograph-Radio)

The pick of the amateur field, as in the earlier numbers of this series, make the standard of entertainment that is most likely to please a great audience. In this one there is to be seen a pioneer act, a duet, tap dancing, a Harlem "rent party." Finally the camera takes the audience into the studio where auditions are being held. Concluding Major Bowes tells of the talent that is waiting for a chance to perform. Recommended. Production Code Seal No. 0,660. Running time 18½ mins. "G."

"Gentlemen Sports"

(Van Beuren-Radio)

If Bill Corum had a million and someone asked him what sports he would indulge in, he probably would answer that he would like to have a string of race horses and travel around the country with them. That is the start. Then he reviews the Hambletonian at Goshen, billiards, trap and skeet shooting, gliding as done by young DuPont and winds up with Gar Wood racing his motor boat. It is an interesting short offering and its variety should appeal to a great audience. Recommended. Production Code Seal No. 0681. Running time 11 mins. "G."

Tivoli Loses Move To Quash Fox Suit

In a suit for $4,800 brought by Fox Film against the Tivoli Theatre Co., Justice Albert denied a motion by defense counsel to dismiss the complaint. "On the papers submitted there is an issue as to whether the plaintiff is entitled to receive the entire sum claimed," the court ruled. "The motion for summary judgment is therefore dismissed."

Lawrence S. Bolognino, vice-president of Tivoli, said the suit is based on a contract of Nov. 15, 1934, for a percentage of the profits allegedly made from 58 films as well as receipts from "The Little Colonel" and "Bright Eyes."

A motion to dismiss the complaint in a contract action brought by Fox Film against Springer & Cocalis was denied yesterday in the Supreme Court by Justice Albert Cohn. An affidavit submitted by Jack W. Springer, president of the circuit, and vice-president of Trio-Consolidated Theatres, also a defendant, said Fox had brought suit on a contract of Oct. 24, 1934, and that the plaintiff claims a percentage of net profits allegedly made on the showing of from 40 to 52 films in 28 houses.

He said Fox is also suing for a share of the receipts from "The Little Colonel" and "Bright Eyes." The case will go to a jury.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Story of Louis Pasteur"

(Warners)

Hollywood, Nov. 20.—So absorbing is this theme that the film is sure to win terrific word-of-mouth endorsement, although audience disinterest in the serious and technical side of the medical profession should be anticipated by a campaign stressing Pasteur's heroic struggle against the political machinations of jealous doctors and deadly germs.

Chemist Louis Pasteur was one of the first men to discredit the then incredible idea that "wee beasties" discernible only under the microscope were responsible for human ailments. Paul Muni lends intensity to the role of a man whose fight against careless doctors and unsterilized instruments brought first laughter, then hatred, and then persecution from orthodox medicos. The appalling number of women dying in childbirth is blamed by Muni on septic poisoning. An altercation with a court doctor results in virtual banishment by the Emperor. Recognition begins when his anthrax anti-toxin saves thousands of sheep dying of the plague. There is a dramatic climax with the saving of 20 patients who are doomed to die in the hideous convulsions of hydrophobia and public recognition of his service to mankind.

Muni is convincing as the fanatic searcher into the secrets of murderous maladies. Josephine Hutchinson is telling as his understanding wife. A slight thread of romance is carried on by Anita Louise as Pasteur's daughter and Donald Woods as a young researcher.

The excellent cast, deserving special commendation, includes Fritz Leiber, Henry O'Neill, Porter Hall, Raymond Brown, Akim Tamiroff, Halliwell Hobbes, Frank Reicher, Dickie Moore, Ruth Robinson, Walter Kingsford, Herbert Corthell and Iphigenie Castiglioni, under the direction of William Dieterle.

The story and screen play by Sheridan Gibney and Pierre Collings rearranges the events of Pasteur's life for dramatic emphasis, but gives a faithful portrait of the man and the main events.

The endorsement of medical boards, newspaper editorials, comment from teachers and preachers should be had for the asking. Also tieups from distributors of foodstufs which used to spread more death than war before Pasteur discovered sterilization by heat. A proper advance campaign should help bring exceptional returns.

Production Code Seal No. 1,551. Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Two Hearts in Harmony"

(Associated British Pictures)

London, Nov. 12.—This was made by Time Prod., an independent unit. If it can maintain the same entertainment level in future efforts America may expect a new line of definitely good programmers from England. There is real brain work in "Two Hearts in Harmony," which hasn't cost much but is of convenient second feature length.

Bernice Claire and George Curzon are starred in a story of a cabaret singer who, more or less accidentally, becomes governess to a peer's son. Her double life is discovered by her employer, a widower, and the attempted mischief-making of his gold-digging fiancee insures that the wedding bells do not ring until after much amusing and tuneful incident. High spots are Miss Claire's singing, a very effective introduction of marionettes and an amusing study of the peer's too mature son. There is a healthy supply of American in the dialogue and the English is all understandable.

William Beaudine has directed a neat blend of sentiment, humor and popular music with just the right light touch. Lots of more ambitious British films have been lots inferior to this.

Running time, 55 minues. "G."

Pathe Wins Boston Suit for Exchange

Boston, Nov. 20.—Pathe Film Corp. scored a double barreled victory today when Judge Dowd in Superior Court handed down a judgment in favor of the company and at the same time dismissed an alleged conspiracy claim filed by American Film Exchange.

Pathe instituted suit some time ago against American Film Exchange on defaulted notes aggregating $21,340.25, which had been advanced for certain Chesterfield and Invincible pictures. In a counter suit against Pathe, American Film claimed that an alleged conspiracy existed between Pathe and First Division to bring about a default on the notes.

In rendering his decision, Judge Dowd said: "The respondents were at all times conscious of the aforementioned wrongful withholding of said monies in violation of the terms of the aforesaid agreement."

As a result, Pathe assumes possession of the exchange, its accounts and accessories. First Division will most likely take over operation.

Phillips & Nizer of New York and Mitter, McClellen & Fish of Boston represented Pathe, while Edward Johnson represented American Film.

Negotiations between Pathe and First Division whereby the latter assumes operation of the American Film Exchange in Boston are expected to be completed within a day or so. Meanwhile, Pathe representatives will manage.

St. Louis, Nov. 20.—Andy Dietz of Superior Pictures has closed with First Division to represent the company locally. The first important First Division deal closed by Dietz is the booking of "Mimi," a B. I. P. film, into the Fox, F. & M. first run house on Grand Ave.

"Mutiny" Tops Heavy Pickup In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 20.—Last week was the biggest downtown Pittsburgh has seen in years, the Army-Pitt football week-end, the Variety Club banquet and the Armistice Day holiday bringing into town thousands of visitors bent on spending. As a result, grosses everywhere skyrocketed and the five first runs doubled average.

At the Penn, "Mutiny on the Bounty" smashed all sorts of records, rolling up a phenomenal $28,000. Because this house has more product than it can use, "Mutiny" wasn't held over here, but was sent to the Warner for a run at the same scale. Guy Lombardo's band on the stage and "Hands Across the Table" on the screen brought a great $28,000 to the Stanley and "Metropolitan" gave the Fulton its best week since it reopened at $7,000.

The Alvin had Mayor McNair in person as a stage magnet, and with "The Gay Deception" on the screen, the gross was around $12,000.

The Warner profited by the general upturn, turning in $6,000 with "The Last Outpost" and "The Virginia Judge."

Total first run grosses were $81,000. Average is $45,500.

Estimated takings for the week ending Nov. 14:

"THE GAY DECEPTION" (Fox)
ALVIN—(2,000), 26c-57c, 6 days. Stage: Mayor McNair in person, Annie, Judy and Zeke, Red Donahue and mule, Beehee and Rubyat, Five Rileys, Billy Yates, Jerry Mayhall's orchestra. Gross: $12,000. (Average, $10,000)

"METROPOLITAN" (Fox)
FULTON—(1,750), 16c-42c, 6 days. Gross: $7,000. (Average, $4,000)

Warner-Ascap Break Viewed As Imminent

Starr Indicates Move Is Close Now

The Warner music subsidiaries' relations with the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers are nearing a climax and Warner's decision on withdrawing from membership in Ascap is expected almost daily. No decisive action was taken yesterday, however, by Herman Starr, Warner vice-president, following his attendance at a meeting of Ascap publishers.

Warner's Ascap membership contracts expire the first of next year. Observers believe that, if Warners contemplate withdrawing from the organization, the decision must be made within the next few days in order to set up the company's independent music licensing organization by that time. The Warner music subsidiaries include Harms, Remick, Wit-

More Houses For MGM in Foreign Keys

Determined to establish its own overseas show windows where the company regards current representation inadequate, M-G-M is mapping plans for the construction of five new theatres in as many foreign key cities. Arthur M. Loew, head of the organization's foreign sales, stated yesterday sites and amounts have not been determined as yet, but it is believed each one of the five will seat about 1,800 and cost approximately $250,000 to build. Loew refused to discuss where these houses will be built.

About a year ago, the M-G-M board of directors approved the plan to build where the company's product was not being given adequate representation. A budget of approximately $1,000,000 was authorized at the time for the construction of theatres in Santiago, Chile; Lima, Peru; Montevideo, Uruguay; and Rio Janeiro, Brazil. Prior to the adoption of this policy, M-G-M had started construction on its own theatre in Calcutta, India.

The latter house will be ready on

London Hears G.B. May Buy Union Circuit

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Gaumont British, already powerfully entrenched in the theatre field here, is linked in some quarters with reports that it is seeking control of Union Cinemas. A definitely known factor in the situation is that G.B. already has substantial holdings in Union.

The City, London's Wall Street, speculating widely on the reasons behind a sensational rise in Union's ordinary shares from 66/3 shilling to 115 is inclined to credit the buying responsible for the rise with moves to capture control of the circuit. The company, headed by Fred Bernhard, is arranging a floatation of a £3,000,-

Justice Dep't's Course Hinges on Outcome In St. Louis

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. — The course of the Department of Justice with respect to future proceedings will be determined to a large extent by the outcome of the Government's equity action in St. Louis, it was declared today by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, emphasizing the importance of the action.

The suit follows the recent acquittal of film companies and executives in a criminal action in connection with the alleged conspiracy to refuse first run product to the Ambassador, New Grand Central and Missouri in St. Louis, operated by Fanchon & Marco. Calls FWC Dividend "Fraudulent" Step

Spitz, on Coast, Says He Plans No Changes at RKO

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 21.—No changes in the RKO studio physical setup are contemplated, Leo Spitz, new RKO president said in an exclusive interview with MOTION PICTURE DAILY today. He said reports Emanuel Cohen is joining the company are decidedly untrue. "I have not seen Cohen for 11 months, which should settle the question," he declared.

Spitz said he would remain here a month, sitting in on any industry difficulties which may arise, and meeting with the heads of other studios. He said he would have to see what was in work and scheduled before acting on a reduction or increase of the film program.

He said an immediate merger with Paramount is utterly impossible, pointing out the Clayton Act restrictions against such a move as well as the present financial status of both companies.

Roxy Reorganization Under 77B Is Fading

Reorganization plans for the Roxy under 77B of the Bankruptcy Act will be dropped, it is understood. About a year ago, the bondholders' protective committee was successful in having the Federal Court transfer the theatre from its receivership to a bankruptcy status so that a reorganization could be worked out.

Union Injunction Move Is Reserved

Justice James C. Cropsey reserved decision yesterday on an action by Estates Operating Co. for a permanent injunction to restrain Allied M. P. Operators' Union from enforcing a contract for the employment of Allied men in the plaintiff's theatres. Estates Operating Co. is the owner of the Garfield, Avon and 16th Street, all in Brooklyn.

Bernard Pear, secretary of Estates Operating, testified that despite the existence of the contract his company never had employed Allied operators. A temporary injunction is now in force against Allied.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

ARTHUR W. KELLY, who stepped into the key executive post at the U. A. home office following the resignation of Al Lichtman, now friendly with lions, arrived back in town yesterday from several weeks in California's most highly protected town, Hollywood. He was uncommunicative, but in affable selling mood. He had smiles, plenty smiles, but also few informative answers to questions about this and that appertaining to his company and what may be going on there. The Q. and A. stuff, with the Q's pointed enough if the A's were not, ran something like this:

Q.—Who would be in charge of U. A.'s domestic sales?

A.—Harry Gold is and has been for some weeks past.

Q.—Did that indicate Kelly was withdrawing from the American field to concentrate on executive duties?

A.—No, Kelly would supervise the work of Gold and other sales executives.

Q.—Then no new figure would be brought into the sales organization?

A.—Kelly has plenty of assistants, it seems, and sees no need for more.

Q.—What about presidency?

A.—It is a post that remains to be filled.

Q.—What about that reported deal, the one whereby Sam Briskin would produce for the company?

A.—That's one I haven't heard anything about. It's something that would be handled on the coast.

Q.—Has the Chaplin picture been sold to Arthur Mayer for the new Rialto?

A.—Nothing has been decided on the New York run.

The question box, about this time, fumbled. Kelly was off on a sales talk that discouraged further queries. The Chaplin film is being scored and will be ready for release by the Christmas holidays; then there was the new Cantor picture and another from Goldwyn. Etc., etc. . . .

Decisions will be made faster and easier at RKO now. Sponsored by John D. Hertz, Leo Spitz, president-elect, in his scattered talks with executives there already has made it quite clear that (1) he is the boss and (2) he will continue to be boss as long as his administration remains in the saddle. He said it nicely and with a smile, but he said it and he meant it. There may not have been any great foresight evidenced by his first move since recognition of the part production plays in the RKO setup or in any other would appear to be obvious in the extreme, but Spitz's current survey of the studio situation marks a sound approach of the RKO problem. When Hollywood bounces on all cylinders, the rest of the worries have a persistent way of receding very quickly into the background. Spitz is on the coast, not on the hunt for sunshine, but for a man in whom centralized studio control can be vested. The individual easily may be Emanuel Cohen. Spitz views the latter's record at Paramount in very favorable light. Hertz always has been keen for Cohen and made a move to have him reinstated after he was let out originally. You don't need much more to swing a deal, bearing in mind as you must that Hertz is with Lehmans, who with Atlas are the new bosses at Radio. . . .

"I Live My Life," week ending October 17—$31,100.

Same picture, second week ending October 24—$21,500.

"Rendezvous," week ending October 31—$36,400.

Same picture, second week ending November 7—$26,500.

"Mutiny on the Bounty," week ending November 14—$76,300.

Offered for your reflection without comment because none is necessary, the story which the figures tell being complete and compelling enough. . . .

Of the last forty-eight features scanned by critical censorial eye in Boston, the shears were applied to one and that in a minor key. The deduction becomes inescapable, therefore, that the tone of the product must be getting better, for certainly censors are not getting less inclined to censor. If a reason is sought for all of this, there is the production code, for instance. . . .

Sam Goldwyn purchased "The Children's Hour" for a tidy sum, dropped the theme because there was no escape, changed the title to "These Three." Will someone, including Goldwyn, tell this mystified department exactly what, then, the producer bought? . . .

Feature Weekly Is New Republic Plan

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 21.—Starting Dec. 2, Republic will adopt a new policy of placing into production one feature a week. The plan has been under consideration for some time, but with the realignment of studio personnel it will take definite shape the first Monday in December.

Up to the present time, 19 of the scheduled 53 features are finished. The first of four serials is in production and it is anticipated that by the end of June all work on the 1934-35 program will be completed. "The Leathernecks Have Landed" with Lew Ayres in the lead will be the first under the new plan. After this, Ayres will direct "Glory Parade," sometime in January.

W. Ray Johnston has set January as Republic Month. A playdate drive with a goal of $1,000,000 in business will keep the company's sales force unusually active during the designated period.

Grants Motion on Costs

Justice Isidore Wasservogel yesterday granted a motion in connection with a suit brought by the Eagle Prod., Ltd., against Adolph Pollak in which the court ruled that costs and disbursements should be taxed by the clerk and awarded to the party in whose favor a balance is shown upon the final accounting. This decision was made in connection with a suit brought by Eagle against Pollak for an accounting charging that, while Pollak was vice-president, he distributed a picture entitled "Exposed" which was owned by Eagle and that he collected $20,000 of which he is charged with having diverse sums in his possession and which he has refused to turn over.

Pollak makes a general denial to these charges and denies that any of the money is being withheld. He admits, however, that he at one time acted as agent for the plaintiff. The trial is pending.

Plan Sound Instruction

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 21.—The Academy Research Council today announced a course in sound recording fundamentals for studio technicians, starting Dec. 2 for 13 weeks, twice weekly. A. P. Hill of Erpi will instruct. The course is sponsored by major studio sound department heads, and directed by an Academy subcommittee of which J. G. Frayne is chairman. There will be two sections of the class, each containing 50 technicians.

After "Good Meal"

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21.—David Palfreyman, Hays office theatre contact, explains his presence here as a desire "for a good meal." He left for New York tonight.

Vehement objections by Allied members here are reported to have brought to an end local discussions on a self-regulation plan.

Deny Offer of "U" Option

Standard Capital Co. denied yesterday that it had offered to William Fiske's and Nicholas Ludington's Western Pictures Corp. a participation in Standard's option to purchase Universal, as reported in Hollywood on Wednesday.

London Hears G.B. May Buy Union Circuit

000 issue and recently declared it had taken over 23 theatres and had acquired sites for 38 new ones. Prior to the expansion program, the chain controlled over 100 theatres.

Other proposed theatre financing in this booming British market includes an anticipated £3,000,000 flotation by County Cinemas, Ltd., while it is reported the Odeon Circuit also plans a new flotation. These latter circuits were embraced in an abortive merger scheme conceived some months ago by Joseph M. Schenck. It is generally understood that it failed because C. J. Donada of County refused to take second place to Oscar Deutsch of Odeon.

Union Tied with H. & G.

Union was tied in with the H. and G. Theatres in the Gaumont booking circuit scheme which was killed by the Kinematograph Renters Society.

The attitude of the K.R.S. on booking circuits is behind the resignation from its membership of Twentieth Century-Fox, which officially declares its defection from the ranks was caused by differences on a point of policy. The K.R.S., on the other hand, has issued no statement, but it is a matter of open secret that the resignation resulted from the distributor's desire to continue trading with Gaumont British as well as its objection to the K.R.S. policy on Gaumont's one time deal with H. and G., which was again discussed at a meeting of the former's council on Wednesday.

Efforts to reach Mark Ostrer for comment yesterday proved unavailing. He left late in the afternoon to join Mrs. Ostrer in Milwaukee.

London Session Stormy

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The annual meeting of General Theatres Corp., Ltd., witnessed stormy scenes due to efforts of preference shareholders who dissent from the reconstruction scheme to bring about a further investigation of the company's affairs.

Opposing the adoption of the report and accounts, Mr. Nordon asserted that control had passed to Gaumont-British and the Ostrers without the shareholders having been consulted. He criticized the profit and loss account for not showing gross receipts and what had become of them. A resolution was passed demanding accounts showing these receipts and a detailed statement of all payments made to G. B. for film, management and publicity. The resolution also called for the appointment of a shareholders' committee of investigation. The meeting also defeated, on a show of hands, a proposal for the re-election of Maurice Ostrer as a director and negatived the reappointment of the auditors.

In every case the chairman, Mark Ostrer, demanded a poll, announcing the directors had proxies to the number of over 1,000,000 against an opposition of 222,410. All the proposals defeated at the meeting were, therefore, carried.

back taxes of $340,000 reduced to $85,000, according to a report filed by Howard S. Cullman, trustee, with Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey yesterday, it was indicated that the bondholders will discard their earlier discussed reorganization plans.

Based on current earnings and the prospect of an increase in weekly revenue from $12,000 to $15,000 starting Thanksgiving Day when a new admission scale goes into effect, it is expected that the $85,000 in back taxes will be paid up and sufficient funds will be available within six months to liquidate the $250,000 in receivership certificates, according to the court record.

Just how soon the bondholders will act to dissolve the bankruptcy and operate the Roxy on its own is contingent on payment of outstanding obligations. It is believed that, when the court officially discharges Cullman, he will be retained by the bondholders to supervise. Artco has a management contract with Roxy Theatre Corp., which, it is understood, will be continued by the bondholders.

Asked Loan of $750,000

On Dec. 13, the first unit stage show will make its debut at the theatre when the Olsen & Johnson company starts an indefinite engagement.

The bondholders' committee some time ago applied to the RFC for a $750,000 loan to reorganize and, although no action has been taken to date, it is now held the money will not be necessary.

In addition to advancing by one hour the price change during weekdays, the Roxy beginning next Thursday will do away with the 35 cents admission figure on Saturdays, Sundays and Holidays. A 55-cent tariff will prevail on those days from 1 P. M. until closing. The new admission schedule is expected to increase the average weekly intake from $25,000 to about $40,000.

Dec. 6. Sam Burger, M-G-M roving foreign representative, has arrived in India from Singapore for the opening. Loew is completing arrangements to have a short wave broadcast from the Culver City studio, which will be rebroadcast from Calcutta, for the premiere. A number of M-G-M stars will talk. It has not been decided whether the period will be 15 or 30 minutes.

Work started last week on the 1,800-seat Santiago theatre and in the next month or so construction on plans for units in Montevideo and Rio will get under way. Harry Moskowitz, head of the Loew construction department, left Chile yesterday for Uruguay. He will supervise work on this house, as he has done on the Calcutta and Santiago buildings.

Loew himself plans to make a tour of all new theatres shortly. He is expected to take six months to cover the entire situation.

Meanwhile, M-G-M's plans for production abroad are at a standstill until Nicholas M. Schenck returns from the coast next week, following which, Loew will confer on the linguistic film policy. Several offers have been made Loew for building a laboratory and studio in London and several other foreign cities. No action has been taken on any of them. It is possible the company may build its own plant in London, but this is among the matters to be determined at the Schenck-Loew conclaves.

Loew is also mulling over plans to hold an international convention, the first since 1928, on the coast the latter part of next year.

In 1928, M-G-M foreign representatives gathered in New York. The get-together next year most likely will be held at the studios where 150 or more of the company's sales staff executive personnel from all over the world will hear new production and theatre building programs.

mark, Chapell-Harms and several smaller publishing companies.

An Ascap legal view which, if sustained, might handicap the immediate establishment of a comprehensive music library by Warners, if it were to withdraw from Ascap, maintains that licensing rights to past compositions of Warner writers will remain with Ascap. Starr said yesterday the "chances are we will withdraw" and added that a decision would be made "within 10 days."

to proceed is indicative of the importance of the action, despite the result of the criminal proceeding. "This is a conspicuous and important case," he said.

What is done in the future, Cummings said, depends largely on the outcome of the equity action. It was said that the investigation of complaints regarding conditions in California and Texas have been closed "for the present," with the indication that the St. Louis result will determine further action, if any.

Await Buffalo Decision

BUFFALO, Nov. 21.—Attorneys and principals awaited Judge John Knight's decision on a plea to amend the complaint in a suit charging conspiracy in restraint of trade brought in Federal Court here by the Reliance of Lockport against Schine Chain Theatres, Inc., and most of the large distributing companies. Instituted on April 18, the suit asks $750,000 damages, and, originally, contained a clause from the now defunct motion picture Code.

In oral argument, attorneys last week sought to have this clause removed from the bill of complaint. Peter Grafiades, president of Reliance and his attorneys, Thompson and Thompson, are pressing the suit for the plaintiffs. Defendants include J. Meyer Schine, John A. May, both of Gloversville, N. Y., Vitagraph, M-G-M, United Artists, Columbia, Universal, RKO, Fox and Dominion Operating Co. The plaintiff alleges that Schine has conspired with the distributors to prevent him from getting first run pictures. Defendant has also sought to have the lease of the Reliance terminated by threatening to open the Hi-Art. In a plea to an NRA board, Reliance had previously won an order compelling defendants to release 17 first runs.

Supply Men Ponder 2,000 Ft. Reel Talk

The proposed 2,000-foot reel will be discussed either today or tomorrow by the board of directors of the Independent Theatre Supply Dealers' Assn., it was stated yesterday, following the first of a three-day session held at the organization's headquarters in the Paramount Bldg. B. F. Shearer, president, was chairman.

Finances and policy of the association were discussed at the meeting in addition to expansion of activities on behalf of the members. This includes an advertising campaign.

An increase of 40 per cent in business was reported by the members who held that exhibitors today are buying a better class of merchandise.

Powell Blames Taxes

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 21.—William Powell declared today he will live and work in England six months of every year, and blamed the passage of California income tax laws for his decision.

There is talk other players may follow suit.

Quip of the Day

CINCINNATI, Nov. 21.—The laugh of the week was furnished by a woman patron at the RKO Palace, who, upon leaving the theatre, remarked to the cashier that the new system of thanking patrons was "just dandy."

Upon being questioned by the cashier, who prides herself on courtesy, it developed the patron had seen a large banner in the lobby which, in box-car letters, read, "Thanks A Million."

What the patron failed to notice, however, was the line immediately above, in small letters: "Next Attraction."

ILKA CHASE, who played opposite WALTER CONNOLLY in "Soak the Rich," left yesterday for Hollywood to appear in an RKO picture. She will return to New York and a new play on completion of the role.

Talley, Thomas, Lehr, Gags Tickle Ampa Risibilities

By BILL ORNSTEIN

Deploring the dearth of news and pictures on the Italo-Ethiopian situation, Truman H. Talley, producer; Lowell Thomas, commentator; and Lew Lehr, comedian of Fox Movietone News, yesterday invaded the sacred portals of the Ampa to vent their spleen.

Talley, naturally, was first to be called. He was brief, very brief, in fact, declaring "All I can say about the Ethiopian situation is that it's very black.

"All we're getting is a lot of pictures of people in nightgowns," he said. "I'm waiting for Laurence Stallings to return so he can tell you 'What Price Ethiopia' on the same style of 'What Price Glory.'"

Talley went on to relate how Stallings fell down a mountain side with a mule and after landing on the animal found he had killed it; how one of his cameramen cabled his bank here for $4,000 to buy an airplane when Talley refused to furnish the air buggy to take pictures; and how a New York Times correspondent cabled a whole column just to say nothing was happening in Ethiopia.

Continuing, Talley said he would not argue with J. P. Morgan about the war. "If Morgan says there's no war, why should I say there is?" the newsreel producer queried. "We used to get a lot of letters from people asking us not to use so many pictures of babies, Mussolini and battleships, but I'm afraid with the way things are breaking in Ethiopia, it will have to be babies, Mussolini and battleships.

"One nice thing about producing a newsreel," Talley asserted, "is that the office is a stable for mules. Every time one of these two (meaning Thomas and Lehr) sees a microphone he starts fixing his tie."

Thomas was next. He said the best way to describe the shots arriving from Ethiopia is that they all look alike, adding "all you see is a lot of darkies passing and not one is different from the other." He told a few other stories which were received with gusto.

Lehr was the last speaker and lost no time winning a rather sparse audience with his dialect. His gags were not exactly new, but Lehr had a unique way of putting them over.

Among his outstanding collection was the gag which had to do with the so-called honor system restaurant where one pays the cashier according to what one eats without getting a check. One Jewish fellow listed his meal to the cashier as herring, 10 cents; borscht, 25 cents; tea and cake, 15 cents. Just as he was about to pay, the cashier yelled out, "How about the radishes, you crook?"

The crowd wanted more, but Talley adequately explained the reason why Lehr couldn't. "He's got a million more if he only could reach his index," the producer said. Lehr complained that he had a job weeding out those that he told.

Gordon S. White, president of the Ampa, announced that on Dec. 19, the organization's annual Christmas party will be held at the Astor. Details will be made public next week, he said.

Calls FWC Dividend "Fraudulent" Step its assets to a new corporation a few days prior to entering bankruptcy.

Recalled to the stand, McNabb repeated his testimony, and Senator Pat McCarran read from the original bankruptcy hearing record, showing Charles A. Buckley had testified the dividend had been set up by the sale of First National franchises by F. W. C. to Warners. McCarran intimated McNabb was taking his witness oath lightly, and McNabb's testimony was corrected at his request. McCarran ordered a transcript of the testimony in the present hearing submitted to five Federal district judges for review.

Dash to Dessye for Ethiopian War Film

Taking things into their own hands in an effort to get some uncensored action out of the Ethiopian war, Capt. Ariel Varges, Hearst Metrotone ace, and H. R. Knickerbocker, Hearst war correspondent, have left Addis Ababa with other newspapermen on the first lap of a dash to Dessye, which they hope will prove the base of expeditions to the front, according to an International News despatch just received from Knickerbocker.

Varges and Knickerbocker had been held for weeks in and near Addis Ababa because of the refusal of Emperor Haile Selassie to permit them to penetrate the interior where the natives believe all whites are Italians. But the importunities of the Americans finally won out and at daybreak yesterday they received permission. Hastily packing several trucks, they set out, but were held up by soldiers outside the capital and were forced to return for a written permit from the Emperor. This obtained, they continued on their way without an escort.

When last heard of by courier despatch they were on a plateau 11,000 feet high and in freezing cold weather. Up to that time they had not encountered trouble, but they expected it any minute.

Davey, Solons Differ On Ohio Ticket Tax

COLUMBUS, Nov. 21.—The House Taxation Committee here last night decided the 10 per cent admission tax should be reinstated Jan. 1, and refused to approve the measure extending the three per cent levy another year. This is contrary to the declaration of Gov. Martin L. Davey, who told Ohio I.T.O. members here this week the present three per cent tax would be extended.

A hasty survey among exhibitors in key situations had disclosed a feeling of optimism that the three per cent tax would be continued. Continuance of the tax was introduced in the House when the General Assembly reconvened yesterday. A chain store tax, also was introduced, though not on the original program. This bill, if enacted, would react against both major and independent circuits.

Circuit Tax Seen Dead

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 21.—The chain store tax, interpreted to include theatres if passed, seems doomed to die with the fast waning of the special session of the Nebraska legislature. The proposal asks that a graduated tax be levied on chains varying from $3 for one house to $250 per house if 20 or more are owned.

Six chains, Lincoln Theatre Corp (6 houses); A. H. Blank's Tri-State group (about 12); Foxwesco (8); Central States (9); General Theatres (7) and Westland (2), would figure in the measure if passed. Strong lobbying activities by Bob Livingston, Capitol manager here, with the help of Bill Haycock, democratic House floor leader, helped. Haycock is a showman himself, in Callaway, Neb.

The present valuation is eigh cents per foot on film.

Wiseman to Fight To Appeals Court

An appeal from a decision by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe denying a motion to vacate a subpoena for Sir William Wiseman, Kuhn, Loeb & Co. partner, obtained by the Paramount trustees in their action to recover from former officers and directors of Paramount for participations in an employes' stock purchase plan, is being taken to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals by Wiseman's attorneys.

The decision to appeal from Judge Coxe's ruling results in the postponement to Dec. 10 of a preliminary examination of Wiseman which had been scheduled for today before Special Master John E. Joyce. In objecting to the subpoena Wiseman contended that the trustees were without authority to conduct an examination of the defendants since Paramount has been reorganized and the new company is now in operation.

Sidney R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox, is the only other defendant in the trustees' action who has been subpoenaed for the examination thus far.

My New BLUEBOOK

The first copies of my new Sixth Edition of the Bluebook of Projection have just come to my desk and already I have writer's cramp from autographing copies for those who got their orders in early.

It is a beautiful book, substantially bound. There are 714 pages, every one packed with information. It contains a comprehensive indexing system that will enable the reader to turn almost instantly to the answer to any question which arises concerning projection.

I have spent all my life in the study of projection and years in preparation of material for my books. I have worked three years getting out this book and I am proud of the result. It is full of solid, reliable, helpful data and it is thoroughly compiled and edited.

There is a whole section devoted to sound because, since the publication of the last Bluebook, sound has become an all-important factor in projection.

My Bluebook does not contain information in the projection or the sound sections that will get out of date quickly because of major or minor changes in equipment. The book deals with basic, fundamental facts and the man who studies it and absorbs it should be able to handle any projection apparatus, sound or visual, well and efficiently.

This book is dedicated, proudly, to the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees and Motion Picture Machine Operators of the United States and Canada in the hope that it will aid its members and further improve the efficiency and quality of their work. It is a recognition of the projectionist as a master craftsman. I am happy to say that my dedication to the I. A. T. S. E. and M. P. M. O. has been unanimously approved by the Executive Board of the Alliance.

Variety Club Chatter

Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, Nov. 21. — Enlarged quarters have been dedicated ceremoniously and the new modernistic cocktail bar has been opened. Among those present were HENRY ARMETTA, playing an engagement at the RKO Shubert, and CASTLE and FAY, dance team from the same theatre.

In a bulletin released by Chief Barker ALLAN S. MORITZ, a special Thanksgiving party on Nov. 23 was announced. The annual Children's Christmas Party is scheduled for Dec. 23, and again will be held in the Hall of Mirrors of the Netherland Plaza.

NOAH SCHECTER was among those present at the formal opening of the Mayfair, Cleveland night spot, recently.

CLARENCE WILLIAMS, steward, now has an aide because of longer hours.

Des Moines

DES MOINES, Nov. 21.—Variety club will hold a Thanksgiving dinner dance at the Savery Hotel, Nov. 23, the second dinner dance since the club was organized. STANLEY MAYER of Fox is general chairman and L. M. MCKECHNEAY is chairman of the ticket committee. A stage show has been planned.

Variety Club played host to many members of Allied Theatre Owners of Iowa and Nebraska during the convention.

Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—Inmates of Philadelphia General Hospital, one of the largest in the country, will now be able to see pictures through cooperation of Variety Club, with Mrs. Robert Loving, welfare worker in charge of social work at the hospital.

Some months ago the hospital had sound equipment, but could not meet the final payment. After waiting many months the equipment was taken out. The patients, many crippled, pleaded for films. The Variety Club was contacted, visited the hospital, knew that here was a genuine appeal.

Quickly the group contacted various industry members. Those who responded were, first, E. M. HARTLEY, RCA Photophone; then JOSEPH BERNHARD, for Warner; then ERPI; later International Projector. Warners were given the privilege of donating the equipment because it was a Philadelphia organization.

A committee consisting of members, BERNHARD, TED SCHLANGER and others participated in the actual ceremonies. Local exchanges will supply the film.

This is the first bit of constructive work that the local tent has done in the city with the expectation that the hospital incident will be first of a long series.

Washington

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Variety Club has resumed its get-togethers after a fortnight's lapse. F. KEMP MOHLER and ROBERT M. GRACE acted as kings for a day at a smoker.

No diversions other than those generally available in the club rooms were provided.

Principal topic of conversation was the forthcoming dinner and dance on Nov. 23. Elaborate plans have been laid by the committees and 500 guests are expected at the Willard. HARRY P. SOMERVILLE, that hotel's managing director, is generalissimo of the dinner-dance.

Many entertainers are assured by GENE FORD. ED LOWRY will be master of ceremonies, with the THREE X SISTERS, EL BRENDEL, NORMAN FRESCOTT, CHERRY and JUNE PREISSER, EDGAR BERGEN (and "CHARLIE MCCARTHY"), all serving the local theatres that week, and from local night spots will come other talent.

Musical direction during the evening will be by C. FREDERICK CLARK, of the Earle, PHIL LAMPKIN of Loew's Fox and GEORGE WILD of Loew's Century, Baltimore. An orchestra for dancing will be under the personal supervision of PETE MACIAS.

Detroit Bans "Peasants"

DETROIT, Nov. 21. — Police Censor Joseph Kollar has refused to issue a permit for the showing of "The Peasants," an Amkino release, by the Cinema Guild at the Institute of Arts, on the grounds that it is saturated with propaganda for collective farms, shows Communism triumphing over all and endeavors to instill these "red" ideals in the minds of its viewers.

This is the second Russian film to be banned here within the last two months, Kollar previously having refused to approve "The Life of Maxim."

Goes to Roadshows

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 21. — The Hartman, originally a legitimate stand, which was taken over a few years ago by J. Real Neth, local operator who tried various policies, has reverted to Robert F. Boda.

The house, refurnished and redecorated, reopens with "The Student Prince" and "Blossom Time," and thereafter will play traveling road attractions.

New Theatres Nearer

HOUSTON, Nov. 21.—Eddie Collins, city manager for Interstate Circuit, Inc., reports that three of the projected five neighborhood theatres are in advanced stages of construction. Cost of the five, including the three now under construction, is expected to approximate $750,000, according to Collins.

The North Main, first of the new projects due for completion, is expected to be ready for occupancy by Nov. 30. The other two now under construction will be completed in the near future.

Short Subjects

"Mismanaged"
(Radio)

The efforts of Manager Eddie Davis to get his troupe booked and a kind of success when he presents them on an amateur broadcast is the story in this short. Featured are Paula Stone, daughter of Fred, who goes through a singing, dancing routine in expert fashion assisted by Al Beal, pianist; Jimmie Tolson, crooning, and accordion player Toni Travers. They are a success on the radio and a contract follows for Davis, who must share his earnings with them according to the terms of another contract. Esconced in private offices they form a company and Miss Stone signs Davis to another contract, marriage. Well played, it should be good comedy fare for average audiences. Production Code Seal No. 894. Running time, 19½ mins. "G."

"Harlem Bound"
(Mentone-Universal)

A Harlem night club is the scene of this entertaining short. Presented there as its floor show are a number of acts with which most audiences are familiar. In the show are Cook and Brown, tap dancers; Avis Andrews, torch singer; "Pork Chops," Norman Atwood and Buck and Bubbles. At the conclusion there is a "Truckin'" scene by the whole ensemble which is entertaining and amusing. Production Code Seal No. 298. Running time 20 mins. "G."

"Tomorrow's Halfback"
(Van Beuren-Radio)

A youngster convinces his parents that football is not as dangerous as they think—with the aid of Lou Little, the Columbia coach, and Bill Corum. Little invites the family out to a game and there they decide to let their boy play on his school team. There are interesting shots behind the scenes of football showing how players are protected from injury and their special equipment. Worked in the narrative is a memorable Rose Bowl game of last year. With football in the air at this time this short should play to an interested audience. Production Code Seal No. 0750. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Gus Van's Music Shoppe"
(Mentone-Universal)

Taking place in Gus Van's music store, this short, aided considerably by the "hotcha" singing of Peggy Flynn and the supporting acts, should provoke entertaining comment from an amused audience. Van is wondering where business went to when Miss Flynn comes in. Getting out of that she goes into a snappy number about Paul Revere's ride. Then Van sings and there is some fast wisecracking. Along comes Ray Sax with his clarinet act, then dancing by Seroy and Weaver. More songs by Van and Miss Flynn, a hillbilly troupe and the Randall sisters. The whole cast troops off finally to a radio station. Previewed without Production Code Seal. Running time, 20 mins.

Hold "Gulliver"

"The New Gulliver," Soviet importation, will be held for a fourth week at the Cameo beginning today.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Millions in the Air"
(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 21.—Lack of box-office names and a very familiar plot leave this with few selling angles. The showmanship line suggesting itself is how a radio hour is conducted, directing attention to the known stage and radio personalities.

Wendy Barrie, heiress to Kello soap, wants to make good on her own, so she tries out under a fake name on an amateur hour sponsored by her father, George Barbier. She gets the gong. Ice cream peddler John Howard also gets the gong, but master of ceremonies Samuel Hinds gives them a chance as a team. Barbier see Miss Barrie and Howard performing and orders Hinds to give them the gong again. The entire country starts writing fan mail demanding their return, Howard refusing to appear with Miss Barrie because she is an heiress instead of a five-and-ten-cent-store girl, as she claimed. But their radio success as a team leads to wedlock's harness.

Willie Howard supplies the main laughs as a persistent amateur who sneaks in on every program. Benny Baker and Dave Chasen contribute to their well-established stunts, but these talents are not sufficient to hold up the entire film. Eleanor Whitney's tap dancing should take her far. John Howard looks like a possible bet as a new leading man. The supporting cast includes Robert Cummings, Inez Courtney, Catharine Doucet, Halliwell Hobbes, Alden Chase, Maurice Cass, Marina Schubert and a clever boy pianist, Bennie Bartlett.

Ray McCary directed under the supervision of Lewis Gensler. Harold Hurley produced. The screen play is by Sig Herzig and Jane Storm with music and lyrics by Ralph Ranger, Arthur Johnston, Leo Robin and Sam Coslow.

Production Code Seal No. 1,662. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Moscow Nights"
(Denham-U. A.)

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Founded on the production "Nuits de Muscovie," which was a Paris sensation about a year ago, this first Denham feature, produced by Alexis Granowsky and directed by Anthony Asquith, is melodrama plus spectacle, plus war atmosphere and plus Harry Baur, French character actor, in a dominating Russian peasant-profiteer role. Laurence Olivier, very good in an officer part, and Penelope Dudley Ward, the English society recruit who was seen in "Escape Me Never," are the other leads and there is good character work from Athene Seyler.

The story is about Captain Ignatoff, a wounded Russian officer, who falls in love with Natasha, the nurse who tends him in a Moscow hospital. She is being pressed to engage herself to Brioukow, a peasant turned war contractor. Ignatoff insults the peasant, who revenges himself by winning all the officer's money at the gaming table, leaving the latter also in his debt for a large amount.

Ignatoff discovers that Natasha really loves him and, abandoning his intention of committing suicide, agrees to accept help from Madame Sabline, an apparently simple old woman who is really a German spy. He does not know that, at Natasha's desire, Brioukow has sent him a quittance of his debt. Madame Sabline is caught, takes poison, and Ignatoff is accused of treason, but Brioukow tells the truth about the debt and clears him, although it means losing Natasha.

The outstanding features are Baur's very realistic picture of the moujik-millionaire and Olivier's debonair soldier. Penelope Dudley Ward is overweighed by her part. There is good pictorial appeal and plenty of Russian songs and Russian dancing. Baur's performances and the popular appeal of the story should make it generally useful.

Running time, 76 minutes. "A." ALLAN.

"Remember Last Night?" now current at the Roxy, was previewed by wire from Hollywood on Oct. 7.

"Frisco Kid," opening tomorrow morning at the Strand, was reviewed from Hollywood on Oct. 24 by wire.

"Splendor," this morning's opener at the Rivoli, was covered on Nov. 19.

"Crime and Punishment," which opened yesterday morning at the Radio City Music Hall, was previewed by Hollywood wire on Nov. 13.

"Mutiny" $14,100 Hit in New Haven

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 21.—"Mutiny on the Bounty" topped everything in a record-smashing $14,100 week at the Poli. Lines of standees waited hours during the first four days of the run. The picture was held for a second week at the College. The gross was more than twice the $6,500 average.

"The Crusades" piled up $6,100 at the Paramount in a good steady flow of business, $1,300 above par. This picture also was held. The Roger Sherman opened big with "Transatlantic Tunnel" and "King Solomon of Broadway," but shied off with the competition of "Mutiny" and "Crusades," and hit $800 over the usual $4,500 for this house. "Charlie Chan in Shanghai" and "Freckles" in a dual at the College took in $3,300, or $600 over the $2,700 mean.

Total first run business was $28,800. Average is $18,500.

Estimated takings for the week ending Nov. 15:

"CHARLIE CHAN IN SHANGHAI" (Fox)

Sunday Shows In Pittsburgh On Tomorrow

All Exhibitors Excitedly Await Big Event

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 22.—With the official certification today by Judges Frank P. Patterson and James H. Gray of the recent vote, Pittsburgh will usher in legalized Sunday shows this weekend for the first time in the city's history. Operators have already lined up a flock of extra help, including ushers and floor men, fully expecting box-office lines all day long.

They base their predictions on the enthusiasm with which Sunday shows have been greeted here in the past when operated on a benefit basis or for some particular charity. Then, too, the novelty is expected to attract many who might otherwise do their film going during the week.

While some observers have insisted that there is only so much business in town and that the Sunday take would be reflected in diminished grosses on week days, operators freely predict it will mean a gross increase of from $1,000 to $2,500 weekly all along the PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 22.—General meetings of the M.P.T.O. of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware and the I.E.P.A. will be held Dec. 2 to permit the membership of the two organizations to discuss their proposed merger, it was decided today following a meeting between unofficial committees of the organizations.

KAO Will Pick Up Additional Stock Block in Met. Playhouses

Keith-Albee-Orpheum is subscribing for the additional 10 per cent of the stock of Metropolitan Playhouses, the reorganized Fox Met. company, to which it is entitled under its agreement with United Artists Theatre Circuit, Inc., attorneys for K-A-O said yesterday. The decision to acquire the stock has been made by K-A-O, and the necessary papers are being drawn, it was stated.

The additional 10 per cent of the Met. stock became available to K-A-O as a result of the U. A. Circuit's recent acquisition of the remaining 50 per cent of the new issue. The U. A. Circuit, wholly owned by Joseph M. Schenck, thus owns 80 per cent of the Met. stock and K-A-O owns the remaining 20 per cent.

KAO 'Untouched' by RKO's Reorganization Says Swope

Keith - Albee - Orpheum is "untouched" by the reorganization under way in RKO, Herbert B. Swope, chairman of the K-A-O board, said yesterday in a staff communication designed to reassure employes in the face of "many unfounded rumors."

Swope said that K-A-O "will earn profits this year after several years of heavy losses. The bonus system, which I am glad to claim as my contribution, is working well," the communication continues. "The whole outfit is stepping out with a new spirit. I thank all the men and women in the K-A-O group for their efforts. Our relations with RKO continue unchanged in a friendly and effective affiliation."

Swope repeated a statement he made on assuming the K-A-O chairmanship more than a year ago: "That the company is sound; that the morale has been restored; that our job is to continue to do the best we can with our theatres, and that those who do their work well need have no fears."

The K-A-O head's statement is believed to be in response to current reports that the Atlas Corp.-Lehman Bros. interests which recently acquired one-half of the R.C.A.'s investment in RKO would also acquire the M. J. Meehan-RKO interests in K-A-O.

"Bounty" at $59,000 Again B'way Leader

"Mutiny on the Bounty" continues to set the pace on Broadway. After chalking up a $76,300 gross for the first week, the M-G-M special garnered $59,000 during its second stanza at the Capitol.

The first week of "Mary Burns, Fugitive" at the Paramount was good for $22,000, while the nine-day run of "Stars Over Broadway" tallied about $13,500 at the Strand. "The Melody Lingers On," which played nine days at the Rivoli wound up with a poor $12,000. The Palace with "The Three Musketeers" and "The Case of the Lucky Legs" was off with approximately $7,000 for the week.

Mexico, Americans Still in Deadlock

By JAMES LOCKHART

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 18.—The deadlock between the Government and American distributors over income tax and import duties continues here. The finance ministry suggestion for dropping the progressive income tax starting Jan. 1, and substituting a straight tax of six per cent on gross receipts, with a maximum annual import quota of 70,000 meters for each distribu- ask a straight duty of 2.80 per kilogram and $13.90 over the quota, was apparently not acceptable to the distributors.

Arthur H. Pratchett, local Paramount manager, and spokesman for the distributors, told the ministry they ask a straight duty of $2.80 per kilogram within their quota of 100,000 meters a year, with a proportionately higher levy above the quota. They seek to pay income tax only on the amounts they remit to their home offices, this not to be figured, as now,

Warners Seek New Deal, or Leave Ascap

After a Greater Return, States Starr

Unless new proposals by which Warners will be enabled to realize increased revenue on its music catalogues are advanced by the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers within the next few days Warners will withdraw its music publishing subsidiaries from Ascap membership before the end of next week, Herman Starr, Warner vice-president and member of the board of Ascap, said yesterday.

"We have no quarrel with Ascap as an organization," Starr said. "It is just a business question concerning what we think we should be paid for our music. Our position on this is the same now as it was six months ago and though our membership does not expire until the end of the year we are not going to wait until the last minute to make our decision on with-

Warners Will Back Fifteen Stage Plays

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 22.—Warners today completed arrangements to back 15 New York stage plays, according to Jack Warner. All the plays will eventually be made into films. The plan will go into work immediately, with Gilbert Miller producing George S. Kaufman's "All Are Victorious" as the first, and "Libel" as the second.

Scheduled to produce others are Brock Pemberton, Herman Shumlin, George Abbott and Alex Yokel. Even if the plays fail, the writers will have an opportunity to see their faults for correction in the film productions, Warner said.

Court Orders Atlas Action to Continue

The Appellate Division yesterday sustained a decision by Supreme Court Justice Edward Dore denying a motion by Atlas Corp. to dismiss a summons and complaint against the company, its officers and directors which was brought last spring by William F. The action charged officers and directors of Atlas with mismanagement and dissipation of assets and line. Harry Kalmine, zone manager for Warners, points to a small town in this vicinity where Sunday shows have been operated for some time, a percentage of the gross going to charitable organizations. "In that place," he said, "where there is no competition at all, the house used to show a yearly deficit of about $3,000 weekly. Since it has run on Sundays, however, it has come out of the red and is making an annual profit of more than $5,000."

Mike Cullen, manager of the Penn, is of the same opinion. "If there is a slight drop during the week," he said, "I expect the extra Sunday business to more than triple the discrepancy." Independent owners feel more encouraged about Sundays, too, inasmuch as there will be no stage shows in the deluxe houses downtown to take prospective customers away.

Boon to Restaurants

An indication of what a boon the restaurant owners expect Sunday shows to bring may be found in the fact that all of the big eating places are carrying extra advertising space in the three newspapers this week, insisting it be placed on the amusement pages and willing to pay the higher rate.

The only fly in the Sunday show ointment so far has been the threat of a suit by a group of McKeesport citizens opposed to the seven-day week. They maintain the Sunday act providing for local option required the vote in favor of films in any municipality to equal a majority of votes for the office drawing the largest number of votes in the current election. Others, however, have pointed out that this isn't so, since the Sunday referendum was carried on a separate ballot and, therefore, does not apply. McKeesport's count has been certified, nevertheless, and the city will open on Sunday, with opponents told to ask Common Pleas court for an injunction or bring action against the individual theatres. It is doubtful, though, if the suit will materialize in the light of expert legal opinion.

Recount Changes Result

In nearby Tarentum, where on the face of apparently complete returns Sunday shows had won out by a single vote, 1,681 to 1,680, a recount was demanded by opponents and the result went against exhibitors by seven votes. No further action is contemplated by the theatrical interests although it is possible the trade unions themselves will demand another tabulation. If they don't, Tarentum's vote stands as is.

The surrounding communities which voted down Sunday films are expected to swell downtown attendance and parking garages intend to be open for the first time to handle the anticipated crowds.

Dropped in Georgia Town

EATONTON, GA., Nov. 22.—Due to poor crowds, Sunday shows have been discontinued here. They were inaugurated several weeks ago.

on the basis of gross amounts received from exhibitors.

European distributors ask the income tax be four per cent instead of six per cent of gross, which the ministry considers the most reasonable. The mixed committee appointed by the Government will not meet until early in December. Local houses are using European, Mexican and some independent American product, as the strike of employees of the eight American major distributors is still in effect. The second run houses are doing fairly well, but the situation is working a hardship on the larger houses.

drawing. Unless Ascap can get a return on our music commensurate with what we believe it to be worth we will have to make a decision on withdrawing by the end of next week."

The Warner music subsidiaries are reported to have received approximately $300,000 from Ascap last year, or a return of slightly less than four per cent on the company's estimated investment of $9,000,000 in the music field. The company is said to estimate its fair return at approximately $900,000. The Warner music subsidiaries contribute about 25 per cent of the Ascap catalogue.

Principal radio networks are reported to be taking the position that they will not accept licensing from Warners in the event of a withdrawal from Ascap unless their present assessment of five per cent of their receipts which is now paid to Ascap can be reduced by approximately 25 per cent. Ascap contends that it will continue to have licensing rights to the past compositions of Warner music writers even if the company should withdraw from the organization.

Observers in the music publishing field believe that extended litigation will ensue if Warners withdraw from the Society and that this may have serious consequences in the field of Federal copyrights. A possibility of the Government taking over supervision of music licensing is also advanced in this connection in some quarters.

The only reason the Penn didn't keep it was because of a product jam there, something that also faces the Warner now. If many more holdovers develop in the near future, it's likely that Warners will be forced to reopen either the Davis or the Aldine to straighten out the picture situation.

asked that, if the charges were proved, that the directors and officers be removed and a receiver appointed. The Walsh complaint alleged that Atlas was venturing outside its investment field in agreeing to underwrite the new $6,400,000 Paramount stock issue and cited its excursions into other film fields as evidences of Floyd B. Odlum's alleged ambition to become an influence in the film industry. Odlum, president of Atlas, is a member of the Paramount board. His company recently purchased one-half of R.C.A.'s investment in RKO and acquired a three-year option for the remainder. It is also reported to own Twentieth Century-Fox and Warner securities.

In a statement issued to MOTION PICTURE DAILY last night Atlas described the Appellate Court's ruling as being without "significance" and indicating only that the action would now be contested on its merits.

"Not Significant"

"The decision is of no general significance," the Atlas statement said. "Walsh, a holder of 200 shares of Atlas stock, purchased in 1934 shortly before the suit was started, brought a suit which the Atlas management believed to be without foundation. The only transaction complained of specifically resulted in a substantial indicated profit to the corporation. Accordingly, an attempt was made to dismiss the suit on technical grounds. The decision merely means that the suit will now proceed and will be defended on its merits.

"No attempt has been made by motion to procure an injunction or receiver," the Atlas statement continued, "and the question was not even considered by the court. Counsel for the corporation doubt whether such an attempt will be made, and that if any attempt is made, that it will fail."

Short Subjects

"Audioscopiks"
(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 22.—As a distinctive novelty that gives new thrills, this short should excite much comment. Cardboard glasses with one green and one red lens are passed out to the audience and the screen viewed through these gives the picture a three dimensional effect, adding the further illusion that objects from the screen are coming straight into the spectator's lap. Thus, seltzer is made to squirt from a siphon directly into your eye, a baseball is hurled directly at your head, and a mouse crawls on the hair of the person sitting in front of you.

When Pete Smith finishes having his fun with these objects, he takes you on an automobile ride which is so realistic that very one involuntarily lurches forward as the car pulls up short behind a truck. The Smith patter is up to the usual standard and the subject is brief enough to overcome potential objection that viewing it may be an eye strain. M-G-M has dignified the reel by billing it as a "Miniature," but it should be big enough to rate marquee attention. Production Code Seal No. 1654. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Stranger Than Fiction No. 15"
(Universal)

This issue of the series contains interesting shots of a Buffalo man who lost his arms and his adaptation to artificial limbs as he conducts his business, a "Pullman" bicycle that a fellow uses in his travels around the country, fakirs in Marrakech, a girl who drinks boiling water, an electric organ, a Chicago barber shop that has a fig tree growing in the cellar and up through the store, a clever fishing arrangement with window shade rollers, and the Topperweins doing some fancy shooting in San Antonio. These are good entertainment fare and should be enjoyably received by audiences. Production Code Seal No. 0674. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

'The Land of Evangeline'
(Van Beuren-Radio)

This deals with the land of the heroine of Longfellow's poem, Nova Scotia, tracing the historical background of the poem among the present day inhabitants, some of whom can trace their ancestry back to the original settlers. It is well photographed and interesting places are well presented. The various occupations, especially farming and fishing, are shown and the camera takes in the beautiful landscapes that abound everywhere, resembling Scotland and France, as do the people. The spoken narrative is delivered by Alois Havrilla. It is a pleasant offering suitable for general audiences. Recommended. Production Code Seal No. 0703. Running time, 10½ mins. "G."

"Going Places No. 14"
(Universal)

Lowell Thomas takes the audience to Niagara Falls, where some interesting shots of the cataract and surrounding places are shown. The second part is about the Kellogg farm in Pomona, where pure-blooded Arab horses are bred. Fine photography and an interestingly spoken narrative makes it the highlight of the film. Of special interest there is to be seen Rudolph Valentino's famous charger, Sadwan, now in retirement, in addition to many other fine animals put through their paces. Audiences are certain to enjoy this offering for its second half. Production Code Seal No. 0669. Running time, 9½ mins. "G."

"Going Places No. 15"
(Universal)

In this one there are native Christian celebrations in Central America, where unique religious ceremonies are held with pious acrobaties of the natives from a tower, a Philadelphia artist in iron work and the oyster fleet out of Bivalve, New Jersey. The spoken narrative with a touch of humor is fitting and the subjects are well presented in the usual manner of this series. Production Code Seal No. 0670. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Calling of Dan Matthews"
(Sol Lesser-Columbia)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 22.—With a ready-made audience of more than 1,000,000 readers of the book, this picture might be made to draw, although consistent plugging will be needed. In transforming the Harold Bell Wright novel, Dan Jarrett and Don Swift have modernized it at the cost of sacrificing some of the punch the story had when written nearly 30 years ago.

The version concerns the efforts of Richard Arlen, crusading pastor, to destroy an amusement zone which, as the home of vice and purveyor of liquor to minors, is a thorn in the side of an otherwise respectable city. The area is owned by Frederick Burton, town banker, who has been led by Douglas Dumbrille, who manages it for him, to believe that it is merely a harmless collection of merry-go-rounds and roller coasters.

When Arlen, with the assistance of Charlotte Wynters, as Burton's daughter, makes things hot for the vice operators, Dumbrille reveals that a contract with Burton will force the banker to take the blame if the matter is brought before the grand jury. For the finish, Arlen takes this contract by force, routs the underworld, and wins Miss Wynters from Donald Cook, who, as Burton's secretary, has been his rival. Producer Sol Lesser has given Arlen a good supporting cast. Miss Wynters, a newcomer to the screen, shows promise, and Tom Dugan, Mary Korman and Lee Moran make their bits effective. Phil Rosen directed.

Production Code Seal No. 1,689. Running time, 67 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"First a Girl"
(G. B.)

LONDON, Nov. 15.—Jessie Matthews and Sonnie Hale in a singy-comedy turning on the situation that he is a female impersonator whom she impersonates, providing the situation that the boy on the stage pretending to be a girl is really a girl pretending to be the boy who is pretending.

It all goes very brightly, due to the fact that Miss Matthews sings and dances very attractively and Hale works very hard as her "manager," after her first success has shown that there is more money in the female than in the male impersonator.

The love tangle, due to the fact that the traveling princess falls for the male impersonator and her lover for the female one, is very well handled and gives an excellent climax with Hale resuming his female part and Jessie her skirts.

Plenty of laughs, songs and speed. Sigler, Goodhart and Hoffman came over to write special music numbers and have done it well. This has general audience appeal.

Running time, 93 minutes. "G."

ALLAN.

"Stranger Than Fiction No. 14"
(Universal)

The strange facts in this one are cormorant fishing in China, a woman who runs five miles a day on her doctor's order, an automobile engine that runs on water as fuel, a fort that was built on foreign soil by mistake, a bee keeper in the French Alps and an armless musician. Interestingly presented and with appropriate dialogue they make a good standard of entertainment. Production Code Seal No. 0673. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

Construction Gains In Australian Cities

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—During recent months there has been some new theatre construction and remodeling in the suburbs of Sydney and Melbourne, Australia, according to a report from Trade Commissioner E. C. Squire, at Sydney, to the U. S. Department of Commerce.

At the end of June a new theatre was opened at Rose Bay North. On July 17 a new theatre, costing approximately 10,000 pounds (about $48,500) was opened at Richmond, near Sydney.

A new house was opened at Cremorne Junction on Aug. 1, while another new house, costing approximately 12,000 pounds (about $58,200) has recently been built at Punchbowl.

A new theatre is also being built at Parramatta with a seating capacity of 1,000. American sound equipment is to be installed.

With the exception of Richmond, these houses are in suburbs of Sydney.

Hoyts Theatres, Ltd., are also reconstructing suburban theatres in Melbourne. This company during June announced that it would spend 63,700 pounds (about $309,000) for improvements, additions, and reconstruction to bring Melbourne suburban houses up to date.

Theatres Up Around Omaha

OMAHA, Nov. 22.—Further evidence that theatre business in this area is on the upturn is furnished by reopenings, re-equipping and new houses.

At Garden Grove, Ia., Jim Douthirt has opened a theatre, installing all new equipment and Western Electric sound. A contest is being staged among patrons for a name.

N. J. White is opening the Pastime at Primrose, Neb., which has been closed since 1927. The house has been remodeled completely.

R. R. Duteher is opening the Gibbon at Gibbon, Neb., with new equipment.

Open at West Terre Haute

WEST TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Nov. 22.—The Victory here, closed for several years, has been leased by Claude Ridgey, operator at the Orpheum in Terre Haute. The theatre has been redecorated and the name has been changed to the Grace.

West Terre Haute is the largest town in Indiana and has been without a theatre since the Victory was closed. The National, the only other house here, has been closed for a number of years.

'34-'35 Gain Is $99,846 Over Previous Year

Loew's, Inc., continuing to build its profit rehabilitation toward pre-depression times, on Saturday reported a net of $7,579,743 for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, 1935. This is a gain of $99,846 over the previous year.

Current earnings reflect a per share average on the preferred of $55.44 as compared with $54.39 for the year ended Aug. 31, 1934 and a per share average on the common of $4.53 as against $4.50 in the earlier comparative period.

The consolidated surplus account shows a balance of $41,088,279 as of Aug. 31. On the same date in 1934, the surplus was $37,667,062. Dividends paid on the preferred ran to $888,530 and on the outstanding common, $3,316,737. Gross income was $100,611,243. Of this figure, theatre receipts and rentals and sales of film and accessories contributed $96,797,-

Decision Dec. 2 On Missouri Tax

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 24.—Following presentation of arguments in a case brought by a Joplin cafeteria in Cole County circuit court at Jefferson City Friday, Judge Sevier said he would announce a decision on the constitutionality of the Missouri one per cent sales tax Dec. 2.

Lawyers for the company bringing the test case, and those for the state, were given till Nov. 29 to file briefs. The cafeteria argues the sales tax is unconstitutional because it is a property tax. The state holds it is an excise assessment.

Supply Dealers Seek Carbon Uniformity

Standardization of a new Suprex carbon, brought out by National Carbon Co., so that exhibitors will not be confused, was proposed by the board of directors of the Independent Theatre Supply Dealers Assn. at a three-day meeting which wound up Saturday.

Warners Now In Black; Its Net $674,158

Compares with 1933-1934 Loss of $2,530,513

A net operating profit of $674,158 after all charges, was reported on Saturday by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., and subsidiary companies for the year ending Aug. 31, 1935. This compares with an operating loss of $2,530,513 for the year ended Aug. 25, 1934, and an operating loss of $6,291,748 for the year ended Aug. 26, 1933.

The company's operating profit for the year after deducting all charges including interest, amortization and depreciation, but before Federal income taxes, was $1,071,156.

In addition to the operating profit Warners reduced its deficit account $711,094, leaving that item as of Aug. 31 last at $14,961,309. Capital surplus was increased during the year by

Indie Circuit Idea Revived In New York

Plans for the formation of the Independent Theatre Circuit were revived late last week after a period of inactivity.

A representative group of exhibitors, some members of the I.T.O.A., met secretly in Harry Brandt's office last Friday and discussed the new circuit idea. All present were pledged not to talk, but it was learned another special session will be held tomorrow to further the negotiations started several months ago.

About 60 I.T.O.A. members agreed to join during the first weeks of the drive. A plan was formulated at the time whereby exhibitors would turn over their properties to the new organization, plus a cash contribution, for which they were to receive stock. They would also be guaranteed a weekly income, it was stated.

Brandt had been approached several

80 Per Cent Assents Needed To Bring Arbitration Back

The formulation of local arbitration bodies for industry self-regulation is regarded as being dependent upon the participation of at least 80 per cent of the exhibitors and distributors in any one locality, David Palfreyman of the M.P.P.D.A. said Saturday on his return from recent conventions of southwest exhibitor organizations.

While in the southwest he conferred with Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, who has just completed a nation-wide tour of exchange centers for the purpose of gathering ideas for the development of an industry plan of local self-regulation. Kuykendall is said to have collected a large amount of data on the subject in the field and during the next few weeks at his home in Columbus, Miss., will study the material he has gathered and prepare a report on his findings to be submitted to a meeting of the M.P.T.O.A. board in the near future. No meeting will be called, however, unless Kuykendall's study yields something definite in the way of a self-regulation plan, it was said.

The possibility was suggested that Kuykendall's material might first be

Balabans Get 7-Year Pact At Paramount

B. & K. Operating Deal Includes Percentage

The executive committee at Paramount, in what is understood to have been a decision arrived at in record-breaking time, has approved and signatured a contract vesting in John and Barney Balaban operation of B. & K., a wholly-owned subsidiary, and Great States Theatres for the next seven years on a participating basis. Toledo and South Bend are embraced in the deal.

B. & K., representing an investment of millions, was one major Paramount theatre unit which escaped receivership and bankruptcy. It has been continuously managed by the Balabans, recognized as among the first showmen in America, since its inception, first as an independently maintained company and later as both a partially and a wholly-owned Paramount subsidiary. However, since the Paramount bankruptcy, the Balabans, while in charge, have been functioning without a contract. The deal just closed climaxes efforts and negotiations for such a pact over a period of three years.

Para. Anticipates 25% Revenue Hike

A 25 per cent increase in Paramount film revenue on 32 pictures to be released before May 1, 1936, is anticipated by the distributor in comparison with the same release quota for two preceding years on the basis of an analysis completed on Saturday by George J. The analysis covers the indicated returns on the forthcoming Paramount sales drive which gets under way Jan. 1, as compared with results

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 24.—Fox Midwest has instituted a policy of double billing in several spots throughout its territory, notably Wichita, Kan., and is understood to be planning an extension of the policy. Two of Fox's first run theatres at Wichita—the Orpheum and Miller—began doubling late in October, and Fox houses at Winfield and Arkansas City, Kan., introduced two-picture programs in November. Fox is reported to be planning to do the same thing at Pittsburgh, Kan., where there have been few duals.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

IN corners and across bars, the rumor is being discussed guardedly and with considerable caution by some of your best-known film names. For out of the canyons of Wall Street where futures are often determined bounces with much aplomb and persistence the report that a deal is under way for a shift in the control of Twentieth Century-Fox as a vitally necessary step in the creation of a General Motors of the film industry. . . .

The move is nebulous one minute and partially tangible the next. The principals, quite naturally, look the other way, go into official denials or actually don't know. But this is how the rumor goes:

That Atlas and Lehman are dickering for control of the Chase bank interests in the company of which Sidney Kent, Joe Schenck and Darryl Zanuck are the big noises.

That the reshuffle would be financial, having little to do with management or operation.

That, whereas it was earlier indicated John D. Hertz for Lehmans and Floyd B. Odlum for Atlas were interesting themselves in a straight buy of Chase's preponderant interest in Twentieth Century-Fox, the changing picture now proposes a coalition between Atlas, Lehman and the bank, the latter reputedly regarding a General Motors plan as something it would like to be in on. . . .

If all of this emerges from rumor into fact, the three-cornered coterie would have:

(1) A substantial finger in Paramount through the Atlas-Lehman holdings which are being increased via the purchase of additional securities by Atlas in the open market.

(2) Control of RKO through the purchase of half of RCA's interest in RKO by Atlas-Lehman for $5,000,000 and an option, exercisible within two years, on the remaining half for a like amount. Always essential to bear in mind is that clause in the deal which gives the purchasing group management of RKO and permitted Hertz to place Leo Spitz in the RKO presidential seat.

(3) Dominance of Twentieth Century-Fox.

(4) A wedge, ever so slight, in United Artists through the presence of the Lehman interests on the directorate, and presumably, therefore, in the future, of Selznick International Pictures. . . .

The tentacles of a single combination of interests in so many companies would make a G. M. plan feasible for the first time in this industry's hectic career. If any far-reaching plan such as this eventualizes, it does not at all presage another era of mergers. The celluloid G. M., like the automotive G. M., would call for the continued maintenance of individual corporate identities under single financial control. It would bring about changes in film styles insofar as source is concerned by making one company the Cadillac of the field, another the Buick and the third the Chevrolet with all three gearing their costs and their operations in complete conformity with the price division set up for them and within which they would be expected to operate. . . .

Al Lichtman, reporting on his first week at M-G-M:

"I am ashamed to take so much money for doing so little. The other day I went to Dave Bernstein and asked if there was any trouble that needed straightening out. He said there wasn't any. What kind of a film company is this, anyway?"

F. D. Sets National Selling This Week

With negotiations for local franchises in about four territories scheduled to be completed this week, First Division will be set on its national distribution system either Wednesday or Thursday. The three open areas are in the west and middle west and are virtually set except for the signing of contracts.

Harry H. Thomas, president, and Al Friedlander, vice-president, recently made extensive tours around the country lining up new distributors for First Division. The company will most likely assume operation this week of American Film Exchange in Boston, which was turned over to Pathe last week as a result of a court order. Pathe had sued the exchange for defaults in notes totaling $21,340.25.

Study Guides for Films

The M. P. Committee of the Department of Secondary Education of the N. E. A. has recommended the publication of study guides on 11 additional films as a result of an increasing desire on the part of high school teachers to utilize the educational value of current pictures, it was stated on Saturday.

The new study guides, which are made available to high school students and teachers on a subscription basis, are for "Romeo and Juliet," "A Tale of Two Cities," "Mutiny on the Bounty," "Ivanhoe," "Captains Courageous," "Knights of the Round Table," "Mary of Scotland," "Marie Antoinette," "Little Lord Fauntleroy," "Quality Street" and "The Good Earth."

of the corresponding sales drives for the two preceding years. The 25 per cent anticipated rental increase is based on contracts already closed and the quality of the 32 Paramount pictures included in the sales drive, the company said.

The estimates received by Schaefer from exchanges on the "A" pictures, of which there are 13 in the total of 32 to be released, indicate that sales possibilities of this group are two to one in favor of this year's drive over last year's, Schaefer said.

In the matter of the number of pictures to be released, providing the schedule is unchanged during the four months' sales drive, Schaefer estimates that Paramount is 40 per cent stronger this season than last and 35 per cent stronger than the year preceding that.

The "A" pictures are:

"Collegiate" with Joe Penner, Jack Oakie and Frances Langford.

"Rose of the Rancho," co-starring John Boles and Gladys Swarthout.

"The Bride Comes Home," starring Claudette Colbert with Fred MacMurray and Robert Young featured.

"Anything Goes" with Bing Crosby, Ethel Merman and Charlie Ruggles.

"The Milky Way," starring Harold Lloyd.

"Desire," co-starring Marlene Dietrich and Gary Cooper.

"Klondike Lou," starring Mae West.

"Give Us This Night," co-starring Jan Kiepura and Gladys Swarthout.

"13 Hours by Air," featuring Fred MacMurray and Gail Patrick.

"Big Brown Eyes" with Joan Bennett, Spencer Tracy and Ricardo Cortez.

"Rhythm of the Range" with Bing Crosby and Frances Langford.

"Concertina" with Carole Lombard and George Raft.

times by Milton C. Weisman, who drew up the plan, but he is understood to have stated he would not align with the new outfit until 100 theatres were pledged. The Brandt circuit has about 45 in Greater New York.

With Brandt back on the job after a complete recuperation from a breakdown, due to overwork, sponsors of the circuit are making renewed efforts to crystallize the project. Brandt is understood in favor of the plan and, it is said, will become president if it eventually materializes. The I.T.O.A. has no connection with the circuit.

Warner Predicts a Year of Prosperity

the current season would go into work shortly after the first week in January, named 13 pictures either ready or being readied for release and an additional nine that are either now in production or scheduled to get under way shortly after the first. He cited a "gratifying" cooperative spirit among the studios at this time, citing the borrowing and lending of players for special productions, a practice which, he said, is "bound to result in a nearer general approach to perfect casting in almost all pictures."

Warners, he said, have loaned Paul Muni, Dick Powell, Edward G. Robinson and others, and in return have borrowed Fredric March, Jack Oakie and others.

The six pictures which will go into production shortly after the first are "Glorious," with Marion Davies and Dick Powell; "The Man with the Black Hat," with Bette Davis and Warren William; "Stage Struck," with James Cagney and Ruby Keeler; "Lovely Lady," with Kay Francis; "Three Men on a Horse" and "Green Light."

Pictures ready for release, he said, include "The Story of Louis Pasteur," with Paul Muni; "Captain Blood," "Dangerous," "Freshman Love," "The Murder of Dr. Harrigan," "Man Hunt," "The Petrified Forest," "Prison Farm," "Ceiling Zero," "Song of the Saddle," "Colleen," "Backfire" and "The Widow from Monte Carlo."

Those in production or being readied, Warner added, are "Anthony Adverse," "Walking Dead," "The Singing Kid," "The Green Pastures," "Over the Wall," "God's Country and the Woman," "Invitation to a Murder," "The Adventures of Robin Hood" and "Angel of Mercy."

$325,020, bringing the surplus as of Aug. 31 to $56,650,504. Cash on hand amounts to $3,312,592, after the payment of $957,720 debenture interest due Sept. 1, 1935. This compares with cash on Aug. 25, 1934, of $4,664,137, before payment of debenture interest due last year.

On Sept. 10 last the company retired $1,300,000 principal amount of its optional six per cent convertible debentures, thereby fulfilling the purchase fund requirements due on Aug. 1, 1936, the Warner report states.

The company lists assets of $168,471,829. Of this amount properties owned or leased and equipment is carried at a total of $137,752,793, and inventories at $13,638,482. In the latter group are released productions carried at cost less amortization at $5,383,681; productions completed but not released, at cost, $3,755,240; productions in progress, at cost, $2,748,375; rights and scenarios unproduced, at cost less reserves of $91,625, are carried at $1,088,456. Goodwill is carried at $8,227,482.

The company's principal liabilities are its funded and long-term debts, aggregating $83,463,876. Of these obligations all mature after one year or more with the exception of $10,132,549 of bonds and mortgages maturing within one year, subject in part to renewal. Current liabilities are listed at $14,212,422 and capital liabilities at $66,366,802.

In a letter to stockholders accompanying the report H. M. Warner, president, states that operations for the current quarter of the new fiscal year show a substantial improvement over the preceding quarter and the corresponding quarter last year. His letter also makes reference to the recent authorization of Sunday shows in Pennsylvania with the observation that it will undoubtedly have a beneficial effect on future operations of the company.

Need 80% Assents To Get Arbitration

submitted to the executive committee of M.P.T.O.A. with the idea of having that body decide whether it was potentially valuable enough to present to the organization's board. If such a decision results the board might be called into session in conjunction with the convention of the M.P.T.O. of North and South Carolina, which was recently postponed to an early January date.

Kuykendall is reported to be optimistic over the possibilities of developing a workable plan of trade practice regulation as a result of his trip. His general idea is said to be that with the participation of 80 per cent of the exhibitors in any locality voluntary arbitration groups for the settlement of differences arising locally could be made to function, and with the participation of a similar percentage of distributors, whose local agents were vested with sufficient authority, the mandates of the local groups could be enforced.

Republic's Questionnaire To Be A Production Guide

In an effort to gauge style, tempo, effect and the type of product most desirable, Republic has sent out a 12-point questionnaire to its accounts and intends to continue the practice periodically during the year. The first batch of questions when answered will serve as a guiding factor when new stories and plays are lined up for next season's schedule.

The dozen questions are:

1—What stars, outside of the big contract players, are considered real box-office names at this time?

2—What names continue to hold their own?

3—What names seem to be up-and-coming, perhaps future star material?

4—What stars are slipping?

5—What names are "poison" to the box-office?

6—What supporting stars would you like to see included in casts?

7—What types of pictures have no value at the box-office?

8—What types of pictures do the most business for you?

9—When you think of musicals, do you prefer a revue, a comic opera, a musical comedy, an operetta, or what?

10—Who are the most popular western stars in your town, in order of their popularity? Please name three or four.

11—If you don't run westerns, why?

12—If you run serials, what type is preferred?

Throws in Dancing All for One Price

Henry Chesterfield, executive secretary of the NVA, and J. L. McCurdy, former division manager for RKO, will reopen the Mosque, Newark, on Christmas Day, with a unique idea.

In addition to seven acts of vaudeville and first runs, priced at 25 cents matinees and 40 cents evenings, Chesterfield and McCurdy will provide dancing in the ballroom of the building without extra charge. A special band is being engaged to furnish the music from 3 P. M.

Chesterfield believes the idea will be the trend in exhibition during 1936. The Mosque, formerly operated by Warners, seats 3,500. Programs will be changed weekly.

Some pictures already have been lined up and others are being negotiated, according to Chesterfield.

Noise Abatement In Boston Scrutinized

BOSTON, Nov. 24.—The meeting of the Boston Noise Abatement Advisory Committee, in an attempt to localize New York's more or less successful campaign against noise, has aroused considerable interest in some film quarters here. This is particularly true of the Park on Washington St., where a doorman, a union picket, and a lobby loudspeaker system compete.

One resolution unanimously adopted by the committee and sent to various civic authorities is a request for an ordinance "to prohibit the use of loudspeakers, broadcasting devices and other noise-makers on the outside of buildings or open windows, or in any place with sufficient volume to be audible at a distance of 100 ft. from the building in which said noise-maker is located."

That meant war to this two-fisted rough-neck of the city's gas-house district. He started out to clean up the place but went haywire on the way.

His wife saw him through to the governor's mansion—and then took a run-out powder.

Late Buying Complicates Film Release

Exchange Heads Booking Away from Circuits

Late buying of major circuits this year has caused a complex situation for local exchange managers, some of them being virtually compelled to book away early releases of this season's product until deals are consummated with leading independent circuits.

In a few instances some circuits haven't started negotiations while in others conferences on work sheets were held for the first time last week.

One or two branch heads look upon the failure by some prominent exhibitors to start negotiating deals with

Schenck Optimistic Over Film Outlook

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Nicholas M. Schenck passed through here today en route from Hollywood to New York the epitome of optimism for the industry in 1936. Speaking for Loew's and M-G-M, he said the company was in its best condition in years and that the production outlook was bright. Schenck expressed his enthusiasm over "Mutiny on the Bounty."

Reports that he had negotiated a new 10-year contract with Irving Thalberg were described as untrue, Schenck adding that the present agreement stands.

M-G-M to Operate Own House in Tokyo

Tokyo will be one of the world capitals in which M-G-M will operate its own first run. Negotiations are under way which probably will result in the construction of a theatre by local interests in the city, but operated by M-G-M under a long lease.

The company also is considering its own house in Paris. For years it operated the Madeleine there, but the lease was not renewed.

A Howard Yen

Hollywood, Nov. 25.—Leslie Howard has a yen to direct. His current hobby is photography and he believes he can introduce a number of new and novel camera effects.

Decision Near in Warner-Ascap Row

The possibility of Warners making a decision on withdrawing its music publishing subsidiaries from membership in the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers either today or tomorrow now appears likely.

The Ascap board is scheduled to meet today and indications are that the Warner membership situation will be a principal item of business. It is believed that Herman Starr, Warner vice-president and member of the Ascap board, will receive a final report today on Ascap's plans for compensating members on the basis of the volume of use of their own music catalogues and will give Warners' decision on withdrawing from membership either immediately thereafter or following his report on the meeting to Warner officials. In the latter case Ascap might not be notified of a Warner decision until tomorrow.

Starr has stated that Warners would withdraw from the society unless means of increasing the company's returns on its music catalogues were devised at once.

Second Quaker City Sunday Takes Jump

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—The Quaker City's second experience with Sunday showed an increase of 50 per cent over the first open Sabbath, a break in weather contributing to the substantial hike.

Practically all downtown theatres reported capacity or near capacity at night. Neighborhood theatre operators estimated the improvement ranged all the way from 20 to 100 per cent.

The Stanley had another capacity day with "Mutiny on the Bounty." The Fox pulled a surprise by slipping in a preview of "Thanks a Million" instead of its regular film, "In Old Kentucky," and reported an attendance of 2,500 by the time the feature first went on soon after 2 o'clock. "Thanks a Million" was thereby given a good buildup for its regular opening on Thursday.

Cleveland Move On; Lincoln First Step

CLEVELAND, Nov. 25.—RKO's local expansion move gets going actively with formal possession of the Lincoln, a 950-seat subsequent run house on which $10,000 will be spent in modernization.

Eight or 10 houses will be built or acquired in the development according to Nat Holt, divisional manager for the circuit.

Frank Serbus, former service manager at the RKO Palace here, has been appointed Lincoln manager.

Defining It

Several topnotch executives were talking about personnel yesterday. Into their conversations entered the names of Samuel Goldwyn and Harry Cohn.

"Cohn's just a quickie edition of Goldwyn," remarked one.

Ramish Participant In Universal Deal

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 25.—Adolph Ramish, who formerly was interested in F.W.C., and at present is a participant in the J. J. Franklin Honolulu Theatre Enterprises, is financially interested in Universal with Standard Capital and Charles R. Rogers, he told MOTION PICTURE DAILY today.

"I cannot say how much I have invested in the Universal purchase negotiations," he said. "However, I am a financial participant in the deal." He advised, "Watch the list in Universal preferred stock." His statement settled current speculation regarding the source of additional finances believed necessary.

Rogers and Lawrence Fox, Standard executive, plan to leave for New York Thursday to confer with J. Cheever Cowdin in connection with the Universal option.

Loew-Skouras Pool To Divide Profits

Pooling negotiations between Loew's and Skouras in Astoria, when complcted, will provide for a profit sharing arrangement according to net earnings of each of the five houses embraced, it is said.

Indications are the plan will not go into effect until after the first of the year. Under it Loew's will retain management of the Astoria and Tri-Boro while Skouras will continue to operate the Broadway, Steinway and Grand. Division of product will be agreed upon before the pool becomes operative, it is stated.

First Div. Deals Up To Pathe Directors

Approval of a number of new franchise deals throughout the country in line with nationalization of First Division exchanges will be among the important business scheduled for tomorrow's meeting of Pathe's board of directors. Monthly sessions will be held the last Wednesday of the month instead of the last Tuesday.

Arthur Poole, former member of the board and treasurer, has resigned with Willis Bright succeeding.

Allied's Plan To Produce Is Far From Set

No Actual Commitments Obtained As Yet

Allied's proposed plan to sponsor a new independent producing company is far from realization, it is learned. Several units have been contacted by Sidney Samuelson, president, within the past few weeks. Members were sounded out on the idea and while the majority of them have agreed to go along, no actual commitments have been made.

Samuelson continues silent when asked about the plan, stating when the proper time comes the press will be informed. Notwithstanding, he will discuss whatever progress has been made so far at a meeting of Allied of New Jersey today. He already

Blank-Para. Deal Extended 18 Months

A deal by which A. H. Blank will continue as operator of Paramount theatres in Iowa and eastern Illinois for a minimum period of 18 months and with provisions for the extension of the agreement to July 1, 1940, has been approved by the Paramount executive committee, it was learned yesterday.

It is understood that extension of the agreement to the maximum time is dependent upon earnings of the circuit at the end of specified periods.

Ohio Tax Committee Wants Old 10% Levy

COLUMBUS, Nov. 25.—Opposing Gov. Martin L. Davey's approval of continuing, at least in part, the three per cent tax on amusements, the Committee on Taxation of the House has recommended a resumption of the 10 per cent tax which was suspended Jan. 1, 1935. The higher revenue, according to Chairman P. W. Ward, Geauga, would bring $2,000,000 in additional revenue.

The three per cent tax, according to Ward, raises about $1,200,000 annually.

Dickstein Attacks Talent Importation

Importation of foreign talent for the stage and screen was attacked vigorously in a spirited talk by Representative Samuel Dickstein at the Cheese Club yesterday.

Dickstein said that there was enough talent available on Broadway without bringing over players from abroad. He added: "There are far too many Chevaliers."

Although he was unsuccessful in having his bill passed restricting importations recently when the Senate defeated the measure after the House had passed it, the Congressman asserted he would introduce another bill of the same nature when Congress convenes in January.

Harry Hershfield, president, acted as toastmaster, chairman and all-around man.

We're Putting On Our Christmas Whiskers for the 23rd Time!

It's up to us, as the oldtimers of the industry, to play SANTA CLAUS every year at this time with a bag full of pictures that'll pack 'em in during the holidays. Well, brothers, we've got 'em!

(1) "COLLEGIATE"--a big fast-stepping musical show built expressly for the youngsters from fifteen to twenty-five. JOE PENNER and JACK OAKIE jam the show with laughs and FRANCIS LANGFORD, radio favorite, sings a flock of new tunes by Mack Gordon and Harry Revel.

(2) "SCROOGE"...Dickens' immortal "Christmas Carol," the kind of picture that'll please the kiddies and have mothers and fathers smiling through real tears. Sir Seymour Hicks, England's great Dickens actor, plays "Scrooge"...and the supporting English cast is swell! Everyone who thrilled to "David Copperfield" will want to see the equally famous Dickens character, "TINY TIM".

So here's holiday entertainment for everybody. Which, permit us to mumble through our whiskers, means that, as usual,-- suspicion, but the circuit men claim this happens to be a mere coincidence, and not a concerted action.

Late Buying Complicates Film Release

Skouras has been reported to be shying clear of Paramount, United Artists and Columbia, but Edward Peskay, film buyer for the 50 houses, says he has had preliminary talks with Moe Streimer of United Artists and Edward Schnitzer and Nat Cohn of Columbia. He also says E. L. Alperson is handling the Paramount deal with Neil F. Agnew. Scouting the reports, Peskay added: "We buy everyone's product."

Joseph M. Seider of Prudential declared he had bought several U. A. pictures on an individual basis and is now working on a deal with Columbia. Seider had been linked with Casey & Wheeler and Century circuits in a reputed move not to buy Paramount, Columbia and U. A.

These rumors are said to have spread because of Prudential's pool with Skouras in Huntington, Riverhead, Floral Park and Bellaire, L. I. Century has a booking and operating arrangement with Skouras in Hempstead, Freeport, Lynbrook, Valley Stream and Woodside, L. I.

Several small independents have been able to get exchanges to clear pictures in quick order as a result of the pending negotiations. Branch managers hold that by the time the circuits sign up the pictures will be too old, and hence are releasing them as scheduled.

Equity Heads Are Supported by Vote

The administration of Actors' Equity was endorsed by a vote of nearly three to one at a general membership meeting yesterday at the Astor. The vote is interpreted as a decisive setback for the so-called Forum group, the insurgent element in Equity. Endorsement of organization policies was a victory for President Frank Gillmore and Secretary Paul Dullzell, who had said they would resign if the Forum group was shown to have majority support.

No action was taken on Equity's policy toward the W.P.A. shows. It is believed that this subject will come up at a special meeting to be called in the next few weeks.

Hirliman to East

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 25.—George Hirliman will leave here by plane for New York Wednesday to arrange release on the color film, "Rest Cure," recently finished. He said he is negotiating with three major companies.

Reel Stirs Flare Up

Toronto, Nov. 25.—The City of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., has newsreel excitement, due to the reactions of audiences when Italo-Ethiopian war scenes are flashed on the screen of the Algoma.

One night there was a demonstration by patrons when Haile Selassie was pictured and cheers went up for a topical shot of Mussolini. The next night, members of the Canadian Legion paraded to the theatre and watched for signs of a demonstration but nothing happened. The Legionnaires "guarded" the theatre for several succeeding nights, but all was quiet on the Algoma front.

U. S. Will List All Non-Theatre Films

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The issuance of a check list of sources of non-theatrical films was announced today by the Department of Commerce.

The list covers film companies as well as industrial, agricultural and cultural producers of such films, but makes no attempt to list the individual films.

The directory was compiled by Nathan D. Golden, chief of the motion picture section of the department, with the assistance of Francis M. Johnson, to meet a constantly increasing demand for information on sources from which non-theatrical films can be secured.

American Display to Move for Expansion

American Display Co. will move on Dec. 2 to the Paramount annex at 525 West 43rd St. in order to gain 15,000 square feet of additional space. The company will occupy the entire floor running through to 44th St.

The 44th St. side will house the process, construction, photographic, art, copy sign and shipping departments, and the executive offices will be on the 43rd St. side.

"The well known depression is definitely showing signs of taking a welcome farewell," says Charles L. Casanave, general manager.

Polish Films to Bijou

Polish pictures on a grind policy will be inaugurated at the Bijou by Sam Krellberg this week. Present plans are to reopen the theatre Thursday, provided alterations can be completed by that time.

Last Wednesday the house was opened one day for a legitimate attraction, "Satellite." Previous to this, the theatre had been showing short subjects exclusively.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 25. — Dolores Costello Barrymore will return to the screen in "Little Lord Fauntleroy," first for Selznick International.

Allied's Plan To Produce Is Far From Set

has talked to associated units at Pittsburgh, Detroit and Columbus.

It is expected that production plans will be among the topics scheduled for the six-day sailing convention aboard the Queen of Bermuda. Samuelson does not plan to return with conventionites. He will remain in Bermuda for two weeks. It will be his first vacation in some time.

It is understood a national organization whose interest centers about production of high class pictures is prepared to put up the ready cash for that angle of the plan. However, it is said, Allied is trying to get member units to finance the exchange system contemplated for handling of the product.

Unconfirmed reports have it that from 20 to 26 features will be scheduled for the first year. Sources outside of Allied are reported to have been contacted to finance the idea, but nothing has materialized with the result that the plan may go through according to the present setup.

Allied figures that negative costs on its own produced films will be returned by the numerous exhibitors who operate in closed situations. The members, it is said, will drop certain major product to make way for Allied-made pictures.

Amateur Acts Lined Up for Ampa Funfest

Eight amateur acts by film company employes have already been lined up for the Ampa meeting tomorrow at Jack Dempsey's restaurant and a number of professionals also have agreed to appear.

One of the features of the meeting will be a turkey raffle for the benefit of the Film Daily Relief Fund. Jack Dempsey will hold the hat and a Broadway beauty, as yet unnamed, will draw the number.

London Bans Film

LONDON, Nov. 25.—"Dawn of Life," American film, has been banned by the London County Council as "offensive," although it was passed by the British Censor Board.

Deny Criterion Delay

Reports current during the last week that City Bank Farmers Trust would not build the 1,500-seat theatre planned for the former Criterion-Loew's New York site were denied yesterday. B. S. Moss has a lease on the theatre and plans to operate as soon as it is completed.

New Leaders Added In Charities Drive

David Bernstein, co-chairman with Albert Warner of the Motion Picture and Theatrical Division of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Charities, has added several men to his committee.

The film and theatre division quota is $125,000.

Supply Men to Meet At Chicago in June

The annual convention of the Independent Theatre Supply Dealers' Ass'n. will be held in Chicago sometime between June 15 and June 30. The Edgewater Beach Hotel will be convention headquarters. It is likely the session will be held June 20-23. The definite dates will be agreed upon later.

J. E. Robin, executive secretary of the organization, yesterday denied that standardization of a new Suprex carbon had been discussed at the three-day board of directors' meeting last week.

Drop Vancouver Shows

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 25.—The Lyric has abandoned stage shows and has gone back to a straight picture policy. Acts booked in from the Bert Levy circuit received only three days' notice of cancellation, and the theatre has been compelled to pay for them.

The Beacon, now the only vaudeville-picture house in town, benefits from the Lyric's fold in more ways than one. Roy McLeod, Beacon manager, snapped up the headliners from the Lyric's bill, and combined them with his own to build a show around the Jack Lester line of girls.

The Lyric shift throws Calvin Winter and his 14-piece house orchestra out of work. The band had been playing under a continual week's notice for a month.

ROANOKE RAPIDS, N. C., Nov. 25.—Halifax Amusements, Inc., with authorized capital of 5,000 shares, par value $10 each and subscribed stock of $300, has been chartered to operate theatres. The incorporators are Frank C. Williams, Lee Wheeden and J. Winfield Crow, Jr.

McSwain Theatre at Ada, Okla., seating 1,100, has been opened after being remodeled and redecorated with new equipment installed throughout at a cost of $30,000. The foyer, lobby and marquee have been redone in modernistic manner and the auditorium is atmospheric. I. G. Killough and Mrs. Killough, Griffith partners operate the house.

A new Class A 300-seat house will open in Elk City Jan. 1 with Tom Davidson in charge. On Jan. 1 Vinita will have a new 500-seat, Class B theatre, with Foster Lyman in charge. This house will be operated by Consolidated Theatres, Griffith subsidiary.

The Rex at Wink, Tex., will reopen Jan. 1 with Joe De Iorio, Griffith city manager, in charge of the Rex and the Rig. The Orpheum a Okmulgee, Okla., recently installed 300 new upholstered seats on the lower floor as well as new carpeting.

The Rialto at Chickasha, remodeled, redecorated 800-seater, was opened the same day the Cozy in that city went dark. The Cozy belongs to Griffith. Ollie Brownle is manager.

The Yale at Claremore, seating 760, is to be remodeled soon. Will Rogers' father operated a livery stable in this building many years ago. The theatre is next door to the new post-office, the site for which was given to the city by Will Rogers. The city sold it to the Government.

Spreading in Michigan

DETROIT, Nov. 25. — Schreiber, Smiley & London added another house to their circuit when they signed a 20-year lease on the 700-seat Temple at Bay City, which has been closed for the last four years. The Temple will be re-opened in about 90 days, following complete remodeling and equipment.

This gives the S-S-L circuit four out-state houses in addition to the several it operates in Detroit, having recently opened the Rialto at Flint and houses at Three Rivers and Albion under construction.

More for Butterfield

DETROIT, Nov. 25.—Continuing its expansion program, the Butterfield circuit has taken over the Roxy at Sturgis and announced that it would build a new 1,000-seat theatre in Midland.

Wisconsin Spots Open

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 25. — Recent reopening of theatres in Wisconsin include the Gayety, Milwaukee burlesque house, by the Acme Amusement Co., Inc.; the Bonham at Prairie du Sac, by Mrs. Lucille Forbes; Rex, Spring Green, by R. C. Wheeler; State, formerly the Crystal, at Burlington, by Jack Yeo; Opera House at Hilbert, by Fred Boeselager, and the Campus at Ripon, by Ben Marcus and I. E. Svinoff. The latter is a new 500-seat theatre.

To Build at San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 25. — San Francisco Theatres, Inc., operators of six neighborhood houses, including the Coliseum and Alexandria, have just paid $250,000 for a site in San Francisco Heights.

A Class A theatre, of modernistic design, will be built, with space on the street level for stores and offices, says Samuel H. Levin, president. Construction is expected to begin soon after the new year.

Hamilton Houses Leased

HAMILTON, O., Nov. 25. — Southio Theatres, Inc., a Paramount subsidiary, has closed a 10-year lease on the Palace and Rialto here.

The two houses originally were leased to Midham Corp., Cincinnati, builders of the Paramount, but the lease, which expires April 1, 1936, was transferred to Southio when that organization was formed several months ago to acquire and operate the Paramount.

Finkelstein Remodeling

DES MOINES, Nov. 25.—The office of Finkelstein Theatres, Inc., has been moved and completely refurnished. Frank Rubel is manager. The move is part of a modernization program involving the entire group of 16 Finkelstein houses in Iowa. At Jefferson, Ia., a new theatre is being built and plans are under way for construction of two additional houses in the state, the sites to be announced later.

Leases Fort Wayne House

CLEVELAND, Nov. 25.—Sam Barck, owner of the Mackey Square, has taken a long-term lease on the Strand, Fort Wayne, Ind. This is a 1000-seat downtown house. He is playing two changes a week, with first run Republic and second run Universal product. Sam Stein is manager.

Schines Take Another

ASHLAND, Nov. 25.—Schine Enterprises have taken over the Palace. B. W. Bickert, former owner, remains as house manager.

Now Kansas City Knows

Kansas City, Nov. 25.—The future is like an open book now. Gene Dennis, well-known psychic widely known in the business and frequently turned to by a number of New York executives for a slant on what her crystal-gazing envisioned for them, was guest of the local Variety Club tent and told all, or pretty close to it.

There was Beverly Nichols, for example, who asked her what the next popular form of draw in theatres would be. Miss Dennis thought this:

"Business is going to be so much better, there will be less of that sort of extra-theatre promotion. Prices will be better. A good war won't do any harm to the show business. You remember what happened to it in the World War."

The psychic was the guest of Barney Joffee of the Tower where she appeared during the week. She told him there will be more independents in the Kansas City theatre field as time progressed. She predicted Joffee as the operator of a group of independents and that his business sphere of influence would move northward to include Iowa and Nebraska. Nobody thought to inquire how Abe Blank might like that.

It went beyond, what with questions fired away in rapid staccato. Miss Dennis probably made Douglas Desch, booker for G. B., restless when she advised him to forsake distribution for the writing and production end of the business; others have had the same idea and others will. She told Harry Taylor, Columbia exchange manager, that he would visit the west coast in the next nine or ten weeks; as a matter of fact, Taylor plans to visit his mother in Los Angeles during the holidays, Miss Dennis also predicted a shift in the eastern and western divisional sales setups of his company with Taylor playing an important part in the potential rearrangement.

About others, the crystal peeking revealed this:

That Glen Fields of National Theatre Supply was in the right business, but that he probably would be more successful if working for himself.

That Edgar Stern, insurance broker, was in the insurance business, believe it or not.

That Homer Blackwell, Independent Poster Exchange, was about to witness a merger or a consolidation or something of that sort in the near future.

That Jay Means had oil on his property near Wichita.

Taylor presided in the absence of the chief and vice-chief barkers. Kings for the day were Truly B. Wildman, Ernie Block and Desch. Guests, who by this time are probably speculating over their own futures, included Russell Swanson, Kansas City Star; Tom Page, and Robert Montgomery, Fox; Leonard Uhlman; L. L. Savage and Milt Goodman of the Columbia home office; R. A. Melville, Hollywood, who has been touring Fox Midwest houses in this territory with his Venetian glass blowing act; Claud Ezell, general manager, Affiliated Enterprises, Inc., and R. W. McEwan, bank night distributor in this territory. Melville, accompanied by Mrs. Melville, left later for the coast.

Schenck Says Zanuck Films Answer Query

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 25.—Fortune Magazine's query as to whether Darryl F. Zanuck can make the more expensive, subtle type of pictures required by his association with Twentieth Century-Fox isn't taken seriously by Joseph M. Schenck. The question has already been answered, he says.

"Among the so-called expensive and polished pictures during the two years he produced for Twentieth Century," Schenck says, were: 'Gallant Lady,' 'The House of Rothschild,' 'Les Miserables,' 'Cardinal Richelieu' and 'Clive of India.'

"Since taking over production control under the merger of Twentieth Century-Fox," Schenck states, "he has, and is making, 'Metropolitan,' 'Thanks a Million,' 'Professional Soldier,' 'The Prisoner of Shark Island' and 'A Message to Garcia," to mention a few. All of these are productions of big scope.

"At the same time he is continuing to make such front page stories as 'Show Them No Mercy' and 'The Country Doctor.'

"His pictures have never been limited to one type, and have never been cheap. We have aimed our pictures at the box-office, and have kept production costs from being excessive by efficiency of operation."

Short Subjects

'Voice of Experience—5'
(Columbia)

The Voice here is informed of the plight of a family whose sole support juggles the accounts of his post office sub-station to make ends meet and is subsequently found out by the authorities. As he is about to be arrested, his father, dependent on him for support, takes the blame. As the trial is proceeding and there is doubt as to his guilt, a juror intervenes with the knowledge that he heard the case described on the radio and knows who the guilty party is. The Voice had offered advice, but it was spurned. As the guilty party is marched away to jail he assumes the responsibility for the family. This compares with the others of the series in entertainment value, perhaps appealing to The Voice of Experience's radio audience. Production Code Seal No. 0651. Running time 10½ mins. "A"

"Feminine Invasion"
(Columbia)

Composed of a series of newsreel shots of the part played by women in the world of sport, this short offers little that is new or of any great appeal. The part females take in tennis, golf, gymnastics, boxing and finally some very sloppy wrestling perhaps may appeal to some but on the whole it is lacking. Production Code Seal No. 0724. Running time 11 mins. "G"

'Stars of Tomorrow No. 4'
(Columbia)

A conglomeration of tenth rate amateurs and their performing puts this short in the imitative class of an already hard-played cycle, in which there have been much better offerings. Performing in this one are a banjoist, vocal chorus, a Popeye imitation that is rank, xylophonic tap dancing and Harry Jans who is lost as master of ceremonies. Production Code Seal No. 0716. Running time 11 mins. "G"

"Yoo Hoo Hollywood"
(Columbia)

The Radio Rogues and Yvonne Monoff with the aid of the Tic Toc Girls conspire to convince Herman Bing that they should be film actors after convincing a director on location that they had talent. He tells them to look him up in Hollywood. At Bing's office they parade in imitation, even to a Garbo. Finally Bing sees something in them and they are signed up. Some of the imitations are good and others are overdone. This should go with indiscriminate audiences. Production Code Seal No. 1301. Running time 18 mins. "G"

Falaise Busy on Second

Marquis Henri de la Falaise, whose "Legong" is in its seventh week at the World, is cutting another picture, as yet untitled, which he made in French Indo-China dealing with the customs of a tribe known as the Mois, or Tiger men. The film is in color.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Fire Trap"
(Larry Darmour-Empire Film)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 25.—Sandwiching interest-holding romance and love between exceptional thrill action, this picture stacks up as a far better than average program attraction. Basically, it is a dramatic exposure of the fire insurance-arson racket. Soundly produced, with careful attention devoted to substantiating details, it presents in its opening and closing sequences some exceptional fire scenes. Where entertainment and not consideration of producing company prestige or smash value of names is the primary consideration, the picture should prove decidedly popular.

In the yarn Norman Foster, fire insurance appraiser, and Evalyn Knapp, niece of Oscar Apfel, who, in conjunction with underwriter Sidney Blackmer, plans to grab off a million dollar fire loss, fall in love. At Apfel's country home Foster, knowing that the knowledge of the two men's plans which he has gained will widen a rift between him and Miss Knapp that rival suiter Blackmer has already started, informs her of her uncle's plan to recoup her misspent fortunes by arson and accuses her of being an indirect participant. Angry at first, Miss Knapp forces confirmation from Apfel and rejoins Foster and seeks to prevent Blackmer from carrying out his evil intent to burn a warehouse. In fire sequences that should enthuse audiences, Foster saves Miss Knapp's life and causes Blackmer's arrest.

Foster and Miss Knapp carry the story convincingly and Apfel and Blackmer are fine. The humor content is accentuated by a drunk scene featuring Arthur Housman and Herbert Corthell. Based on a story by Charles Royal, this aims to please the masses, which Burt Lynwood's capable direction practically assures. This should be a pleaser in neighborhood and smaller houses.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 63 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"The Perfect Gentleman"
(M-G-M)

The able performances of Frank Morgan and Cicely Courtneidge are the outstanding features of this picture. Miss Courtneidge, one of the best known musical comedy stars in England, is not well known to American screen audiences, but her performance in this film should be worth selling.

From a play by Edward Childs Carpenter, the story is of the manner in which Morgan, ne'er-do-well and ever bragging father of a young, ambitious English country vicar, after causing much mental stress for his son, sacrifices his own happiness for the boy, and of course wins out in the end. The support features Una O'Connor, Herbert Mundin and Heather Angel.

Worked in is the insignificant romance of the boy and Miss Angel and the more important romance of Morgan and Miss Courtneidge. The picture is a combination of comedy which is sometimes subtle and sometimes slapstick and more serious moments which make for good dramatic contrast.

Morgan almost spoils his son's chances for an advancement, then accidentally meets Miss Courtneidge, vaudeville player on the small time, just getting her chance in London. Morgan helps her out on her opening night by jumping to the stage, and teams with her. Later, and again for his son, he leaves her, is reduced to almost nothing, but is reunited with her finally. Tim Whelan directed.

Production Code Seal No. 1,533. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

"Forced Landing"
(Republic)

This is a continually interesting mystery drama, having its moments of suspense, original though somewhat improbable major situations and rapid-fire developments. With a transcontinental air trip and a forced landing en route for its novel background, the picture makes good use of its ingredients for heightening interest.

Nine of the 10 passengers on the air liner are linked by threads of the plot. The tenth, Julia Griffith, as an elderly woman making her first air trip, is given her transportation for the comic interest, but doesn't earn it. The other passengers include Arthur Aylesworth, as a gangster who has just been released from prison after serving 15 years for the kidnapping of Kane Richmond, now a grown youth and eloping on the same plane with his sweetheart, Toby Wing. Also aboard are Onslow Stevens, a G-man and Sidney Blackmer, a former member of Aylesworth's gang, both of whom are trailing the latter in an effort to locate the $100,000 ransom money involved in the 15-year-old kidnapping and never recovered. Others include Willard Robertson, a banker; his wife, Barbara Bedford; Esther Ralston, the former sweetheart of Aylesworth and now the jilted girl friend of the banker.

The plane is forced to land in a storm and Aylesworth is discovered dead as the passengers alight. During the ensuing interrogation of the passengers the connecting threads among them are established as motives for which any or all might have committed the murder. The denouement disclosing the banker to be the culprit and in process of fleeing with the ransom money which had been left on deposit in his bank, lacks punch and conviction.

Produced by M. H. Hoffman and directed by Melville Brown, "Forced Landing" is from a story by William Boehnel and Morris Helprin. On the basis of its interest content and familiar cast names it should rate as a good contribution to any double feature program.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25. — This should be known as building week along Film Row. Fox West Coast is remodeling the second floor offices and executives are dodging carpenters and painters, and sharing offices.

The Paramount sales staff is housed in the new building, but painting and partition building is going ahead, and draperies and floor coverings are still to be installed. The United Artists exchange is nearly through with a complete interior remodeling, and M-G-M is ringing with the sound of the enlarging of the booking office.

Other houses felt the effect of the exposition which was offering the Mills Brothers, Pat Kennedy, the Morin Sisters, Gale Page, the Pickens Sisters, Ted Weems and seven local bands at 25 and 35-cent admissions. Only other business above par was at Fox's Palace where Phil Spitalny grossed $5,800 against a $5,000 average, and the Riverside, up $200.

"Bishop" and Show Chicago Bet, $18,700

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—The Oriental was about the only bright spot on the Loop last week. It combined "The Bishop Misbehaves" with a low admission stage show called "Bring on the Dames" and ran the take up to $18,700. This is $3,700 over the line.

In its first week at normal prices here "The Crusades" was good for $7,100 at the Garrick. This is $1,600 to the good. All other spots were weak except the Apollo where "Shipmates Forever" was somewhat better than fair on a take of $4,700.

Total first run business was $113,300. Average is $117,000.

"Bounty" at $25,000 Tops Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—Sunday's sleet storm knocked all optimistic expectations for the first open Sunday in the head, but in view of the weather break, exhibitors were encouraged by the showing when over 200,000 people turned out all over the city.

The downtown trade was spotty, with the cream going to the Stanley and the Fox. The former grabbed a big $25,000 for the second week of "Mutiny on the Bounty," one of the season's biggest hits, and the latter got $20,000 for "In Old Kentucky." Both films are holding.

The rest of the town was off, both for Sunday and daily showings with the exception of "Mary Burns, Fugitive" at the Stanton, which collected a neat $8,000 on the week and will stay until Thanksgiving Day, going five extra days.

Back to Pictures

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 25.—Altering its decision to install stage shows, Shea's Fulton will reopen Thanksgiving Day after a 10-day shutdown with its old policy of straight pictures. Obviously the house intends to alternate, as in the past, between double and single features, with "Remember Last Night" and "Three Kids and A Queen" the attractions for the holiday week. Upon shutting down a week ago, the management said the stage would be remodeled for presentations at a cost of $15,000.

Theatre to Night Club

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 25.—The first Pittsburgh theatre to be converted into a night club is the Center Square, operated by Mark Browar and his associates. The spot has opened as the Harlem Casino, a black-and-tan club built to accommodate 500. The Center Square, situated in Little Harlem's Hill district, also catered to a mixed racial patronage during its days as a theatre.

"Bounty" Is Dual Hit in Hub Holdover

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—Even the opposition of the automobile show where they gave away a car a day and drew tremendous crowds failed to slow down "Mutiny on the Bounty." In its second week at Loew's State and Loew's Orpheum it took $18,000 at the former and $19,000 at the latter. Both of these grosses are away over normal.

Featured in it are Wallace Beery, Mack Sennett, Gloria Swanson, Chester Conklin, Edgar Kennedy, with a lot of hair, and Mable Normand. Lippert has bought the only three prints known to exist, and is having dupes made. The negative has been lost, so far as is known.

The film was released in 1912 under the title of "A Hot Finish." Lippert is releasing it as "Roll Back the Years."

"Bounty" Hits $12,000 Mark In Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Nov. 25.—"Mutiny on the Bounty," in its second week, continued to hold the box-office spotlight with $12,000 at Loew's Stillman at advanced prices. This is three times average at regular prices, establishing an all-time gross record.

"The Crusades" took $11,000, as against a $12,000 average at Loew's State where it played its first local popular priced run.

Oppose Bingo Parties

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 25.—The massing of legal and certain ecclesiastical opposition to Bingo parties here is being hailed by exhibitors who have suffered from the encroachment of this kind of entertainment on attendance. Half of the halls in town are offering two or more Bingo parties a week, which cuts considerably into film patronage.

"Mutiny" Top In Pittsburgh For 2d Week

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 25.—"Mutiny on the Bounty" continued to stand the town on its ear last week, getting $11,000, more than double average business, at the Warner, where it was moved following a sensational $28,000 week at the Penn. As a result of this great take, the picture was held over at the Warner, which will give it three weeks downtown.

The Stanley was the only other house in town to make any sort of showing, due principally to the bolstering influence of Mary Small, Molasses 'n' January and Cross and Dunn on the stage. They supported "Rendezvous" for an exceptionally fine $21,000. At the Alvin, "She Couldn't Take It" took it on the chin, getting just about $3,200, while "Barbary Coast" was a disappointment at the Penn, at $10,000.

"Metropolitan" held for three extra days beyond the regulation week at the Fulton and caught a fair enough $2,000.

Total first run grosses were $47,200. Average is $41,000.

Czechoslovaks Form New Picture Group

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The Central Ass'n. of M. P. Exhibitors, in Czechoslovakia, at its recent annual general meeting, approved unanimously a plan for creation of a body to be known as "Motion Picture Cooperation" (Filmova Spoluprace), to be composed of representatives of the Exhibitors' Association and of producers, according to a report to the U. S. Department of Commerce from Commercial Attache Sam E. Woods, in Prague.

This new body, which is to be accorded a certain amount of cooperation from public agencies, will work on features to be released for the 1936-37 season.

Cchechoslovakians appear to have become conscious that their domestic productions leave much to be desired as far as themes, properties and production technique are concerned, particularly so since the return of American films to this market last spring, the report states.

Warners Quit Ascap; to Deal Independently

Will Withdraw 11 Music Firms on Dec. 31

Warners yesterday withdrew their 11 music publishing subsidiaries from membership in the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, effective with the termination of their current contract on Dec. 31, and stated that, in the future, they would deal "independently and directly" with radio broadcasters and other music licensees, presumably through a Warner organization to be set up at once.

The action was taken at a meeting of the board of Ascap yesterday at which Warners was represented by Herman Starr, who also tendered his resignation as an Ascap director.

The Warner secession results from the company's belief that it had been receiving insufficient revenue for its music catalogues under Ascap's licensing system. The Warner music

The story here is to the effect that U. S. distributors are refusing to supply films where Mexican pictures are shown.

At the Hays office yesterday the only comment was that such moves were "highly improbable if not impossible."

Free Films Go To 470 Spots Survey Shows

Free shows are now being provided to 470 institutions, hospitals and associations through the 32 Film Boards of Trade, according to a checkup completed by the Hays office on Nov. 1. This is the first recapitulation in eight years.

In 1927, the peak of the silent era, more pictures were serviced gratis throughout the country than at the present time. This is due to the fact, it is stated, that many institutions have not yet added sound apparatus to their machines.

Accounts served without remuneration today are given shows once a week, bi-weekly, monthly and twice a

N. Y. Critics Band to Name Year's Best

Motion picture critics of the New York dailies quietly have been organizing an association for mutual benefit, including prestige, and for selection of the best picture of the year. Announcement to be accompanied by generous space in the film departments of the New York dailies will be made shortly after the first of the year.

The plan is designed to parallel the step inaugurated several months ago by the drama critics who have deter-

George J. Schaefer yesterday resigned as a vice-president of Paramount, effective immediately. Neil F. Agnew, who as Paramount sales manager has been Schaefer's assistant, was named as his successor and also elected to a vice-presidency.

Schaefer, who, in addition to being a vice-president, was also a Paramount director, is severing his relations with the company completely, it was learned. Proposals by which he would acquire a partnership interest in Minnesota Amusement Co., Paramount's northwest theatre subsidiary, which were under discussion between him and officials of the company for some time, have been definitely abandoned, the company stated officially.

Schaefer said last night that his plans for the future were indefinite at this time.

"Until today," he added, "I had ex-

Arbitration Cases Show a Drop Here

With most of the cases being settled before trial, arbitration locally has taken a sudden drop. This is in contrast with the unusual number of complaints filed by exchanges with the New York Film Board at the time of the expiration of the NRA.

Not one session has been held at the local board within the past few weeks, despite the fact that numerous cases have been on the docket. Where differences between exhibitors and branch managers are not immediately settled, the tendency is to postpone the cases in the hope of working out settlements. In numerous instances

Exchange Men Hear Long Reel Reports

Managers of exchange operations for major distributors received a further report yesterday on plans for the adoption next April 1 of the standard 2,000-foot reel during a meeting at M.P.P.D.A. headquarters. The report, prepared by the Academy of M. P. Arts & Sciences, related to the use of a 15-inch reel for the changeover instead of the 15½-inch reel which has been considered heretofore.

The changeover has been approved by all major distributors with the exception of Universal. It is believed that the chances of the latter company approving the new standard reel are increased as a result of additional economies claimed for the 15-inch reel.

Delay Skouras-RKO Trial

Trial of the Skouras action against RKO and Twentieth Century-Fox involving release of the latter's product to the RKO 81st St. day and date with competing Skouras houses, which was scheduled for today, will be postponed again pending the continuation of efforts to work out a settlement of the action, it was stated yesterday.

Cast your eye on what HOLLYWOOD REPORTER SAYS:

M-G-M's "Ah Wilderness" an all-round natural. Direction, writing, cast, all superb. A thing to place next to that great American classic, "Seventeen," and a picture that stands head and shoulders above the run of the mill for gentle humor, the drama of youth, the lovely memory and entertainment that one and all should see. It's a gift on a silver platter from Producer Hunt Stromberg, Director Clarence Brown, Writers Goodrich and Hackett (not to mention O'Neill), and Eric Linden, Lionel Barrymore and Wallace Beery. The story is a simple and homely tale of a youngster back in 1906 who has to go through all the crashing despondency of an idealistic lad of seventeen. There is no sense in going into the details of that story, for it is the way in which they are told by camera, acting and writing that make it something you cannot afford to miss. Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett have taken the comedy of O'Neill and transferred it faithfully to the screen and made a screen play out of it. There can be no complaints from the first writer of the stage about what two of the best screen writers have done to and for his play. The added scenes give greater pleasure, and give it a bit more life than it had as a play because they widen the scope of action. Clarence Brown has directed with such complete good taste and feeling for the proper sentiment, without for a moment going banal and sloppy, that he hereby adds still another feather to his cap which must make an Indian Chief envious by now. Eric Linden comes back to the screen with a bang. Restrained, sincere, and with a fine appreciation of the character, he delivers a moving and delightful performance of the kid you love but not to have around the house too long. He is particularly good when he comes back from his first kiss with the girl of his dreams. Lionel Barrymore as the father need have no worries about comparisons between his conception of the role and the original. That father and son scene is still the highlight, and Barrymore is grand. Cecilia Parker as the little sweetheart is everything that ever stepped out of the story books about those times. Aline MacMahon is perfectly lovely as the semi-tragic spinster whose memory of one incident blights her life. Spring Byington is a thoroughly right mother and lovely to watch. Mickey Rooney and Bonita Granville as the youngsters do a swell job and Frank Albertson, Edward Nugent and Charles Grapewin are excellent. Helen Flint delivers her lines in an elegant whiskey tenor and scores brightly in her few scenes. Clyde DeVinna's photography is beautiful and gentle as the story, with the backgrounds just right. The montage in the graduation scene is something to note particularly, as is the entire sequence. Hunt Stromberg has chalked up another winning production for himself. It's a honey from start to finish and that includes a very effectual musical score put together by Herbert Stothart for the added enjoyment of the picture.

And COAST VARIETY:

"Ah Wilderness" (M-G-M) Saga should whiz turnstiles. Earns bows all around.

For the general excellence of "Ah Wilderness" all concerned can take bows. Picture is a saga of Americana that should make box office records. Hunt Stromberg is to be congratulated for his handling of the picture. In story, direction and casting he has given the O'Neill play intelligent supervision. Clarence Brown's sympathetic and understanding direction gives the comedy a homeliness that is its biggest asset. His knowledge of the bewildered and bewildering youngsters and the feeling he has given the knowing father stand out as the picture's high spot. Picture sticks close to the play with the exception of the father's counseling of his son against the association with questionable women. Story has to do with Eric Linden, son of Lionel Barrymore, who tries to fathom the ways of love. When his girl seems to have gone back on him, he tried one night of riotous living, finds it does not pay. His father sets his course and he's off again on the primrose path. Barrymore as the father gives a sterling performance. At all times he appreciates the adolescent viewpoint of his son, never worries about the outcome. Young Linden turns in a class performance as the boy. Cecilia Parker is excellent as his girl, indicates she has a future in pictures. Spring Byington as the mother is true to type, makes her portrayal real. Aline MacMahon, as the spinster who loves Beery, also adds greatly to the picture's excellence. Mickey Rooney, as the bothersome youngest son, is always the real boy. Frank Albertson, as the older brother, contributes a nice performance as does Charles Grapewin, the town grouch, Edward Nugent, a young sport, and Tom Dugan, a bartender. Helen Flint deserves special mention for her work as a trollop. Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett have made a faithful transcription of the play, have written some added scenes that gives the picture an even flow lacking in the stage version.

"You'll find 'AH WILDERNESS!' in their next issues!"

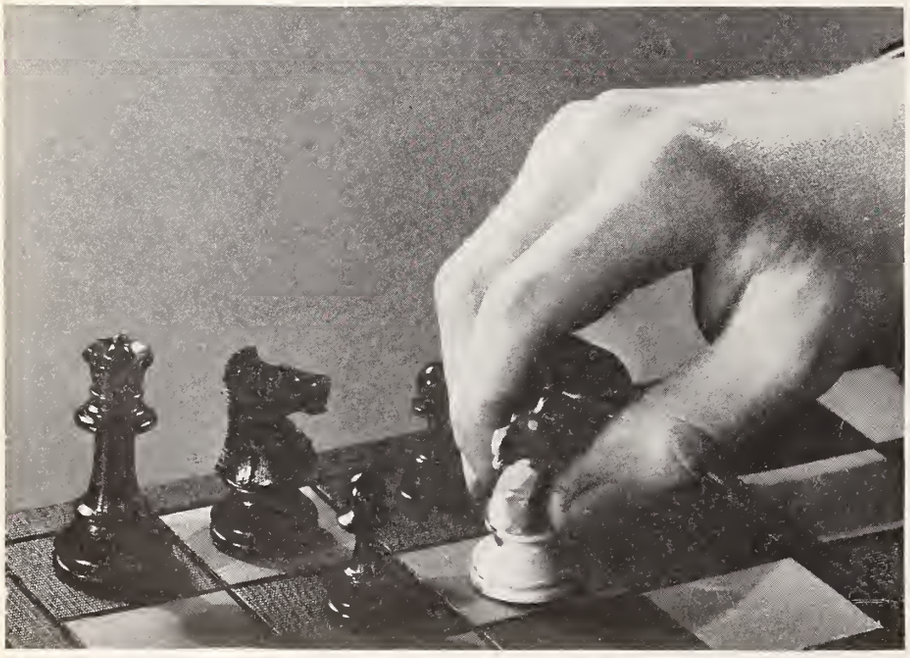
ady to put it in ear's 10 Best! FILM DAILY SAYS:

Outstanding production, expertly handled all-around, with appeal for all audiences. This picture of a regular down-to-earth American family should undoubtedly be considered for the "10 Best of the Year." That goes for production as well as for box-office. Any exhibitor can safely give his personal recommendation to "Ah Wilderness." Everything about the production merits the highest praise, and Eric Linden's work should receive the utmost consideration when choosing the Academy prize performance of the year. Wallace Beery's portrayal of the easy-going, lovable drunk is outstanding, and Lionel Barrymore, as the understanding father, makes the role live. The scene in which he tries to give his son some knowledge of the facts of life is handled expertly. Eugene O'Neill's play was quite a piece in itself, but Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett have added some fine material, bringing in added scenes, movement, a lot more comedy and they have wisely built the son's role while keeping the father as important as he was in the play. Clarence Brown has directed with a fine understanding, giving the characters the humanness that makes this picture all that it is, his individual touches can be noted throughout and they bring the proper responses. There are many children's roles in the picture, and Brown brings them out so that they each mean something. Although the picture delves into characterizations, there is plenty of action so that there is never a moment in which one loses interest. Clyde DeVinna's photography and the choice of outdoor locations are worthy of special mention. Hunt Stromberg has given the production everything that should make it outstanding. Linden, an idealistic sort of chap, is in love with Cecilia Parker, a very innocent girl, who is closely watched by her father. When the father suspects that Linden has wronged his daughter, he forces her to write Linden that all is over between them. He becomes very much upset and goes off on a wild party from which he returns with a pain in the head and the stomach. He and the girl are happily brought together. All through the picture Beery and Aline MacMahon are having their on and off love affair, on when he is sober and off when he is drunk. They, too, come to an agreement with Beery definitely swearing off liquor. Direction, Expert Photography, Best.

No "BUTS" about it according to the Quigley Publications:

M. P. HERALD SAYS:

This picture has just about all the essentials that audiences want and exhibitors demand. A domestic comedy-drama, close to the hearts of American families. In the power of its simplicity, natural humanness and reflection of problems confronting every family, it is one of the most impressive features brought to the screen in recent years. There are many things in the picture commendable in their ability to entertain, to play upon sentimental interests as smiles are blended with tears—entertainment features which should engage the most keen-minded showmanship. It does not seem possible that "Ah, Wilderness" will be anything but one of the season's high ranking attractions. This picture should be a great popular success. The manner in which the preview audience reacted to the show is indicative of the reception that can be expected with its release. It laughed and cried; time after time it burst into applause. A show with a definite heart sock, it is also a comedy chock full of smiles and laughs. It should be sold with a type of exploitation emphasizing it as an attraction which any kind of patron, old or young, cannot afford to miss.

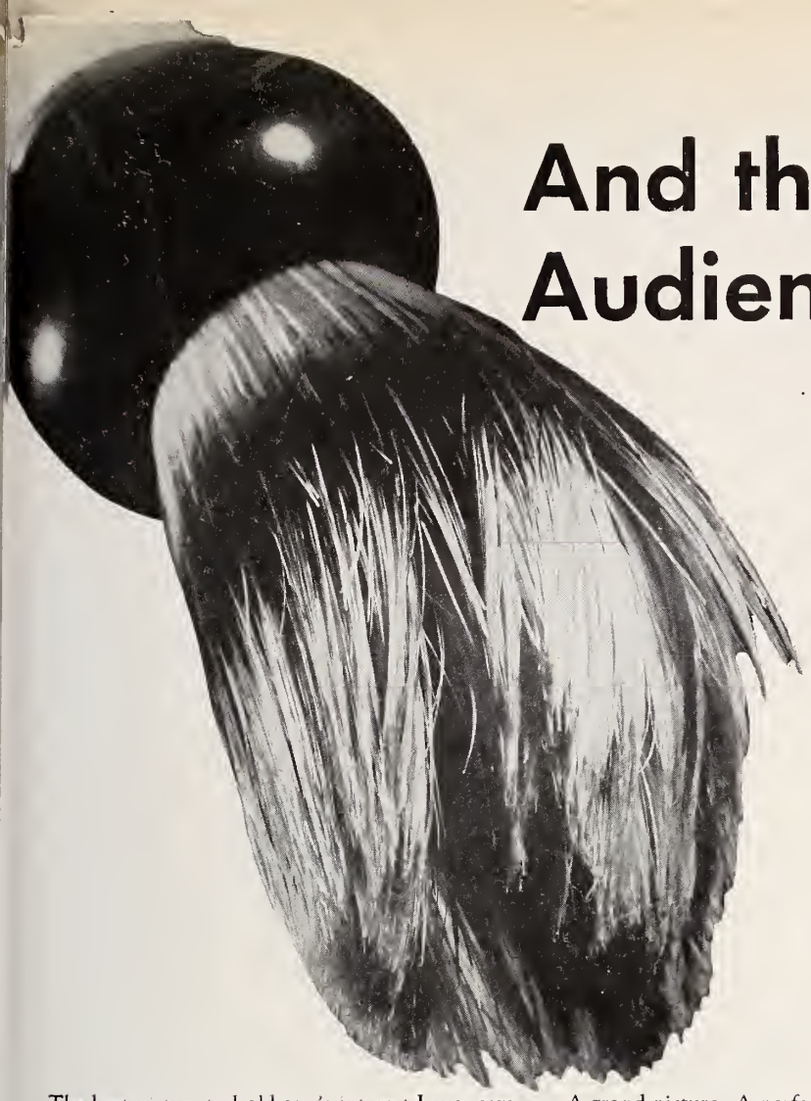


M. P. DAILY SAYS:

HOLLYWOOD —This picture mirrors life. It reflects ordinary human emotions, ambitions, tragedies, triumphs with sincere conviction. It does so with the simplicity that makes for power, giving audiences and the showmen the most to be desired in screen merchandise, a good story that was intelligently acted on the stage. It is hardly to be doubted that the picture will make a popular impression. It is certain to win approval. The comedy drama glows with homey humor. The drama is natural. Following vivid contrasts it builds to a sock climax when the father tries to explain the facts of life to his son.

SHOWMEN'S TRADE REVIEW

says it's just what the public wants:



"Ah Wilderness"— M-G-M's famed Eugene O'Neill stage hit — a natural for big B. O. profits; romance and comedy Barrymore is a small town publisher. His son, Eric, falls in love with Cecilia Parker, daughter of Grapewin, who forbids the two lovers to see each other after finding radical utterances and love notes addressed to his daughter. Eric is drawn into bad company by Edward Nugent and his conduct brings about considerable consternation in the household. Beery is Eric's uncle and constantly falling off the wagon. His romance with MacMahon is dependent upon his keeping sober. Finally an understanding comes about between all concerned and happiness is the outlook for evermore. Summary: This is just what the public wants in the way of entertainment. Gobs of romance and oodles of comedy, with several dramatic situations that hold and sustain interest throughout This Eugene O'Neill stage hit is destined for profits and real big ones, too. It has plenty of the qualities that make for word of mouth advertising. The acting is superb. Eric Linden steps right up and snatches all honors right away from such old-timers as Barrymore, Beery and others, who are all outstanding in their respective roles. This time youth must be served, and Linden, with his love-light, Cecilia Parker, capture top honors. Clarence Brown's direction is grand. His comedy timing is immense and appreciation of the romantic values certainly commendable. Cast and title outstanding draws.

And just a word from the LOS ANGELES TIMES:

This new M-G-M production is something to be treasured close to the heart like a brooch or a photograph. The producers have done a superb job.

"IT'S YOUR MOVE NOW! Ballyhoo 'Ah Wilderness' to the skies!"

Australian Houses Gain, Says Marks

Reporting a big improvement in business during the last year, Cecil Marks, general manager for United Artists (Asia), Ltd., yesterday stated there is a definite theatre building trend in the Antipodes. He added plenty of money is available for building if product is open, pointing out that a new 1,500-seat theatre is being built for the Williamson circuit in Auckland, New Zealand, and several new structures are going up in the suburban territories of New South Wales and Victoria.

Marks arrived yesterday from Sydney and plans to spend the next few days conferring with Arthur W. Kelly and Haskell Masters on next season's product. He expects to leave either Dec. 3 or Dec. 4 for San Francisco where he will sail on the Mariposa. He intends to arrive home Dec. 30.

Most Houses Use Duals

Although there are numerous other smaller situations, United Artists figures on 1,536 theatres in Australia and New Zealand as possibilities, Marks declared. In New South Wales, the company's possibilities total 480; in Queensland, 225; in Victoria, 284; South Australia, 93; Tasmania, 38; Western Australia, 105; New Zealand, 338.

Practically all theatres are double featuring, the U. A. sales executive said. There are four shows a day given in theatres in key cities, the first show starting at 11 A. M., the next at 2 P. M., the third at 5 P. M. and the last at 8 P. M. Reserved seats are sold for each performance and there are 10-minute intermissions after the first hour and a half.

Not Handling B. & D.

"United Artists is not handling British & Dominion pictures in the Antipodes," Marks said. "Ernest Turnball has taken over the distribution of this product, but we continue to sell London Films. We will have 26 features in Australia next season."

Although Snider & Deane recently took over the Fuller circuit, giving the former group an interest in 14 houses, Marks sees buying combines breaking up. Paramount and M-G-M, the former with two theatres in Australia, and the latter with three, are playing their own product in addition to independents. The Union and Hoyt's groups, once a part of General Theatres, are now booking on their own, he said.

In New South Wales, a five per cent quota is nettling distributors, Marks concluded. It is hoped, he said, that the quota laws will be done away with, and it is reported distribution interests are working on plans to that end.

Cecil Marks, U.A. manager for Australia, was honor guest at a luncheon yesterday which was given by Arthur W. Kelly, vice-president in charge of sales, in the Crane Room at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Marks arrived in New York yesterday from Hollywood. Among those present were: Harry D. Buckley, Harry Gold, Paul Lazarus, Haskell Masters, Monroe Greenthal, Sam Cohen, Morris Helprin, H. J. Muller, E. W. Silverstone, W. Liebler, H. W. Schroeder, Lowell Calvert, L. B. Daly and R. G. Hilton.

"Old Occupations"
(Vitaphone)

Unusual commercial occupations found in American localities are pictured in No. 5 of E. M. Newman's "Our Own United States" series. The camera goes to sea with the sponge-fishing sloops and the turtle hunters in Florida waters, then turns to the new Texas sulphur mines, roof shingle manufacturing by primitive methods in the Arkansas pine forests, and an individual's wooden shoe industry, a product of the depression. Interesting in subject matter and in Kenneth Roberts' narration. Good photography. Production Code Seal No. 0653. Running time 10 mins. "G."

"One Big Happy Family"
(Educational)

Tim Ryan is in a spot when his troupe walks out on him on the eve of a performance in a hillbilly town. He sends George Shelton out for some talent and he comes back with Irene Noblette, a mountain gal, with her gunbearing brothers. Miss Noblette's brothers convince Ryan that she is an actress and he is coerced into putting her on. The performance is attended chiefly by Miss Noblette's "folks" who fill the theatre with their artillery and spittoons. A somewhat mock performance is given and there are some good comical situations developed presumably from the script on which David Freedman exercised his talents. It is a humorous offering and should be satisfying. Production Code Seal, No. 0686. Running time, 19 min. "G."

"Rooftops of Manhattan"
(Vitaphone)

Floor show entertainment of the hotel roof and night club variety make up this addition to the "Broadway Brevities" series. A thread of story is built around the night club visit of a girl with her forbidden "date" while other members of her family also have a night out. Several good song and dance numbers contribute to the entertaining two reels. Production Code Seal No. 0574. Running time 22 mins. "G."

"Can It Be Done?"
(Vitaphone)

There is good entertainment in this addition to the "Pepper Pot" series which presents the success dreams of an amateur inventor who, under the influence of gas, finds his numerous household devices perfected and put to use. His rude awakening is accomplished by his one successful invention, a cigarette lighter, which ignites the escaping gas. Production Code Seal No. 0549. Running time 11 mins. "G."

"Perfect Thirty Sixes"
(Educational)

Perfect for feminine audiences and possessing some good comedy sequences and tuneful music, this should be well received by a general audience. The story concerns a dress designer, Fred Lightner, who gets into a mix-up with a prospective buyer who has taken his girl out. When his outfit is ready to give a show, who walks in but the insulted buyer. After placating him they run their models out before

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Tale of Two Cities"
(Selznick—M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 26.—With the great effort expended in its production reflected on the screen, this picture will long be recalled as an outstanding contribution to film entertainment. Dickens enthusiasts will have no quarrel with Producer David Selznick or Adaptors W. P. Lipscomb and S. N. Behrman for the screen play accurately follows the book, even at times using subtitles to keep the audience posted on transitions and historical backgrounds.

The roles, down to the smallest, are expertly acted. With the story of Ronald Colman's devotion to Elizabeth Allan, who is married to Donald Woods, and with counterplots of personal hates against a background of French Revolution, the film works up to the tremendous climax of the storming of the Bastille. Colman plays Sidney Carton always with the proper shading, giving a ring of truth to the Dickens philosophy.

Blanche Yurka as Madame La Farge beautifully underplays the courtroom scene, the climax of the role. Reginald Owen as Colman's sober associate adds humor and emphasizes the contrast between the partners. Jack Conway's direction reaches new heights in the mob scenes, carrying the high tension through the guillotine scene which concludes the film. The camera work of Oliver Marsh is a delight. In the large supporting cast the work of Henry B. Walthall, Edna May Oliver, Basil Rathbone, Walter Catlett and Claude Gillingwater is outstanding.

Though definitely a class picture there are enough elements to make mass acceptance likely. It should rate as a credit to the industry.

Production Code Seal No. 1,471. Running time, 123 minutes. "G."

"Seven Keys to Baldpate"
(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 26.—This seemingly perpetual favorite holds its own on the screen with a pleasant intermingling of mild mystery and comedy. Gene Raymond plays the author who seeks lonely Baldpate Inn on a winter night to write a novel in 24 hours on a bet. He is kept busy running up and down stairs, popping in and out of secret panels and thwarting the intrigues of a set of crooks.

The old prologue and epilogue in which the mystery is kidded are eliminated and the story played as fact. Raymond brings a boyish charm to the part, although his sidelong looks of quizzical suspicion are overdone to the point of slowing otherwise smooth action.

Henry Travers gets the full comedy values from the part of the woman-hater and volunteer ghost. Moroni Olsen is satisfactory as the gang leader. Ray Mayer and Murray Alper stand out as the stupid assistant crooks. Grant Mitchell is properly timid as the novice embezzler. Harry Beresford and Emma Dunn are good as the backwoods caretakers. Others contributing are Walter Brennan, Erville Alderson, Margaret Callahan and Erin O'Brien Moore. Eric Blore's comedy is missed in a straight part.

Anthony Veiller and Wallace Smith added modern touches and emphasized the comedy in the screen play from the book by Earl Derr Biggers and the play by George M. Cohan. William Hamilton and Edward Kelly handled the direction well. Robert De Brasse's photography is good. William Sistrom produced.

Production Code Seal No. 1,698. Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"The Great Impersonation"
(Universal)

Cast in the popular entertainment mold, "The Great Impersonation" is an interesting and well-done adventure story, sometimes reminiscent of the horror sequences in the "Frankenstein" cycle.

Nicely produced by Alan Crosland under the producing guidance of Edmund Grainger, the picture is well acted by a cast which includes Edmund Lowe, as star in a dual role; Valerie Hobson, Wera Engels, Murray Kinnell, Spring Byington, Henry Mollison, Lumsden Hare, Frank Reicher, Brandon Hurst, Leonard Mudie, Claude King, Charles Waldron, Esther Dale and Dwight Frye.

The story deals with a renegade Englishman and a conniving Auscompanies, Ascap said, were paid approximately $340,000 in royalties last year. Warners are reported to have estimated that a satisfactory return on the music controlled by them should approximate $900,000 to $1,000,000 annually. The Warner subsidiaries control about 25 per cent of Ascap's total catalogue.

The principal Warner music subsidiaries are Harms, T. B. Harms, Witmark and Remick. There are seven subsidiaries of these companies which were Ascap members.

In a statement issued last night confirming the resignations Warners gave as the "chief reason" for the action "the insufficient royalties" received and stated that radio broadcasters, who, they said, had killed the sales of music in its various commercial forms, should pay more than they now do under Ascap's licensing system. The company added that the move was "necessary in its own interest" and that Ascap's failure to obtain more revenue would eventually prevent its music subsidiaries from continuing in business. The Warner statement said that the company would deal directly with the broadcasters in the future.

In a statement issued by E. C. Mills, general manager of Ascap, that organization said that it accepted the Warner resignations "with regret." It declared that it did not believe the Warner action to be the will of the company's music subsidiaries, several of which are charter members of Ascap, or that the subsidiaries even had been consulted on the move. The statement added that several member composers and authors were "very much disturbed over the Warner action," believing that it jeopardized the royalties of others and was motivated by "selfish consideration."

The statement emphasized that Warner was the only member company which was dissatisfied with the Society's policy.

him and he plays bored. But when his companion of the night before shows him one of his love notes written on a handkerchief behind his wife's back he gets panicky and buys the whole line. There is an appealing ensemble number which spots Niela Goodelle, who sings rather well. Also in the cast acquitting themselves well are Earl Oxford and Nell Kelly. Production Code Seal, No. 0687. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

"Argentine Argosy"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

Beginning with views of the cosmopolitan city of Buenos Aires and the continental aspect of its illuminated advertising, this short of the Magic Carpet series goes into the interior of Argentina and there follows the usual finely photographed shots of the natives, landscapes that resemble the American Rockies and the gauchos at work with livestock. An exceptional shot is that of the Iguazo Falls, twice as high as Niagara. It is of the same high merit of the others of this series and well worth playing. Production Code Seal, No. 0693. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Vitaphone Variete"

(Vitaphone)

This is a four act "Big Time Vaudeville" reel with Alf Loyal's Stallions, a trained dog act; The Symphonettes, a feminine sextet; Hal Sherman, comic dancer, and Louis Prima and his colored orchestra. The last named rates as the best of the four. Song selections are good and the reel, as a whole, will be enjoyed by vaudeville fans for whom, of course, it is intended. Production Code Seal, No. 0588. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Gangsters of the Deep"

(Educational)

There is excitement and great interest in this effort. It is of the adventures of a boat after big fish in the Gulf of Lower California. Primarily after sharks, a whale and a big seabass are excitingly taken. The struggles of the landed fish, particularly the sharks, reach a high mark in realism. One scene has a shark on board the boat entangling itself into nets and lines in its effort to be free. The offering will no doubt thrill most audiences. Production Code Seal, No. 0721. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

'Jack Denny & Orchestra'

(Vitaphone)

This addition to the Melody Master series features some good tunes, vocal and dance specialties and Jack Denny and his orchestra. It is a tuneful little number worth its 10 minutes of any one's short subject playing time. Production Code Seal No. 0699. Running time 10 mins. "G."

trian in the employ of an international munitions trust. It tells how the Austrian presumably takes the place of the Englishman, found on the brink of death in the African jungle, and returns to London to advance the predatory aims of the arms makers by crippling British factories and thereby inducing orders for replenished supplies from the factories which make up the munition king's domain. With the opening days of the World War as background and running through the action but without war scenes being shown, the plot advances until the unraveling reveals the central character, not as the plotting Austrian posing as the patriotic Englishman, but as the Britisher himself.

It's good stuff keyed in a popular, adventure vein and should please the rank and file of the average picture house audiences. Direction by Crosland is well timed and effective. Production values are high.

"Never Too Late"

(Reliable Pictures)

A police yarn, with Richard Talmadge in the lead as the detective who poses as a crook to get evidence against a gang leader and, incidentally, succeeds in freeing the wife of the commissioner from a compromising situation and falling in love with her sister, this film is routine action material of its type. With no distinguishing features, either of player, or performance, or situation, it may prove fair on a dual program. A full quota of police-bandit automobile pursuits is included, which makes for action, at least.

Every opportunity seems to have been hunted to permit Talmadge to play the acrobat in his battles with the crooks, from which he always emerges the victor, often at great stretch of the imagination. On the trail of the crooks, he accidentally meets Thelma White, who herself appears to be a crook after a necklace. Eventually he learns that Miss White is attempting to retrieve the necklace her sister had foolishly left with the gang leader on an indiscreet visit.

Talmadge works himself in as a member of the gang, and succeeds, after many feet of gun-popping chase, in bringing about the capture of the gang and returning the necklace to Miss White's sister. Talmadge, of course, finds a romantic conclusion with Miss White. Harry S. Webb was associate producer, and Franklin Shamray director.

Production Code Seal No. 1,530. Running time, 57 minutes. "G."

"Scrooge"

(Twickenham-Paramount)

This rates high among the Dickens films and makes a good Christmas booking.

Some of the poignant suffering of Scrooge in a dream sequence leading up to his reform is dragged out to a point that may prove depressing to holiday audiences, but the picture as a whole is extremely well done.

Two individual performances are outstanding—one by Sir Seymour Hicks as Scrooge and the other by Donald Calthrop as Tiny Tim's father. These two men dominate the film. Instead of melodramatic caricatures, they make of these central characters vital figures whose emotions play upon the heartstrings.

The film was produced in England by Julius Hagen for Twickenham. The settings and the camera work are high class.

It can be sold as a family picture, for the appeal is aimed at adults as well as children. Women's groups and high school and college English classes, and those who go in for the so-called "better things" will take to it, too.

Production Code Seal No. 0751. Running time, 90 minutes. "G."

"Midnight Phantom"

(Reliable Pictures)

Independently produced by Harry S. Webb, as associate producer, and B. B. Ray, as director, this is something of a mystery film, which rates as only ordinary fare, suitable perhaps for the second half of a double bill. The cast is headed by Reginald Denny, Lloyd Hughes, Claudia Dell and James Farley.

For a murder mystery too much time is permitted to elapse before the murder is committed and too little in uncovering the real culprit. The film is set in the atmosphere of the police department and most of the action, what little there is of it, occurs in and about the office of Police Chief Farley. His daughter, Miss Dell, is engaged to Hughes, detective, while Denny is the scientific criminologist and rejected suitor.

The greater portion of the footage is devoted to a buildup of motives pected to work out a partnership deal in theatres, as you know, but that did not develop. However, at the moment, if everything works out as I plan, I shall leave Friday morning for a hunting and fishing trip in Mexico and will be away for several weeks."

Reports are still current linking Schaefer's name with Al Lichtman's former post as vice-president in charge of domestic distribution at United Artists. Schaefer had no comment to make on the report last night.

Schaefer had been with Paramount for 15 years, going with the company as a booker at the New York exchange in 1920. Prior to that he had been secretary to L. J. Selznick and had been assistant sales manager and district sales manager for the old World Film Co. In 1921 Schaefer became New England district manager for Paramount and sales manager for District No. 1 in 1926. He was promoted to general sales manager following the resignation of Sidney R. Kent from Paramount in Jan., 1932, and later became vice-president and general manager. He was also president of Famous Theatres Corp., holding company for most of the Paramount theatre subsidiaries, for a time.

Sunday Shows Prove Big Pittsburgh Help

the neighborhood houses had healthy patronage. In a couple of outlying spots, independent exhibitors remained closed, preferring to await the outcome.

It was unlike any other Sunday that Pittsburgh has ever seen. The downtown streets were crowded, the streets buzzed with cars all day long, the trolley company reported a great increase in Sunday business and restaurants had crowds all day long. People, however, weren't going to shows just for the sake of seeing a show on Sunday. They went where the best attractions were playing and the theatres with weaker films did only mediocre trade.

Many expressed disappointment with the legislative act for its failure to include stage shows. The only theatre affected by this, however, was the Stanley, where Rudy Vallee is appearing. He played only one show, a midnight performance.

this result has been accomplished. Several exhibitors in the last few months have defaulted, with the result a unanimous decision against them is registered with the courts.

Twentieth Century-Fox yesterday had five complaints scheduled for arbitration. Two were postponed, two settled and one defaulted. The delayed complaints were against the Casino, Richmond Hill, and the Regent, Brooklyn. Settled were the Vanity, Brooklyn, and Howard, Howard Beach, L. I., cases.

After appointing arbitrators to hear its side of the issue, the Monterey, Brooklyn, yesterday failed to show up at 4:30, the scheduled time, following which a default was taken. The amount involved totaled around $50.

Practically all of the complaints are filed by distributors for alleged breach of contract.

Arguments Heard on Sound Patents Use about 18 months ago before Judge Byers, sitting in the Manhattan Federal court. The so-called Lowenstein. Mathes and Arnold patents owned by the telephone company, of which W. E. is a manufacturing subsidiary, are concerned in this case. The validity of the patents is not involved, the question being merely whether the defendants went beyond the bounds of their lease when they distributed vacuum tube amplification circuits for loud speakers in talking picture apparatus for commercial use by theatres. The plaintiffs contend that use was restricted to radio receivers and use by radio amateurs. Judge Byers reserved decision.

Free Films Go To 470 Spots Survey Shows

month and in some instances only three or four times a year. Because of the irregular bookings, the Hays office is reluctant to hazard a guess on the total number of films supplied annually as well as the amount of money exchanges would get if these dates were turned into cash. In some cases, complete programs of shorts, newsreels and features are booked while in others requests are limited to features.

The New York Film Board figures it provides about 40 institutions in the metropolitan area. Boston leads with a greater number of weekly requests. It is estimated that the local bookings would approximate $1,000 a week, if sold.

Thanksgiving and Christmas weeks are two weeks in the year when the demands for free shows are the greatest. In this vicinity the jump during these weeks is from the regular 40 to 200, part of which is attributed to theatres, in conjunction with benevolent organizations, putting on morning shows and turning the proceeds over to charities.

At one time, it was estimated that the free show bill for distributors amounted to about $500,000 a year.

David Weinstock and Emanuel Hurtiz are president and treasurer, respectively, of Kornston & Raypat, Inc., the former taking the Garden and the latter company acquiring the State, both in Paterson, N. J. The State was formerly known as the Orpheum. It reopens Jan. 1.

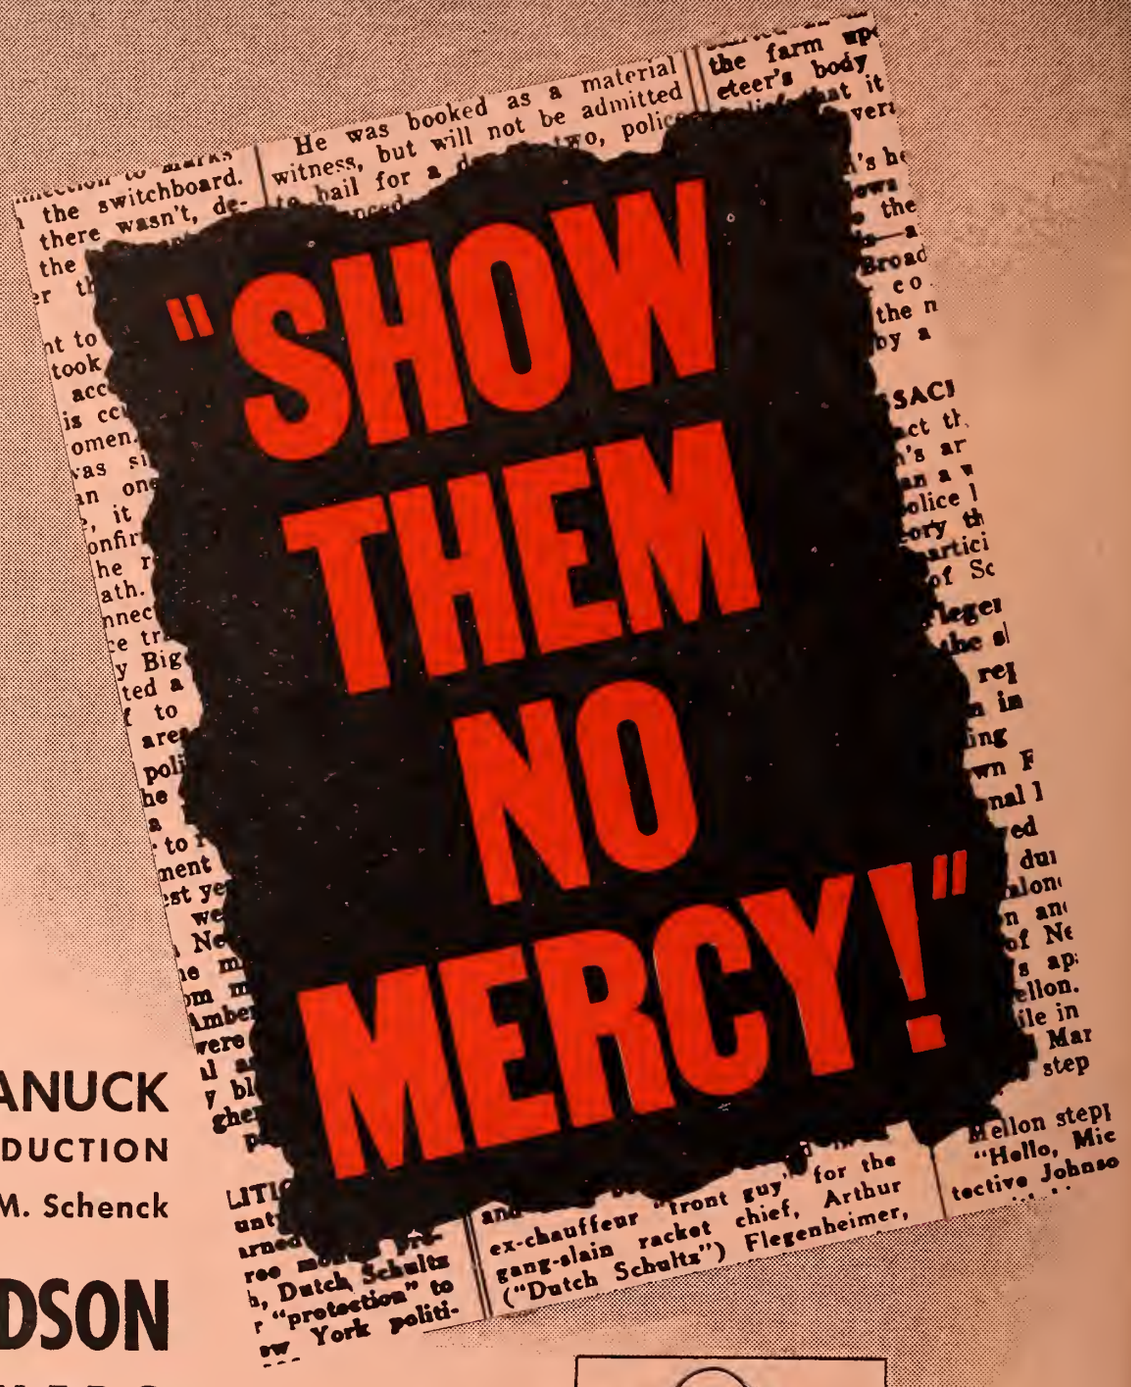
A Parrot Could Never Be a Showman

A parrot's great asset is his ability to imitate.

A showman to be successful must never imitate.

Darryl F. Zanuck, one of the industry's most successful showmen, hates imitation.

In fact, if he has one outstanding characteristic, it is his ability to explore new entertainment fields.



In the field of crime pictures, he demonstrated this with his "Little Caesar," "The Public Enemy," and "I Am a Fugitive from a Chain Gang."

Because each brought out a new and amazing phase of life, each made exhibitors an astonishing amount of money.

Darryl F. Zanuck demonstrates his originality again with "SHOW THEM NO MERCY," his next 20th Century Picture.

It, too, is thrilling, suspenseful, packed with action AND STARTLINGLY DIFFERENT! And it, too, will make you a lot of money!

IT BLASTS A NEW UNDERWORLD TERROR INTO THE OPEN!

OLD CHIEF EAR-TO-THE-GROUND

REPORTS: HEAP BIG

The Old Chief has had that ancient cauliflower of his glued to the pavement for the past two weeks, much to the annoyance of our favorite traffic cop. But he's come through with some news! "MILLIONS IN THE AIR" is big stuff in Hollywood, the Chief reports. He says the boys who have seen it in production say it's got plenty on the ball and, if given the works, is a box-office find. He predicts the trade reviews will be raves. Well, that makes sense to us. For the subject is timely . . . millions are still nuts on those amateur hour broadcasts . . .

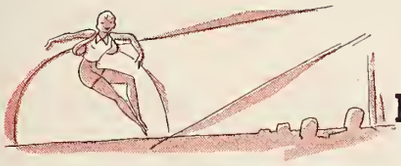
the story is good, not just a hashed out musical plot . . . and the cast, though frankly not a bunch of big names, has plenty of

All For Laughs

Paramount is having editorial trouble with "Millions in the Air," although the reverse of the usual post-preview sorrows. After a sneak preview last week it was found that the audience laughed so long and loud at Willie Howard's comedy as to kill succeeding laugh lines and gags. The film is due for editorial revision to re-space so that all the laughs get an even break.—HOLLYWOOD REPORTER.



NOISE IN THE WEST!

audience appeal. Wendy Barrie clicked in "The Big Broadcast" and John Howard paid off plenty in "Annapolis Farewell." Besides, the picture has some of the most competent comedians in the business... Willie Howard, Bennie Baker and Joe Cook's contribution to Stooge Heaven, Dave Chasen. And, then, as an added attraction there's Eleanore Whitney, whom the Hollywood sports writers have timed as the fastest tap dancer in the world. So take it from the Chief, you'd better get into this one. "MILLIONS IN THE AIR" a "sleeper" that wide awake exhibitors, yes, and we mean first-run boys, too, can clean up on... which reminds us of the old saying,

It Pays to Play a Paramount Picture!

RKO Boston Drops Vaud

BOSTON, Nov. 26.—Vaudeville will go out of the RKO Boston for the first three weeks of December, according to Division Manager Charles Koerner. It will be resumed for the rest of the winter, probably, during the last week of the holiday month. Stage shows have been billed above films since double features were dropped. The move will leave the Metropolitan the only vaudeville stand for three weeks.

Beano Banned in Lynn

LYNN, Nov. 26.—Beano must cease in this city, according to an order issued by Mayor J. Fred Manning. Warners Say Ascap Future Is Uncertain

Point Out Law Suits and State Restrictions

Asserting that the future of the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers has "a very precarious foundation" because of the number of lawsuits pending against it in various parts of the country, including "a Federal income tax case involving over $1,000,000," Warner on Wednesday defended the withdrawal of its music publishing subsidiaries from membership in the society and replied to the charge leveled at it by Ascap that the action was "solely and selfishly in the interests of Warners."

The Warner reply charged the Ascap management with being "a well entrenched clique of executive officers who sign contracts and perform other important acts on their own authority,

Ask Federal Stay On Warner Meeting

Injunction proceedings to prevent the annual stockholders' meeting of Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., from approving and ratifying the purported settlement and compromise of a suit as the result of an action brought by Max Goldberg was filed in Federal Court yesterday by Norman Johnson, suing as a stockholder and for other stockholders similarly situated.

Johnson's petition set forth that last March Max Goldberg brought a stockholder's action on his own behalf and that on May 31, 1935, the directors of Warners, knowing that

Unionized Hollywood Foreseen by Equity

A unionized Hollywood with players organized through the Screen Actors' Guild dictating employment and salary terms to the studios was foreseen this week by Actors' Equity, as officials of the organization spoke about a closer tie with the coast organization, Motion Picture Herald says in its current issue.

The cooperation between the east and west actors' groups, which has been close in the past, will become more definite in the near future, it was said at Equity, according to the Herald.

New Drive on Chance Games Starts Soon

Circuits to Await Move Predicted for Bronx

Renewed activity by the police against chance games will be started next week in the Bronx, it is learned by MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

Some circuits already have been tipped off, but will do nothing until managers are summoned. Loew's, which is playing games in more than half of its theatres, recently added Screeno at a number of houses and plans to adopt the game at the Paradise Dec. 2. This circuit has not been advised of the contemplated police action. It has about 15 units in that borough featuring the added attraction one night a week.

Several months ago a number of independents were brought into court

Springer—Cocalis On the Outs Again

Personal differences between Jack W. Springer and Sam Cocalis, partners in the Springer & Cocalis circuit of about 50 houses in the metropolitan area, have again reached the point where the two men are not talking to each other.

Several months ago the partners got into a personal scrap and played a Sphinx game until they patched up their difficulties. With another break in their relations, the new dispute is said to be worse than the previous one.

Cocalis has made an offer to buy

They Fainted

Columbus, Nov. 28.—H. D. Harris, acting special agent in charge of the Cincinnati office of the Department of Justice, discussed the workings of the department at the weekly luncheon of the Variety Club.

When Duke Clark announced Harris was a G-man two exchange managers, an exhibitor, a radio man and a secretary of an exhibitors' association fainted, but this was reported to have been due to the cost of the lunch—75 cents, in addition to the Ohio sales tax.

Para. Operator Strike May Be IATSE Retort

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 28.—George Brown, I. A. T. S. E. president, yesterday wired all I. A. T. S. E. locals throughout the country to be ready at a moment's notice to withdraw all operators from Paramount theatres, as a result of the alleged unwarranted action of the Paramount studios in forcing the union resignition of I. A. T. S. E. men before they could join the east-bound unit to film "Thirteen Hours by Air."

According to the wire received by the union office here action is expected momentarily. The Paramount studio action was taken last week, and mystified union officials here at the time.

Agnew to Keep Sales Post in New Position

Board Vacancy Will Be Left Open for Time

Neil Agnew will continue to serve as general sales manager of Paramount, at least for the time being, in addition to taking over new duties associated with his vice-presidency, it was stated at Paramount on Wednesday. Accordingly, unless Agnew finds that the dual position requires an assistant, he will not vacate his post of general sales manager and no further changes in the company's sales administration would be made. Agnew succeeded to George J. Schaefer's post on the latter's resignation last Tuesday.

"Punishment" Cruel To M. H. at $45,000

"Crime and Punishment" meant exactly that for the Music Hall last week when the weekly gross sank to approximately $45,000 on the Columbia picture. This is the second lowest gross for the house since it opened. The all-time low film was "Ann Carver's Profession," another Columbia film, which took in $44,938 for the week ending June 14, 1933, according to MOTION PICTURE DAILY's chart.

The Center garnered about $20,000 with "Thanks a Million" in its second week. The picture is being held over again. "Remember Last Night" at the Roxy was good for $30,000 in eight days.

Ampa's First Amateur Show Goes Over with a Loud Bang

By BILL ORNSTEIN

Ampa's first amateur show, held Wednesday at Dempsey's, went over with a bang. George Harvey's act, according to MOTION PICTURE DAILY's applause recorder, took first prize and to make doubly sure he won no awards were offered.

Assisted by his daughter and chum and Charles Alicoate, Harvey revealed his terpsichorean capabilities. The act opened with the former Ampa president using a beard and cane to introduce the two children, following which Harvey and Alicoate stepped into a fast tap routine with each doing individual specialties. Alicoate outstepped his partner. He also wore a makeshift beard. In one number Harvey went so far as to dress in a white middie and blue trunks when he joined the two youngsters in a tap dance.

Preceding Harvey's act was Sophie Robinson, a lyric soprano of Columbia, who sang "One Night of Love" and "Mist." She received a round of applause, as did Frances Liebman, another Columbia recruit, who nervously chirped out "I'm in the Mood for Love."

The members showed their appre-

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

IT becomes sad to contemplate how often the road leading to the light is blocked in this industry. There is current, for instance, Republic's questionnaire, with twelve queries good and true about style, tempo and trends in production. It runs all the way from stars who are real at the box-office to serials and is designed to aid the company fashion its future production schedule. . . .

One of the first replies comes from a well-known circuit operator, a member of that nation-wide legion of men without illusion and no soul in their souls.

"What names continue to hold their own?" was one of the questions.

"W. C. Fields can hold more than any other man in Hollywood," came the answer.

What stars are slipping?

Leon Errol (rubber knees—get it?)

What supporting stars would you like to see included in casts?

Hercules.

What types of pictures do the most business for you?

Good pictures.

What types of pictures have no value at the box-office?

Bad pictures.

If you don't run westerns, why?

I'll bite, Why?

If you run serials, what type is preferred?

H. O. or Quaker Oats.

A Paramount without George J. Schaefer will seem strange after all these years—fifteen to be exact about it. Changing fortunes and the turn of the wheel are now to take him elsewhere and for that this department, venturing to speak at large, sees a general regret. His lengthy experience and his record of steady clambering up the career ladder pave the way to another and important berth well up in the executive roster. Wherever that may be, Schaefer will carry many good wishes. . . .

One man's change means another's promotion. That carries Neil F. Agnew into the vice-presidency until the other day filled by Schaefer. A comparative newcomer in the headquarters of matters celluloidic, Agnew has been around long enough to have precipitated such stage whispers as "Keep an eye on Neil. That fellow's going places." Already he has—as sales manager at Paramount for the past eighteen months. His promotion comes to peg him in a higher rung and concentrates, spotlike-fashion, in his direction a considerable number of friendly orbs ready and eager to see him move on to bigger things. . . .

Significant or not may be Leo Spitz's statement in an exclusive interview to a MOTION PICTURE DAILY reporter in Hollywood a handful of days back.

He said an immediate merger with Paramount was impossible. . . .

Hollywood social register note: Joan Crawford has accepted a commission as a Kentucky general. She refused three offers of a colonelcy.

Mae West is a colonel. . . .

More from Hollywood: By way of delicate compliment, everyone on the Radio lot is buying new dogs. Spitzes. . . .

What with business better on all sides, the film fraternity at large had a pleasant Thanksgiving.

Nobody thought to inquire what the turkey thought about it. . . .

National Allied Men Will Go to Bermuda

National Allied directors and officers of other units will attend the Allied of New Jersey six-day convention aboard the Queen of Bermuda, starting Dec. 7. In addition, Joe Lee of Fox and "Pop" Korson, independent exchange man from Philadelphia, have promised to attend.

Reservations for the meeting now total about 75. Allied members from Pittsburgh and Baltimore will join in the sessions. On Dec. 7, Sidney Samuelson's successor as president will be elected.

Samuelson expects to spend two weeks in Bermuda after the convention.

Deny American Film Hit by Pathe Suit

BOSTON, Nov. 28.—Emphatic denial is made by J. C. Johnston, counsel for American Film Exchange, Inc., that this exchange has been, or is to be, turned over to Pathe as a result of court action.

Johnston says the recent suit won by Pathe was directed against Selective Pictures, Inc., which was found to be in default on notes involving certain Chesterfield and Invincible pictures. If Pathe wins on an appeal, Johnston says, Selective may be forced to turn over certain films to Pathe.

In the meantime American Film Exchange continues in business.

the few localities where the use of reel lengths of more than 1,000 feet is prohibited. The changing of such ordinances, the M.P.P.D.A. committee said, would be of benefit to the public because of a better presentation of pictures, would assure even greater safety in the handling of film and would give the industry the advantages of an unlimited use of the larger reel.

Much work in this connection has been accomplished already by the Research Council of the Academy of M. P. Arts & Sciences, and by the committees on exchange practices and projection practice of S.M.P.E., it was said.

Each of the 400 or more exchanges in the U. S. will be advised how properly to splice and handle the new 2,000-feet reel and exhibitors generally will be asked to cooperate in effecting the conversion.

Present indications are that Universal may alter its stand and approve the 2,000-foot reel after further study of the question, it was learned. An official of the company said that Universal is "still open to conviction" on the changeover.

for alleged violation of the lottery laws. No convictions were handed down by magistrates hearing the cases. For a time, Loew's stopped featuring Screeno until police activity subsided.

On Wednesday, Skouras won an important victory when Magistrate Anna Kross in Essex Market Court dismissed a Bank Night complaint by Assistant District Attorney James Wilson against the Academy of Music. Louis Weber, attorney for the circuit, last week filed briefs in the matter. After an informal discussion with Weber, the assistant district attorney recommended dismissal, following which Magistrate Kross complimented Weber on his well-prepared briefs.

RKO at no time has gone in for the practice and does not plan to adopt it in the future.

A Loew official on Wednesday stated the circuit does not intend to discontinue the games unless the police compel such action.

Pathe Board Fails To Act on 1st Div.

No action was taken Wednesday by Pathe's board of directors on franchise deals made by First Division with a number of local independent exchanges. It is understood several deals remain to be worked out before the board ratifies the nationalization plan.

Willis Bright, treasurer of Pathe, described the Wednesday session as routine. Another will be held in about two weeks, he said.

Brown to Hollywood

Colvin W. Brown, vice-president and general manager of the Quigley Publishing Co., left on the Century Wednesday for a stay of several weeks in Hollywood.

Rated by Variety Daily as 'smash box-office', and exceeding even that prediction by its record-toppling N.Y. Strand premiere, Warner Bros.' "FRISCO KID" is providing lucrative holiday fare in scores of key theatres this week with what the N. Y. Mirror describes as 'gory, scrappy, feverish' melodrama. Starring JAMES CAGNEY, the cast also boasts Margaret Lindsay, Ricardo Cortez, Lili Damita, Donald Woods, and the direction has been superbly handled by Lloyd Bacon. Released November 30th.

Warners Say Ascap Future Is Uncertain

the board of directors in many cases having no opportunity to review such transactions until the society has been committed to them.

"These executive officers," the statement continues, "have very little at stake financially in comparison with the publishing firms that are threatened with extinction, although it must be said that the salaries paid the society's executives are certainly not small, Mr. Mills, the general manager, receiving about $50,000 a year, and Mr. Buck, the president, about $35,000."

"Ascap on Defensive"

"It is claimed," Warners said, "that the society is the protector of the author and composer," yet these have suffered with the publishers from the effects of radio upon music sales. "Furthermore," the statement continues, "the distribution to authors and composers of the various funds collected by the society is conducted in an illogical manner based mainly upon favoritism and politics." It also charges that the society has failed utterly to obtain adequate payments for the use of music by radio, adding that the society "has not kept pace with the new uses of music" and that "the arrangements made by the society have unduly favored the big radio chains over the independent stations."

"The society is on the defensive in so many lawsuits throughout the United States," Warners assert, "that the sense of security into which many of its members have been lulled has a very precarious foundation. With the Federal government attacking it as a monopoly, its contracts with motion picture exhibitors and theatre chains being repudiated in various states on grounds of invalidity and illegality, heavy taxes being levied upon it in numerous jurisdictions, and a Federal income tax case involving over a million dollars hanging over its head, its future is problematical. In the State of Washington a receiver has been appointed for the society's business in that state. The interests of the art and industry of music in this country are too important to be inextricably bound up with an agency whose management has not been of a quality to warrant bright hopes for a successful issue of its difficulties."

Cite Talent Opportunity

"While it is true," the statement says, "that most authors and composers have signed the society's contract, they have done so without being given the benefit of an alternative or (in most cases) of a knowledge of the complete workings of the society and the difficulties at present confronting it. One result of our resignation will be the opportunities opened for new writing talent which has hitherto found it extremely difficult to obtain membership in the society. The field will be open for unestablished authors and composers of real ability."

What significance the Warner secession from Ascap had for exhibitors was not clear on Wednesday in the absence of a definition of policies for the future by either. Herman Starr, vice-president of Warners, who tendered his resignation from the Ascap board concurrently with the withdrawal from the society of the Warner music subsidiaries, said that he "had no statement to make at this time on the exhibitor angle" which develops from his company's action. At Ascap it was stated that the society's policy on license fees as a result of the Warner resignations was still undefined and probably would remain so for some time pending further developments and legal advice.

Collected $1,000,000

Ascap estimates that it collected approximately $1,000,000 from exhibitors last year under its licensing agreements calling for a music tax of from 10 cents to 20 cents per seat, per year, according to seating capacity of individual houses. Whether it would agree to reduce this tax in proportion to the loss to its music catalogues by the Warner list, thereby balancing any new tax which might be asked by Warners independently, has not been decided by the society. Warners are believed to be planning to assess radio broadcasters on a "per use" basis of its music.

Speculation was also general on the possible effects of the Warner action on the Federal monopoly suit against Ascap, trial of which is scheduled to be resumed here Jan. 7. It was pointed out that with a second licensing group in the field Ascap could hardly be shown to have a monopoly.

Mills Replies

In a statement late Wednesday Mills said Warners are attempting to justify an act for which their "single excuse is that they must have more money." He said he believed, with Warners, that the compensation for the public use of copyrighted music is "ridiculously incommensurate with the value of those rights." He cited the opposition Ascap has faced in its long effort to collect fair fees, from the M.P.T.O.A., hotel organizations and others.

He contended Warners' withdrawal was for the purpose of a speculative effort to increase earnings "without consulting the authors and composers" involved. The membership of Ascap "will speak for themselves," the statement said.

Gene Buck, president of Ascap, with reference to the Warner statement, said that the whole argument "is too silly to dignify with a reply."

Northwest MPTO Protests Games

SPOKANE, Wash., Nov. 28.—The M. P. T. O. of the Northwest in a regional meeting here yesterday protested against Dart Games. Cecil Miller, president, outlined the resentment of merchants. Portland game operators have offered to pay licenses of $40,000 annually.

Walkathons also were declared detrimental to business, as a recent Walkathon here did $50,000. There was a large attendance of eastern Washington exhibitors and Seattle representatives headed by James Holne, executive secretary.

they were liable for the 1928 value of 90,000 shares of common stock of Warners worth $12,000,000 which they had transferred to Renraw, Inc., and knowing that they were liable for unjust and excessive salaries of $10,000 weekly paid to Harry, Albert and Jack Warner, were purported to have compromised the claims of Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., against Renraw, Inc., and against Warners. Johnson explained that on last May 21, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., entered into an agreement with the three Warner brothers and Renraw, Inc., as a result of the Goldberg action to surrender to Warner Bros., Inc., 100,000 shares of the common stock of Warner Bros. and this agreement was executed.

Fees Called Excessive

Johnson further charged that the directors of Warner Bros. retained a certain law firm to give an appearance of validity to the compromise and that the stockholders had no voice in the selection of that law firm and that this firm received a fee out of proportion to the value of the services rendered and that the sums paid to Max Goldberg and his attorney were excessive; that the sum paid to Goldberg was ostensibly for the purchase of his own stock in Warner Bros., but was many times the market value and represented an inducement to Goldberg and his attorney to discontinue the suit and to withhold knowledge of the affairs of the company from other stockholders. Subsequently the file in the suit was removed from the court records, it is charged.

Johnson states that the value of the 100,000 shares at the time they were transferred to Warner Bros. and Harry, Albert and Jack Warner was approximately three per cent of the sum of $12,000,000. Johnson charged that Warner Bros., Inc., could have recovered a sum in excess of $12,000,000 instead of three per cent of that amount. He further stated that the directors of Warner Bros., Inc., conspired and plotted to commit acts to advance their personal interest and for their own private gain. Former U. S. Attorney Howard W. Amelie, of Brooklyn, and Milton Paulson filed the petition for Johnson.

A representative of the Warner legal department said yesterday that the company had no comment to make on the Johnson action.

a member of the board, plans to leave for Mexico today on a hunting and fishing trip of several weeks duration. He will probably announce his future plans on his return, it was said. Indications are that the board vacancy created by Schaefer's resignation will not be filled for the present. It is said to be highly unlikely that, when an election does take place, that any member of the Paramount management would be named to the board in his place. This is explained by the company's desire to keep management representation on the board at a minimum in order that officers will not be placed in the position of passing upon their own acts.

Most of the Paramount executive contingent which will attend the company's three-day sales meeting in Chicago beginning Sunday plan to leave this afternoon, but a few will not start for Chicago until tomorrow night.

Short Subjects

"Billboard Frolics"
(Vitaphone)

The symbols of nationally advertised products are animated on and off of their billboard settings to make Leon Schlesinger's "Merrie Melody" song cartoon No. 13, in color. Average entertainment value is derived from the rescue of a baby chick from a pursuing cat through the devices of the friendly trade marks. Production Code Seal No. 1,611. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"P's & Cues"
(Vitaphone)

One of the "Pepper Pot" series, this pictures trick straight rail and pocket billiard shots by Charles Peterson and Ruth McGinnis, each a world champion. With the intricate shots explained by Paul Douglas, commentator, a knowledge of the game is unnecessary for an appreciation of the skill of the two players. An interesting reel with a light comedy background. Production Code Seal No. 0654. Running time 9 mins. "G."

"Shooting the Record Breakers"
(Twentieth Century-Fox)

In this there is the usual assemblage of newsreel shots attractively arranged and presented. The record breaking runs of railroad trains, motorboats, airplanes and automobiles with the prominent person in each case make the subject matter of the effort. Most of it has already been shown and audience reaction is doubtful. Production Code Seal, No. 0694. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Nature's Handiwork"
(Vitaphone)

This is No. 4 of E. M. Newman's "Our Own United States" series and presents a photographic selection of 10 American scenic wonders. With narration by David Ross on the points of interest of each scene combined with excellent photography, the reel is a fine addition to the series. Production Code Seal No. 0698. Running time 10 mins. "G."

"Ye Olde Toy Shoppe"
(Educational)

The theme of this cartoon is old stuff. It is the one about the toys that are left alone and come to life and after a bit of performing they are menaced in this case by a spider who is eventually done away with in the approved style. It is good for children's matinees and holiday trade.

Production Code Seal No. 0770. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Kind Lady"
(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 28.—This English crook story depicting criminals entirely different from the American variety offers something unusual, although whether the novelty will capture American fancy seems questionable.

Basil Rathbone, heading a ring of art thieves, entrenches himself in the home of Aline MacMahon, owner of an extensive collection. Putting Miss MacMahon under the influence of a drug, Rathbone, with the help of Dudley Digges, Murray Kinnell, Ely Malyon and Barbara Shields, disposes of Nola Luxford, sole MacMahon servant, and arranges a sale of the art collection.

Cleverly holding the prisoner, Rathbone, on the verge of success, is bested by Frank Albertson, who has married Mary Carlisle, Miss MacMahon's niece.

Director George Seitz builds suspense, once the plot starts, with a scene where the gang closes in on Miss MacMahon. This serves as a tense climax. The cast, almost entirely British, gives good performances. Rathbone is a suave, cultured menace. Doris Lloyd, as Miss MacMahon's relative, is outstanding in support, and the performances of Miss Luxford as the maid and Miss Shields as the child show good possibilities for larger assignments in the future. Bernard Schubert wrote the screen play from Edward Chodorov's dramatization of Hugh Walpole's story. Lucien Hubbard, producer, aims at average spots and has made the picture acceptable.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 78 minutes. "G."

"Bar 20 Rides Again"
(Harry Sherman-Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 28.—An outdoor action western, this one retains all the values that are appreciated by audiences and showmen in the familiar pattern and adds much that is unique.

Further detailing Hop-Along Cassidy's adventures with William Boyd featured, it introduces Harry Worth, who creates a new type of sinister bad man character.

Concentrating on the dramatic conflict between Boyd and Worth, an erudite rustler with a Napoleonic complex, who plans his forays on a chess board, it carries a light but effective romantic thread involving Jimmy Ellison and Jean Rouveral and a comedy contrast capably handled by George Hayes. As Boyd in the guise of a gambler gets the confidence of Worth and knowledge of his plans to raid Howard Lang's ranch he signals Partner Ellison and Frank McGlynn, who lead a posse of ranchers into a thrill-packed, running gun battle with the rustler horde. The climax has the suavely vicious Worth, while trying to make a deal with Boyd, being killed by one of his own wounded men.

The story, based on Clarence Mulford's Cassidy character, is intelligently adapted by Doris Schroeder and the Schroeder-Gerald Geraghty screenplay smartly balances the dialogue, action and situations to create and hold interest. Howard Bretherton's direction takes care that the thrill-action quality is natural and reasonable without the tendency to be artificially theatrical. A musical accompaniment adds sock to the thrill of climaxing the gun roaring chase. The charm of the scenic backgrounds is emphasized by Archie Stout's photography.

Showmen who build their publicity campaigns with the same brand of intelligence that marks the production effort should have no difficulty in securing a favorable public reaction.

Production Code Seal No. 1614. Running time, 64 minutes. "G."

"Frisco Waterfront"
(Republic)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 28.—Emphasis on the strong love theme developing the theory that hate can drive a man to succeed better than love and loyalty is needed to bring in the feminine patronage, since the title does not reveal the emotional appeal of the story.

Ben Lyon, a candidate for governor, is injured in a motor accident and while under an anesthetic relives his life with the main part of the film told in retrospect. Lyon, demoralized by his war experiences, flounders from job to job without success in spite of the love of his wife, Helen Twelvetrees. When Lyon seems to be content to be a dock-walloper for the rest of his life, Miss Twelvetrees divorces him

Variety Club

Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, Nov. 28.—Chief Barker ALLAN S. MORITZ has named the following committee to decide future policies of entertainment for Tent No. 3: ARTHUR S. FRUDENFELD, MANNY SHURE, MERRILL SCHWARTZ, HARRY J. WESSELL, FRITZ WITTE, BILLY BEIN, BILL HASTINGS, RALPH KINSLER, WILLIAM ONIE and MIKE SPANIGEL. The committee is to make specific recommendations next week.

The committees to pick nominees for the various offices for the coming year includes: Blue Ticket: MAURICE WHITE, JIM BRADY, JOHN ALLEN; Red Ticket, BEIN, ONIE and SHURE.

HARRY SCHREIBER, RKO city manager, Columbus, was in town this week, and placed his stamp of approval on the club's enlarged quarters.

Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 28.—In spite of a small crowd, everyone enjoyed CHESTER RICE, king of cards. Guests were HARRY SOMERVILLE, new member; TOM STEELE, Fox, Pittsburg, Kan., and HARLEY FRYER, Fox, Joplin, Mo.

Kings for Dec. 7 will be JACK HENRY, FRANK HENSLER, and EARL JAMESON, and for Dec. 9, FINTON JONES, Doc KNAPPENBERGER, and GUS KUBITZKI.

Washington

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Variety's text that "a little child shall lead them" was forcibly, but agreeably, thrust on Tent No. 11 when CATHERINE VARIETY SHERIDAN II completely stole the show at the local tent's second annual dinner and dance.

The wee Miss SHERIDAN—the 15-months-old tot recently adopted by the national organization—was brought to Washington from Pittsburgh by Mrs. MIKE CULLEN, wife of Tent No. 1's retiring chief barker.

After a modicum of entertaining by local celebrities, General Chairman HARRY P. SOMERVILLE presented Chief Barker RUDOLPH BERGER, who told of Variety's beginnings. Following his remarks, Rabbi ABRAM SIMON, one of the Tent's chaplains, extolled the club's purposes, and Chief Barker BERGER presented the tot formally to her Washington foster-daddies.

No little surprise was this, for not a word had leaked out as to the committee's plans, and the unusual presentation was the signal for an enthusiastic demonstration.

More than 400 barkers and guests attended the dinner and dance.

The floor show featured the Three X Sisters, BERT GRANOFF, Uptowners' Quartet, ED LOWRY, NORMAN PRESCOTT, Three Slate Brothers, CHERRY and JUNE PREISSER, EDGAR BERGEN and CHARLEY MCCARTHY, JUNE CARR, HELEN REYNOLDS, Skaters, CHICK WEBB and his orchestra, and others from the Earle, Loew's Fox and Howard Theatres, the Lotus, La Paree, Russian Club Troika, and Heigh-Ho night clubs.

The entertainment ended with a burlesque newsreel prepared by ARTHUR A. DETITTA and Fox Movietone News, featuring friendly jabs at RUDOLPH BERGER, JOHN H. HARRIS, JOSEPH P. MORGAN, A. E. LICHTMAN, GENE FORD, HARRY SOMERVILLE, ORANGELO J. RATTO, HARRY HUNTER, SAM A. GALANTY, SIDNEY B. LUST and others.

and marries her former suitor, Rod La Rocque, a newspaper publisher. Hatred of his former wife stings Lyon to fight his way to the top through suspenseful scenes against the authentic backgrounds of the San Francisco waterfront.

Lyon is convincing both as a soldier trying to adjust himself to a changed civilian world and as a husband alternating in tenderness and jealous anger with Miss Twelvetrees who is also torn by conflicting emotions. La Rocque turns in a strong performance. Russell Hopton, James Burke, Henry Kolker, Purnell Pratt, Lee Shumway and Barbara Pepper are telling in the supporting cast. Arthur Lubin directed. The screen play is by Norman Houston, Trem Carr produced.

The relieving comedy and action in the waterfront battles are other angles to stress, but the problem of a man's bewildered loving of his wife is the best point to plug.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 60 minutes. "A."

Looking 'Em Over

"Manhattan Butterfly"

(Imperial)

An adaptation of a novel, "Broadway Virgin," this picture, independently produced by Major Prod., offers little that is unusual or especially useful from the exploitation standpoint. As the second half of a double bill program, it may prove satisfactory in the smaller locations.

Dorothy Granger and William Bakewell have the leads in a story of the big town, a girl who becomes involved in murder and the general activity of racketeering, though herself innocent, and the manner in which she is rescued from a difficult situation by a man she meets by accident. George Meeker and Betty Compson have leading supporting roles.

Bakewell, who turns out to be the wealthy son of a newspaper publisher, out to make good on his own, is attracted to Miss Granger, singer in a night club. He helps her out of trouble, and when she again becomes involved, at another club which is a cover for racketeering, he spirits her from the country, and she makes good on the Paris stage. A gang killing case is revived when she returns to New York, and Bakewell finally succeeds in trapping the gang leader and arranging the cleanup of the gang. The film ends with the completion of the expected romance between Bakewell and Miss Granger. Miss Granger sings two numbers, but not too effectively.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 67 minutes. "G."

Goldman, Sachs Lose Move in Stock Suit

Justice Louis Valenti has denied a motion to strike out the defense of the statute of limitations made by Goldman, Sachs & Co. in the stockholders' action brought by Adolph Greenberg against Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

In this suit, Greenberg, the owner of 40 shares of common stock of Warners, charged waste and extravagance of the corporation's funds. Greenberg named as co-defendants Harry, Albert and Jack Warner and other directors of Warners, the partners of Goldman, Sachs & Co., the partners of McClure, Jones & Co. and Renraw, Inc.

Greenberg charged that Goldman, Sachs & Co. received 50,000 shares of the common stock of Warners without any valid consideration and without the knowledge or approval of the stockholders. On the other hand, counsel for Goldman, Sachs stated that the agreement whereby Goldman, Sachs received the 50,000 shares of stock was entered into on Oct., 1928, and this was unanimously ratified at a stockholders' meeting on Dec. 4, 1928, at Wilmington. The Goldman, Sachs attorneys maintained that the statute of limitations of six years was a bar to Greenberg's suit against them. The motion was denied.

Split House Scenes Cause Several Suits

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 28.—Recent newsreel films showing the cutting in half of Mrs. Fern G. Chadwick's house and the supposedly dejected members of her family have resulted in several suits for a verdict totalling $25,000.

The house was cut in half as a result of a controversy between Mrs. Chadwick and a building and loan company. She contends that during her absence in Oregon newsreel men moved her furniture out into the yard and hired two children of Mrs. Sylvia Herr to "register dejection," thereby creating the impression that she had been evicted.

Defendants are: Universal, Warners, Standard Theatres Corp., Midwest Enterprise Co. and the Local Building & Loan Ass'n.

Lawrence Fox Here for Talks with Cowdin

There is little likelihood of Standard Capital Co. exercising its option to purchase Universal before approximately one month at the earliest, it was learned yesterday following the arrival here of Lawrence Fox, head of Standard's Los Angeles office.

Fox is here for conferences with J. Cheever Cowdin, Standard head, pertaining to the option, which runs to Feb. 1, next. Charles R. Rogers, who will head the Universal Studio for Standard if and when the option is exercised, had planned to accompany Fox east for the conferences, but was unable to do so and is still on the coast. Rogers, it was learned, is now actively participating in Universal studio affairs in an advisory capacity, although solely on a voluntary cooperative basis. Rogers will not come into official authority at the studio until the option has been exercised, it was said.

Manheim Abroad for "Obsession" Starts

N. L. Manheim, vice-president and general manager of the M. P. Export Co., wholly-owned subsidiary distributing Universal product abroad, sailed on the Aquitania last night to arrange premieres of "Magnificent Obsession" in a number of foreign cities.

He will be gone from six to eight weeks and during that time will hold sales meetings in London and Paris and perhaps in Stockholm as well.

Ohio House Group For Old 10% Tax

COLUMBUS, Nov. 29.—A bill for reenactment of the three per cent sales tax, which expires Dec. 31, has been voted out of the House Taxation Committee, 13 to 8. The measure, however, carries an amendment by Chairman P. E. Ward making the tax permanent until repealed, and exempting food, heretofore included. The committee last week refused by an 8 to 8 vote to indorse Governor Davey's recommendation to extend the three per cent admission tax another year. Thirteen votes were necessary.

By this action the committee approved resumption of the 10 per cent admission tax, which automatically

Pettijohn's In: Harrison's Republicans Quit the Fight

HARRISON, N. Y., Nov. 29.—It looks as though Charles C. Pettijohn will be a town councilman after all—meaning from Jan. 1 on. The fight's over even before it got a good start, and the Republicans have retreated behind Adigrat, or was it Yonkers?

After showing Premier Mussolini the shortest route to Addis Ababa and having a chat about the film situation in Rome and on the Pontine Marshes, C. C. sat down near the old bleacher entrance to the Coliseum and composed a cablegram to the Westchester G.O.P. which, in effect, said that as soon as he got home he'd not only show 'em he owned property in Westchester, but he would make 'em pay the court costs if they contested his election.

He even guaranteed to prove there was no mortgage on his house—an odd phenomenon in Westchester.

When the pilot went on board the Conte di Savoia at Sandy Hook the Pettijohn war paint was being donned, in spite of the fact that it was Thanksgiving and a man can't enjoy turkey with war paint on. He removed it, however, as soon as Mrs. Pettijohn told him the Republicans were in full retreat and had withdrawn their suit.

Then he read the election returns in detail and discovered the Democrats had carried Harrison in spite of the

Zoning Price Fight Stirred Up on Coast

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 29.—The zoning fight is breaking out again. The Palace, operated by Mike Rosenberg, is playing "Alice Adams" and "Shipmates Forever" on the 40c break. On Nov. 21, 30 days after first run, prices were cut to 35c. Generally accepted zoning does not permit that price until 35 days after the first run.

The Tower, President and Rialto followed suit. Joe Leo of the Los Angeles retaliated with a 15c morning and 25c evening sign, with all subsequent run managers threatening to enter the fight.

'Mutiny' at $42,200 For Its Third Week

"Mutiny on the Bounty" continues among Broadway's leaders, chalking up a profitable $42,200 in its third week at the Capitol.

The second week of "Mary Burns, Fugitive" ended with about $14,000 at the Paramount. "I Found Stella Parish" and "To Beat the Band" at the Palace wound up with a fair $8,000.

Paterson in Stew

Paterson, N. J., Nov. 29.—If it's amusement his customers want, Oscar Vlaminck, saloonkeeper, has the answer. He's asked the board of aldermen for permission to show pictures in his saloon. Stumped at the unusual proposal, the board has turned the novel request over to the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners for a ruling.

Early Choice Of Judge Seen In St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 29.—Selection of a new judge to hear the Government's equity case against Warners, Paramount, RKO and their subsidiaries is expected within a few days. The choice is to be made by Justice Kimbrough Stone, presiding justice of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The case has been pending since prior to the start of the anti-trust trials. It is an application for an injunction to prevent the distributors from carrying out an alleged agreement not to serve the Missouri, Ambassador and New Grand Central. If a temporary injunction is granted the same judge will preside at another hearing as to whether or not the stay shall be made permanent.

Special Assistant Attorney General Russell Hardy contends that the not guilty verdict in the anti-trust cases has no bearing on the equity action, as the alleged refusal to serve film covers a period from Jan. 11, 1935 up to the present.

President's Visit Aids Atlanta Houses

ATLANTA, Nov. 29.—Theatres here had a huge reaction from the Roosevelt Day exercises at a local football stadium. It is estimated that 100,000 visitors were in town. The President had an audience of more than 30,000.

The speech-making was finished shortly after 2 o'clock and practically every downtown house did a turnaway business.

The President motored over from Warm Springs.

Refuses to Allow Rival Union in Theatres

The I.A.T.S.E. stated last night that, effective at once, it will not permit members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers to be employed in any theatre in the United States over which the former has jurisdiction.

The stand was taken in an official statement issued through James J. Finn, public relations counsel of the I. A. It affects maintenance men and those in charge of general electrical work in theatres and constitutes the latest development in what is becoming a more bitter jurisdictional fight between the I.A.T.S.E. and the I.B.E.W., both, incidentally, members of the American Federation of Labor.

The unions have been estranged for some time, but the war flamed anew recently when a Universal unit and

Theatre Betterment On Upgrade—Shearer

More rebuilding and refurnishing is now going on than erection of new theatres throughout the country, Ben F. Shearer, president of the Independent Theatre Supply Dealers' Ass'n., stated yesterday. The survey resulted from a checkup of directors in town last week for the three-day quarterly session. Shearer leaves today for Los Angeles. After spending a week there he will head for San Francisco. Following a week in San Francisco, he will return to Seattle, his headquarters.

Shearer asserted that the members are highly optimistic over the new business. The men contended that remodeling and refurnishing during the last few years have virtually been at a standstill because of the depression.

"Conditions generally look very good," Shearer said. "Bills are being liquidated and most exhibitors have paid off sound equipment commitments."

In addition to his music activities, Downey is completing production on a picture, his third this season. He is the only independent producer in South America.

Universal Demands Details in a Suit

A motion for a bill of particulars was made by counsel for Universal in Supreme Court yesterday in connection with a suit brought by B. S. Moss Broadway Theatre Co., Inc. for $130,752.

The complaint explains that the action is for alleged injuries to the standards, good name and reputation of the plaintiff's theatre and building which the defendant had leased from the plaintiff. The plaintiff is also seeking expenses allegedly incurred in repairing and renovating the theatre and for the loss of rental value of the premises.

The defendant is charged with the wrongful removal of certain fixtures and equipment from the theatre. The premises involved in this action were known as the B. S. Moss Colony theatre building on Broadway.

The defendant has filed a general denial to allegations of the complaint.

F. H. RICHARDSON'S

BLUE BOOK OF PROJECTION

A PRACTICAL GUIDE TO GOOD OPERATING AND QUICK TROUBLE-SHOOTING

A new Bluebook by Richardson is always an event of signal importance to the motion picture industry. It is being issued at this time to meet the truly urgent demand of thousands of users of the old Bluebooks for an accurate, modern evaluation of the changes and refinements in the art and science of sound reproduction and projection including all the apparatus. Richardson's expert knowledge of the craft he has taught and followed for more than three decades makes this latest treatise, in the opinion of leading authorities, the most comprehensive, most useful projection manual ever published.

700 Pages of Text, Charts and Data

The new Bluebook contains 700 pages and 153 illustrations—photographs and schematics of every description. It is 6x9 in size with large readable type for easy visibility in the projection room under all conditions. It is entirely original from cover to cover, not a line of type from any of the many previous editions being used. Its low price of $5.25 and its handiness in one volume are among the many innovations.

1 IN ONE HANDY VOLUME
The new Bluebook is complete in one handy volume. It is a great improvement over the former expensive and cumbersome three-volume sets.

2 COMPLETE and UP-TO-DATE
The new Bluebook does a three-fold job: (1) it gives a detailed description of the construction, wiring and functioning of every piece of sound and projection apparatus used in a modern projection room. (2) It gives all the instructions for the operation and maintenance of this equipment and (3) it contains a complete trouble-shooting department as a first-aid in breakdowns.

3 QUICK-FINDING INDEX
An extremely simple but comprehensive indexing system makes the new Blue Book a truly great aid to working projectionists. Whatever problem comes up in the day's routine is covered on the instant with hardly more than the twirl of your thumb. Projectionists of long experience in the projection room will be first to appreciate this remarkable time-saver.

4 QUICK TROUBLE-SHOOTER
And it is, within its 700 pages, a practical trouble-shooter, which alone entitles it to a place in every projectionists tool kit.

one of the Halperin Bros. ran into jurisdictional difficulties while shooting at San Pedro, Cal. A third and more significent incident, however, concerns Paramount's plans to shoot background material for "Thirteen Hours by Air" and climaxed when the studio forced I. A. men to resign from their union before they could pick up that assignment. This was followed by a wire sent to all I. A. locals by George Browne, I. A. head, advising them to be prepared to walk out of projection booths if the national union determined upon such a course. Browne, at the same time, telegraphed Paramount theatre owners of his action.

The I. A., according to Finn, in assuming its stand on I.B.E.W., has fallen back on its jurisdiction over all union workers in theatres given at the recent A. F. of L. convention in Atlantic City. He added "Chicago already had been cleared out" of I.B.E.W. men and intimated similar action will be taken elsewhere.

When asked how the I. A. decision affected Hollywood studios, Finn replied he had nothing to say "tonight," stressing the time element and intimating further action may be forthcoming today.

Efforts to reach Pat Casey, studio labor intermediary for major producers, failed last night.

IBEW St. Louis Fight

St. Louis, Nov. 29.—An outgrowth of the row between the I.B.E.W. and the I.A.T.S.E. on the coast has cropped up here in the form of a demand from the I.A.T.S.E. and the operators' union that two electricians each at the Ambassador, Fox, Loew's and Missouri be replaced by their men.

It is understood this has been done.

Herron Sees French Decree Danger Over

Although the danger of regulation of the film industry in France through the enactment of legislation by decree is past, regulatory measures are likely to be introduced when the new Parliament convenes in the near future, Major Frederick L. Herron of the M.P.P.D.A. said yesterday following his return from a month's trip abroad.

Herron pointed out, however, that the new legislation would be "in the open" and the industry would have an opportunity of being heard on it, whereas the decree laws permitted the enactment of a measure without its having passed through the usual legislative channels.

Herron's trip included Spain and England as well as France, and he said that he had observed very good theatre business in all three countries and especially in Spain. He said that a feeling of unrest which is apparent on the Continent appears to be the only influence retarding theatre patronage.

Looking 'Em Over

"Kiss Me Goodbye"

(Celebrity)

This picture, the first of the P. A. Powers Celebrity feature offerings, stars Magda Schneider, Viennese operatic soprano. A musical romance, it is fair light entertainment, but will present an American selling problem chiefly because of lack of known names. Miss Schneider's name may be used, but the other two leading players, Arthur Riscoe and Naunton Wayne, are unknown here.

The star sings effectively and the film's music is attractive, but the story is almost too light. Riscoe and Wayne, two Englishmen, fly to Vienna, meet Miss Schneider and take lodgings with her family. They fall in love with her and seek to get her a chance on the stage. Riscoe believes she should be in a musical show, Wayne that she belongs in opera. Separately they arrange a chance for her, and through a ruse Wayne succeeds in having an opera impresario hear her. She is starred successfully in Donizetti's "Daughter of the Regiment," short snatches of which are heard.

In order that their love for her shall not interfere with their friendship Riscoe and Wayne go their way without her as the film ends on a somewhat inconclusive note. The comedy elements are fairly well handled with an occasional touch of slapstick. The film was directed by Carmine Gallone.

goes back into effect Jan. 1, the date on which the temporary suspension expires. The tax in reality figures 12 per cent. Representative Ward has pointed out that the three per cent admission impost brings the state about $1,200,000 annually, whereas the higher rate would yield $2,000,000 in additional revenues.

Meanwhile, the Ohio I.T.O., through P. J. Wood, secretary, is exerting every effort to defeat reinstatement of the 10 per cent levy. Carlton S. Dargusch, vice-chairman of the State Taxation Commission, estimates that the state will receive $1,500,000 less this year under the lower admission impost than in 1934, when the higher rate was in effect.

Governor Davey, in his address before the Ohio I.T.O. convention, advocated a differential in the rate between theatres which could, and those which could not pass the tax to the public, in case the rate went back to 10 per cent.

The House Taxation Committee has refused by a 10 to 7 vote, to recommend for passage the bill imposing a tax on chain stores, which would affect major and independent circuits. It did, however, recommend by a 13 to 8 vote, passage of the bill levying a tax on personal incomes. It is generally believed, however, that the income tax bill will be defeated when it reaches the Senate.

Collections from the three per cent sales tax so far have averaged $923,000 weekly, which is $77,000 below the estimated $1,000,000 weekly average. Total collections for 43 weeks have been $39,672,317.78.

fact that Republicans had won the county by 55,000. It turned out to be a perfect holiday after all, so the councilman-elect sent a telegram to Postmaster General Farley inviting him to the inauguration.

There is still a fly in the political ointment, but Pettijohn predicts this will be removed. His running mate, Raymond J. Funkhouser, president of the O'Sullivan Rubber Heel Co., is still facing a court contest because his property is owned by Raymond J. Funkhouser, Inc., but Pettijohn says he can prove that Funkhouser owns 98 of the 100 shares in the company.

It's going to be a reform administration, with tax cuts 'n' everything.

and the outlook is still better, Cammack added.

Discussing theatre operation, Cammack asserted that only four houses in the Argentine have cooling systems. In Sao Paulo, Brazil, the Broadway is the only theatre with air conditioning. None of the Brazilian theatres are treated for sound, he said, and extraneous noises can be heard during the shows, much to the discomfort of patrons. It is expected that the Metro, Loew house, when completed will be the first sound treated theatre in Brazil. Most Argentine houses have acoustic treatment, it was stated.

All theatres in the Argentine are compelled to close at midnight. The opening hour is 2 P.M. A repeat booking opens the show, following which a new feature goes on. In Brazil it is compulsory that each theatre book one reel made in South America in each show.

RKO is releasing about 40 features in South American countries, Cammack declared. All pictures are dubbed here, Portuguese being used for Brazil and Spanish for other countries. Costume and musical films are preferred, he said.

There are about 60 theatres in the city of Rio de Janeiro and about 200 in Buenos Aires.

Cammack has been in South America for 11 months and plans to return after the first of the year. Up to the time he joined RKO, he was branch manager for Warners in St. Louis.

Prosecutor's O. K. Placed On Bank Night

Manhattan Ruling Raises Question About Bronx

Although police activity is expected in the Bronx this week in connection with games in theatres, Bank Night has been officially sanctioned by Assistant District Attorney James J. Smith, who last week recommended dismissal of an action brought against Skouras' Academy of Music. However, it is pointed out, Smith's jurisdiction does not include the Bronx.

In recommending dismissal of the Bank Night case, Wilson told Magistrate Anna Kross in Essex Market Court:

"Here is my attitude and here is the law as I see it.

"The charge being one of lottery, we cannot, of course, decide this by hysteria and by the popular clamor —that is, not popular clamor, but the clamor of certain factions in the com-

SCRANTON, PA., Monday, Dec. 2.—M. B. Comerford early this morning was still unconscious following an automobile accident near Daleville on Saturday afternoon. Comerford and his wife were on their way to New York to attend a football game when their car was in a collision with a coal truck. Mrs. Comerford was only slightly injured.

Code Seals in November Fall To a New Low

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 1.—Dropping to a new low since the inception of the code certificate system on July 15th, 1934, the Hollywood Branch of the Production Code Administration during the past month issued code numbers on only 47 features and 32 shorts. The survey includes new films and reissues and dates from Oct. 26 to Nov. 26.

The Hays office approval was stamped on 111 features and 49 shorts, a checkup of the previous month showed.

A total of 998 features and 631 shorts have been okayed since the code seal department was organized.

Chicago Closes, Opens— Zero Hour 6 Tonight In IATSE-IBEW Row

The jurisdictional fight between the I.A.T.S.E. and I.B.E.W. late last night assumed grave proportions and threatened to engulf the industry's five major circuits, as well as every theatre playing Paramount pictures, in a nation-wide operators' strike.

Temporarily closing all of B. and K's. six houses in Chicago's "loop," 38 throughout that city and 100 in the Great States circuit in downtown Illinois as well as Paramount's theatres in Iowa and Nebraska, a temporary agreement, with a deadline at six o'clock tonight, subsequently permitted those houses to reopen at two o'clock yesterday and to continue operation throughout the remainder of the afternoon and evening.

Originally held to Paramount houses, indications now are that the fight between the unions, both affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, is to be carried to the business at large by George Browne, president of the I.A.T.S.E., in what is construed as a move to again return his organization to its position of one time power in the field of studio unionism.

Seizing upon the insistence of the Paramount studio that several technical members of a crew dispatched from the coast to photograph background shots for "Thirteen Hours by Air" resign from the I.A.T.S.E. before starting the assignment, Browne the middle of last week telegraphed all of his locals to be prepared to walk out of Paramount houses. He also wired the company's theatre partners of his action. On Saturday, Browne struck in Chicago and Illinois principally when that night saw a strike called. It ran two hours when, as quickly as they withdrew, I. A. oper-

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

NOT all the dramas are fashioned in Hollywood. Centering chiefly in New York, but with ramifications extending to Chicago, the coast and way stations is one of gigantic proportions. It has to do with financial control and new alignments, self-defense and ambition, Paramount and RKO, Twentieth Century-Fox and Loew's, plus M-G-M, and Warners. That's a huge chunk of this business. That's why this becomes a drama of vast and, perhaps, heroic proportions.

It has to do with the reliably reported plan on the part of Floyd B. Odlum for Atlas and John D. Hertz for the Lehmans to create a General Motors plan for this industry; the reluctance on the part of some to see this come about and the necessity on the part of others to protect their interests and it works out in something like the following manner. . . .

Already important in Paramount, already half owner of RCA's $16,000,000 investment in RKO and all owner where management of the latter company is concerned, the Atlas-Lehman group presumably has been negotiating with Chase to acquire all or a substantial percentage of the bank's interest in Twentieth Century-Fox. With a three-way hold, any G. M. idea obviously would become feasible. While, in pursuance of the G. M. conception, the three companies would follow their courses in a price field designated for each, sans merger, there would be thrown into the same pot formidable theatre interests which, obviously again, might be expected to work in sympathy. . . .

If such a state of affairs should come to pass, any true appraisal of the consequences would be something less than accurate if those outside this selected group were not considered. Let's consider them, then, and see where it leads. For instance, what about Nick Schenck and Loew's, plus M-G-M? And what about Harry M. Warner and his theatre and film company? Any coalition of the massed exhibition interests controlled by Paramount, RKO and Twentieth Century-Fox presents a problem, not to suggest a fear. . . .

If it happened, it might conceivably and logically lead to an understanding between Schenck and Warner on what then would reduce itself to a virtual two-way division of the dominant elements in the business. But it might not. Warner is an individualist; his career, barring one effort to merge with Paramount, one effort to purchase a control of Loew's, plus M-G-M, and one to purchase Universal, reveals he prefers to play it alone. In Twentieth Century-Fox, on the other hand, is Joe Schenck. Nick and Joe, very good brothers and bound by their blood tie, make much more sympathetic allies. . . .

You may figure it out as you like, but this may help. Chase is preparing to clear itself of its holdings in Twentieth Century-Fox under the letter of the Federal law, enacted early in the Roosevelt Administration, which dictates that a bank must be a bank or an investment house, but cannot play double-headers. That establishes the motive. The attitude is advanced for Chase that it does not want control, or anything approaching control, of Twentieth Century-Fox to fall into the hands of the Atlas-Lehman group. Neither do the chief interests nor the management of Twentieth Century-Fox. Nothing is said about the reason in so many words, but you are urged to bear the Atlas-Lehman hookup in Paramount and RKO in the foreground and the G. M. scheme in the background. . . .

The practical aspects of the impending Chase divestment include the formation of a securities syndicate by the Lawrence Stern Company, Chicago investment brokers. It is seeking to arrange for the acquisition of the Chase stock. It would purchase, with resale the clear intent, the preferred and common; if not all, as substantial an amount as it can arrange the capital to buy. Coupled with this potential arrangement is reported an understanding that the Twentieth Century-Fox securities would be distributed, generally if not widely, within ninety days for the express purpose of keeping them out of a single control. The new syndicate is not an Atlas-Lehman enterprise. Furthermore, if Atlas and Lehman share, they will constitute two, not one, mind you, of a number of investment houses lined up to spread the Chase holdings. . . .

The owners of Twentieth Century, among other considerations set up when the merger with Fox Film was effected, acquired one-half of the common of the latter company and approximately one-tenth of the preferred. A reputed proviso in the current deal discussed with Chase sets forth that the dominant factors in Twentieth Century-Fox are to acquire the bank's common while its preferred is to be distributed generally. Boiling it all down, the plan indicates that the Joe Schenck-Darryl Zanuck interests, through whatever arrangements they may make, would assume a larger ownership in Twentieth Century-Fox and enough to keep control in the hands of the present management. Joe is close to Nick, Darryl to Louis B. Mayer. This may seem extraneous data and perhaps it is. At least, here it is. . . .

As recently as ten days ago, this looked like the ticket. As recently as last week, some of the machinery slowed down, then stopped. As recently as now, negotiations are virtually at a standstill. The one certain factor in this tale of finance and films is the necessity for the Chase bank to get rid of its Twentieth Century-Fox holdings at the first reasonable opportunity. If this is not to be the deal, there will be a substitute—a new one or a revamp of terms and conditions, but not of objective. . . .

Delay Expected for Brown Suit at Omaha

OMAHA, Dec. 1. — Trial of the $424,500 damage suit of Vern S. Brown, Missouri Valley, Ia., exhibitor, against the major distributors and a number of individuals is not expected to come up in Federal court here until after the first of the year.

The case went off call in the docket last week, but plaintiff's attorney, Grenville P. North, is at liberty to call it up any time.

Meanwhile, Federal Judge James A. Donohoe has overruled all motions for indefinite postponement, for dismissal of charges or dismissal of any of the 28 named defendants.

BOSTON, Dec. 1.—Cool headedness on the part of Dennis Callahan and Rose Collins, employes at the Broadway, saved over $700 for the management over the week-end.

Union Fight Threatening Nat'l Strike

ators returned to their posts. Yesterday, however, B. and K. and Great States Theatres were unable to open until two o'clock in the afternoon.

It is understood the temporary agreement expiring at six tonight forestalled shutdown of Warner houses in Chicago and RKO and Loew theatres in Greater New York at seven o'clock last night, although Major Leslie Thompson, representing RKO, declared over the telephone from his home in Larchmont he had heard nothing to indicate such a step was contemplated. N. J. Blumberg, general operator of the circuit, likewise said he had had no such information while Charles C. Moskowitz, representing Loew's, Inc., could not be reached for a statement. Joseph Bernhard, general manager of the Warner circuit, was reported out-of-town and unavailable by either telegraph or telephone. M. H. Aylesworth, chairman of the board of RKO who was slated to leave for Hollywood yesterday did not go, presumably because of the tenseness of the general labor situation which may kick back into production on the coast.

The consensus of executive opinion, as expressed last night, holds that the fight, purely jurisdictional, once again "sandwiches" the industry in the middle of a conflict not of its making. The difficulty stems to the cameramen's strike in Hollywood several years ago which resulted in the formation of a union identified with the I.B.E.W.

When the so-called "Big Five" union pact was signed by the studios some time back, the I.A.T.S.E. was not embraced. However, a nine-year contract was signed with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. Since that time, the I.A.T.S.E. sphere of influence on the coast has shriveled. Incidents cropping up in the last few months have persistently demonstrated that the I. A. was smarting under the prevailing condition and had not relinquished any ideas about recouping its lost prestige in that direction.

The "Thirteen Hours by Air" incident, coupled with one involving a unit M-G-M had dispatched to Detroit and the use of I. B. E. W. men on location in San Pedro Harbor by Universal and Halperin Bros. in the last couple of weeks apparently has touched off an in-the-open campaign of aggressiveness.

Impressions that Browne and his organization are eyeing Hollywood were strengthened last night by the statement of a high ranking theatre executive who said:

"The theatres are innocent parties in this fight which looks like a bitter one."

Paramount Silent

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—Paramount executives, assembled here for a sales convention, refused today to comment on the I.A.T.S.E.-I.B.E.W. jurisdictional fight, declaring the decision will come from Washington. Neil F. Agnew held a short sales meeting in the morning and screenings in the afternoon and evening. Studio executives arrive Monday.

The temporary operators' strike today found only the Palace (RKO), Orpheum (Warners) and State-Lake and Woods (Aaron Jones) open in the "loop." At two o'clock the B. and K. theatres threw open their doors. At the same time, 38 B. and K. city houses and 100 downstate units in the Great States circuit opened for business. They were all temporarily closed Saturday night and today.

apparatus not handled by the two testing plants. J. E. Robin, executive secretary of the I. T. S. D. A., will be in charge.

"A lot of junk has been on the market during the depression," Shearer said. "Under the testing plan no inferior product will be handled by supply members."

There are 37 members in the association, the president said. Business during the last year has increased 30 per cent. It is the aim of the organization to increase its advertising budget. This is expected to be acted on at the annual convention at the Edgewater Beach Hotel, Chicago, the latter part of June. A directors' meeting will be held a day before the convention.

mer W. Byers still has under consideration a show cause order sought by Warners and asking for dismissal of the Clougherty action on the ground that the Brooklyn court is without jurisdiction in the matter.

Howard W. Ameli and Milton Paulson, attorneys for Clougherty, recently filed a similar stockholder's action on behalf of Max Goldberg in Federal court in Manhattan and it is believed that trial of this action will be pressed instead of the Clougherty action in Brooklyn.

Prosecutor's O. K. Placed On Bank Night

munity. We must decide this on the law.

"It is my opinion that this comes squarely within the advertising methods business is using these days in order to attract business.

"Bank night is a system by which theatres throughout the country are using a copyrighted system to attract business. In many states in the Union Bank Night has been declared legal and public authorities have seen fit to copyright the schemes. This stamps it with some degree of legality.

"Considering the fact that no state in the Union allows a lottery, lotteries are illegal in all states, yet many of the states where similar cases have been tested have decided in favor of its legality.

Lottery Not Involved

"Now, New York State is not going to be behind in following the trend of the times. Business houses today are obliged to resort to certain methods to attract business. If they keep within the law, we should not criticize them, even if we don't like their methods.

"In my opinion, this plan does not involve the three elements so necessary to a lottery, which are: the offering of a prize, the drawing for the prize and the payment of a considera tion.

"Two of the elements are apparently present; the offering of the prize and the drawing. But persons who enter the theatre may, or may not register. They pay nothing for the privilege of registering, but they do pay for the performance.

"If their name or number is not drawn the first time, they may come back again some other time and without buying anything they may participate in the prize.

"Use Common Sense"

"Now it is about time that we use a little common sense in these things and simply attune the interpretation of the law to methods of the business men of today.

"In my opinion, there is not anything here on which to hold, and will so recommend, that the defendant be discharged."

Louis Weber was attorney for Skouras in the case. He was highly complimented by the magistrate on brief he presented. Mrs. Kross said:

"I want to tell you, after reading the brief, I wanted the people to have an opportunity to oppose it if they saw fit, but I was so convinced there was not sufficient grounds for a hold ing and I was going to discharge."

Wilson then stated:

"We ought to give business a break these days. They have enough trouble without harassing them."

Allied Sees Failure for NRA Revival

Myers Regrets Lack of Local Arbitration

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Predictions that nothing will come of Major Berry's industry conferences for reviving some form of the NRA are contained in the latest issue of the Allied bulletin prepared by Abram F. Myers.

At the same time Myers expresses regret that prospects are not brighter for some form of regional, voluntary industry action for control of abuses.

"While no thoughtful person can support the Berry movement," the bulletin reads, "it is still a matter of regret that industries, such as the motion picture industry, can not rid themselves of unfair and uneconomic

Tentative plans indicate the Independent M. P. T. O. will be the name of the new body. It is not known what effect the change will have on affiliations with the M. P. T. O. A. and Allied. It is proposed that George P. Aarons be retained as counsel and secretary, a post he now holds with the M. P. T. O.

Radio Studio on Coast Is The Vision of Aylesworth

The "wedlock" between radio and films envisioned by M. H. Aylesworth, president of NBC, in Hollywood as far back as 1932 comes a step closer with the formal opening on Saturday of NBC's new coast studio in the location formerly occupied by Consolidated Film Industries, Inc.

The project was first broached by Aylesworth in a general press conference held at the Radio studio over three years ago during which he scoffed at any impressions which may have been afloat at the time that radio was a menace to the film industry and gave it as his analysis that a wedding of the two would redound to the mutual advantage of each form of entertainment. He also made public NBC's plan for the broadcasting plant which is about to open and expressed the hope that the coast film studios would take advantage of its facilities.

Leading film, radio and stage personalities will participate in the dedication which will be broadcast over a coast-to-coast NBC-WJZ network from 10:30 P. M. to midnight, Eastern standard time. David Sarnoff, president of RCA, will speak from New York, while Will H. Hays will extend congratulations from the coast. Ruth Etting will send greetings from Hawaii. Others who will appear on the initial program include Gladys Swarthout, Marion Talley, Irvin S. Cobb, Jack Benny, Mary Livingstone,

Holds Off Until Browne Airs Situation with Company Heads

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—No action affecting the national theatre field will be taken immediately in the jurisdictional fight between the I. A. T. S. E. and I. B. E. W., it was decided here today at a conference among George Browne, I. A. president, and John E. Otterson, Paramount president and other company officials.

No strikes, walkouts or other action will be taken, at least pending a conference among Browne and the heads of major studios. The meeting will take place in New York at an undetermined date.

Browne arrived here, where a Paramount sales meeting is being held, today from Washington, where he was over the week-end. B. & K. houses here and elsewhere in the city and state were closed for a time during the week-end, as were Paramount theatres in Iowa and Nebraska, and were later reopened with a deadline set at six o'clock Monday night. Further action in that regard was halted by the conference, however.

Adolph Zukor said, following the meeting, "After the discussion it was agreed that this is an industry matter rather than a local problem. Representatives of the union and film companies interested will meet in New York at a date to be agreed upon and settle the matter."

It is probable that the joint conference will take place in a week or 10 days.

First of "Top Hat" Cases Up Here Today

The first arbitration case involving "Top Hat" will be held today at the offices of Allied of New Jersey. The case will go on at 2 P. M.

Louis Gold, operator of the Rivoli, Newark, brought the complaint against RKO, contending that the picture is one of the Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers 1934-35 group. The distributor contends that "Top Hat" is one of this season's releases. Louis Nizer will represent RKO and will hold there is nothing to arbitrate since there is no provision in last year's contract for this picture.

Marty Mullin and Sam Pinanski, of the M & P Theatres, Boston, tell us:

"WE'VE DONE OUR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING—AND WE'RE RESTING NICELY, THANK YOU"

"Yes, sir," say MARTY AND SAM, "anybody who wants to worry about what to play during Christmas week, can do so. We've already booked a couple of numbers which are going to carry us through very pleasantly. One of them happens to be Paramount's 'COLLEGIATE', and the other is 'SCROOGE', the new edition of Dickens' 'Christmas Carol' that Paramount has wrapped up for Christmas delivery."

"'COLLEGIATE' " Marty and Sam explain, "will take care of the youngsters between fifteen and twenty-five, and those are the biggest part of our trade during the holidays. 'SCROOGE' is full of the spirit of Christmas; will appeal to everyone from six to sixty and be just the right kind of picture to book the week before Christmas.

"I'll leave the pain of last-minute shopping to friend wife," says MARTY, "and hope she lays off buying me any more of those Christmas Perfectos."

"That goes for me, too," says SAM.

Await Naming Of New Judge In St. Louis

U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals by the end of this week or possibly next.

It is hardly likely the temporary injunction action will be set for hearing before the first of next year. All Federal judges here are said to have their dockets lined up until the end of the month. In the event a judge from outside the city is brought in, this would not advance the date any, it is said, because of the necessary time required by various defense counsel for preparations.

Russell Hardy, prosecuting attorney, is understood to be preparing to recall all witnesses who have appeared in the criminal action for the second case. The Government is determined to make every effort to win the injunction proceedings and bring back witnesses who have already taken the stand to repeat the testimony, and answer further questions not included in the previous transcript.

Government Called 22

Less than $5,000 of the reported $25,000 spent by the Government for the criminal action was charged off to traveling expenses of witnesses. Not only is Hardy preparing to go over the same ground embraced in the three-year period covered by the indictments, but he is also figuring on questioning officers of the three companies and others on deals made from Jan. 11, 1935, to date.

Although 40 witnesses had been subpoenaed, the Government called only 22, exclusive of Gordon E. Youngman, RKO attorney, who voluntarily took the stand to explain a draft which later resulted in the RKO-Warner contract for the Shubert-Rialto. Inasmuch as Hardy plans to try the equity suit as a separate action, additional witnesses may be summoned.

During the first case, the Government was granted a severance for Abel Carey Thomas because of his illness and, despite acquittal of Harry M. Warner, Herman Starr, Gradwell L. Sears, Ned E. Depinet and George J. Schaefer and their companies on the indictment charges, Hardy has refused to dispose of the matter. It's officially on the Federal Court calendar and may be docketed at the convenience of the Government.

To Seek Dismissal

Defense counsel, it is understood, will make renewed efforts to dismiss the equity hearing, citing cases of a similar nature where the court has discharged injunction proceedings without trial after an acquittal by jury.

The first complication the Government has brushed up against in the second case is the resignation of Schaefer from Paramount. He is in Mexico vacationing and whether he will be around for the next trial if, and when, it goes on, is unanswerable at this time.

Meanwhile, certain New York lawyers of the companies involved who had been planning on taking a vacation around the Christmas holidays are holding their contemplated trips in abeyance until a judge has been appointed and a date for trial set. That also goes for the local legal clan.

Coast's Radio Studio Vision Of Aylesworth

Al Jolson, Wallace Beery, Anne Jamison, Ginger Rogers, Nelson Eddy, Edgar A. Guest, Phil Regan, Bing Crosby, Joe Penner, Stan Laurel, Oliver Hardy and George Jessel. The announcing will be handled by James Wallington, Don Wilson and Sam Hayes.

Aylesworth is now on his way west as are Herbert J. Yates, president of Consolidated whose company was in charge of construction, and W. Ray Johnston, president of Republic Pictures. Richard C. Patterson, Jr., executive vice-president of NBC, departed for Hollywood on Saturday, but is making stopovers at Chicago, Salt Lake City and other cities before reaching the coast.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 2.—NBC's new broadcasting studios are located in the building formerly occupied by Consolidated Film Industries. It has been completely refinished along conservatively modern lines and now is both fireproof and earthquake-proof.

All construction has been in accordance with the principles followed and developed in Radio City and the latest technical, soundproofing and air-conditioning equipment installed. RCA apparatus is used throughout.

Has Audition Studio

The main building, two stories high, houses three studios and various offices and is 140 ft. long and 75 ft. deep. Its exterior is of white stucco with chromium and black metal trim. Over the entrance is a large vertical "NBC" sign, black and chromium and neon-lighted. A second, smaller adjacent building has been converted into a single studio for auditions and is of similar construction.

Across the front of the main building are eight offices—for Don Gilman, NBC vice-president in charge of the western division when he visits Hollywood; for Studio Manager John Swallow and the program department. Offices for artists' service, legal, press and sales departments, the music library, and the accounting department, are also on this floor.

The center of the main floor is Studio D, 35 ft. long and 23 ft. wide with control and observation rooms. Studios A and B form the entire second floor; the former seats 276, the latter 210. Studio C is in the smaller building.

Equity Will Force Members Into Guild of the Screen Actors' Guild will pay dues to that organization while they remain within the Guild's jurisdiction and dues so paid will be remitted to Equity by the Guild, it was said. However, if Equity members go to the coast to participate in legitimate stage performances the Guild membership requirement will not be enforced. The ruling will apply only to those actually employed in the studios. More than 200 Equity members are believed to be affected by the ruling, an Equity official estimated.

Stay Is Denied on Filming "January"

District of New York has denied an application for a temporary injunction and the infringement suit now goes on the calendar for trial.

The controversy involves the right of a publisher-agent to sue for sound film rights when the contract he made with an author dates back many years before sound films were originated.

"Captain January" was written about 40 years ago by Mrs. Laura Richards, who now lives in Maine. It was published in 1890 by the Page company, acting both as publisher and agent. Page sold the silent picture rights to Sol Lesser of Principal Pictures in 1923. Early in the year Fox began negotiations with Page for the story, but failed to get results after agreeing on a price of $20,000.

Then, proceeding on the theory that partners can sell each other out, the company bought the sound rights from Mrs. Richards. Her contract with Page calls for 55 per cent payment to that company. One-third of the purchase price went to Lesser to cover the silent rights.

Page still charges infringement and the issue before the court is whether Page can seek payment from Twentieth Century-Fox or from Mrs. Richards.

Twentieth Century-Fox is to go ahead with the release of the picture.

St. Louis Amusement Figures Quit Posts

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 2.—Two important changes have taken place in the St. Louis Amusement Co. as a result of differences with Leto Hill, supervisor.

Bess Schulter, who has been chief booker for a number of years and owns several neighborhood houses, has resigned. Al Zimbalist, advertising and publicity head for the 20 houses during the last two years, also has resigned.

It is understood Mrs. Schulter will devote her time to operation of her theatres. Zimbalist has gone to New York. He is reported to have lined up with an independent circuit in an executive capacity.

By virtue of its interest in Skouras Bros. Enterprises, Warners control the St. Louis Amusement Co., which is in bankruptcy with Nelson Cunliff as trustee.

Sylvia Sidney to G.B.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 2.—Michael Balcon, G. B. production head, has closed a deal with Walter Wanger under which Sylvia Sidney will be loaned to G. B. for a picture to be made at Shepherd's Bush, England. Alfred Hitchcock will direct.

Wanger issued a statement in which he said this was the beginning of a loaning arrangement for talent between himself and G. B.

Critics Meet Again

New York screen critics met again yesterday on the formation of an organization and discussed further details. They plan to make awards for the best film of the year, the best performances by actor and actress and the best script. A formal announcement is expected today.

No Ascap Fee Cuts With Warners Out the society of the Warner music subsidiaries.

Ascap, a representative of the organization said, believes that its catalogue, with or without the Warner music, is worth the fees now in force. It was also indicated at Ascap that the organization will make claim to the continuing licensing rights after Jan. 1 of Warner music in the society's jurisdiction up to that time. It was stated that copyright lawyers had offered the opinion that Ascap could retain the licensing rights to the Warner music now in its catalogue, despite the resignations, because those rights had been assigned to Ascap by the authors and composers.

The Ascap board is scheduled to meet on Thursday and at that time may take a formal stand on these questions. Meanwhile, Warners has not made known what policy it will pursue after Jan. 1 on licensing either exhibitors or radio broadcasters for the public performance of the Warner controlled music.

Allied Sees Failure For Revival of NRA

practices by voluntary action and within the limits of existing law. All that is required is an impersonal consideration of the problems, plus the will to cooperate. One can not but mourn the many brave expeditions into the realms of voluntary cooperation that have foundered on the rocks of selfishness. But these failures have left their scars and it is doubtful if any ambitious plan can be launched without reopening old wounds. As said by Allied following the collapse of NRA, whatever is accomplished along this line must begin in the territory—at the bottom; must be limited in scope; and must come to the New York executives with a record of accomplishment before they can be expected to show any interest in it."

Allied has prepared a white book on its legislative campaign for distribution among theatre patrons.

"U's Sioux Falls Accounts Are Split

OMAHA, Dec. 2. — Thirty-six towns, until recently served through the Universal branch office at Sioux Falls, S. D., will be added to the Omaha branch office and served from here, Jerry Spandau, branch manager says.

Spandau's statement came upon the heels of an announcement from Universal home office that the Sioux Falls branch office would be discontinued.

The towns served out of Sioux Falls have been divided and assigned to the Minneapolis and Omaha branch offices. Eddie Gruenberg Sioux Falls manager, and one salesman, join the Minneapolis branch as salesmen.

Guaranteed Pictures have acquired the American distribution rights to "Robinson Crusoe," made on the actual location of the story by International Prod., and a film version of "His Apologies," a Famous Films production of the Kipling poem.

IATSE Drops Strike Moves Pending Meet labor, is reported to have played a substantial part in the negotiations. He told MOTION PICTURE DAILY tonight the meeting with Browne lasted 10 minutes, and that "nothing was discussed except that the matter was an industry problem and all producers should meet and talk it over with the union." Barney Balaban also played an important role in today's deliberations.

New York Meeting

Top executives of various major companies held a meeting at the Hays office yesterday, which was understood to have been in relation to the union situation. It was considered unusual in that Will H. Hays was not present, he being on the Coast.

Order Coast Shift

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 2.—F.W.C., Warners, RKO and all other Los Angeles houses were ordered today by the I.A.T.S.E. projectionists' and stagehands' local to replace all I.B.E.W. men with I.A.T.S.E. members at once. The order followed a telephone conversation between local heads and George Browne in Chicago this afternoon. Lou Halper of Warners said he would act tomorrow following written confirmation of the order.

Studios are quiet today. They are believed the next objective of the I.A.T.S.E. jurisdictional drive. Union trouble broke out today at Pasadena. Rollie Haywood, Local 150 head, began a newspaper and picket line drive against the Crown City Amusement Co., believed retaliation for the alleged lockout of union men last week over wage scales. The company has five houses.

Keith Glennon, Paramount studio manager, said: "There has been no local studio conflict with the unions and no trouble is expected."

Lincoln in Clear

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 2.—The temporary walkout ordered by the I.A.T.S.E. was not effective here. All I.A. men employed by J. H. Cooper of the Lincoln Theatre Corp., a Paramount subsidiary, were working as usual Sunday.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY learned that the local has had no contract with any theatres here since Sept. 1, when the old agreement expired. The men are working under the old deal.

This was figured as placing the operators "on the spot" in case they obeyed a strike mandate and perhaps finally persuading local exhibitors to open shop.

Unions Settle Dispute

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 2.—I.A.T.S.E. maintenance men have replaced representatives of the I.B.E.W. at local first run houses, after both organizations worked out an agreement among themselves.

Des Moines Hit

DES MOINES, Dec. 2.—Tri-State Theatres reopened at two o'clock Sunday after a three-hour shutdown. Ralph Branton asserted there was no local trouble, but that the walkout had been ordered from national I.A.T.S.E. headquarters as a step including these and other Paramount houses in the jurisdictional fight with the I.B.E.W.

IBEW Men Dropped

DETROIT, Dec. 2.—Five I.B.E.W. men were discharged from the Fox over the week-end and replaced by I.A.T.S.E. maintenance men when the latter organization insisted on such a move.

David Idzal, manager, who had just returned from New York, met the request of the I.A.T.S.E. rather than face a walkout. This is regarded here as a reverberation of the studio fracas between the two unions.

Report No Upset Here

"Everything is quiet at the Paramount and I haven't heard a thing," Bob Weitman stated yesterday in response to queries by MOTION PICTURE DAILY on the reported withdrawal of I. A. T. S. E. men as a result of a jurisdictional dispute with the I. B. E. W.

Lubitsch Sees Film Income of a Billion

000,000 persons, as compared with 60,000,00 in previous recent years. Next year's totals may reasonably be expected to be even larger, Lubitsch said, and using the Hays' organization's 25-cent admission average the receipts may approximate the one billion and 40 million dollar figure.

"To meet this tremendous box-office demand Paramount started months ago on its 1936 production program," Lubitsch said. "Our present schedule calls for 38 releases between January and August next year. Many of the pictures are finished and ready for release, others are nearing completion at the studio and our plans for the balance are already well formed."

The Paramount sales meeting is being attended by a large delegation of home office and studio executives and district sales managers. The meeting winds up today.

Neil Agnew declared Paramount plans to spend $500,000 in the next five months on a special national advertising campaign in daily newspapers on the forthcoming product. The plan provides for full page displays in large city dailies.

Court Upholds the Missouri Sales Tax

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 2.—Without comment Circuit Judge Sezier today upheld the constitutionality of Missouri's one per cent sales tax by sustaining the demurrer of Collector Forest Smith in the suit brought by a Joplin cafeteria, which charged the tax was a property and not a sales levy. The demurrer held the tax was an excise measure. The plaintiff may appeal to the Missouri Supreme Court.

Fox Quins Unit on Way

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—The Twentieth Century-Fox company on the way to Callander, Ont., to film the Dionne quintuplets passed through here today. Jean Hersholt who will play the role of Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, and Dorothy Peterson, who will be a nurse, were the only professionals in the group.

Meet the M.P's

London, Nov. 25.—The following British film men are entitled to write M. P. (Member of Parliament) after their names as a result of the general elections:

Harry Day, theatre owner.

J. F. Emery, circuit chief.

Norman Hulbert, news theatre man.

Beverly Baxter was elected to Parliament for the Wood Green, London division, but about the same time resigned his post as director of public relations for Gaumont British.

Thomas Ormiston, previously a member, lost his seat by a small majority.

Talks Begun in K. C. On Operator Pacts

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 2.—Harland Holmden, third vice-president of the I.A.T.S.E., and in charge of local operators' union No. 170, met here with a theatre owners' committee in an effort reestablishing contractual relations. The union has not had a contract with subsequent runs for two or three years.

Nothing definite came out of the meeting. Holmden had to return to Cleveland, but will come back probably this week, for further conferences.

The local union some weeks ago, before Holmden came in, asked for a 20 per cent increase. Stage hands signed earlier this fall a new contract.

Meet Again to Talk New Theatre Group

Determined to keep the plan alive, sponsors of the proposed Independent Theatre Circuit will hold another meeting Thursday at Harry Brandt's office in an effort to get a committee contacting exhibitors again.

About 100 theatres are sought as the nucleus for the circuit. More than half were pledged some time ago, but Brandt refused to join unless the century mark had been reached. A few others also signed agreements, but never came through with financial support. Interest in the nebulous circuit waned shortly before Brandt suffered a nervous breakdown, but now that he has recovered sufficiently to take an active interest in the meetings, the sponsors are making a last effort to get the idea over now or drop it entirely.

Skouras Goes West To Talk Contracts

Accompanied by Francis Reed, attorney of Hughes, Shurman & Dwight, Spyros Skouras left for the coast Sunday for final discussions with National Theatre operating heads on five-year contracts.

Skouras and Reed yesterday talked with Elmer C. Rhoden, Midwest head, and Rick Ricketson, Fox Intermountain chief, in Kansas City, and left there last night for Los Angeles by plane. On the coast they will confer with Arch Bowles, Frank L. Newman, Sr., and J. J. Sullivan. They will remain on the coast two weeks.

Larry Kent, assistant to Sullivan, flew to Los Angeles Saturday after a week in New York.

Kuykendall Asks Industry Cooperate

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 2.—Ed Kuykendall, president of the M. P. T. O. A., pleaded for industrywide cooperation against unfair and discriminatory laws and taxes, in an address to exhibitors and exchangemen at the Coronado Hotel here today. He said the industry has many problems which should be solved from within. He asked all to support the movement sponsored by the M. P. T. O. A.

Fred Wehrenberg, president of the M. P. T. O. of St. Louis, Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois, presided. Kuykendall's talk here ended a three-month speaking tour of the country.

Begins Tour to End Actors' Relief Row

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Hallie E. Flanagan, director of the arts relief program, is on a swing around the country, apparently seeking to smooth out controversies which have arisen as to the persons to be relieved, it was learned today.

Miss Flanagan was in Chicago yesterday. She left for San Francisco and Los Angeles. In the latter city, it is expected, she will seek to settle the row raised by Equity over the alleged relief of amateurs while professionals are left on the outside.

Eddie Peabody, m.c.'ing the stage show at the National, proved to be a drawing card, and tilted the gross to $4,500, which was $1,500 over the line.

Other first runs did about average, and in some instances a little better. The first real cold spell of the winter tended to drive some people into theatres.

It's a Laugh!

Seattle, Dec. 2.—The heartiest audience laugh in many months was accorded one scene in "Thanks a Million," which played the Orpheum.

It's the scene where Fred Allen, playing the political manager, advises Crooner Dick Powell that he can be elected governor because "Out in the state of Washington they elected a jazz band leader lieutenant-governor."

This city being Lieutenant-Governor Vic Meyers' home, the dialogue in that part of the film was stepped up with all the sound volume possible by Manager Herbert Sobottka, and the audience reaction was sensational!

"Opera" Leads General Gain In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 2.—The start of Sunday shows gave downtown houses a much-needed lift. The best thing in town was "A Night at the Opera," where the extra day pushed the take to an excellent $18,000.

At the Stanley, "The Last Days of Pompeii" and Rudy Vallee's band was something of a disappointment, due chiefly to the fact that the chief draw for a Sunday would have been the stage presentation, and this is forbidden by the Pennsylvania law. In six days for the picture and five for Vallee—the house opened its new bill on Thanksgiving Day—the gross was only $18,500, considerably short of expectations.

"Mutiny on the Bounty" continued to show strength at the Warner, where in its second week there and third downtown it collected a fine $6,600. Only the Alvin got little or none at all of the extra business, doing barely $4,000 with "Music Is Magic" and "His Night Out." Weather conditions for the week were favorable.

Total first run grosses were $49,100. Average is $42,000.

"The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo" with Jimmy Lunceford's Band dropped $2,700 below the RKO Palace average to a $12,250 take.

CLEAR GAIN

THE photographic quality of Eastman Super X Panchromatic Negative is truly outstanding. Equally important, however, is the fact that the pronounced improvement which has been achieved involves no compromise. It does not mean the sacrifice or impairment of any other desirable or essential quality. It is clear gain for the industry, and for the public. Eastman Kodak Company, Rochester, N. Y. (J. E. Bowes Unit at Fox Upsets Milwaukee MILWAUKEE, Dec. 2.—Fox's experiment of Major Bowes' Amateurs on the stage and "Grand Exit," first run flicker at its Oriental, east side nabe house, grossing $6,000, made itself felt on downtown first run business. The take, however, was considerably below what the Bowes' unit did which played the Riverside here several months ago.

High for the so-so week was "Mutiny on the Bounty," which closed its second week Nov. 25 with $8,000 at Fox's Wisconsin, average for the house. "In Old Kentucky" was good for $3,200 during its first three days.

The Riverside with Roy Atwell and "1,000 a Minute," was the only other house to beat average, doing $5,300, just $300 to the good. The Milwaukee and Wisconsin exposition which closed after running nine days attracted 140,316 admissions, which also helped to cut into the opening days for downtown houses. Weather was cloudy and cold.

No Stage Policy Set For St. Louis House

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 2.—Booking of the Olsen & Johnson unit at the Ambassador, starting Dec. 21, does not indicate a definite stage policy for the house, according to Fanchon & Marco officials.

While it is likely other F. & M. unit shows will be dated from time to time, theatre officials blame the musicians' union for the few stage bookings in the house. Harry C. Arthur, Jr., has made several attempts to work out a long-term deal with the union.

The Olsen & Johnson show, which will come here directly from the Roxy, New York, after a week's engagement, Dec. 13-20, will have 60 people on the stage. The show will comprise 17 scenes and will last one hour.

The Olsen & Johnson unit, booked for the Roxy beginning Dec. 13, will be featured in addition to the regular stage show. Universal's "The Great Impersonation" will be the screen attraction during the week.

"Splendor" Is $16,000 Draw, Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—The second open Sunday brought top-notch business to downtown houses. Since most of the theatres changed their bills Thursday, Thanksgiving Day grosses only affect a few of the box-office scores. The holiday, however, was handicapped by rainy weather.

Aided by a good Sunday and the holiday, "Splendor" clicked with a big $16,000 for its first week at the Aldine. "Mutiny on the Bounty" still kept in the running in its third and final Stanley week, grossing $17,000 for six days without Thanksgiving Day business. Legion Films To Be Listed For U.S. Here

Three Ratings Going to Catholic Dioceses

A national Legion of Decency list is to be prepared in New York and issued from here to Catholic dioceses throughout the country in accordance with arrangements decided upon at the recent general meeting of bishops held in Washington.

This action marks the first establishment of a national Legion of Decency list and, it is understood, is intended to supplant various local listing activities which have previously been carried on.

Definite arrangements for the preparation of the New York list have not been announced, but it is learned that, in all probability, the reviewing work will be done by the Motion Picture Bureau of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae

Radio Gets Ascap Notice on Warners

Ascap yesterday despatched its formal notifications to radio broadcasting licensees that resignations from the society may be submitted as a result of the loss from the Ascap catalogue of future Warner controlled music.

The action was taken immediately following receipt by the society of the formal written notification from the Warner music companies that they would not renew their membership in Ascap on expiration Dec. 31. A clause in the radio broadcasters' contracts with Ascap automatically grants them the right to resign from the society whenever its available music is appreciably reduced. The formal notifications to the broadcast-

Bank Night Is Given Higher Court Ruling

The first test case in Special Sessions, Manhattan, on Bank Night, was decided in favor of the local game agent when Judges Murphy, Gresson and Nolan dismissed an action against the Washington, 149th St. and Amsterdam Ave., after Assistant District Attorney Goldman had recommended such a move. The case was scheduled for last week, but had been put over until yesterday due to failure of Patrolman Kiernan, co-complainant, to appear.

With Kiernan showing up yesterday, the assistant district attorney, in favoring dismissal, told the three judges that there was "insufficient evidence," that "the game was not a lottery" and that patrons did not have to pay to enter in order to win. The only

Berry Admits NRA Is Dead In Statement

Calls Upon Industry to Avoid "Jitters"

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Declaring flatly that "NRA is dead," George L. Berry, coordinator for industrial cooperation, tonight called upon industry not to "indulge in a bad case of NRA jitters" when considering the conference which he will open in Washington next week.

Seen as a last minute effort to head off an anticipated denunciation of the conference by Secretary of Commerce Roper's business advisory council, which meets here tomorrow and from which several important members are declared prepared to resign if the body doesn't take an attitude of opposition, Berry's statement stressed the fact that this was to be a meeting run by industry and labor, from which he anticipated recommendations for

"Wanderer of the Wasteland"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 4.—Based on the Zane Grey novel, this western has all that patrons and showmen expect in outdoor action dramas. Following the familiar pattern with the beautifully photographed Death Valley scenery featured, the picture deals with elements that have an understood entertainment value.

Dean Jagger, thinking that he has killed his worthless brother, flees to the wastelands. Found and befriended by Edward Ellis, owner of a rich mine, the pair work the claim. Meeting an eastern girl, Gail Patrick, who with her father and mother, Charles Waldron and Anna Nilsson, have come to dig a fortune out of the hills, romance builds for the boy and girl. Claim-jumpers headed by Larry and Monte Blue plan to loot Ellis of his holdings. Jagger gets wind of their intentions and sets a trap for the raiders. There follows a thrilling chase and gun battle in which Jagger saves Miss Patrick and Ellis. The romantic finale has Jagger discovering that he is not guilty of his suspicion of murder and sharing part of Ellis' mine with the girl.

Concentrating on thrill action, Otto Lovering's direction permits that quality to dominate as the individual work of the players is made subordinate. Yet the performances are convincing in relation to the plot's theme and Stuart Anthony's screen play contrives to get considerable comedy into the yarn.

It is substantial fare for juvenile audiences and the picture also holds interest for adult western fans.

Production Code Seal No. 1,023. Running time, 62 minutes. "G."

"Too Tough to Kill"

(Columbia)

SAN DIEGO, Dec. 4.—This is an action love drama built around the construction of a great aqueduct from Parker Dam on the Colorado to Los Angeles and other coast cities.

Its entertainment appeal, such as it is, is chiefly in cave-ins, landslides and explosions in the building of the Whitney Tunnel. There is perhaps sufficient suspense to intrigue the general run of audiences, although the love interest is meager. Timely story material, photography and players look like the best factor to be stressed in promotion.

The picture features the battle between Victor Jory as John O'Hara, two-fisted engineer, and an unknown force that is hampering the completion of the tunnel. With the aid of Sally O'Neill as Miss Miller of the Chronicle, Jory exposes Bill Anderson, assistant engineer, played by Robert Gleckler, who has been in league with rival contractors in causing the landslides. O'Hara, of course, falls for the girl reporter.

Comic relief is well supplied by Johnny Arthur as a news photographer. Thurston Hall does what he can in a brief appearance as a hard-boiled managing editor who sends Sally to the jinx tunnel after overhearing her boasting to the staff how she can handle the job. D. Ross Lederman directed from a story by Robert Speers.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 58 minutes. "G."

Allied White Book 23-Page Pamphlet

Allied's White Book published to gain support for the Pettengill and Neely anti-block booking and blind selling bills is a 23-page pamphlet aimed for distribution by exhibitor members and the 35 groups which have come out in support of the measures.

A list of these organizations is printed in the book along with the names of 43 educational, religious and civic leaders who have indorsed the Pettengill bill.

A foreword says the purpose of the booklet is "to supply accurate information to the movie-goers of America —and, more especially, to the parents of juvenile and adolescent movie-goers —relative to certain trade practices imposed upon the independent motion picture theatre owners by the major producers and distributors of motion pictures which practices have a direct bearing on the character of entertainment offered by the independent theatres to the public."

Six of the eight chapters give the Allied definition of block booking and blind selling and their effects. Chapter V insists the Pettengill and Neely bills, which are identical, are the only remedy. Chapter VI is titled: "Big Eight Propaganda Exposed." It purports to answer the majors' contentions that block booking is not compulsory; that block booking compels exhibitors to play the good pictures; that the bills will work undue hardships on producers and distributors, and that the proposed legislation is without precedent.

A list of endorsers of the bills is given on page 20. This is followed by a discussion of the meaning of the Allied seal, a reprint of the Pettengill bill and a glossary of industry terms.

A direct appeal for aid of readers of the booklet in support of the bills is made.

which organization has been active for many years in reviewing pictures. During the past 10 months the bureau has prepared the classification of pictures which has been issued by the authorities of the Archdiocese of New York.

Under the new national list motion pictures will be classified as follows:

A—Not disapproved.

B—Disapproved for youth with a word of caution even for adults.

C—Disapproved for all.

This designation of pictures, it is explained, being a general list is intended to confine itself to "negative commendation" where pictures are not disapproved. It is to be left to the authorities in the various dioceses to give positive praise to worthy pictures, if they see fit to do so.

The list is to be made available regularly to the press. Local councils of the Legion of Decency have been asked to support the national program and to depend upon the new national list of pictures to the exclusion of all others.

Radio Gets Ascap Notice on Warners

ers, however, could not be sent out until Ascap received written notification of the withdrawal of the Warner music companies. Only an oral notification was given at the Ascap board meeting last week.

Few, if any, radio broadcasters are expected to cancel their Ascap contracts as a resutl of this development and the principal significance of Ascap's notification to the broadcasters, therefore, is the further evidence it affords that the society does not propose to reduce its licensing rates as a result of the loss of the Warner music. If such a reduction was being considered, it was pointed out, Ascap undoubtedly would have advised its licensees of the fact concurrently with the notification that existing contracts could be cancelled. A formal statement on rates, however, has not yet been made by Ascap. The subject may be up for discussion at today's meeting of the Ascap board.

It was stated at the society's offices that all music firms controlled by film companies other than Warners have either advised the organization that they would renew their memberships Dec. 31 or have indicated that they would. These include publishing companies controlled by Paramount, M-G-M and Fox.

Appeal to Be Filed On Missouri Ruling

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 4.—Attorneys for the Joplin cafeteria company which lost a court attack on the sales tax law have indicated they will file an appeal to the Missouri Supreme Court.

Judge Nike Sevier in the Cole County Circuit Court sustained a demurrer of State Auditor Forrest Smith without making comment on the constitutionality of the law.

Disney 34 Today

Walt Disney's 34 today. Seven years ago at the age of 27 he started Mickey Mouse on the road to fame, and during the 84 months since that time he has been pursuing Mickey and his other creations along the road to fame at a dizzy pace.

So far, he says, fame hasn't felt different from obscurity. He can't impress his wife, he can't make his daughter obey and he can't keep fleas off his dogs. On a few occasions he has been able to get good seats to football games, but these have not interfered with his work.

after completing a course in advertising, he joined Kinemacolor as advertising manager. He left this post in 1909 to become president of Celebrated Players Film Corp. at Chicago. Four years later he joined Equitable Pictures as general manager and secretary. In 1917, Feist associated with Goldwyn Distributing Corp. as vice-president and general manager in charge of sales. Two years later he joined Joseph M. Schenck as supervisor of features.

Seek Stay to Stop Zirn's Litigation

Beekman, Bogue, Leake, Black & Stephens, attorneys for former Paramount bank creditors, filed a motion in Federal district court here yesterday asking that Samuel Zirn, attorney, either be enjoined from continuing litigation against Paramount in the state courts on behalf of former bondholders of Paramount Publix or be cited for contempt. The motion was set for hearing next Wednesday before Federal Judge Goddard.

The plaintiffs contend that Zirn's state court suits which are aimed at acts which occurred prior to the Paramount Publix receivership and to the company's voluntary petition for receivership are invalidated by the Federal court order of last June which confirmed the Paramount reorganization plan. They assert that a provision of the plan calls for the withdrawal of litigation by all classes of creditors the settlement of whose claims was provided for in the plan.

"cleaner competition, better conditions for labor and a sounder philosophy of operation."

Unemployment and taxation apparently will be the predominant topics of discussion. According to an analysis of correspondence from industrial and labor sources, it was asserted,

"The enthusiasm which attended the birth of the Recovery Act and the new hope it gave to a depressed nation," he lamented, "seems to have turned by some strange process into despair and hate and vindictiveness."

Bank Night Is Given Higher Court Ruling

charge, the assistant district attorney, stated was that for entertainment.

As a result, the three judges informed the patrolman to advise his superiors not to make any further arrests in connection with this particular game. Some time ago, a Manhattan magistrate dismissed a case against the Gotham. Pending in a Bronx Magistrate's Court is an action against the Bronx Opera House, which had been postponed indefinitely until the outcome of the Special Sessions action.

All three theatres are operated by Harry Harris, who now plans to extend the game in five or six more units in his circuit.

Last week, Magistrate Anna Kross threw out a similar action against the Academy of Music when Assistant District Attorney James J. Wilson recommended dismissal on the same grounds as given in the Washington case. In this instance, Louis Weber, attorney for Skouras, represented the defendant, while in the Special Sessions' hearing the Bank Night attorney appeared.

Nothing has yet developed this week on reports police activity against Bank Nights in the Bronx would be renewed. Theatre managers who had been tipped off have not heard further than the first report.

Several weeks ago, Special Sessions in Brooklyn held against the Winthrop in connection with games. Melvin Albert of Weisman, Quinn, Allen & Spett appealed to the Appellate Division where the case now remains for disposal. It will probably be heard next month.

Although District Attorney Wilson brought out the fact Bank Night was a copyrighted game in the Academy of Music hearing, the subject did not come up yesterday until the judges themselves inquired. The information that it was then was supplied.

Fred Stone Named Rogers Fund Head

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Owen D. Young, chairman of the Will Rogers Memorial Commission Committee, today stated that the following officers of the commission had been elected: Fred Stone, Forest Hills, L. I., president; Oscar Lawler, Los Angeles; Ulric Bell, Washington, and Rex Beach, New York, vice-presidents; Jesse H. Jones, Houston, treasurer; James G. Blaine, New York, assistant treasurer; and Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, Bronxville, N. Y., secretary.

Vice-president John N. Garner will continue as honorary chairman of the commission. Members of the executive committee are as follows:

Young, New York; Will H. Hays, New York; Jones, Houston; Amon G. Carter, Fort Worth; Patrick J. Hurley, Tulsa, Okla.; Bell, Washington. Members of the executive committee yesterday reviewed the progress of the campaign to date, but more specifically considered the permanent organization of the Will Rogers Memorial Commission. The committee learned with special interest of a meeting being held in Oklahoma, and progress which was being made in the states of Ohio and Michigan, it was stated.

Showed Men Films, Declares Lubitsch

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Discussing the Paramount sales meeting held here, Ernst Lubitsch said: "We held this meeting not to tell the salesmen what we will make, but to show them what we have made. Never before have we had so many pictures completed and nearly completed to show our men. I am glad to say they were enthused.

"Pictures we plan to make, he continued, "will be built with one idea in mind—their box-office value. Pictures that make money are usually good pictures, and that is what we intend to produce."

Asked what he thought of British competition, he said that if good pictures are made abroad with American appeal they are welcome in this country.

Before leaving today John E. Otterson, president, said that he felt the contact with the field forces had been a great success. He predicted that showing the men product already on hand would result in a healthy sales increase.

Contests Ahead for Local 306 Offices

Several contests are in prospect for executive positions in Local 306 as a result of nominations made last night at a meeting in Odd Fellows' Hall, Brooklyn. Elections will be held Dec. 18.

Joseph D. Basson, president, faces competition from Alex Polin and Ben Norton.

Other nominations were: Vice-president, Frank Ruddock; treasurer, Frank Pircher and Jimmy Ambrosio; recording secretary, Herman Telber (incumbent), and William Green; financial secretary, Charles Beckman.

About 800 members were present at the meeting.

Sharafs Intervene In the Warner Suit

Judge Henry W. Goddard in Manhattan Federal Court yesterday granted the petition of Emelia and Morris Sharaf to intervene as co-plaintiffs in an action brought by Norman Johnson, as stockholder, against Warners.

The petition explained that the Sharafs are residents of Massachusetts and between them own 3,712 shares of Warner common stock. This action seeks to enjoin the meeting of stockholders in Wilmington, Dec. 9. They are opposed to the ratification of an alleged compromise agreement involving the transfer of 90,000 shares of Warner stock to Renraw, Inc., and the settlement of a stockholder's action brought in 1934 by Max Goldberg.

union officials on the studio and theatre labor situation resulting from the jurisdictional dispute between the I.A.T.S.E. and the I.B.E.W.

However, indications yesterday were that the projected meeting would not be held until some time next week, no definite date having been set yet. Pending the meeting and its outcome, the I. A. has agreed to order no strikes or walkouts of its members such as those which closed Paramount affiliated theatres in the middle west temporarily last week-end. Indications are that the I.A., at the coming session with film company representatives, will demand assurance that its members eligible for studio employment will not be discriminated against. It is also reported, but not verified, that the I.A. may ask the complete ouster of I.B.E.W. men from theatres and studios.

CALLANDER, Ont., Dec. 4.—A Canadian union photographer and technician will be employed for each American on Twentieth Century-Fox's company here to film scenes of the Dionne quintuplets for "The Country Doctor," according to a tentative agreement reached today.

A union dispute arose when Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, the quintuplets' physician, advised the film company that only six technicians would be permitted in the hospital instead of the 11 technician members of the unit. The Canadian union insisted upon 11 of its alternates, regardless.

Foreign Plans Of M-G-M Not Ready—Loew

Production Abroad Stays As in Past, He Says

Describing recent reports as "just a bubble," Arthur Loew, vice-president in charge of M-G-M's foreign activities, stated yesterday no definite production plans abroad have been made. He added the status of foreign production remains as it always has been.

M-G-M has been mulling such plans, Loew said. Ben Goetz, former vice-president of Consolidated Film, joined the company recently to make a survey in England looking toward the establishment of a laboratory and also to look into the possibility of production.

Goetz will arrive from the coast shortly, en route to London, where he will spend several months checking into both situations. Decision on both matters is contingent on his analysis.

If, and when, M-G-M decides to go ahead on production, activity will be

"Dream" Is $93,000 Draw at Music Hall

"I Dream Too Much" at the Music Hall garnered a nice $93,000 for the first seven days and entered its second week yesterday. For the first four days the take amounted to $69,000 and on the fifth day the take rose to $76,000. The Center, on the third week of "Thanks a Million," showed a profit, grossing around $23,000. The picture is now in its fourth week.

"In Old Kentucky" at the Roxy ended an eight-day run last night with approximately $45,000, slightly under expectations. "Miss Pacific Fleet" starts today. "She Couldn't Cook" has been booked for Christmas week.

Warner Examination Is Denied by Court

Supreme Court Justice Joseph M. He also sought to enjoin the other 36,570 stockholders from voting upon a settlement contract at the meeting

City Finishes U. A. Audit; Will Levy Upon All Income

The city finance department yesterday completed its audit of the books of the local United Artists Exchange for the purpose of levying against its income in connection with the city sales tax. The exchange was notified by the department that an assessment covering the period from Dec. 28 last to Mar. 1, 1935, would be sent it within the next few days.

The assessment, it is understood, will be based on the entire revenue of the exchange, regardless of whether it originated from theatres located outside the city or state and, on this basis, is expected to be approximately double the assessment of $9,000 levied against the exchange some time ago. The city computed the first assessment only on the basis of revenue obtained from sources within the city limits.

The city's efforts to collect the sales tax are being contested by organized local distributors with the United Artists situation as the test case. A hearing has been held already by the city finance department on whether film rentals are subject to the sales tax but no decision has been handed down yet. An adverse ruling will be appealed by the exchanges which, under the city's new method of assessment, may be subject to an annual tax of approximately $800,000 from this source.

Hint Korda Going In Theatre Field

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Dec. 5.—The prospectus drawn up for County Cinemas' new £2,500,000 issue lists the name of John R. Sutro, a director of London Films, and therefore suggests a tieup between Alexander Korda's company and A. J. Donada of County.

However, a direct check with Sutro brought the statement that, for the time being at least, he will not join the County board and the definite comment London Films had no connection officially or unofficially with the proposed flotation. He further described all announcement as premature. The circumstances appear to suggest that Korda did have a deal with Donada which has fallen through, probably temporarily, and that the expansion of County Cinemas, therefore, may be delayed.

Allied Leaders End Their Session Here

Abram F. Myers, general counsel of Allied; H. M. Richey, Detroit; and Aaron Saperstein, Chicago, the latter two directors, yesterday returned to their respective headquarters after conferring with Sidney Samuelson, president, on distribution of the white books recently gotten out by the organization on block booking.

In addition, the men decided to hold the national annual convention in Washington late next month. At this time, officers will be elected. Samuelson stated yesterday he is not anxious to run again, but did not say he would not accept the post if the directors insisted on his keeping it. No meeting date has been set yet.

No Educational Cut Due—White

Educational asserts that the Hollywood story to the effect that the company intends to cut its next season list to 28 subjects is all wrong.

By Nov. 1, Gorden S. White declares, the company had released more than 28 subjects, and through December the total of two-reel and one-reel subjects will be 44. In addition, there are 44 subjects already out, a number of others completed and awaiting release shortly after January 1.

The Terry-Toon cartoons alone will total 26, White states, and a shooting schedule of Joe Cook and Al Christie starting at Astoria on Tuesday calls for 28 two-reelers. In addition, he says, preparatory work has been started on five two-reelers to follow.

G. B. to Raise List To 24 Next Season

G. B., currently releasing 16 pictures in this market, plans to step the total to 24 for 1936-37, according to Mark Ostrer, who, following his annual visit, will sail for London Dec. 14 accompanied by Michael Balcon who will return from Hollywood in a few days.

Ostrer will carry with him an optimistic and encouraged picture of G. B.'s progress in the American field. "We are well satisfied with the ground traversed to date, but expect our progress to continue," he declared.

The picture for which Sylvia Sidney has been signed will be made in London along about June.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

MR. HEARST'S pet phobia, companion piece to his horror over the "Red" menace in America, gets another whirl in the editorial columns of his New York American, which again, the other day, seized upon the court case involving "Ecstacy" and read into it the need once more for film producers to clean up their endeavors before a Federal censorship is clapped down on them. Varying the procedure a trifle on this occasion, New York stage producers were embraced as well. . . .

Hearst has resided long enough in California and has been sufficiently long on the inside of this industry to remember, if he were of a mind to, that this latest editorial effusion, insofar as it concerns pictures, is not true. He must know that the quality of the product has reflected more progress in the last eighteen months than in any other similar period certainly and that the voluntary production code of ethics to which this industry has subscribed long since has cleansed the dirt spots. This statement will bear no challenge because the facts are all one way. Hearst knows them. If his editors do not, there are ways. . . .

The barrage of published comment which alternately caresses and lambasts the susceptible cheeks of this business is not always quite so serious a matter. Much of it is amusing. There is, for instance, an erudite newspaper in Kentucky known as The Columbia News which one day found the following emanating from its editorial typewriter:

"Hollywood is revolting against the increasing invasion of foreign stars.

"And rightly so.

"The American people are revolting, too.

"They are getting fed up on the eccentricities, the broken-English, the nasal twang, the extremes and the affected acting of the big-footed Garbo, the spraddle-legged Dietrich, the thick-lipped Chevalier and the loose-legged Marshall. . . .

"The days of foreign stars are numbered. Americans are finding American stars who are just as good, if not better."

Who would have suspected such profound wisdom lurked in those Kentucky hills? . . .

Then The Philadelphia Lutheran, beating the war drums, worked itself into a lather recently over Sunday shows in that city with this:

"If there is any enterprise in the catalogue of American business that lacks so much as the appearance of a right to more time to make money, it is the movie industry. . . . An industry which could be awakened to a sense of morality only by a boycott thrown against it by the churches in order to lessen its influences in the instigation of racketeering, adultery and murders, now has the effrontery to demand for its own additional profit part of a period assigned to the church and to religion.

"Of one thing there is assurance: no moral, or economic, or civic betterment can come to a people who sell Sunday to Hollywood."

The people of Philadelphia, exercising their inherent right of referendum, determined for themselves what they wanted. That's all which seems worth while to talk about. . . .

And Irish World, right here in New York, which would be far better off sticking to the problems confronting that unhappy people, talks completely through its hat with this:

"Because of a lull among the critics, movie magnates seem to think the decent people of the land have gone to sleep. So of late one notices an increase in vulgarity and obscenity. All of which means the magnates have not lived up to their promises."

This demonstrates that a sense of humor continues to be a saving grace. . . .

Felix Feist's new contract as general sales manager of M-G-M will bring to an abrupt and pleasant conclusion whispers and hand-cupped comment about his situation in that company. It was natural, perhaps, that Al Lichtman's addition to the executive roster should occasion speculation in view of the latter's wide experience as a distributor; far more remote circumstances have been linked together before this. The Feist pact comes along to sustain Nick Schenck's comment when Lichtman joined up that no replacements in personnel were contemplated.

Metro without Feist would be like Scotch without soda. . . .

"Numerous offers" have been received by the Chase National Bank for its stock holdings in Twentieth Century-Fox, it is officially admitted and dutifully reported in the financial section of The New York American. . . .

Very decent of the bank to admit something which ran in complete detail in this space on Monday. . . .

The next Hecht and MacArthur is "Murder at 21."

In protest of Jack and Charlie's price list? . . .

All Negatives

Hollywood, Dec. 5.—Persistent reports emanating from New York that Ned E. Depinet had signed a contract to become president of United Artists were denied on two fronts today.

Said Depinet vehemently: "I am remaining with RKO."

Said Leo Spitz, president of the company: "There is no truth to the report about Depinet and United Artists."

Court Threatens Fox With Contempt Move

Unless William Fox submits to examinations in a judgment action brought against him by the Capital Co., a San Francisco theatre holder, within the next few days, he will be punished for contempt of court, Federal Judge William Bondy ruled yesterday in citing Fox.

Fox failed to answer a subpoena served on him near Philadelphia for an appearance in connection with a supplementary action to a $297,000 judgment against him obtained by Capital last summer. The judgment was based on a theatre lease which was allegedly guaranteed by Fox. A summons had also been served on Fox at Atlantic City by Capital earlier but the Federal court ruled that the service was outside the 100-mile area covered by the process and not valid. The later summons was served on Fox near Philadelphia.

K. C. Independents To Sue on Zoning

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 5.—The local I.T.O. today voted funds to institute court action to break up the zoned, prior run protection on which Fox Midwest bought this season's product. The charge probably will be conspiracy in restraint of trade. Independents may form a cash giveaway pool similar to the circuit's Bank Night. President E. Rolsky will confer with City Manager McElroy tomorrow to ascertain the city administration's attitude toward the move.

McElroy recently ordered removal of all giveaway signs. Most independents favor elimination of such schemes, but the city has not taken such action. Most independents will join the pool, it is said, giving away $150 to $200 nightly, with drawing rotating and the awards made to any patron of a house in the pool.

R. P. Meyers Leaves KAO: Will Join NBC

FILM DAILY says:

One of the outstanding pictures of the year. David O. Selznick, who did so well with "David Copperfield," has given this other Dickens classic a painstaking production, while Jack Conway brings the drama of the story to the screen in a masterly way. Ronald Colman is splendid.

HOLLYWOOD REPORTER says:

M-G-M's "Tale of Two Cities" great picture. Certain Box-Office! Immortal story brought to the screen with an overwhelming power and beauty that make that world-shaking chapter of history a living and shattering reality. This distinguished work is the second Dickens story David O. Selznick has fathered as producer within a year. By reason of its subject his "David Copperfield" is outdone and he leaves behind a monumental money-maker. For there is not a box-office in this country, and few in other lands, that will not be enriched by this presentation. In the whole cast of twenty-four credited parts with almost as many bits, all are shrewdly individualized, alive and interesting. Such a roster of celebrated names, of which at least eight are stars, is something to talk about. From Ronald Colman down it it is an illustrious assemblage.

SHOWMEN'S TRADE REVIEW says:

Better than "Copperfield." Dickens' story mounts to epic proportions. M-G-M, sweeping the country with many fine productions, have added this stupendous story to their growing list of successes. It will be hard to equal for real entertainment. It has powerful scope and many dramatic moments. This Dickens story is interestingly told and vividly portrayed by a cast that could not be better and all can be proud of their contributions.

DAILY VARIETY says:

With high thrill, heroic terror and beauty has Charles Dickens' "A Tale of Two Cities" been brought to the screen to bid for the highest artistic and box-office honors. Altogether one of the finest expressions of screen and profoundly emotional incitements yet offered. Ronald Colman gives a great performance. Role scores tops for Colman. One of the finest of year's impersonations. Feel of being historically authentic, and production magnitude gives it an epic sweep.

Officials of the Department of Justice denied that the matter had been brought to their attention and declared that they were so barren of information on the situation as to make impossible any expression of opinion as to whether such a sale would be considered by the department as promotive of violation of the anti-trust laws.

No other agency in Washington, it was said, has any authority with respect to such matters. The Securities and Exchange Commission which is concerned with securities solely, would have no interest in the reported move.

Theatre Deal Not New

As part of the policy enforced now by Federal law, Chase National Bank for some weeks has been negotiating with Twentieth Century-Fox to sell to it the bank's interest in National Theatres Corp., which controls Fox West Coast and a number of affiliate circuits.

The probability is that the transaction will go through.

Cincy Views First Local Amateur Film

CINCINNATI, Dec. 5.—"First Option," the first feature-length sound picture ever to be produced and filmed in Cincinnati, had its premiere at the Taft, 2,500-seat house, a part of the Masonic Temple in the downtown district, which plays various attractions sporadically. It was sponsored by the recently formed Cincinnati Cine Club.

The picture, the story of which evolves around the invention of a new gasoline, is from an original scenario by Kenneth Albers and Sidney Travers, produced by William C. Sage, and directed by Margaret Radcliffe. Earl Derbes was head cameraman, Evelyn B. Mottern, continuity writer; James Maxwell, technical director, and Marcella Sage, makeup artist. These as well as members of the cast are local residents.

Additional features will be produced at intervals.

in Wilmington, Dec. 9, made by the board of directors, settling certain disputes arising out of a contract by which Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., received the services of the three Warner brothers for a period of six years.

Judge Callahan ruled further that "it sufficiently appears that Pepper became a stockholder solely for the purpose of bringing this litigation and under the circumstances the court feels that its discretion should be exercised as indicated."

Ascap Accepts Resignation

The resignation of Herman Starr, Warner vice-president, from the Ascap board was formally accepted yesterday at a meeting of the board. The vacancy remains unfilled. No other resignations from the board occurred, it was stated at Ascap following the meeting, although Jerome Kern and Max Dreyfus, the latter of Harms, Inc., a Warner music subsidiary, were commonly considered Warner representatives on the Ascap board. It had been variously reported that their resignations might be forthcoming as a result of the withdrawal of their companies from the society.

No formal statement was made following the meeting on the possibility of Ascap making reductions in its current licensing rates as a result of the loss of the Warner catalogues. It is believed unlikely, however, that any change in the rates will be made.

Warner Conference Resumed

Warners' eastern district and branch managers will resume their mid-year conference this morning at the Waldorf-Astoria. It started Wednesday, but was interrupted yesterday in respect for the memory of M. B. Comerford. A. W. Smith attended the services at Scranton.

Informal personal conferences were held yesterday with Albert Warner and during the evening the men attended "Three Men on a Horse."

Smith will open the conference today. The men will leave tonight for their territories.

Ohio Spots Pushing General Improvement

CANTON, O., Dec. 5.—Improvement in industrial conditions is reflected in theatre construction and modernization in eastern and central Ohio, where activity in this line is at peak for more than five years. Several houses are under construction, more are planned, and many have modernized.

Plans have been drawn for a new theatre at Athens with a seating capacity of 1,266 at an estimated cost of $85,000. Completion is expected in the spring.

Schine Enterprises are enlarging their theatre at Mount Vernon, and are planning a new 1,000-seat house in Bucyrus.

There have been remodelings or new construction in Genoa, Maumee, Montpelier and Bowling Green and around Cleveland.

In Akron the Colonial, downtown first run house, has been modernized at an approximate cost of $50,000, and the National has reopened. The Nixon, neighborhood house, recently was enlarged and new equipment installed. The Akron Falls Theatre Co. has started construction of a new $80,000 house at Cuyahoga Falls. It will be known as the Ohio.

The Sixth St., in Coshocton and the Lincoln in Massillon, both Warner houses, have been remodeled. The Ohio at Uhrichsville recently was improved. There is remodeling going on in a score of other smaller towns in the territory.

confined to England, Loew declared. Cost of the proposed film printing plant, as well as details in connection with production, will be determined upon Goetz's return from abroad.

For World-Wide Release

LONDON, Dec. 5.—Announcing the approaching trip of Ben Goetz to organize British production for M-G-M., Sam Eckman, Jr., managing director in England, stated that while the whole of M-G-M's quota commitment of 15 features a year might not immediately be made by their own organization, what pictures were made in England would definitely be for world distribution.

Pictures originally scheduled in Hollywood which will be made in England include "The Wind and the Rain," "Good-bye Mr. Chips," and "A Yank at Oxford."

Block Booking Issue Is Raised in Canada

TORONTO, Dec. 5.—The block booking issue has come to the fore in Canada largely through a move by a social organization, the Provincial Council of Women, in presenting a demand for the abolition of the system, the claim being made by Mrs. Harold Clarke of Windsor that theatres are forced to take poor features along with high-class attractions.

The Council of Women has presented a petition to the Ontario Cabinet for the enactment of legislation to prohibit block booking. This brought the reply from H. C. Nixon, acting premier of Ontario, that the Provincial Government probably did not have the power to interfere.

This was followed by a recommendation by Mayor P. J. Nolan of Ottawa for an investigation by the Dominion Government, through a Royal Commission, into the whole system of film distribution in Canada, Nolan declaring that block-booking "has been a burning question with theatre owners for the past 15 years."

Honor Coolidge, Richard

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—Plans are progressing for a testimonial dinner at the Copley-Plaza Hotel, Dec. 17, in honor of Jake Coolidge, newsreel cameraman, and Al Richard, editor-in-chief of Paramount News. Both men mark their 30th year in the business this month.

Production Gains Despite Holidays

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 5.—Despite the proximity of the holiday season production continued to show an uplift last week. Thirty-nine features and five shorts were in work, an unusual level for this time of year. The previous week, the checkup showed thirty-six features and six shorts in work. Forty-two productions were being rushed through the cutting rooms, many of them for Christmas distribution.

Paramount and M-G-M led the field for films in work, each having seven before the cameras.

Columbia had two features working, four in preparation and four in the cutting rooms. Fox had five, two and four; Goldwyn, two, zero and zero; M-G-M, seven, zero and 10; Paramount, seven, five and seven; Radio, five, two and four; Roach, zero, zero and one; Universal, three, two and two; Warners, six, one and eight; independents, two, one and two.

Consolidated Opens New Theatre Today

Second of four theatres being built by Consolidated Amusements in the Bronx will be opened this afternoon. It is named the Ascot, seats 600 and is located at 183rd St. and Grand Concourse. The first of the quartet, the Surrey, also a 600-seater, was opened about a fortnight ago.

The Kent, now nearing completion at 167th St. and Grand Concourse, will be ready Christmas. It will seat 600. The last of the four, now being erected at 161st St. and River Ave., will have a seating capacity of 1,200 and will be ready around Jan. 15.

Chaplin Picture Delayed

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 5.—Charlie Chaplin's "Modern Times" will not be finished in time for release Christmas week, but will be spotted in a F.W.C. house shortly after. It is understood that Chaplin is opposed to a day and date booking in the Chinese and Loew's State, preferring a longer run in a single house. F.W.C. is talking about changing the policy of the Ritz, a second run house, and raising prices to 50 cents and $1 for an eight to 10 weeks' run. The deal probably will be closed within a week.

. . . Omaha

EVERT and HAZEL CUMMINGS, occupying apartments these many years, have gone in for domesticity in a large way by taking a large home. EVERT is A. H. BLANK'S district manager for Nebraska theatres.

FRANK GOFF, 85, and MRS. GOFF, 76, veteran pioneer exhibitors for Omaha and Nebraska, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary this week. They once operated a "blacktop" here and in the state and later opened two of the first film houses—the Franklin and Alhambra, both in Omaha.

EDDIE ROSTERMUNDT, U. A. salesman, did an inside loop with his car last week and escaped without injury. He attempted to avoid collision and ran his machine up an incline at terrific speed with the result it "took off" and landed eventually on the car top.

ORVILLE RENNIE, assistant manager of the Omaha, isn't quite sure but he believes vaudeville is coming back. He recently wrote an agent and asked for the return of some of his photos he once used when he was active on the stage. The agent misunderstood the tone of Rennie's letter and thought he was seeking work elsewhere. So the agent offered him a week's work as m. c. in a Kansas City theatre starting Thanksgiving. RENNIS retired permanently from stage work a year ago to devote all his time to house management.

Jersey Theatres to Help State Police

ATLANTIC CITY, Dec. 5.—Theatres will cooperate with the Police Department in the exhibition of films to be made of criminals being sought, Col. H. Norman Schwartzkopf, superintendent of the New Jersey State Police, stated here at the convention of the New Jersey State Grange.

Schwartzkopf revealed that pictures will be taken of criminals at various times after they are arrested and sent out to theatres for screening when the men are wanted. The plan will get under way in three months.

The police official stated that a majority of New Jersey theatres have agreed to cooperate.

Warners yesterday stated it had not been informed of the plan, but would agree to any request of this kind, as it had done in the past. Sidney Samuelson, head of Allied of New Jersey, could not be reached for a statement yesterday, but it is understood members of the organization have, and will, cooperate with the state at all times.

Ohio 3% Tax Given Commitee Approval

COLUMBUS, Dec. 5.—The House taxation committee today reversed its previous stand and recommended the extension for another year after Dec. 31 of Ohio's three per cent tax on gross admissions. The committee earlier had failed to approve Governor Davey's recommendation that the three per cent tax be reenacted as an equivalent of the state's three per cent sales tax.

The committee's action again suspends application of the former 10 per cent admission tax, which was originally suspended following enactment of the state three per cent sales tax.

Harry Schreiber, RKO city manager, and Russell A. Dovim, manager of Loew's Ohio, were leaders in the move to obtain reenactment of the three per cent gross tax instead of reinstatement of the 10 per cent tax.

"Frisco Kid" was a hit in Warners' Downtown at $17,000, which is $5,000 over average, but at Warners' Hollywood it failed to make much of an impression at $12,800.

"Annie Oakley" and "King Solomon of Broadway" were in the money with a big $8,500 at the Pantages and the same combination also did well at the Hillstreet with $8,500.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Last of the Pagans"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, Dec. 5.—Located in the South Sea Islands, this picture tells the exotic love-drama story of a primitive native couple. Essentially, its elements are those common to all dramatic romances. Subtitles explaining the Polynesian dialect and movement are made understandable by the interpreting medium.

Its love interest is idyllic and the sympathy of the stimulating drama is powerful and appealing. Intelligently produced and directed, it is acted with a simplicity rare in current attractions, and should, with the proper showmanship guidance, assure box-office popularity.

Featuring the stars of "Eskimo," wife-raiding Mala (Ray Wise) captures Natita (Lotus Long). His prowess as a hunter, together with his tender kindness, breaks down her resistance and fear. Their primitive pagan happiness turns tragic when a native chief sells Mala into slavery in white man-operated phosphate mines. As the graphic action visualizes the savage people's reaction to the curse of the white civilization, Mala, who becomes a hero in a mine disaster, is promised the companionship of Natita. With the whites conspiring to keep the lovers apart, Mala escapes from jail during a tropical storm to rescue Natita from a sinking schooner. The finale has the couple sailing to another island to start life anew.

As the native courtship customs are depicted in song and dance, Herbert Stothart's musical score accentuates the romance and drama. In combining the values of action and music, Richard Thorpe's direction shows a deft understanding of showmanship requirements. The charm of the beautiful backgrounds is excellently accentuated by Clyde De Vinna's expert photography. As no attempt is made to intrude with Hollywood theatricalism on the charm of native simplicity, the novelty of the attraction should assure wide public interest, if the advance campaign is intelligently presented.

Production Code Seal No. 1,729. Running time, 72 minutes. "G."

Kamen Seeks Voiding Of Longacre Action

Counsel for Kay Kamen, Inc., will make a motion in Supreme Court today to vacate a notice of examination before trial in connection with a breach of contract suit brought by Betty Longacre who is suing Kay and Herman Kamen for $79,000 which she says is due her under on oral agreement by which she was to receive 50 per cent of the net profits of the defendants' business.

The defendants had a contract with the Walt Disney Enterprises to use the Mickey Mouse character on merchandise. They charge that Miss Longacre was formerly a stenographer-secretary in Herman Kamen's employ and the petition for examination is not brought in good faith.

Operators in N. E. Oppose Long Reels

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—Operators of six New England states, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Connecticul, comprising the third district of the I.A.T.S.E., unanimously adopted a resolution disapproving the proposed 2,000-foot reel at their annual convention here. The reason for turning down the new plan was said to be based on safety and other factors.

Thad Barrows, head of Boston Local 182, introduced the resolution.

Heretofore, projectionists throughout the country have been sharply divided on the 2,000-foot reel. It is expected that the action of New England operators may carry certain weight because of the unanimous vote. The six states are the first to go on record officially against the proposal.

Production Peaks to Be At Different Times

Twentieth Century-Fox and G.B. have concluded an arrangement for interchange of all talent—players, directors, writers—and have agreed to arrange the peaks of activity of the two companies so that they will not conflict. This will permit fuller use of the plan.

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n., has taken first steps to call a conference with producers, distributors and representatives of the Baird and E.M.I. television interests in order to protect trade interests in the event films are used for television.

The council of the association is particularly concerned about the television of news films and hopes to get an agreement on the basis of the suggested standard contract clause that no news film shall be televised until three months after the date of the last booking.

Cardinal Hayes Asks New Legion Pledges

Cardinal Hayes had issued instructions to all churches in the New York archidiocese to have the Legion of Decency film pledge read Sunday.

In his letter to parish priests Cardinal Hayes wrote:

"It was then suggested that the Legion of Decency be placed on a permanent basis, and the bishops of the country at their conference in Washington last month urged that the renewal of this pledge be made on Sunday, December 8, the Feast of the Immaculate Conception.

"I am grateful indeed to our beloved people for their hearty co-operation in this most important movement. Generally speaking, the results

Capital Meet Faces a Mass Of Mixed Aims

Berry's Contradictory Statements a Factor

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Thrown into confusion by the many contradictory statements of purpose by George L. Berry, Co-ordinator for Industrial Cooperation, representatives of industry and labor will meet in Washington Monday to discuss the future of NRA.

Berry's statement of Dec. 4 that "NRA is dead" and that the major subjects of discussion were expected to be taxation and unemployment—with respect to the first of which the NRA has no authority whatever—was tonight being compared by industrial leaders with his statement of Oct. 3, calling the conference, in which he declared the main purpose would be the furtherance of voluntary codes. Between those two dates, Berry had indicated that the conference would devote itself to outlining the future

Stay Is Denied on Warners' Meeting

Moves to prevent the annual Warner stockholders' meeting in Wilmington next Monday by Federal court injunction failed yesterday when Judge William J. Bondy denied a stay to Norman Johnson.

Johnson had charged that the notice of the meeting, one of the purposes of which is to approve the settlement of the corporation's claims against the three Warner brothers, was legally insufficient and deceptive. Judge Bondy ruled there had been no fraud in the transaction and no irreparable injury.

Discussing the Warner lineup for the next few weeks at the resumed sales conference in the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday, A. W. Smith, Jr., in charge of eastern and Canadian sales, said the output would be "the most diversified in the company's history."

The company has started many cycles, he told the visiting sales executives, "but has never remained to complete them."

Pathe's Name May Replace 1st Division

Shift Might Mark Move To Resume Producing

The Pathe name may supplant the First Division brand on product released by the latter if consideration now being given to the change by Pathe Film Co. materializes, it was learned yesterday.

The name change might also mark a new phase in Pathe's re-entry into film activity inasmuch as the possibility of Pathe either resuming production on its own or releasing under its own name additional product from independent producers is admitted by officials of the company. The new product would be handled by the present First Division distribution setup, it is believed.

Para. 3rd Quarter Net Is $737,791

Paramount Pictures, Inc., and wholly-owned subsidiaries estimate the net for the third quarter of this year at $737,791 after Federal income taxes and other charges.

Operating earnings, before the annual audit, are estimated at $999,189, with $186,430 in dividends from non-consolidated subsidiaries, a total of $1,244,632. Income taxes are estimated at $106,841. Interest for the third quarter on debentures is $400,000.

Operations of companies not wholly-owned or substantially wholly-owned are included only to the extent that dividend income has been received.

Paramount comments that the adverse effect of the studio reorganization undertaken early in the year will continue to be reflected in the operating figures for the fourth quarter.

Pathe has been advised already by RKO officials that the latter company, which owns RKO Pathe News, has no objection to the revival of the Pathe name as a film brand even in advance of the expiration date. A Pathe decision on re-entering production would be made at a considerably later date, it is now believed.

course of Federal control of industry and had declared that the Administration would not consider itself bound to accept or even consider any recommendations which the meeting might make.

The rapid footwork of the President's co-ordinator, who incidentally is 11th vice-president of the American Federation of Labor and president of the printing pressmen's union, left business men reaching Washington for the conference decidedly "up in the air" as to just what they were here for.

Transfer Recommended

Coincident with Berry's admission that NRA was dead, Secretary of Commerce Roper's business advisory council adopted a resolution recommending transfer of what remained of the NRA to the Department of Commerce, taking a slap at the NRA policy of entrusting control of industries to men who knew little or nothing about them by pointing out that in the department "kindred activities and surveys connected with business and industry are conducted by trained career men, conversant with the background of those problems of business and industry which were temporarily dealt with by the NRA during the emergency."

"Conservative estimates" of probable attendance at the meeting run as high as 2,500 persons, according to Berry. This unwieldly mass will be divided into some 48 groups which will be expected to discuss such problems as they may have laid before them. Motion pictures will be included in one of five groups under the general head of public services. Labor will be divided into 13 groups, one covering amusements.

May Be Protest Meeting

Possibilities of a "packed" meeting, dominated by the small independents who found in the codes an effective method of curbing their larger competitors and who would like to see a return to those conditions, were seen by business executives in the size of the conference as predicted by Berry.

In view of the general uncertainty as to just what Berry is driving at, in view of his many conflicting statements, those reaching Washington toward the end of the week confessed inability to predict what the meeting would do when it convened. Unless Berry, in opening the conference, sounds the keynote for the discussions, industrialists predict that one of two things will occur: the convention will develop into a cat and dog fight or turn into a huge protest meeting.

Cincy Pledges Ordered

CINCINNATI, Dec. 6.—Archbishop John T. McNicholas, chairman of the Episcopal Committee on the Movies, has issued a pastoral letter for his diocese to be read at mass in all churches Sunday, asking renewal of the pledge to the Legion of Decency.

The pledge reads:

"I condemn indecent and immoral motion pictures, and those which glorify crime or criminals.

"I promise to do all that I can to strengthen public opinion against the production of indecent and immoral films, and to unite with all who protest against them.

"I acknowledge my obligation to form a right conscience about pictures that are dangerous to my moral life. As a member of the Legion of Decency, I pledge myself to remain away from them. I promise, further, to stay away altogether from places of amusement which show them as a matter of policy."

A note appended to the pledge form, which contains spaces for the name and address, reads:

"Millions of Americans, pledging themselves individually, can rid the country of its greatest menace—the salacious motion picture."

tant personalities. We believe this is one of the most forward steps in the history of international film relations inasmuch as it affects the full list of stars, writers, directors, etc., of both companies.

"For G.B. it means a full and complete use of some of the biggest star names and players in Hollywood who are under contract to Twentieth Century-Fox. At the same time it makes available to Twentieth Century-Fox the full roster of artists under contract to G.B. now and in the future.

"By the terms of this agreement our respective companies have call on such of each other's talent as are not engaged in actual production. And to further facilitate this interchange, schedules of productions are to be so arranged that the respective peaks of activity of each company will occur at different times."

In a further personal statement Ostrer expressed his personal appreciation for the cooperation of Kent, Schenck, Zanuck and William Goetz.

Fox Ordered To Appear by December 13

for examination here within the time specified, a warrant for his arrest for contempt would be obtained by Capital, the attorneys said. If Fox did appear he would be purged of the contempt charge.

The Capital Co. was the lessor of the Fox, San Francisco. It was unable to collect the $297,000 judgment from Fox and is seeking his appearance in court for an examination concerning his ability to pay it.

Called Too Ill

Fox's attorneys, Hirsh, Newman, Reass & Becker, contend that the former film company head is too ill to answer the subpoena served on him near Philadelphia recently. This has been the firm's contention since Fox's appearance in court at Mineola early last summer in a suit for an accounting brought against him by Fox Film Corp. The testimony there was taken at closed hearings which were later adjourned to Fox's Atlantic City hotel, where he went for his health. Subsequently, when his appearance in court was sought by various other litigants, he was reported by his attorneys as too ill to attend. No litigant succeeded during that time in bringing him into court. Even the Sirovich Congressional committee for the investigation of patent pooling, a Federal agency, failed in this. When the committee sought Fox in Atlantic City it was discovered that he had gone to Toronto, and, his attorneys said, was undergoing treatments at a sanitarium there for a diabetic condition.

Fox in Toronto

With the present Federal court subpoena and citation facing him, Fox is back in Toronto once more, it was learned yesterday. A physician appointed to make a physical examination of Fox for Justice Isidor Wasservogel of the N. Y. state court, who is presiding over another suit against Fox in that jurisdiction, reported back to the court a few days ago that Fox was so ill he would be unable to leave his bed for at least six weeks. Other litigants who say they have investigators watching Fox's moves declare that they are informed that he is up and about and takes six-hour motor drives almost daily.

The Capital Co. recently collected $25,000 of its $297,000 judgment against Fox from the U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., which had bonded Fox up to that amount. Yesterday the guaranty company won a motion to recover the $25,000 from Fox when the latter defaulted by failing to appear before Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard to defend the action.

Short Subjects

"Some Class"
(Vitaphone)

Charles Ahearn brings his class to order in a manner that will pleasantly surprise audiences. It is a hobo seminary and there is a graduate course in panhandling, eluding dogs and brakemen. With plenty of rough and tumble slapstick and some long absent pie throwing, the comedy element of the rougher sort is sure to please. Ahearn must leave and he tells his class to give the new teacher everything they have. They do when they see her face. Recommended. Production Code Seal, No. 0583. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Katz' Pajamas"
(Vitaphone)

Built around a somewhat rewritten plot, this production's chief appeal lies in the introduction of the various acts, for there is little new in the plot. Fifi D'Orsay is an entertainer in a night spot and enters into a conspiracy with a dress manufacturing house to show their line to a disinterested buyer. She lures him into her night club and there Katz & Katz hold a fashion show interspersed with the acts of Duffin & Draper, The Meadowbrook Boys, George Tapps, Pauline Alpert and the eccentric violin playing of Frank Kingdon, which is a high spot. The man from Missouri takes the whole line. Production Code Seal, No. 0611. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Logging Along"
(Vitaphone)

The work of the men who "bring home the lumber" is effectively and entertainingly portrayed. A humorously delivered dialogue and clever musical synchronization together with fine camera work bring all the thrills that are to be found. Eddie Acuff delivers the speech with a lumberjack's lingo and the breaking up of a log jam excitingly closes the effort. Recommended. Production Code Seal, No. 1601. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

Seek to Set Aside FWC Bankruptcy

"conspired to act as such to perpetrate fraud."

Based on the testimony given before the recent Senate hearings on bankruptcies, the petition states directors Oscar S. Oldnow, Alfred Wright and H. G. Delabar of F.W.C. declared an $8,000,000 dividend which was in reality "a withdrawal and reduction of capital stock of F.W.C." The petition adds the dividend was never paid but false book entries were made showing it listed as a liability. In addition to asking the bankruptcy adjudication be set aside, the petition asks the court to appoint a receiver for F.W.C. and all subsidiary companies, that Chase National, Wesco, Fox Film and National Theatres pay the receivers $25,000,000 or other damages set by the court and that the court render judgment for fees against Tuller & Myers, Reuben G. Hunt, Charles P. Skouras, Charles C. Irwin and Samuel W. McNabb. The petition also asks that rentals of all disaffirmed leases be paid to date at the original rental rates.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Drift Fence"
(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 6.—Sensibly produced, this stacks up as a better than average western. A logical story carefully balances the drama, comedy and romance and embellishes them with a unique human interest twist. The required amount of thrill and action being visibly present, dialogue, action and situations combine to give the plot a bit of novelty and freshness, setting it apart from the formula of the outdoor adventure feature.

Tenderfoot Benny Baker is sent west and has little enthusiasm for the rough ranch life. He propositions Tom Keene, undercover ranger, to substitute for him, but the latter is unwilling until he learns that an ace rustler he is traiiling is playing havoc with the herds of Baker's uncle. Helping to build a fence to protect cattle, Keene comes into conflict with Larry Crabbe and Katherine De Mille, the innocent tools of the rustler gang.

The romance developing between Keene and Miss De Mille conflicts. Keene sets to work to trap the conspiring thieves led by Stanley Andrews. Permitting them to believe him a tenderfoot, he gets full knowledge of the rustler's plans. In the customary thrill chase and battle climax he leads the ranchers in a fight with the rustlers. Bringing the foe to justice, he absolves Crabbe and wins the love of Miss De Mille. Individual characterizations are convincingly performed.

Directed by Otto Lovering, the picture aims at pleasing the masses, with particular appeal to juvenile audiences. Adapted from the Zane Grey story by Robert Yost and Stuart Anthony, the screen play injects much modern dialogue. The beauty of the natural settings is enhanced by Virgil Miller's effective photography.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 63 minutes. "G."

"We're Only Human"
(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 6.—Fights between cops and robbers sprinkled liberally throughout this pleasing love story provide plenty of excitement in a nicely directed film.

Preston Foster plays the conceited cop who loves grandstand plays. He makes a daring capture of Gangster Mischa Auer, but loses the rest of the mob and so gets a severe reprimand from Chief Inspector Moroni Olsen, instead of the confidently expected promotion. Jane Wyatt does nicely with the part of a newspaper girl who cannot set foot on the street without running into a murder. James Gleason is a cop who, in spite of his natural caution, is killed capturing bank robbers. He draws plenty of laughs in the first part of the film.

Foster is particularly good in a scene after he has been temporarily blinded and for the first time knows real fear. Christian Rub scores heavily as a simple citizen frightened out of his wits by gangsters. John Arledge, as a blithe cameraman; Arthur Hohl, Jane Darwell, Harold Huber, Rafeala Ottiano, Delmar Watson, Effie Ellsler, Charles Wilson and James Donlan do nice work.

The screen play by Rian James from the story by Thomas Walsh moves with plenty of action, nice dialogue and a few inconsistencies which do not offend. James Flood's direction is particularly commended. Edward Kaufman produced.

The angle that brain always wins over brawn and that the courage of a frightened man is greater than that of the man who does not know fear looks like a good one to play.

Production Code Seal No. 1,721. Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

VOL. 38. NO. 135 NEW YORK, MONDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1935 TEN CENTS

About 90% of N. Y. Theatres Using "Games"

Major and Independent Circuits Included

Approximately 90 per cent of Greater New York theatres have resorted to "games" as an asserted box-office stimulant, according to agents of the various enterprises. Major and independent circuits are now featuring the policy. It is only within recent months that the major circuit houses have gone in for the scheme.

About 40 per cent of the local theatres, in addition to games, are also giving away merchandise. Large circuit houses feature games about once a week while in the independent houses the practice varies from one to seven nights a week. Articles are now given away as many nights as the games are held, but in many instances exhibitors distribute merchandise instead of cash when some sort of game is staged.

Opinion of the major circuits is that adoption of the game policy has not increased business. It is held that the idea had to be booked to meet the same kind of competition from unaffiliated theatres.

Hallgarten & Co. to Back Circuit, Reports Indicate

Hallgarten & Co. is reliably reported to have approached sponsors of the proposed Independent Theatre Circuit and to have offered to underwrite a preferred and common stock issue to the extent of $2,000,000 for the formation of the circuit.

Auditors for Hallgarten & Co. are understood to be checking into the books of about 144 theatres in Greater New York, following which about 100 houses will be picked out to serve as the nucleus. Exhibitors whose theatres are approved will be paid in both stock issues, it is said. The preferred stock will be retired out of 50 per cent of the profits, it is understood.

Several secret meetings have been held in the past few weeks at which Milton C. Weisman, Harry Brandt and a representative of Hallgarten & Co. have been present.

If the plan goes through, Brandt will be the operator. He is said to have thrown his group of about 45 units into the circuit with the understanding that if the required number of theatres is assembled he will head the organization.

If, and when, the new circuit de-

City Sales Tax Levy Against U. A. $20,100

An assessment of $20,100 for the city sales tax on revenue of the local United Artists exchange for the period from Dec. 28 to Mar. 1 last was decided upon Saturday by the city finance department.

The assessment was made against the entire revenue of the exchange, regardless of whether it originated outside the city or state limits, and excluded only the non-taxable revenue derived from sales to the U. S. Government. The levy compares with an original assessment of $9,000 made by the city against the same exchange

Upper Court Favors No Stay for Pathe

The appellate division of the state court on Saturday unanimously affirmed, without opinion, a lower court order denying an injunction to restrain Pathe from enforcing its plan of reorganization which was approved by stockholders of the company last spring.

The appeal was taken to the higher court by Henry Chesterfield, as administrator for the estate of Ben Hilbert, who brought the action last spring as a Pathe stockholder, contending that the plan unfairly discriminated against certain classes of stockholders.

Move Part of Settlement Of Rockefeller Claim

RKO may resume full operation of the Music Hall and Center on its emergence from reorganization by making new leases with Rockefeller Center for the two houses as part of a settlement of the Rockefeller $8,207,000 claim against RKO, it was learned on Saturday.

At present RKO has no interest whatever in the Center and its association with the Music Hall is confined to a minor interest in the operating company through its subsidiary, RKO Service Corp., and in a Radio Pictures product deal with the Hall. Management of the theatre is dominated completely by the Rockefeller interests.

The Rockefeller's $8,207,000 claim against RKO was approved in that amount by Special Master Thomas D.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

IN the mailbag, a communication from Charles J. Giegerich, mouthpiece at large for Pat Powers and his Celebrity Productions. It has to do with MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S recent review of "Kiss Me Goodbye" and centers around the expressed opinion that the picture "will present an American selling problem chiefly because of lack of known names."

First, the points raised by Giegerich:

"Purely aside from the fact that any reference to merchandising seems out of place in a dramatic criticism, the 'problem' referred to is certainly susceptible to contradiction. And if given the opportunity I would challenge this opinion.

"It is, of course, difficult to combat any editorial statements without the privilege of replying editorially. Any 'selling problems' which a producer may have are intensified by any adverse editorial statements. The advertising columns, which are the only avenues open for a defense, are, admittedly, impotent as compared with the news and editorial pages.

"Assuming that the statement in question is intended as advice to the exhibitor and that it refers to the box-office value of the picture, I beg leave to point out that the statement is entirely erroneous when weighed against the basic principles of showmanship."

He continues:

"The fact that the principals in any picture may be termed as 'unknown' does not present a box office 'selling problem'—on the contrary, the conditions are exactly the reverse.

"Obviously, an ideal picture is an attraction rating 100 per cent in box office possibilities—and no 'known' star ever has enjoyed such a rating. The only potential 100 per cent attraction is something entirely new, unclassified, and unrated as to its box office value.

"The showman's greatest asset is the curiosity of the public—and curiosity can be fully aroused and capitalized only by means of 'something new'. This fact has been demonstrated and proved beyond all question, in all lines of amusement."

And then this:

"History recalls the greatest of pictures have been those with 'unknown' leads. The same is true of the stage and the literary world.

"Currently, we have had demonstrations of the public interest in new personalities by the great public ovations accorded talent presented on the radio amateur hours.

"With 'unknown' players in a worthwhile production, the exhibitor has unlimited scope for exploitation. He can intrigue public curiosity to the fullest degree by the most magical words in the showmanship vocabulary—'something new.'

"In 'Kiss Me Goodbye,' P. A. Powers is presenting three new stars—one of them drawn from the operatic stage, and two from the musical comedy stage. And we believe that the exhibitor who takes advantage of this fact will not be faced by any box-office 'selling problem.'

"This feature presents excerpts from the operas 'La Belle Helene' and 'Daughter of the Regiment' by Offenbach and Donizetti respectively, and the exhibitor may exploit these names should he desire to supplement 'something new' with something known."

And now, the rebuttal.

Merchandising, this opinion insists, has a definite place in a dramatic criticism in this field. Appraisals of product in the columns of a trade paper properly include direct reference to methods of selling that product. The man who buys constantly seeks to ascertain all the known factors for the obvious purpose of aiding him fashion his decision. Giving him the slants as the reviewer sees them is essential, else the reviewer is not carrying out his task. . . .

Any difficulty about replying to editorial statements in this case is no difficulty at all, for Giegerich's communication runs in full. Likewise should there be no difficulty in wondering whether the reference which he finds provocative is designed to advise the exhibitor. It is. When it is argued that a selling problem, predicated on players unknown at the box-office, is erroneous "when weighed against the basic principles of showmanship," we hardly agree and point to the career of similarly geared attractions. There may be a theoretical question where the principle is concerned, but there is not where experience is involved. . . .

The men who run the theatres in this country and probably elsewhere as well hitch their star to Hollywood's stars. This is not to imply lesser luminaries never click, but the point long since has been established that known and popular personalities always have been the showman's greatest comfort. There was Paramount which, in a year long gone by, turned great concentration on a series of directors' specials. If you can harken back to that distant day, you will recall what a flop it was. There have been top flight executives who, from time to time, made much noise over pictures "perfectly" cast regardless of star value. Had they the stars then described as unessential, the story would have been different and everyone knew it. The facts, simple and direct, are that all other factors being even, the attraction with known players will go more places than the attraction which has not. . . .

GB Annexes Another Battery of Players

Sally Eilers, Edmund Lowe, Elizabeth Allan, Richard Arlen and Robert Young have been added to GB's list of Hollywood talent to be used in forthcoming productions from the company's Shepherd's Bush studio in England, Mark Ostrer, GB head, said Saturday.

Miss Eilers and Lowe will co-star in a feature whose working title is "The Phantom Wrecker." Miss Allan, a M-G-M contract player, will be featured in the next George Arliss film. Arlen will be starred in a story based on the building of the Canadian Pacific railroad, tentatively titled "The Barrier." Maureen O'Sullivan will be co-starred with Arlen in this if her M-G-M schedule makes her available. Robert Young, now at the GB studio working in "Secret Agent," has been re-signed for "It's Love Again."

Used to Act in 'em; Now He Sells Them

George K. Arthur, who appeared in a number of M-G-M pictures, including "Brotherly Love," "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," "Chasing Rainbows," "Riptide" and "Vanessa," has rejoined the company, but not as an actor.

In his new capacity, Arthur is selling film to exhibitors scattered about the northern sector of New Jersey. From now on Arthur reports to David A. Levy, New Jersey branch manager, instead of a director.

RKO May Take 2 Radio City Houses Again

Thacher early last summer. It is based on the original leases made by RKO with Rockefeller Center which provided that RKO would become liable for the construction costs of the theatres in the event of certain defaults under the leases. The special master held that the designated defaults had occurred and found RKO liable for construction costs of more than $6,000,000 and rental deficiencies of more than $1,000,000.

Irving Trust Co., as trustee in reorganization for RKO, has filed exceptions to the special master's report, but hearings on the exceptions have been delayed from time to time over the past two months to permit negotiations looking toward a settlement of the claim. The latest postponement will be made today when a scheduled hearing before Federal Judge William Bondy will be adjourned to Dec. 19.

Official sources point out that by entering into new leases for the Radio City theatres RKO might relieve itself of liability to Rockefeller Center for the major portion of the claim, that involving the more than $6,000,000 in construction costs of the theatres. The balance in rental deficiencies could be liquidated by the issuance to Rockefeller Center of new securities of reorganized RKO for the amount of the deficiencies.

While it is officially admitted that such a solution of the huge Rockefeller Center claim against RKO has been discussed, a Rockefeller spokesman described the claim negotiations at present as "very indefinite." This official said that it was unlikely that a final compromise of the claim would be reached until a reorganization plan for RKO had proceeded "considerably farther than it now has."

RKO Houses to Have New Year Vaudeville

Vaudeville will have a one-night comeback in RKO and Loew theatres which formerly featured this type of entertainment. All former vaudeville houses of both circuits will have from seven to nine acts as a special attraction on New Year's Eve. The bookings are only for midnight shows. In a number of the theatres reserved seats, as in past years, will be sold.

Hallgarten to Back Circuit, Reports State

velops, it will loom as an important factor in the local exhibition field. There is no independent circuit in Greater New York with 100 houses, the nearest contender being Metropolitan Playhouses with some 80 odd theatres, divided between Randforce and Skouras Theatres Corp., but under control of United Artists Theatres Corp.

About a year ago, Weisman and a number of independent exhibitors began working on a plan to pool about 100 theatres under a plan which provided for the payment of a cash contribution by exhibitors who would turn over properties and leases. Theatre owners were to get stock and in most cases continue operation of the houses. They would be guaranteed a flat sum every week, based on weekly earnings of individual theatres for the past two years.

Exhibitors representing approximately 60 theatres pledged to go along, but when it came to sending in checks to support the financial end of the commitment more than half were reluctant to remit. The new proposal, it is understood, does away with cash contribution by exhibitors. This would be taken care of by Hallgarten & Co., it is said.

It is said the audit, now under way, will take several weeks.

some time ago, which covered the period from Dec. 5, 1934, to Mar. 1, 1935, but which embraced only revenue derived from sources within the city limits. Since that time the city has decided that the delivery of film to a carrier at a local exchange consummated a sale, regardless of the location of the theatre for which the film was destined, and after completing a second audit of the exchange's books revised its assessment accordingly.

The new assessment would indicate that local exchanges might be taxed approximately $800,000 annually if the city succeeds in its efforts to prove that film rentals are subject to the sales tax. Local distributors, employing the United Artists instance as a test case, contend that they are not.

Ohio House Passes An Income Tax Bill

COLUMBUS, Dec. 8.—The House has passed by an 85 to 33 vote the bill of Representative P. E. Ward for an income tax. The issue was forced by proponents of the measure who threatened to hold out against reenactment of the three per cent sales tax unless the income tax bill were put through.

Passage of the income levy is looked upon as an idle gesture, since it is the general opinion that it will not get by the Senate, which has defeated similar bills previously. However, it is conceded that the action of the House will make the sales tax bill easier to pass, and this, it is hoped, will be accomplished next week. The three per cent also will apply to gross admissions, according to the present setup.

"Million" Is $39,000 Hit, Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 8.—"Thanks a Million" grossed a pre-depression figure of $39,000 for its first eight days at the Fox.

The extra day of the week is accounted for by the Sunday preview showing during the run of "In Old Kentucky," on which the musical film grossed $4,000. It opened its regular run on Thanksgiving Day with a take of $7,000 and maintained a headlong pace for the rest of the week. It was held a second week.

Also topnotch was the $18,500 gleaned by the Earle with "In Person" as the feature and the Ted Weems show on the stage. The figure is all the more remarkable in that the Thanksgiving Day business isn't counted for this feature, having gone on last week's gross.

Another standout was "Frisco Kid," with its $9,000 take at the Stanton. It was held.

Weakest of the new films was "Night at the Opera," which got $15,000 on eight days. "Ah, Wilderness!" held to its average at the Boyd with $16,000 for the same period.

Total first run business was $115,900. Average is $89,840.

PROVIDENCE, Dec. 8.—Bishop Francis P. Keough, in a letter read Sunday in all the Catholic churches of Rhode Island, exhorted members of his diocese to continued vigilance against immorality on the stage and screen and urged them to shun theatres advertising and presenting attractions of dubious moral tone.

Bishop Keough called the improved moral standards of the films, which followed the Legion of Decency campaign, "a heartening triumph for religion."

"Night" Milwaukee Hit; Pulls $7,210

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 8.—High honors for the week went to "A Midsummer Night's Dream," roadshowed at the Pabst with a $7,210 take. Sponsored performances, one by the Federation of Women's Clubs and another by the Milwaukee Athletic Club, helped ticket sales. Top admission price was $1.65.

"In Old Kentucky," closing Dec. 3 at Fox's Wisconsin, netted $6,200 for the seven days for second high honors. The auto show, giving away a car a day, opened Nov. 30 and attracted 75,979 paid admissions at 40 cents a head during the first five days. Photophone Points to Profits

S.R.O. TRIPLED

There is a theatre in a suburb near our factory that is attended by a number of our employes. These men and their families grumbled to the exhibitor about his sound. (Most people don't take the trouble to kick; they just go elsewhere.) Finally the theatre manager said "Yes" when a Photophone man called. The house thought it was doing well when it sold out Saturday night; since installing RCA Photophone it averages three sell-outs a week, usually Thursday, Friday, Saturday. And the increase has not all come from RCA employes, either!

★ RCA Photophone has a decided effect at the box office. Its perfection of sound increases attendance, often in a spectacular way. The above example is typical of results.

Variety Club

Des Moines

DES MOINES, Dec. 8. — Variety club's first charity party is scheduled for Friday morning, Dec. 27, with G. RALPH BRANTON, general manager of Tri-States Theatres, in charge. Shutins of the city and inmates of local institutions will be the guests. The entertainment will be a flesh show at the Paramount.

Detroit

DETROIT, Dec. 8.—To provide additional money for its welfare fund, Variety Club will sponsor a keno party in the ballroom of the Book-Cadillac hotel Dec. 14. Dancing and entertainment also will be included. H. M. RICHEY is in charge, with M. GOTTLIEB and J. L. SAXE as the other members of the committee.

For the same purpose, the club also will give a special preview showing of "A Tale of Two Cities" at a downtown theatre some night of the week before Christmas.

Installation of the newly elected officers will take place at the first meeting in January.

Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 8. — SPYTOS SKOURAS, head of National Theatres, and RICK RICKETSON, head of the Rocky Mountain division of Fox houses, were guests at Variety Club last week. SKOURAS left by plane for Los Angeles, and RICKETSON for Denver by train the same day, after the two had conferred here with ELMER C. RHODEN, president of Fox Midwest.

NAT HECHTMAN was one of the Kings for a Day, with CHARLES JONES aiding. HECHTMAN departed from the usual program by offering a bottle of Haig & Haig in a draw, and FRANK HENSLER won. A bottle supplied by Screenland and HAROLD LUX went to DOUGLAS DESCH.

MAX BAREWIN was guest of HECHTMAN.

Variety's membership quota is full and only five of the 10 candidates for initiation Dec. 9 can go through.

CHARLES JONES, who heads the New Year's party committee, announced that the affair would be exclusively for members and close friends. The levy will be $5 a couple, which will include dancing, the banquet, etc. Other members on this committee are EDGAR STERN, BEV MILLER and F. E. RITTER.

Omaha

OMAHA, Dec. 8.—The local tent will be formally inducted into the national Variety organization when officials doing the inducting arrive here after receiving the Dallas and Oklahoma City tents sometime this week or next. It had been planned to take in the Omaha tent Dec. 1, but plans since have been changed, H. J. SHUMOW, chief barker says. When the national officers will arrive here will be settled within a few days, it is expected.

Meanwhile there is talk that Variety club will expand its present quarters by removing another wall. What were regarded as spacious quarters last June have already become crowded—especially on week-ends.

Looking 'Em Over

"She Shall Have Music"

(Twickenham-British)

LONDON, Nov. 29.—One of the brightest examples of a type of light musical which is making the money in all grades of British theatres.

It's a case of stringing a series of acts and musical numbers on a radio or stage celebrity and the thinnest thread of story and giving the public the variety it may be pining for, per film. Here the key attraction is Jack Hilton and his band, probably the best of its type in England. Also are a French can-can troupe and an unveiled and expert Continental dancer, dubious for America under the code. There is also a brief but excellent ballet sequence. The musical numbers of Sigler, Goodhart and Hoffman are good popular stuff. It isn't staged like an American musical, but it is definitely bright entertainment.

Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

"Come Out of the Pantry"

(B. and D.-United Artists)

LONDON, Nov. 29.—Farce comedy. The star values are Jack Buchanan, who sings a bit, dances a bit and otherwise gives a rather stiff impersonation of Jack Buchanan, and Fay Wray, who acts very nicely the part of a girl with a sense of humor and looks charming.

The story is that a young British nobleman who, having lost the family money entrusted to him in a bank smash in New York, meets an old servant who is butler to a rich American and gets a footman's job from him. His employer's pretty niece sees through the imposture and falls in love with the impostor, although there is a plan to marry her to his bumptious elder brother. At a dinner party in honor of the latter's arrival the footman proposes in the interval of serving the courses and finally takes his brother's place as guest and as husband-designate.

There is some fair comedy, the best of it in the dinner episode. As light entertainment this should go where Buchanan is a draw.

Running time, 70 minutes. "G." ALLAN

Hudson County Men Want Variety Club

Hudson County theatre managers have applied for a charter to establish a New Jersey Variety Club tent. Al Stevens, manager of the Orpheum, Jersey City, has been fomenting interest in such an organization for the last five years.

Tentative officers are: George Dumont, Loew's Jersey City, president; Morris Hatoff, State, Jersey City, first vice-president; Solly Posner, Orient, Jersey City, treasurer; M. Yarbo, Capitol, Union City, secretary.

About 35 managers attended a meeting last week and it is expected that all theatre heads in Hudson County will attend the Dec. 18 session. Managers outside of the county will be admissible as non-resident members.

Short Subjects

"The Lucky Swede"

(Vitaphone)

Tenderfoot El Brendel arrives in a gold-rush town in the Yukon and assisted by his dialect antics is relieved of his cash and handed a deed to a mine. With a grubstake he seeks the mine, which proves to be a bonanza yielding 14-karat nuggets, and some 12-karat ones, which he discards. Back in town he puts on the dog and reveals a talent for some jigging and horn-piping while singing about his Yukon girl. The end has him giving a girl her weight in gold, for which she will marry him. His "hot feet" will help this effort to go over, for he certainly can dance. It is high farce and will be accepted as such. Recommended. Production Code Seal No. 1,404. Running time, 20 mins.

"Flowers for Madame"

(Vitaphone)

Tastefully colored and with a new twist to its plot, this effort ranks among the best of the type. With each pictorial composition bearing likeness to a water color, in the cartoon manner it presents the idyllic life among flowers. A parade is held and interrupted by a fire which threatens the whole assembly. A cactus, which decorated itself with blossoms and was laughed at, saves the day by ingeniously putting watermelons to work extinguishing the blaze. Recommended. Production Code Seal No. 1,737. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Vitaphone Headliners"

(Vitaphone)

A collection of second rate vaudeville acts aid and hinder this piece of film to some extent by their ordinary performing and the method of presentation. The acts to be seen are the singing Mullen Sisters, Eddie Stuart, Nick Lucas and the imitative act of O'Donnell and Blair. Production Code Seal, No. 0627. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

Fox Midwest "Scrip" Use to Be Extended

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 8.—Having inaugurated the sale of "scrip" theatre ticket books at Wichita, Kan., Fox Midwest will introduce the books throughout its territory.

"Scrip" has been sold by Fox houses at various times in the past, particularly at holiday time, when its desirability as a gift has been stressed. Books containing $1 worth of tickets are being sold in Wichita for 90 cents; $2 books for $1.80 and $5 books for $4.50.

Scrip will be sold also in Kansas City, where the circuit's gift stamps represent, in effect, a 10 per cent reduction in admission. After Jan. 1 gift stamps are to be redeemed only for tickets.

Makes Gift to Hospital

BALTIMORE, Dec. 8. — Major Edward Bowes has sent 12 toy kaleidoscopes to Dr. Allen F. Voshell, medical director of the James L. Kernan Hospital for crippled children here, to amuse the inmates and they will be used in the four wards by children too crippled or too young for instruction during the vocational theraphy classes. The toys are hand made and were given Major Bowes by a radio fan.

About 90% of N. Y. Theatres Using "Games"

being featured are Rhummy, Bank Night, Screeno, Sweepstakes, Moviestakes, Lucky, Monte Carlo Night, Prosperity Night, Race Night, Kentucky Derby, Movie Derby, Pay Night, Silver Dollar Night, Bingo, Bango, Keyno, Bagatelle, Hollywood Stars, Cash Night and others.

Major circuits blame the independents for their moves in adopting "games." They claim the small houses show doubles at lower admissions and first started the idea. To meet this sort of competition, circuits claim they had to go to twin bills and now "games."

One important independent exhibitor and head of a local exhibitor organization states: "The small fellow has one consolation. The circuits haven't got first run on Screeno and Bank Night."

This same exhibitor holds it is not the fault of the independent that many theatres are featuring games. He says the small man had to do it to offset the competition of the major circuits. He contends that the affiliated theatres were and are charging the same admissions as independent houses, yet the independent cannot get the "run" on films the way his large competitor does.

"The independents won't give up the game and giveaway idea unless the majors increase their prices," the spokesman asserts. "While it is true independents started it, they cannot afford to give the policy up until the circuits hike admissions."

Asked if he would make any efforts to move for a meeting to discuss increasing admissions and simultaneously drop the so-called box-office hypodermics, the exhibitor answered in the negative.

Bay State Movement Aimed at Marathons

BOSTON, Dec. 8.—Marathon dances, walkathons and other endurance contests will be banned in Massachusetts if the recommendation of a special recess commission is adopted by the State Legislature.

Paul G. Kirk, in charge of censorship under the Sunday law, was one of the three members of the commission. Theatremen favor the abolishment of such promotions.

Similar legislation failed to pass last year. Such contests are illegal in 10 states.

New Hampshire Bank Night Ban Is Eased

BOSTON, Dec. 8.—The ban on Bank Night in New Hampshire theatres has been lifted temporarily by the district attorney's office which recently clamped down on the giveaway scheme. A test case to establish the status of Bank Night under New Hampshire laws is set for hearing in the State Supreme Court, probably some time this month, according to Attorney George S. Ryan who represents Affiliated Enterprises, Inc., in this territory.

Very Different

Boston, Dec. 8.—Answering a newspaperman's query if a feature showing at a local first run house was a "holdover," the manager replied: "No, it's an hangover!"

End K. C. Pay Night Stay

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 8.—On motion of Lee Vaughan, Jr., attorney for A. L. Dare, Judge E. L. Fischer of the Wyandotte County District Court has dissolved the restraining order which prevented Dare from giving away money under his Pay Night plan at the Rosedale, Kansas City, Kan.

W. L. Jackson, for his daughter, Miss Elsie Jackson, had filed a petition charging Dare with withholding $140 Nov. 20 after Miss Jackson had won under the contest's rules.

Delay Cash Night Case

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 8.—The suit of Affiliated Enterprises, Inc., bank night patentees, against Sam A. Blair Theatre Enterprises, charging that the Cash Night used in the latter company's houses infringed, has been continued in the Kansas City, Kan., division of the Federal court by Judge Richard J. Hopkins.

The case, which was to have been heard Dec. 2, probably won't be heard until the January term.

N. O. Giveaways Gain

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 8.—Of 32 neighborhood houses here 20 are now using Buck and Bank Night. United, with 18 houses, has started with Buck Night. Other giveaways are also being made.

Three Companies Formed

ALBANY, Dec. 8.—Three new companies formed here are:

Lincoln Distributing Corp., a Delaware corporation, has filed a certificate enabling it to do business in this state.

Des Moines Parties Set

DES MOINES, Dec. 8.—First of the Christmas parties here will be that of Fox exchange employes at the Wayside Inn Dec. 20.

The A. H. Blank staff will hold a gathering at the Izaak Walton Club Dec. 23 with Ralph Branton, L. M. McKechneay and Stanley Brown as guests of honor.

Mrs. Harris Marries

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Dec. 8.—Mrs. Jewel L. Harris, owner of the Princess and Harris Grand, and Judson Buchanan of Chattanooga, have married. They will make their home this winter in Miami.

Bell Goes to Salt Lake

DETROIT, Dec. 8.—Chet Bell, Paramount salesman here for a number of years, has been made acting manager of the Salt Lake City exchange. He will take the place of R. B. Thompson, who is ill.

No More Duals Are Expected In K. C. Spots

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 8.—No further extension of duals here is expected now that the first excitement following the introduction of the policy by Fox Midwest has settled down.

Fox has not tried the policy in the de luxe subsequents—Plaza, Warwick, Isis and Apollo—and it is not thought that it will be tried in other spots in view of the Fox buying of "prior run protection."

At Wichita, the first run Orpheum and Miller have been double billing since late October, with the Palace, Fox's other first run, singling for seven days. A Fox Midwest official says the circuit will discontinue double bills at the Miller.

The Uptown and Wichita, Fox's subsequent runs at Wichita, have been doubling for about a year. Their regular policy is to double Sunday and Monday, single Wednesday and Thursday, and double again Friday and Saturday, with Tuesday going to the early week double or the midweek single.

The Miller, which breaks Sunday, has a regular policy of doubling seven days without change. The Orpheum doubles and singles, but occasionally, doubles throughout the week on all its changes.

Independent exhibitors at Wichita have followed Fox's lead, and the Nomar, West, Crawford and Novelty are double billing, though not all the time.

Fox houses at Joplin, Sedalia and Lexington, Mo., are doubling on Friday and Saturday; Marysville, Liberal, and Hays, Kan., and Excelsior Springs, Mo., Saturday; Nevada, Mo., all week; Ottawa, Kans., midweek, and Fort Scott, Kans., midweek and Friday and Saturday.

At Topeka, some of the Fox houses are running "encore" shows; the Orpheum at 11 P. M.; the Gem at 4 and 11. "Encores" are pictures other than the regular one. Even the Jayhawk is running a "preview" at 11 P.M.

The Crystal, small independent house, also is doubling at Topeka.

Vinita House to Open Soon

VINITA, Okla., Dec. 8.—Work on a new theatre here is nearing completion. The house will be opened about Dec. 10, according to Foster Lyman, manager for the Griffith Amusement Co.

Take Pasadena Theatre

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 8. — Robb & Rowley have taken over the State in Pasadena which gives them complete control of subsequent runs in that city with the exceptions of the Colorado and the Egyptian. F. W. C. controls all first runs.

Build at Grand Rapids

DETROIT, Dec. 8.—W. S. Butterfield and Allen Johnson have completed plans for a $100,000 house at Grand Rapids. It will be modern in design. B. & J. Theatres, Inc., a new company headed by Butterfield, will operate.

Industry and Payrolls for Ohio Gaining

COLUMBUS, Dec. 8.—"There have been some startling gains in production figures, and improvement in employment and payrolls," says the November business review of the Federal Reserve Bank of the Fourth Federal Reserve District, comprising Ohio, a portion of northern Kentucky and a part of eastern Pennsylvania, including Pittsburgh.

"The Fourth District has experienced the best upturn in business this fall that has occurred in several seasons," the bulletin continues. "In mid-November operations continued at or near the high point of the year."

Various employment indices were higher in October than at any time in the past five years, and payrolls were reported very much larger than a year ago.

October department store sales were reported 10 per cent larger than in October, 1934, and retail furniture sales were up 18 per cent in the same comparative period.

Production of rubber products was 40 per cent ahead of October last year, and there was a 16 per cent gain in electric power production.

October steel production showed a 110 per cent increase over October, 1934, and pig iron output gained 108 per cent in the same period. The steel industry was operating at the highest level of the year in mid-November.

Shoe production gained 32 per cent in October compared with the same month last year, and had a 15 per cent increase for the year, the shoe industry having been adversely affected by the weather.

Dropping of Sunday Case Stirs Clergy

SUFFOLK, Va., Dec. 8.—Dismissal of a charge of Sunday operation against Roy A. Richardson, theatre manager, has stirred up ministers here. Dr. N. J. Goodwin, pastor of the First Baptist Church, has demanded that Police Justice E. Roland Custis explain his reasons for the dismissal.

Three ministers and five church leaders testified against the theatre manager in court.

Taylor Opposite Gaynor

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 8.—Robert Taylor will play opposite Janet Gaynor in M-G-M's "Small Town Girl," to be directed by William Wellman.

Alert, Intelligent and Faithful Service to the Industry in All Branches

VOL. 38. NO. 136 NEW YORK, TUESDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1935 TEN CENTS

IATSE Given "Closed Shop"; Strike Averted

Attitude of Producers Bar To Regulation—Kuykendall

"The whole project of self-regulation of trade practice problems, which exhibitors are apparently ready and willing to undertake, is blocked by the withholding of any offer of essential cooperation by the distributors," Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, charges in his current organization bulletin distributed to exhibitors yesterday.

Reporting on exhibitor reactions to the idea of developing plans for self-regulation of the industry through locally authorized agencies, reactions gathered by Kuykendall in a nation-wide tour of exchange centers which he completed recently, the M.P.T.O.A. head says that he found "a surprising unanimity of opinion that the trade practices of this business badly need some sort of self-regulation and self-discipline.

"Sentiment among representative owners of both large and small theatres," he adds, "has become well crystallized in favor of practical self-regulation within the industry to settle and adjust in a rational way disputes and controversies by local conciliation, arbitration and hearings to remove abuses and prevent injustices. M.P.T.O.A. has focused attention on the specific things that should be done,

To Get Property, "Lab," Cameramen in Fight With the IBEW

A "closed shop" for Hollywood studios with the I. A. T. S. E. given jurisdiction over property men, laboratory workers and cameramen while retaining complete jurisdiction in the theatres is the basis upon which the jurisdictional dispute between the I. A. and the I. B. E. W. was settled following a two-day conference at the Hays office with the heads of film companies and which ended the threat of a nationwide theatre projectionists' strike which has hung over the industry for the past nine days.

As part of the agreement reached between the unions and the film company heads some 150 to 200 I. B. E. W. men who were dropped from theatre posts in the middle west during the past week will be reinstated and will remain members of the I. B. E. W. I. A. T. S. E. members who were forced to resign from that union during recent studio developments will, in turn, be reinstated. The action of Paramount in asking the resignations from the I. A. of members of a production company before leaving for the east to photograph exteriors for "Thirteen Hours by Air" precipitated the I. A. demand for a showdown on the jurisdictional dispute. It was preceded by the temporary calling out of I. A. men in Paramount affiliated theatres which closed houses for a few hours in Chicago, Minneapolis, Iowa and Nebraska.

Warner Profit Of Million in 3 Months Seen

Thomas Says It Will Top All of Last Year

WILMINGTON, Dec. 9. — Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., has a prospect of $1,000,000 in profits for the first quarter of the new fiscal year, Abel Carey Thomas told the stockholders here today at their annual meeting.

Thomas said he had received information to this effect from the company's comptroller. This would exceed the profit for all four quarters of the fiscal year ending Aug. 31.

Approval was given the compromise settlement agreement between the company and the Warner brothers by a vote of 2,140,451 shares to approximately 4,000. The percentage in favor was 99.2.

This is the agreement that caused several injunction suits in advance of the meeting.

Big Industry Meet Breaks Up in Row

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—What was designated this morning by George L. Berry, coordinator for industrial control, as the greatest industrial meeting ever held tonight threatened to be as great a flop, as industry after industry passed resolutions to have nothing to do with his conference, or walked out without the formality of taking action.

Film and theatre interests, slated to hold a round table conference on their problems never even organized a meeting, an example which was followed by a number of other industries. Others met, passed resolutions of condemnation and quit, and tonight probably only a half dozen had formulated a program and elected delegates to the Industries Council meeting which is to end the affair, as asked by Berry.

If any representatives of the film

Kuykendall also calls upon Warners in the bulletin to "frankly announce they will levy no added tax on the exhibitor who buys their pictures" after Warners

N. H. Court Refuses Bank Night Ruling

CONCORD, N. H., Dec. 9.—The Supreme Court of New Hampshire has declined to pass on the legality of Bank Night until a direct suit against a theatre is launched. The decision came as a result of a test case against Attorney General Johnson seeking to have him rescind his order of several months ago that Bank Night could not operate.

The recent order from the state attorney's office, which removed the ban on Bank Night until such time as its legality shall be established, continues until further legal action.

He was a student at Miami University at Oxford, O., and graduated from the law school of the University of Cincinnati in 1882. He was admitted to the Minnesota bar two years later and started practicing in Minneapolis.

He was appointed a judge in the district court of Minneapolis in 1913 and served for 12 years. In 1925 he was named to the U. S. District Court for Minneapolis and has served on this bench to the present date.

Heading for $65,000

"A Night at the Opera," on the basis of its first three days, may reach $65,000 in its first week at the Capitol. Saturday's business outdistanced the opening Saturday of the "Mutiny on the Bounty" engagement.

The Marx comedy will remain at the theatre until Christmas Day when "A Tale of Two Cities" opens.

Calls Producers a Bar to Regulation

with a surprisingly uniform response and approval from exhibitors everywhere.

"The industry today stands challenged to regulate and discipline itself in commercial matters. If no such responsibility will be assumed by the producers and distributors, they should not complain of governmental interference if the legislatures and the courts move in and do it for us."

Kuykendall says that as soon as some definite plan for self-regulation is evolved a meeting of the M.P.T.O.A. board will be called. Meanwhile, he urges local exhibitor organizations to strengthen their ranks and protect their interests against unfair legislation which he sees in prospect with the convening of many state legislatures next month.

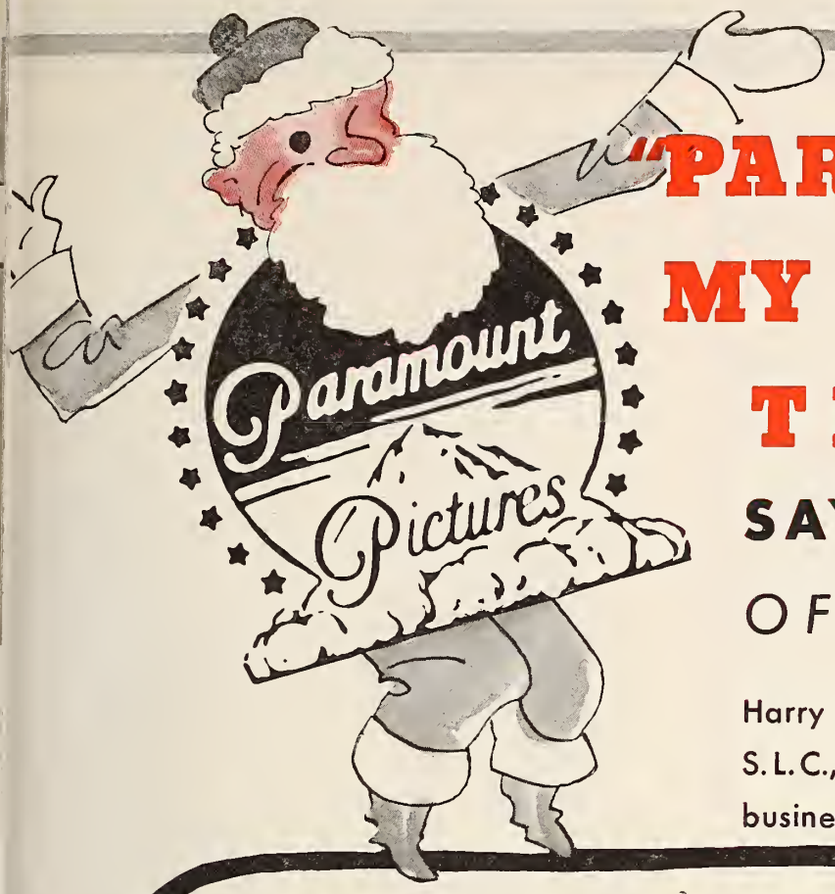
Commending the industry and the Legion of Decency for the joint efforts which brought about improvement in product during the past year, Kuykendall calls attention to what he sees as the exhibitors' task resulting from the "screen cleanup," namely, "to find an audience and develop a patronage for the finer pictures that we have to show. That's not easy," he concludes, "but it's our job and if it isn't done the whole movement may collapse. A little help along these lines from those who demanded cleaner pictures is now in order."

St. Louis Fox Plan Delay Is Expected

Hearing on reorganization plans for the Fox, St. Louis, will not be held before Jan. 15, Donald Henderson, member of the bondholders' protective committee, stated yesterday. It was expected that details completing the plan would be ready for filing last week.

Delay in sending out the plan and filing with the court was explained by Henderson as due to the many persons involved and the lawyers going over the plan. He said there was no significance in the delay other than for the reasons stated. A date for public hearing will be set 20 days after the plan is filed in the Federal Court, St. Louis.

Fanchon & Marco is operating the house in accordance with an agreement with the trustees, James T. Blair and Edmond Koeln.



Six Arbitrations on List for Next Week

Although no cases are scheduled this week, six are listed for arbitration at the New York Film Board next week.

"PARAMOUNT IS MY SANTA CLAUS THIS YEAR," SAYS HARRY DAVID, OF SALT LAKE CITY

Harry David, who is the big theatre man out in S. L. C., the big town of Utah, is very emphatic about business around the Christmas holiday season.

"A lot of lads sit by and expect SANTA CLAUS to dump some Christmas business into their theatres. Well, PARAMOUNT is going to be my SANTA CLAUS this year. They've figured out plenty early the kind of pictures I have to have to get the crowds in . . . before Christmas . . . during Christmas week . . . and right after Christmas. And I get 'em.

"THIS YEAR," says HARRY, "I've already signed for a couple of naturals. 'SCROOGE,' which is Charles Dickens' 'A Christmas Carol,' is right in the Christmas spirit and will take care of the family trade for me the week before Christmas. 'COLLEGIATE,' the Joe Penner-Jack Oakie picture, will drag the kids in--all of them regardless of age and sex--during CHRISTMAS WEEK."

As both of Harry's choices for box-office profits the last couple of weeks in this year are Paramount releases, it sort of looks like he knows.

"Mutiny" Again Held

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 22—"Mutiny on the Bounty" will be held over at the Warner again, its second week here, but its third downtown. The picture opened at the Penn where it did a sensational $28,000, then was moved to the smaller Warner at the same scale and turned in $10,000, more than double average, during its first week there.

The only reason the Penn didn't keep it was because of a product jam there, something that also fazes the Warner now. If many more holdovers develop in the near future, it's likely that Warners will be forced to reopen either the Davis or the Aldine to straighten out the picture situation.

Held in Atlanta

ATLANTA, Nov. 22—"Mutiny on the Bounty" was held over for an additional six-day run at Loew's Grand.

Metro and the Capitol strongly touted 'Mutiny,' spending $75,000 in the campaign and well advertising the event. Of the ad budget around $15,000 went for newspapers.

IATSE Wins 'Closed Shop' Studio Status

studios is being left to arbitration between the I. A. and the I. B. E. W. Each will appoint a neutral arbitrator and the two will decide which of the unions is entitled to jurisdiction over the sound men within the next 60 days. It is estimated that approximately 1,000 sound men are affected. The cameramen, laboratory workers and grips are estimated at another 4,000, but these will not represent a clear numerical gain for the I. A. as many of them now hold I. A. cards, in addition, however, to I. B. E. W. cards.

Vote May be Needed

Present indications are that under the agreement the I. A. will be given the right to organize these groups and may have the exclusive jurisdiction if its efforts are successful. This may involve a vote of the members affected to obtain a majority expression on which of the two unions they prefer to remain with. The I. A. comes back under the basic studio labor agreement from which it withdrew at the inception of the inter-union jurisdictional dispute at the time of the advent of sound, as its part in obtaining these privileges.

The two-day conferences at the Hays office began on Saturday and ended late Sunday night. Attending from film companies were Leo Spitz, president of RKO; Herbert B. Swope, chairman of K-A-O; Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's and M-G-M; Sidney R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox; John E. Otterson, president of Paramount; Austin Keough, Paramount secretary; R. H. Cochrane, vice-president of Universal, and Harry M. Warner, president of Warners. United Artists and Columbia were not represented.

Browne to Coast

Union men attending included George Browne, president of the I. A.; Harland Holmden and John P. Nick, I. A. vice-presidents; Steve Newman, I. A. coast representative; Dan Tracy, president of the I. B. E. W.; William L. Hutchinson, president of the carpenters' union; Dan Tobin, president of the teamsters' union; Joseph Weber, president of the musicians' union. The last four named are members of the executive council of the A. F. of L. Pat Casey, labor representative for the major studios, also played an important part in the conferences. Sol A. Rosenblatt, I. A. legal aide, is also reported to have participated.

Newman left for Hollywood yesterday and Browne leaves for the coast today. They will work on supplementary details involved in the agreement and will arrange for the formal return of the I. A. to the studios' basic agreement.

Browne, Casey and Otterson, in statements issued yesterday, described the settlement as "satisfactory to all parties concerned."

The I. B. E. W. holds a nine-year contract with the studios and an agreement revising this to care for any changes which may result from the jurisdictional agreements reached this week end is expected to be undertaken on the coast at once. Details of the jurisdictional agreement are to be worked out entirely by the two unions involved.

Casey said yesterday that the studios were indifferent as to which union exercised the jurisdiction, but sought an amicable labor situation.

K. C. Conference Delayed

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 9.—Negotiations between Harland Holmden, third vice-president of the I. A. T. S. E., who is in charge of local operators for the time being, and the Kansas City Theatre Owners' Emergency Council, have been postponed from Dec. 7 till after Dec. 10.

The Emergency Council, composed of L. J. McCarthy for Fox Midwest, E. Rolsky and Jay Means (chairman) for the independents, Ed Dubinsky for Dubinsky Brothers, and C. A. Schultz for Commonwealth, is asking for a reduction of around 25 per cent in wage scales, according to labor officials, while Holmden wants a 10 per cent increase and a contract with subsequent run houses. For two or three years subsequent runs have hired on an individual oral basis.

Negotiations between operators and downtown houses await the outcome of those with suburbans. The local asked a 10 per cent increase when the contract expired recently. In the meantime all theatres are working with operators on the same basis as the past season. Any deal reached probably will be retroactive.

Following the national move of I. A. T. S. E., locally an I. A. T. S. E., man has replaced the I. B. E. W. man at Loew's Midland, according to labor officials here.

industry were present, they had not made their affiliation known when entering the meeting, according to officials of Berry's office. About 50 per cent of those attending had failed to make known the industry or organization which they represented.

Sol A. Rosenblatt, former chief of the film code, was present, but he said he was merely an observer and was more interested in the cloak and suit industry, for which he is impartial arbitrator, than in pictures.

The opening session of the conference consisted solely of a speech by Berry. Its adjournment immediately upon conclusion of his talk precipitated a near riot as efforts were made to give John W. O'Leary, former president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, an opportunity to speak.

A session of the labor organizations this afternoon proceeded with but little less friction as representatives of the American Federation of Labor refused flatly to sit in any conferences with unions not connected with their organization. The organizations scheduled to gather for a consideration of the problems of the amusement industries included the Associated Actors & Artists of America, A. F. of L., I.B.E.W., Brotherhood of Electrical Workers of America, International Union of Operating Engineers, American Federation of Musicians, and Stage Employes and Moving Picture Machine Operators of the U. S. and Canada.

were: Harry M. Warner, Albert Warner, Jack L. Warner, Waddill Catchings, Henry A. Rudkin and Thomas. It is expected H. M. Warner will be reelected president at the annual meeting of directors Dec. 17 in New York.

Ivan Culbertson, Wilmington attorney, presided. About 150 attended.

Stanleigh P. Friedman, a director, read a statement explaining the action of the board in compromising an employment agreement with the Warners. During the discussion which followed Henry L. Canby, appearing in behalf of certain stockholders, objected to ratification. After the vote had been announced Milton Rosenberg, New York attorney, moved that the vote of the proxy committee be canceled. His motion was seconded by Milton Poulson, another New York attorney, but this was ruled out of order by Culbertson.

In discussing the prospective profit, Thomas said: "I speak in the absence of Harry M. Warner, whose presence was necessary today at a conference of the representatives of the leading motion picture companies and the officials of the I.A.T.S.E.

"The financial outlook, in the absence of any unexpected labor disturbances, is bright. Your company in the fiscal year ending Aug. 31, after all charges, earned a net profit of $674,158.96.

"The comptroller informs me that the profits for the first quarter of the current fiscal year are estimated to be slightly in excess of $1,000,000, after all charges. This, you will note, represents a larger profit than earned in all of the last fiscal year.

"There has been a continued increase in theatre attendance, and we have reason to believe this increase will continue. It is sincerely hoped that this year will be the best since 1930."

May Meet in K. C.

Warners' southern and western branch managers will hold a mid-winter sales meeting next week, probably in Kansas City, with Gradwell L. Sears, vice-president in charge of these divisions, presiding. Dates and hotel will be set later in the week. A. W. Smith, vice-president in charge of eastern and Canadian sales, completed a two-day meet last week.

securing an A. F. of L. charter and it will hold meetings every second Tuesday at the New Yorker.

Efforts are under way to have all exchanges represented 100 per cent. A standard wage scale and working hours are now being drafted.

Cooperation from Local 306 is being sought. It is planned to get the operators to accept a plan not to admit film in a booth unless each reel has a union label on it. A mass meeting to bring in new members is expected to be held today or next Tuesday.

assume the licensing right to thei music after Jan. 1.

A Warner spokesman declined t comment on Kuykendall's remarks i this connection other than to say tha the company's policies in licensing ex hibitors for the public performanc of Warner music are "now bein worked out but might not be com pleted for some time yet."

It has been unofficially indicated a Ascap that the music society is nc contemplating a reduction of its licens ing rates to exhibitors, a representa tive of the organization having state recently that Ascap believes its cata logue, "with or without the Warne music," to be worth all that the so ciety is getting for it now.

Writers "Well Paid"

Declaring that the writers and pul lishers of music used in films ar "well paid" for this use by the pro ducers who, in turn, collect it from th exhibitors in film rentals, Kuykenda also asks that film companies in addi tion to Warners which have musi publishing subsidiaries also shoul refuse to levy a music tax on ex hibitors.

"Warners have a fine opportunity t repudiate and show up the unfair, ol noxious and monopolistic methods c Ascap with the motion picture the atres," Kuykendall declares in h bulletin. "Let Warners frankly an nounce they will levy no added tax o the exhibitor who buys their picture putting it squarely up to other motio picture companies with music pul lishing subsidiaries now members c Ascap or non-members to match thei fairness to the exhibitor."

Asks Sustained Offensive

The M.P.T.O.A. head conclude that "to curb and restrain the musi tax extortion a sustained offensiv must be carried on by exhibitors, wh pay out millions for this music tax. He urges exhibitors to give the Gov ernment "every possible cooperatio and encouragement" in its pendin anti-trust litigation against Ascap, an to "actively support" the new Duff Copyright law "through your ow representative in Congress."

"No producer can record music i his picture without paying adequa compensation to the composer for th songs and music actually used, whic he recovers from you in the fil rentals you pay," Kuykendall advise the exhibitors. "An additional musi tax on motion picture theatres is a inexcusable extortion which the Gov ernment and the courts should nc tolerate any longer."

Review Denied In Minnesota Contract Case

ota exhibitor, who refused to play or pay for films sent him under contract.

This was the second time the case has been dismissed by the Supreme Court, the first instance having been nearly a year ago when it developed that the suit had been appealed before final judgment had been entered.

In its opinion today, rendered by Justice Sutherland, the court held that Federal and non-Federal questions had been so mixed in the suit as to take it out of its hands.

The action was brought by Fox to recover damages for an alleged breach of two contracts by which Muller was licensed to exhibit certain films. Muller contended that the contracts were vitiated by inclusion thereof of the arbitration clause held to be invalid in the Paramount-Famous Lasky case.

First Decision Affirmed

The court of first instance held that the contract violated the Sherman anti-trust act and dismissed the action, holding that the arbitration plan so connected with the remainder of the contract that the entire contract was tainted, and, second, that the contract violated the anti-trust law. This decision was affirmed by the state supreme court, following which Fox appealed to Washington. In bringing the case before the U. S. Supreme Court, Fox contended that the question of severability of the various provisions of the contract alone had been decided and that no Federal question as determined.

"We do not attempt to settle the dispute," Justice Sutherland said in his opinion, "but, assuming for present purposes only that the petitioners' view is the correct one, the case is controlled by the settled rule that where the judgment of a state court rests upon two grounds, one of which is Federal and the other non-Federal in character, our jurisdiction fails if the non-Federal ground is independent of the Federal ground and adequate to support the judgment.

Concedes Clause Invalidity

"Whether the provisions of a contract are non-severable, so that if one is held invalid the others must fall with it, is clearly a question of general and not of Federal law. The validity of the arbitration clause which the present contracts embody is conceded. It was held invalid by the Federal District Court in the Paramount case, and its judgment was affirmed here. The question, therefore, was foreclosed, and was not the subject of controversy in the state courts. In that situation, the primary question to be determined by the court below was whether the concededly invalid clause was separable from the other provisions of the contract. The ruling of the state supreme court that it was not, is sufficient to concluded the case without regard to the determination, if, in fact, any was made, in respect of the Federal question. It follows that the non-Federal ground is adequate to sustain the judgment. "The case, in effect, was disposed of before the Federal question said to be involved was reached," the court concluded. "A decision of that question then became unnecessary; and whether it was decided or not, our want of jurisdiction is clear."

Looking 'em Over

"Wolves of the Underworld"

(Regal)

A Julius Hagen production, all-English, this adaptation of a stage play combines murder, a touch of romance and the not too subtle deductions of a detective story writer and amateur crime sleuth. The result is a fairly lively yarn.

Featured in the cast are Godfrey Tearle, Elsa Bevan, Fred Groves and Russell Thorndike. With the exception of Tearle, the names of the players will not be familiar to the regular run of American audiences.

A group of gangsters set out to "get" a supposedly respectable doctor, who has a niece, Miss Bevan. The tables are turned and the doctor kills the gunman, planting his body beside an accidentally handy train wreck. At the same time the leader of another, related gang of counterfeiters escape from Dartmoor, witnesses the murder and forces the doctor to hide him. Miss Bevan, frightened, comes to Tearle for assistance, and he suspects the "friend" of the doctor is the escaped convict.

When he goes to make sure, he is trapped by the convict and taken to the hideout of the counterfeiters, who threaten harm to the girl. At the expected right moment, the police, headed by the writer's brother, a Scotland Yard officer, break in and capture the gang. The anticipated romance, which had been rather subordinated, concludes the picture. George A. Cooper directed.

Attorney General Homer S. Cummings yesterday cleared Sol A. Rosenblatt, former film code chief, of any "improper action" in connection with a conference on a proposed settlement of the St. Louis anti-trust suit which took place in Washington last May 17.

The conference was the subject of testimony in the St. Louis trial of the criminal indictments against Warners, RKO and Paramount executives and subjected Rosenblatt to the criticism, at that time, of both the attorneys for the defendants and for the Government. Warner Music Ban Surprise to Starr

Herman Starr, Warner vice-president in charge of music and real estate, yesterday described as news to him reports that local broadcasting stations were planing to discontinue the use of Warner music on all programs as a result of differences over crediting the pictures from which songs originate.

Although denying Warners had issued orders insisting on credits, Starr said:

"We don't get anything for the use of our music, but the least they could do is give us the publicity we are entitled to."

Advised that Musicians' Local 802 was said to have described announcements of picture titles as advertising that should be paid for, Starr responded "that's a brand new idea," ing the proposal some months ago and pushing the preliminary work leading up to adoption of the new plan by M.P.P.D.A. members.

Labor opposition so far, the Herald finds, has been confined to the New England states where the I.A.T.S.E. unions have threatened to fine any member using the longer reels and have recently reaffirmed their stand at the annual convention.

Individual projectionists and other locals are said to be opposed to the change.

Exhibitor opponents of the change believe the larger reels will be a strain on their projection machines, and they are opposed to expenditures for alterations or replacements. They also contend that practically all the equipment in smaller towns was made for 1,000-foot reels. They feel their magazines and motors will not function properly. One middle western exhibitor declared that he had "plenty of trouble with the small reels" because they were bent and one-sided. Larger reels would increase this, he contended.

Some indicated they would favor the plan if assured the larger reels would fit a Powers 6-B projector, pointing out there were hundreds of small town houses using these.

Those who were non-committal were curious as to whether the old Simplex projectors would have to be altered or replaced. They have found, they said, that the takeup reel pull breaks the film with 2,000-foot reels.

Short Subjects

"Alias St. Nick"

(M-G-M)

An excellent holiday release produced by Harmon-Ising in color. The story idea is not especially new, but the entertainment values, which are considerable, accrue from the cleverness of the treatment. There are mother mouse and her brood of little ones preparing for the arrival of Santa Claus and one little fellow who thinks it is all the bunk. The menace, in the form of the cat, dresses himself as St. Nick, gains entry into the family circle and is discovered when his costume is punctured. The assault on his person in the form of cartoon ammunition and guns follows. Production Code Seal, No. 1,793. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Amateur Theatre of the Air No. 5"

(Biograph-Radio)

Major Bowes has brought together a good assortment of amateurs in this effort as in the past. With that same high skill in assembling, cutting, editing and musical interspersing, the subject includes a torch singer, a classroom scene with talented pupils, a colored quartet and tap dancing among others. MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Hitch Hike Lady"

(Republic)

San Diego, Dec. 11.—This picture has plenty of box-office lure. It scored a hit with a preview audience at the Fox California. It has fast-moving comedy that starts with a rush and ends with a laugh.

Alison Skipworth shows she is as good in emotional roles as she is with comedy. Exhibitors should stress her name, comedy angles and general appeal.

Miss Skipworth appears as Mrs. Amelia Blake, whose son is in San Quentin Prison, although the boy tells her he has Rancho San Quentin, an orange ranch. Left £100, Miss Skipworth arrives in New York and meets Judy Martin, convincingly played by Mae Clarke. The two start by auto for California, but are left stranded when their guide, Dell Henderson, skips with their cash, so they hitch hike to California.

James Ellison, an auto trailer bungalow salesman, gives them a lift. Later on the trip they pick up two light-fingered gentlemen played by Arthur Treacher as a phony English duke, and Warren Hymer, his tough stooge. The rest of the plot revolves around attempts to keep Mrs. Blake from knowing her son's plight. The story ends as the Governor is persuaded by Ellison to pardon young Blake.

Treacher and Hymer turn sentimental and pull a fast orange contest to buy a ranch, so that Mrs. Blake finds her son on a real Rancho San Quentin. Others who handle their parts creditably include Beryl Mercer, Lionel Belmore, Harold Waldridge, Christian Rub and George Hays. Aubrey Scott directed. Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 90 minutes. "G."

adding that the musicians were becoming salesmen for the radio stations.

IBEW Men Return to Coast Theatre Jobs

Hollywood, Dec. 11.—With the new I.A.T.S.E. agreement signed, all I.B.E.W. men who last week were discharged in local theatres have returned to their jobs, it was learned today.

Efforts to work out an agreement between the I.A.T.S.E. and the A.S.C. will be started as soon as George Browne, I.A.T.S.E. head, arrives here later in the week. Steve Newman, I.A.T.S.E. studio representative, is due in tomorrow.

I. A. Meets Jan. 15.

The board of the I. A. T. S. E. will hold its semi-annual meeting in Miami Jan. 15. It will be a five-day session and will run concurrently with the meeting there of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor.

Won't Book Chaplin

The Warner circuit will not play the new Chaplin feature, "Modern Times," a company official stated yesterday. Disagreement over terms is responsible.

Barnstyn Forms New Company in England

Jack Barnstyn, head of British & Continental Trading Co., has formed Franco-London Films, Ltd., which will produce three pictures at A.T.P. Studios, Ealing, England. He arrived Monday night on the Britannic from a six-months' visit to Holland and England.

Associated British Film Distributors will handle the trio in England, while Barnstyn will distribute in this country. The first picture, "Symphony of Love," is in production with Guita Alpar as the star. The music rights to "Rigoletto" have been secured for the picture, Barnstyn said, and Brodsky, famous composer, will arrange additional numbers. Richard Pottier is directing.

Franco-London Films will spend about $300,000 on the initial picture and it is possible four more will be made upon completion of the first three.

British & Continental will make eight next year in Holland. Four will be made in English, in addition to Dutch, with American and English stars, Barnstyn stated.

Producers in England will make about 200 features next year, the B. & C. head asserted. Business in England is booming. On the Continent, especially in France, it is poor because of a scarcity of funds, Barnstyn said. The French studios are mostly empty, he added.

Barnstyn leaves for Hollywood with his wife about the middle of next month to look over production.

"Gulliver" Booked

"The New Gulliver," Soviet version of the Jonathan Swift classic, has been booked Christmas Week in Newark, Philadelphia, Baltimore and San Francisco. It will also play the Acme, New York.

at the time, and charged that Russell Hardy, a special assistant to the attorney general, was endeavoring to use the conversations which ensued as evidence against the defendants in the trial. Hardy, denying the defense charge, referred to Rosenblatt as an "officious interloper" and a stranger to the Department of Justice. Cummings' letter to Rosenblatt clearing him of impropriety in the happening included an apology for Hardy's use of the term "officious."

Following is the Cummings letter to Rosenblatt:

"I have your letters of Nov. 5 and Nov. 12, and of course you will recall our conversation on Oct. 31.

"With respect to the recent anti-trust proceeding in St. Louis, any statements which may have been made at the trial indicating that you had acted in an 'officious' manner are to be regretted; and I assure you that no discourtesy or affront was intended. I did not regard any action on your part that was brought to my attention as improper in any respect, and I trust that your relations with the Department of Justice will continue in the future as in the past to be pleasant—which, of course, is our wish with respect to all who come in contact with the Department."

the chairmanship of David Bernstein and Major Albert Warner, has undertaken to raise a quota of $150,000 this year.

A telegram from Eddie Cantor in Hollywood pledging the support of the film colony was read by Louis K. Sidney, chairman of the Artists' Division. It stated that Cantor, Sophie Tucker, Boris Morros and Abe Lastfogel had called a meeting for Dec. 16 at the Hillcrest Club to enroll support for the Federation. According to Cantor, the meeting was being called because of the insistence of former New Yorkers to continue their Federation work.

The plight in which the Federation finds itself this year was described by Louis Nizer. "Unless the deficit of $2,636,000 is raised, the work of the 91 charitable institutions affiliated with Federation faces serious curtailment. Costs have risen while, at the same time, annual income has fallen, leaving Federation with the greatest deficit in its history.

"The theatrical profession has long been noted for its generosity. It must live up to that reputation in the critical situation in which Federation finds itself now, so that thousands of homeless, ill and helpless will be given some assurance of care."

Others who spoke at yesterday's luncheon were Phil Baker, Ben Bernie, Samuel D. Leidesdorf, president of Federation, Major Warner and Bernstein.

Among those present were Irving Caesar, Max Gordon, Eddie Garr, Emil Coleman, Belle Baker, Sam Morris, Marvin Schenck, Harry Rose, "Cooky" Bewers and Edwin H. Morris.

Government Presses for An Early Hearing

St. Louis, Dec. 12.—The Government is making every effort to have Federal Judge Joseph West Molyneaux of Minneapolis, appointed early this week by Presiding Justice Kimbrough Stone of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, set an early date in January for the hearing of its equity suit for a temporary injunction against Warners, Paramount and RKO, it is reported here. The suit alleges the defendants refuse to deal with Fanchon & Marco for the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central.

Russell Hardy, prosecuting attorney, is understood opposing the re-

Appeal Is Allowed On Paramount Fees

Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine, attorneys for the Paramount trustees, yesterday were granted leave by Federal Judge Henry W. The firm had requested an additional $300,000 for its services, which was denied by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe.

Other law firms identified with the Paramount reorganization whose applications for fees either were appreciably reduced or disallowed entirely by Judge Coxe are expected to follow the Root, Clark firm's lead in taking their appeals of his decision to the

Slight Error

When an actor purchases a Renoir a press agent is liable to make a mistake. In fact, he is almost certain to.

That's how it happened that U. A. sent out a story that Charles Laughton had acquired a Renoir, "Judgment of Paris," from the Barnes Foundation.

Some of the U. A. boys thought it was a new coupe.

Now it develops that the Bignou gallery did it.

U. A.-Schaefer Deal Considered—Lasky

Chicago, Dec. 12.—Jesse L. Lasky, partner of Pickford-Lasky Prod., which is distributing through U. A., today told Motion Picture Daily George J. Schaefer, who recently resigned as vice-president, director and general manager of Paramount, undoubtedly is being "seriously considered" by United Artists as sales chief.

However, nothing will be set until Schaefer confers with U. A. directors on the coast, Lasky added.

Accompanied by Harry D'Abbadie D'Arrast, Lasky is en route to New York to look over plays and story material.

Pons Film Grosses $145,000, 14 Days

With $52,000 chalked up for the second week, ending Wednesday night, "I Dream Too Much" tallied $145,000 during its 14-day run at the Music Hall. The first week's gross was $93,000.

"Miss Pacific Fleet" was a disappointment at the Roxy, getting $25,000 for the week. "So Red the Rose," in five days of a second week at the Paramount, garnered about $10,000. Bob Weitman, managing director, has booked Casa Loma and his Orchestra for Christmas and New Year's. The stage show will supplement "The Bride Comes Home" during the two weeks.

All Broadway houses are figuring on advancing admissions for special shows on New Year's Eve.

Paul Ash and his orchestra open at the Roxy on Christmas Day for nine days.

Roach May Increase Feature List—Loew

Plans are being mulled over by Hal Roach to increase feature production from six to eight or 10 next season, according to David Loew, vice-president. There also is a possibility of increasing the short subject schedule, currently 24 two-reelers, for 1936-37.

Because it has been decided four-reelers are not the right length, Roach's intentions to make four 4,000-foot comedies with Laurel and Hardy

Ohio Lower House Reenacts 3% Levy

Columbus, Dec. 12.—The lower house of the state legislature today approved the extension of the three per cent sales tax for another year by a vote of 106 to 6. No opposition to the extension has been evidenced in the senate, which will act on the extension in the near future.

The house's action is regarded as definitely eliminating prospects of a reinstatement of the 10 per cent admission tax in Ohio, as the three per cent sales tax is held applicable to admissions.

Six Para. Features Planned for France

"What?" asked Una Merkel, traveling east on the same train, when told of this. "My friends aren't; I don't travel in the same circles as Mr. Hecht."

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THE unexpected death of Sydney S. Cohen yesterday brought with it occasion to reopen the memory floodgates of the stirring events of an early and significant era in this industry. Cohen was a militant exhibitor association leader, probably the outstanding one in the entire history of such organizations. While business circumstances, fashioned by the seat they then were occupying, found important factors often at odds with the platform he pursued in those hectic days of '20 to '24 when he was president of the M.P.T.O.A. and in '25 and '26 when he was kicked upstairs to the chairmanship of its board Cohen's reputation as a man who believed in and practiced fair play was untouched as of that time and thereafter. . . .

Cohen was a central figure in the drama. Events which had crystallized before his day of importance cleared the way for the unfurling of the independent exhibitors' standard. Not of his conception, Cohen made them part of his unflagging devotion to the organization which he headed so long and so well. There appears little reason to doubt that he would have gone a considerable distance as a theatre operator in the development of his own interests had he not concentrated so wholeheartedly on the cause which he felt was so just. . . .

His fight was against producer entry into exhibition and his traditional adversary was Adolph Zukor. Famous Players-Lasky, forerunner of Paramount Publix, had gone places by 1921. Zukor, his star rising ever higher in the industry's scheme of things, had covered considerable territory since his initial investment of $3,000 in a penny arcade on 14th Street brought him from Chicago and the fur trade to check into the status of that loan. It was thus he had entered the amusement business. In '18 and '19 and '20, however, important exhibitors, aroused over the terms sought by Famous and its affiliate, Artcraft, had been sold an idea. That idea, drummed up by J. D. Williams, up from the Antipodes, and T. L. Tally, Los Angeles theatre operator, had blazed its way across the country. In less than three years, Zukor had reason to know competition was traveling fast in his wake and that something had to be done about it. . . .

First National had signed Charlie Chaplin to make eight two-reelers for $1,000,000. It had taken Mary Pickford from Artcraft, gotten Anita Stewart through a former Boston exhibitor named Louis B. Mayer who had turned producer. Norma Talmadge and D. W. Griffith joined the ranks in '19. Hiram Abrams in that same year, talking from Hollywood, divulged the formation of United Artists with William G. McAdoo as advisor and Oscar A. Price as president. Marcus Loew had arranged for $100,000,000 through the Morgans. Bill Fox was bestirring himself. Lewis J. Selznick, a constant thorn in Zukor's side, had walked out on his agreement and put his son, Myron, in the production business. . . .

There came the day when Zukor said, in paid space:

"If exhibitors establish or rent studios for the production of pictures, the producers will have to build theatres not in order to rebuke the exhibitors, but for the simple reason that that will be the only means open to them to protect their producing investments."

And shortly thereafter, Williams with this:

"No exhibitor will object to a service contract giving him exhibition rights to a series featuring a star of known box-office value. But it is now an old and taken-for-granted trick to compel him to pay out his dollars for unprofitable pictures to get the big fellows just because a concern wants everything in sight and has to 'make the strong carry the weak' to stifle and offset a theoretical competition."

First National was screaming Wall Street domination and yelling its head off over producer penetration into theatres. . . .

On May 18, 1918, "interests friendly" to Famous announced the purchase of the Rialto and Rivoli in New York. By July of that year, the industry accepted as fact, although concrete proof was lacking, that Zukor's theatre invasion already had lined up two hundred theatres. Deals with the Alfred S. Black circuit in New England and with Steve Lynch's Southern Enterprises in the southern states had been closed or were about to be. Nobody seemed to know exactly. Attacking First National by indirect methods, Zukor caused Lynch to purchase the Hulsey theatres and the First National franchise in the Southwest. Things were popping on all fronts. . . .

Then came Cleveland. Frank J. Rembusch had formed the Independent Exhibitors of America. Cohen had formed the M. P. T. O. A., largely a skeleton association. They merged. Black, president of a third group known as the Motion Picture Exhibitors of America, withdrew, charging the Cleveland meeting had been railroaded. The Committee of 17, ostensibly an independent group with Willard C. Patterson, then of Atlanta, as chairman but in reality a First National agent, was organized. Metro, Pathe, Vitagraph, Select, Robertson-Cole, United Artists and Universal went on record as opposed to producer-owned theatres. Cohen, in an open letter, characterized Zukor as "our most dangerous enemy." . . .

Cleveland, he said, had instructed him "to seek a remedy against your policy of destruction." To which Zukor answered: "Our position has always been open and above board. I am in my office every day. The door is always open." Cohen and a committee of nine took the hint and visited Zukor to probe alleged acts of oppression predicated on the former's "understanding" both Black and Lynch would conform. Only they did not and much excitement ensued. Then came Henry Salsbury, speaking for Zukor, with a promise that Famous would use "carbolic acid" to clean up, particularly in New England. It seemed peculiar that a couple of weeks later the Federal Trade Commission reported it had launched an investigation of Famous Players for possible violation of the Clayton Act. Shortly thereafter, Loew announced the purchase of Metro to insure Loew theatres of "an adequate supply of film." . . .

By 1921, James J. Walker, then a New York state senator with visions, perhaps, of the mayoralty of New York, was counsel for the M. P. T. O. A. and sidekick to Cohen. Walker was hammering hard at Famous and trustification. He charged Zukor by this time had control of five of First National's eight directors. Then came Minneapolis. Zukor was there. Perhaps a mistake, but there anyway. He was submitted to a severe grilling, informed his promises meant nothing and subsequently entered upon an agreement to make his company's tactics less susceptible of criticism. Zukor went further. He met Cohen and a committee in New York, opened his books, divulged private corporate affairs and only stopped when Elek John Ludvigh drew the line where terms in contracts were concerned. . . .

Zukor promised redress and calm seemed assured. Then, on August 31, 1921 the Federal Trade Commission filed its formal complaint against Famous, five other companies as well as Zukor, Jesse L. Lasky, Jules E. Mastbaum, Alfred S. Black, S. A. Lynch and E. V. Richards, Jr. Cohen was in a spot and he knew it. He assured Zukor the M. P. T. O. A. had nothing to do with the Government's action. Because of it, however, the conferences on adjustments were put off. So Cohen turned his guns, formidable ones in those days, on First National. Complaints over F. N.'s sub-franchises were rampant and exhibitors were yelling loud and long over the clause which made them play or pay for pictures purchased under their terms. First National held out. So did the M. P. T. O. A. Came another attack by Walker, a regional meeting of F. N. in Chicago which, under the clever manipulation of Earl J. Hudson, was broken up into nine sectional meetings for easier handling of disgruntled members.

The riot squad was avoided. First National adjusted its exhibition values-downward — and disturbed waters turned calm. . . .

The why of the famous and mysterious luncheon held at the Claridge when Charles C. Pettijohn brought Will H. Hays and the industry's leaders together came into the open along about December, '21 and culminated in a formal agreement on January 16, 1922. On the fourth of March, Hays began his job. As a matter of fact, he was on the job at eight o'clock that morning; the film fraternity didn't ship of the 125th St. Apollo and the Empire in the Bronx, which he leased to RKO for a 10-year period in 1932. He was a partner in Artco Corp., which holds a management contract for the Roxy, and had been technical advisor to the Roxy bondholders' committee since 1932. With Howard S. Cullman, trustee of the Roxy, he was mentioned recently as a bidder for the house under a plan of reorganization being advanced by them.

Cohen was also technical advisor to the bondholders' committee of the Beacon, at Broadway and 75th St., and operated the Fox Brooklyn for the bondholders for about one year just before operation of the house was turned over to Si Fabian. He owned retail stores in Stamford, Conn., and Trenton, N. J., also. In recent years he had been interested in educational and philanthropic activities and had been identified with the Educational Alliance.

Cohen, who was 50 years old, resided at the Hotel Ansonia with his daughter, Dorothy Louise, and son, Richard Sydney, who survive him. Mrs. Cohen died in 1918.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 11 A. M., at Central Synagogue, 55th St. and Lexington Ave., of which Cohen was a trustee. The remains will be at Riverside Memorial Chapel, 76th St. & Broadway, until then.

quest by defense counsel for setting the trial late in January or early February. The special assistant to the attorney general will not arrive here from Washington until a day before the hearing. He is said to have his case all prepared, but defense counsel is insisting on the extra time to allow for preparations on the necessary data.

Harry C. Arthur, Jr., vice-president of F. & M., arrived from New York by plane last night to be on hand for the inauguration of stage presentations at the Ambassador tomorrow. He plans to remain here a few days and return to New York with his son, Tom, who is attending a local school, for the Christmas holidays.

With a number of stage shows lined up for the Ambassador, F. & M. will eliminate duals during the life of this type of entertainment. The new policy, it is said, was brought about to offset a reported film shortage. No hike in admissions is anticipated.

Insiders' Outlook

begin to show until several hours later. The General made himself very busy. He saw all comers, maintained open house at his office. In California, Joe Schenck said Hays would be "the official umpire of the film industry." The umpiring shortly thereafter brought Hays to a Theatre Owners Chamber of Commerce luncheon. Walker was there and the occasion was pleasant on all sides. Hays outlined how he proposed to bring harmony into the business, eliminate unfair practices. Walker remarked the future now looked rosy. . . .

However, Cohen apparently refused to be convinced. Hammering away on many fronts and attacking all and sundry, he threw ice water in generous doses on the Hays movement. When convention time for the M. P. T. O. A. came along—it was Washington that year—Hays was smart enough to attend. Cohen, in a spot and sounding off on his program of cooperation, agreed to do just that. Hays pledged his and everything looked overwhelmingly harmonious. But politics, that perennial disturber, was grinding away. At the T. O. C. C. luncheon earlier, Walker had remarked he was willing to sit at the feet of Hays. Cohen, it seemed, didn't like the posture. His disapproval eventuated in a virulent attack on Walker, his dismissal as M. P. T. O. A. counsel with the added charge that he had sold out to the producers. . . .

Walker was flabbergasted. Also stunned. His friends felt the same way about it. Invectives flashed back and forth and resulted in the unfolding of a sorry mess of dirty linen to breezes already sullied. The T. O. C. C. voted a resolution of "undying love" to Walker. It failed to appease him and, although the Washington convention voted him a vote of confidence as it also did with Cohen, Walker refused to be mollified, declared himself through with the business. This, thirteen years ago, was a pledge not since broken. . . .

Cohen's sphere of influence began to shrivel following the break with Walker. It took time for the signs to point up what was happening, but happen it did. Committed to his unalterable policy of opposing Hays, Cohen saw to it that the M. P. T. O. A. voted against the adoption of the uniform exhibition contract negotiations which were launched early in Hays' second year in office. This was in February, '33. Too much Cohen, at this juncture, had permeated the M.P.T.O.A. It led to obvious dissatisfaction, a cleavage in the ranks which, in turn, led to the formation of individual territorial units and the coalition of the insurgents in Allied States Association. Michigan, Minnesota, Kansas, Indiana, Texas, Illinois, North Carolina, Virginia and the Dakotas cast the die at a meeting in Chicago. As Cohen refused to work with Hays, Allied, as of that time, did. Perhaps the step was more designed as a poke at Cohen than any desire to cooperate with Hays. At any rate, it was launched. It hurt Cohen and it hurt the M. P. T. O. A. As a parallel factor came the disintegration of the Theatre Owners Distributing Corp., formed by the M. P. T. O. A. months earlier. That organization took a year to get going and then with one picture and ended in bankruptcy. It was an inglorious end for dreams of exhibitor participation in production and distribution. . . .

Efforts on Cohen's part to heal the breach in exhibitor organization ranks developed their next phase in Boston, scene of the 1924 convention. His casual remark that he "missed the midwest crowd" swung loose the hinge on the door and led to an effort at harmony when Cohen determined to end his one-man domination by agreeing to the election of twenty-one directors. M. J. O'Toole stepped up to the presidency and Cohen down to the board chairmanship. Minneapolis was far behind by this time. Ample Wall Street money dazzled the major companies. Zukor no longer was apologizing for theatre activity, but, in interviews, was declaring boldly Paramount was "in the theatre business because there is money in it." Division in exhibitor association ranks mitigated against a united front; producers were expanding as they liked and that's all there seemed to it. . . .

When Cohen, his voice less fortissimo by this time, again blasted the merry cry of producer domination nothing came of it. A concession to Allied predicated on a representation for it of ten directors on the M. P. T. O. A. board was effected, but failed to remain effective. By '27, rantings against producer ownership of theatres had simmered to faint warblings. In Columbus, producer-distributor circuits were voted M. P. T. O. A. membership. Publix, Loew's and others did their stuff by the association treasury and Charles C. Pettijohn was persuaded to make a speech, high-sounding and fancy:

"You (exhibitors) wrote the Magna Charta of the business by your action. You have laid the foundation whereby all branches may face common troubles with a united front. Your constructive step makes producers and distributors even happier than you." . . .

Nobody has ever doubted the Nirvana producers and distributors have found since that "Magna Charta" was drawn. Since then, however, there has been and is, Allied; Cohen went into the department store business, a mild foray in exhibition which he so long championed, the Roxy theatre in New York and the Fox in Brooklyn while from afar and with what reactions probably will never be known now watched the parade pass before him until yesterday so abruptly slammed the book closed.

3 Weeks' Trial of Trust Action Seen

Columbia, Vitagraph, Universal, Fox, Educational, United Artists and RKO. The defense is represented by J. H. Beale, Jr., of the law firm of Reed, Smith, Shaw & McClay, of which former U. S. Senator David A. Reed is the senior partner. Leonard H. Krieger is prosecutor.

Friedman claims, in his statement of claim, that he was forced out of the theatre business in Sharon and Farrel, where he had operated houses until 1928. It is asserted by Friedman that his troubles were caused by the alleged conspiracy action of the defendants, who were members of what was then known as the Pittsburgh Film Board of Trade. He declares that business differences between him and distributing firms were given for settlement to a board of arbitration appointed by the Film Board. Friedman claims that when he refused to abide by the awards against him as made by the arbitration board the eight distributing firms withdrew film service for which he had contracted. The refusal of the distributors to supply him with films, Friedman declared, resulted in forcing him out.

Friedman also asserts the action of the members of the Film Board constitutes a conspiracy and that it violates the provisions of the Federal anti-trust act aimed at monopolistic action. He also declares that the withdrawal of service completely prevented him obtaining films.

The large damages asked for, the points of law involved and the fact that the trial here is one of the few thus far aired in Federal court are attracting great interest in the trade.

The suit was filed by Friedman several years ago. At that time he had two partners associated with him. These partners are not now associated with him. He thus has become the sole plaintiff.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Bohemian Girl"

(Roach-M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 12.—The familiar operetta provides no more than average appeal as a background for Laurel and Hardy antics. Stress the famous music and the comedians as gypsies for the best exploitation angle.

Gypsy Hardy lives in terror of his scolding wife, Mae Busch. He is put in a tough spot when Laurel discovers her billing and cooing in the best comedy vein with a gypsy sheik, Antonio Moreno. Moreno is whipped at the post for thieving by Count William Carleton. In revenge Miss Busch steals the Count's baby daughter and explains the child's presence in the camp by telling Hardy that he is the father. Hardy is overcome with pride at the unexpected possession of a three-year-old offspring and rears the child after his wife and Moreno elope. A locket and crest branded on the shoulder restore her to the Count after she is grown and has sung a couple of songs.

Laurel is responsible for the only big laugh sequence when he bottles a barrel of wine and progresses from jingled gaiety to solemn soddenness. Mae Busch gives an energetic performance as the shrewish wife. Thelma Todd is extravagantly pretty in a small part as the gypsy queen. Darla Hood handles the child part well and Jacqueline Wells is a standout as the Count's daughter, grown up. James Finlayson plays a routine comedy officer. Songs include "I Dreamt I Dwelt," "When Other Lips," "The Heart Bowed Down" and the new "Heart of a Gypsy" by Nathaniel Shilkret and Robert Shayon.

Staff writers changed the original libretto considerably. James Horne and Charles Rogers directed and undoubtedly will cut for greater speed before the film is released. An unexpected twist at the end shows the comedians distorted beyond belief after a session in a torture chamber.

"Opera" a $7,000 Louisville Smash

LOUISVILLE, Dec. 12.—Above average grosses were the rule at all first run houses, Loew's State pulling top money with "A Night At The Opera." Gross was $7,000, $2,500 over par.

Increases Assured, Basson Tells 306

of his four and a half months' tenure of office. Basson is one of three candidates nominated for the presidency on Dec. 4. Elections will be held next Wednesday.

Reviewing the various handicaps the union has been up against in the last few years, Basson notes in his report that "when the present administration took office Local 306 was under the shadow of a potential suspension or revocation of its charter by the I. A.

"Our charter has been physically taken to Washington. There was an imminent possibility of chartering another operators' union for this jurisdiction. One of the first tasks which we set for ourselves was, therefore, to secure the return of our charter and to remove this threat. We are happy to report complete and unqualified success in this respect. The charter has been returned and the local's position is now stronger than it has been for many years."

Discussing the principle of democracy, Basson states: "The control of the union has at last been placed where it belongs—in its membership. The powers of the executive board as a deliberative body have been restored. No longer can it be thought or said with any justification whatsoever that one man, or even a group of men, run Local 306. Local 306 runs itself."

Reduction of general expenditures and elimination of unnecessary employes have been accomplished in a move to cut down the union overhead, Basson reveals. Salaries of all officers have likewise been sliced. These economies must continue in order to put Local 306 on its feet financially, Basson concludes.

Independents Form A Buying Combine

OMAHA, Dec. 12.—After meeting in secret here for two days independent exhibitors of Nebraska, Western Iowa and South Dakota have formed the preliminary organization of a co-operative film buying group. O., who is handling the secretarial work of the organization.

According to Williams, the group will not be known as a film buying combine, but rather as a protective organization to meet the encroachment of the circuits in smaller situations. The organization will be considerably different from the one recently set up by Allied in Iowa where a fund of $50,000 was raised to meet circuit menace. There will be no fund, Williams said. On the board of directors of the new organization which has the temporary title of Nebraska, Iowa and Dakota Association are: H. Tammen, Dale Goldie, Dick Kehrberg, H. F. The judge declared he had heard no arguments on the order, but expected to do so within the next few days.

The order was presented to Judge Bondy by attorneys for the Capital Co., San Francisco corporation which had obtained a $297,000 judgment against Fox last summer as a result of rent defaults on a theatre lease said to have been guaranteed by Fox. The order was taken under advisement by Judge Bondy, and has not yet been signed by him. Capital attorneys had indicated a warrant for the arrest of Fox for contempt would be obtained if the court signed the order. Fox is said to be in a sanitarium in Toronto.

BOSTON, Dec. 13.—Bank Night has been banned here by order of Mayor Frederick Mansfield, after a special hearing. Warnings had been sent to exhibitors previously. Arguments of George S. Other chance games will likewise be banned. Heffener told MOTION PICTURE DAILY he will fight the order all the way. It is expected an injunction will be sought to prevent enforcement of the order. Mansfield refused to permit the game to run pending a test case.

Rothacker Is Made Head of Para. Studio

ly in MOTION PICTURE DAILY at the time.

In discussing the setup, Otterson, talking frankly, has this to say:

"When Paramount emerged from the long process of reorganization many problems confronted the new management of the company.

"Of primary importance to you in the field—and to all of us—was the matter of product. Due in a large measure to a change in studio management a few months previously, the producing organization was demoralized and this condition was reflected in the pictures which came from the studio.

"Therefore, our first concern was to establish a studio organization which would give Paramount the kind of product the company must have if Paramount's ancient glory was to be revived."

In next discussing details of the setup, Otterson describes Rothacker as "an able and experienced film business man who is giving the studio sound management along business lines."

"Wealth of Manpower"

Throwing a "beau geste" at the home office personnel as well, the Paramount president states:

"Nowhere in the organization was Paramount's magnificent wealth of manpower more in evidence than in the home office. The new management found the New York department heads uniformly competent and able. With Neil Agnew heading your distribution department, Y. Frank Freeman in charge of our theatre operations, John Hicks operating the foreign department and R. E. Anderson supervising financial and accounting matters we believe we have the perfect home office working combination.

"Throughout all the work of reorganization the new management has received the invaluable aid and counsel of Adolph Zukor. We have drawn on his vast experience and wisdom to guide us at all times. All of us owe him a deep debt of gratitude for his unselfish and tireless cooperation."

Sounding off another phase of his policy, Otterson finally discusses politics in this wise:

"I have stressed before and I wish to stress again that the new management is pledged to take Paramount out of politics and politics out of Paramount. Internal politics will not be tolerated. We have but one purpose—to place Paramount in the position it occupied for so many years as the undisputed leader of the motion picture industry and to keep Paramount in this position of leadership."

"Dream" Ending Run

pected to be on hand shortly after the first of the year.

So far as it could be learned, Hardy has not subpoenaed any witnesses. He may rely on the data already incorporated in the transcript of the criminal case for his arguments.

Louis Phillips, attorney for Paramount, who assisted St. Louis attorneys in the defense of George J. Schaefer and Paramount, sailed Thursday on the Pastores for a cruise. He is scheduled to return Jan. 6, the date of the St. Louis equity hearing and fly to the Mound City. Irving Cohen, who aided with Phillips, will also return to St. Louis.

Judge Molyneaux was named on Monday by Presiding Justice Kimbrough Stone of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals to hear the equity case, following disqualification of Federal Judge George H. Moore of himself. Judge Moore heard the criminal action and defense attorneys claimed bias on his part after the charge to the jury.

The hearing for a preliminary injunction is expected to last a few days.

aging director for the company in France, Belgium, Switzerland and Algeria succeeding him.

Hutchinson asserted business was very good in England and that this is the first time since 1929 that he has come over feeling so optimistic. He added that Fox will continue to make 12 quota films at its own studios at Wembly. Ernest Gartside is in charge, but Hutchinson supervises. Elisabeth Bergner is now making "As You Like It" for Charles B. Cochran. This picture will be distributed by Twentieth Century-Fox.

About 4,000 theatres are now open in England, including Ireland, Hutchinson stated, and all are doing well. He said he has no plans at all and his return to England depends on the outcome of his planned conferences with Kent.

On the same boat were Julian Schlesinger, nephew of M. A. Schlesinger, and his bride, from South Africa; Mary Ellis, Paramount player; Adrienne Allen and her husband, Raymond Massey, who will appear in a show to be produced by Max Gordon; and C. S. Forrister, Paramount writer.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Two in the Dark"

(Radio)

Hollywood, Dec. 13.—Novel plot basis provides new exploitation angles here to tempt those who like to turn detective in the theatre. Walter Abel finds himself bleeding from a wound in the head in the dark in the early morning. His mind is blank.

Contents of his pockets furnish no clue to his identity. Margot Grahame, a stranded actress, is guiding him toward a police station for help when newspapers appear with a sensational murder bannerlined.

The story gathers nice tension toward an unpredictable outcome as Abel, fearing he is the murderer, evades the reporters and police while trying to discover his identity. Abel makes a far better impression than in "The Three Musketeers." Miss Grahame makes convincing a rather illogical part. Alan Hale is excellent as an inspector. Eric Blore and Erick Rhodes bring their highly individual humor into good use and make their smaller parts effective. Gail Patrick and Erin O'Brien Moore supply a couple of attractive villainesses. Leslie Fenton is good as the murderous literary thief.

Ben Stoloff keeps the show moving at nice speed in spite of necessarily long dialogue sequences. Seton I. Miller keeps his audience baffled with his screen play from the novel by Gelett Burgess. Zion Myers produced.

Challenge audiences to guess the outcome and play the loss of memory angle as two good advertising angles.

Production Code Seal No. 1,798. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

"Whispering Smith Speaks"

(Lesser-20th-Fox)

Hollywood, Dec. 13.—Whether George O'Brien rides trains or horses he shows equal proficiency. In this one he rides trains and the film is sprinkled with smoothly blended, homely humor, romance and action which will please O'Brien followers.

The story is the usual melodramatic hokum wherein O'Brien chucks a puppet job handed him by Frank Sheridan, his rich father, who owns a large railroad, and sets out for himself. He gets a job on a small mountain railroad.

Irene Ware is boss of the company and audiences can sense romance a mile away when Miss Ware and O'Brien meet. The villains are not so villainous as usual and merely try to rook Miss Ware out of several thousand dollars for her supposedly worthless property, which, according to formula, is rich with tungsten ore. O'Brien smells a mouse and upsets the deal, beating out his own father and earning a responsible job with his father's company.

The saga ends with the hearts of O'Brien and Miss Ware clicking in locomotive time. Good performances are turned in by the entire cast, including Kenneth Thomson, Maude Allen, Spencer Charters, Vic Potel and others. David Howard's direction is subtle.

Production Code Seal No. 1,830. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

"Fighting Coward"

(Victory Pictures)

Hollywood, Dec. 13.—Aptly titled, this is melodrama of crime, murder, regeneration and sacrifice. Produced on a scale suitable for second features, it carries an appeal and emotional kick. Making no pretensions to step out of its class, the show, well acted and directed, should interest audiences liking action stripped of inconsequentials.

Starting in romantic atmosphere, Ray Mayer, young detective, is in love with Joan Woodbury, daughter of Chief Earl Dwyre. Assigned to track down a killer, he finds that the suspect is his father, William Farnum. Family love proving stronger than sense of duty, Mayer permits Farnum to escape. Fearing a reprimand, Mayer turns coward.

His only comfort is the solace of Joan, who urges him to get a new grip on himself as she understands the situation. Building to a thrill climax, Farnum joins with Mayer and is injured in a wild auto chase to wipe out the criminal gang. As Farnum dies in his son's arms, the stage is set for the climax as Mayer is restored to the good graces of the department and there is promise of marriage for him and Joan.

The picture is based on a story by Peter B. Kyne, a fact of definite showmanship value, with screen play by Al Martin. The supporting cast includes Clara Kimball Young, Sid Saylor, Reed Howes, Matthew Betz. Good handling of suspense is noted in Dam Milner's direction.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 57 minutes. "G."

F. & M. and Unions Agree at St. Louis

St. Louis, Dec. 13.—F. & M. interests have finally reached an agreement with the stagehands' and musicians' unions providing for a 12-week guarantee at the Ambassador. The unions previously demanded a minimum of 20 weeks, but after lengthy negotiations the circuit won out.

Seven weeks of stage shows already have been lined up, running until the end of January, following which it is expected two or three shows will be put on a month. Dated are the KMOX, radio station, Saturday Night Club with Al Roth, starting this week. Roth once was master of ceremonies at the Missouri when Spyros Skouras operated the house.

The Olsen & Johnson unit will begin a two-week engagement Dec. 21. Following will be Henry Armetta during the week of Jan. 3. The Major Bowes amateurs have been dated for Jan. 10 with Al Pierce, either on Jan. 17 or Jan. 24.

Vaudeville also will return locally provided a plan under discussion by F. & M. materializes. Harry C. Arthur, Jack Partington and Charles Kurtzman are considering from seven to eight acts a week for the Missouri. A decision will be arrived at in New York in a few days.

Mrs. Levy was formerly employed in the Warner office and is a niece of Joseph Schnitzer.

Despite the wedding, Levy's Film Row friends are going ahead with their "bachelor dinner" in his honor next Monday night.

SCHENECTADY, Dec. 15.—Television vill be an aid rather than a deterrent o the film industry and will develop greater number of first-class actors or the screen, members of the combined engineering societies of Schenectady were told last week by Anlrew W. Cruse, chief of the electrical livision of the Department of Commerce.

Radio pictures will not be able to lepend on film producers for their rograms, Cruse declared, explaining hat present domestic production plus nports would provide sufficient maerial only for a maximum of three ours' entertainment a day. On the Government Silent On St. Louis Case

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—With Russell Hardy, prosecuting attorney, scheduled to leave for St. Louis on Jan. 4, Government officials are not talking about plans in connection with the hearing on Jan. 6 for a preliminary injunction against Warners, RKO and Paramount for allegedly refusing to sell F. & M.'s Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 15.—Plans for reopening the New Grand Central are understood to have been dropped by Harry C. Arthur, Jr., who arrived here a few days ago. He expects to leave for New York about Dec. 23 to spend the holidays in the east.

Clarke, former president of Fox Film, is scheduled to appear before the Sabath Congressional committee here tomorrow to testify in connection with the committee's study of the General Theatres Equipment reorganization. The study was begun last month and was adjourned while the committee transferred its attention to the Fox West Coast bankruptcy in Los Angeles. Tomorrow's hearing will be a "closed" one.

Walker Silent Upon Comerford Situation

SCRANTON, Dec. 15.—Frank C. Walker, counsel for the Comerford theatrical interests, generally regarded as a likely successor to the late M. B. Comerford as the active directing head of the organization, said here today that nothing definite has been decided upon as yet.

"I just came here to look over the situation," said Walker, who arrived in Scranton early yesterday morning and spent most of the day in conference with local Comerford interests.

Warner and Kent Sound a Note of Optimism for 1936

By HARRY M. WARNER
President, Warner Bros.

The outlook for 1936 is, in my judgment, a bright one. Production in 1935 came up to a higher average standard, I think, than that of any other year in the history of the industry; and it was especially remarkable for the production of a number of outstanding pictures of permanent value. From the viewpoint of Warner Bros., the past year will always be memorable because of the making and release of

With the various companies on a sounder financial basis than at any time in recent years the industry should inevitably produce better pictures and these pictures, always the keystone of our business, will add to the general improvement of the industry. Agencies which have access to comprehensive data report improved economic conditions and, if this improvement continues, 1936 should be a good year for all companies.

W. S. Butterfield, Samuel Goldwyn, Mary Pickford, Winfield Sheehan and Adolph Zukor tell what they think of 1936 on page 6.

IATSE Seeks "Closed Shop" For the East

Laboratories and Studios Control Is Aim

A "closed shop" for eastern laboratories and studios is the objective of current support being given by the I.A.T.S.E. to its studio and laboratory locals here, it was learned on Saturday.

Film Technicians' Local 669 is the principal cog in the I. A. drive for a closed shop in the east. Its jurisdiction over laboratory workers here already includes about 75 per cent of the approximately 800 workers involved. Its drive for the additional 200 lab men was begun late last week with the active cooperation of the International and, if it succeeds, will

Lasky Wants More Original Stories

Decrying a shortage of material to supply the demands of producers, Jesse L. Lasky on Saturday stated that there is a lack of tendency to encourage originals.

"Hollywood should become original-story conscious," he said. "Something must be done to give original story writers a chance, the same as those who turn out successfully published novels and plays."

Lasky blamed the poor judgment of readers at the home offices and studios for holding back the progress of the original story author, contending that in most cases none of these works ever reach the top executives.

Solution of the problem is suggested by the producer, who contends that originals should be treated the same way editors of newspapers decide on the value of news stories. Lasky re-

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THE wire out of Chicago bristled with excitement over the weekend. In that city by Lake Michigan's shores rumors are afloat about the possibility of a deal whereby Emil Stern and Eddie Silverman, banded together corporatively as Essaness Theatres, will take over the management of some RKO theatres in the Middle West and perhaps all. Chicagoans admittedly are somewhat stumped; they've heard rumblings, they insist, and have seen Silverman and Leo Spitz, RKO's president, together a good deal. That, however, does not necessarily mean anything since Spitz is Silverman's attorney as well as his friend of long standing. . . .

The Balabans, so goes the yarn, are disturbed since such a plan would add to Essaness's city circuit the downtown Palace which does a steady family trade for RKO and has a habit of generally remaining in the black, sometimes casually, sometimes heavily. Thereby might be conceived reasonably enough the beginnings of another circuit exactly like their own. They wouldn't cheer over such a prospect as who would? However, the telegraphic tremors from the Windy City are quite a distance removed from realization. If anything of the kind has been aired, the deduction is rational that it could develop only after RKO's reorganization. . . .

The rehabilitation of the company is no easy job. Neither is it near. While fifty per cent of RCA's interest has passed to control of the Atlas-Lehman syndidate, the other half has to be acquired. While the initial deal gives the new group management, by no means does it give it control. There are the Rockefellers with heavy claims to be considered. There are, too, Mike Meehan and his dominance of Keith-Albee-Orpheum without which RKO as a theatre factor virtually would not be. There is the Orpheum group about which something has to be done, Mort Singer who is operating a number of those houses on a partnership basis and Ike Libson in Cincinnati. These are some of the interests to conjure with before any deal can be made with Essaness. Yet, who knows? . . .

Dipping intelligently into the realm of the worthwhile, Warners have coming up for release early in the new year "The Story of Louis Pasteur." Sympathetically dramatizing the highlights in the career of the famous 19th century French chemist — his fight against orthodox medicine, his battles against bacteria, his campaign for the elimination of childbirth fever through antiseptic technique, his discovery of a cure for anthrax—Paul Muni, as Pasteur, delivers an arresting performance. All of the drama and all of the adventure are not to be found in the boy-meets-girl situations. The laboratory test tube and the microscopic slide can be serious contenders. "The Story of Louis Pasteur," as did "Arrowsmith" in film and "Yellowjack" on stage, emphasizes the observation. . . .

From Maine to Florida to California and the Pacific Northwest and around the globe in distribution and exhibition run the Loew-Metro interests. That gives Al all the breadth any one man might want. . . .

New RKO House Organ

The first issue of The RKO Foreign World is off the press. It is a house publication printed in four languages, English, French, Spanish and Chinese.

The initial issue contains executive messages to men in the field together with international analyses of the film situations in various countries. Halftone cuts show exploitation ideas and short international sketches report on problems and reactions to product.

Sam Stern to Hospital

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 15.—Sam Stern, chief artist for Warners, has been ordered to the hospital for a two-weeks rest cure. He entered the Montefiore Hospital yesterday suffering from a near nervous crackup. It's nothing serious, however, according to Stern's doctor, and he should be up and around again by Christmas.

During his absence, Al Filger is doing Warners' art work.

Special Session Is Opposed in Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 15.—Agitation for a special session of the Indiana legislature to enact social security legislation is being opposed by Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana on the theory that new theatre taxation might result. The regular session is not to be held until a year from January.

The Governor has indicated that he favors a special session, but on the other hand a number of legislators have declared they are willing to stay in session 40 days or more, and there is no way of knowing what they might produce in legislation.

The A.T.O. takes the position that conditions are improving and that they should be allowed to continue to improve.

Paramount Details Advertising Plan

Paramount has set the details of its recently announced national advertising campaign, according to Neil F. Agnew. It will start in January in 131 newspapers and will highlight three or four outstanding pictures. Each ad will run the full length of a standard newspaper column and one column less than the full page width.

The ads will be changed from month to month and will be changed typographically. Theatre participation will be encouraged by means of advance insertion dates. Reprints will be sent to exchanges for throwaway and display purposes.

Pittsburgh Warner Goes to Dual Bill

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 15.—After a couple of weeks with single features the Warner returns to double bills Dec. 19, with "Man of Iron" and "Without Regret." When Warners reopened the Davis as a double feature house, it was decided that the Warner would play only one picture but that policy hasn't panned out.

That will give Warners two duals houses in the downtown sector with a block of each other.

Expunge Big Para. Claim

A claim of $483,524 filed against Paramount Publix by Paramount International Corp., a subsidiary in the parent company's reorganization proceedings, was expunged under an order signed on Saturday by Federal Judge Alfred C. contrary, he predicted, the necessity for a perfect performance of televisionists in contrast to retake possibilities of the film industry will require the development of a higher type of talent from which the screen will recruit.

"Television is not going to keep people away from the film or legitimate theatre any more than has radio broadcasting or home movies," he declared.

Many fields other than that of entertainment will be open to television, Cruse told the engineers, enumerating the future possibilities of its use by astronomers, the army and navy, ocean salvage expeditions and noise elimination in homes, factories, hospitals and public buildings. The greater field for the new art, he indicated, may be found in these uses rather than in entertainment, the cost of which, as television nears perfection, is a source of increasing anxiety to television engineers and experimenters.

Academy Surveying Television Status

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 15.—Accounts of current television demonstrations recently witnessed in Philadelphia and New York have been presented by Carl Dreher and Gordon S. Mitchell to the Academy Research Council's Scientific sub-committee.

The sub-committee has spent the last few months watching the progress of television and compiling a record of available information of various systems on which it is planned to issue a report in the near future. The report will be based on television as related to films.

cited the case of Preston Sturgess, who wrote the original for "Power and Glory." He said the author sold the story on percentage terms and made a tidy sum.

The producer said it was an old fashioned idea that a successful stage play would turn out the same way on the screen.

"One Rainy Afternoon," the first of four planned next season, will be placed in production Dec. 30 with Francis Lederer singing for the first time. Others in the cast will be Ida Lupino, Edward Everett Horton, Hugh Hubert and Joseph Cawthorne. Harry D'Abbadie D'Arrast will direct. Lasky said he will spend a week here with the director arranging songs for the picture. He also stated he may increase his schedule.

The Pickford-Lasky unit will not enter stage production, Lasky held, pointing out that the company already has turned down offers to finance 50 per cent of two plays.

Prefers American Players

Lasky believes that the new broadcasting studio on the coast is a good thing for the business. "You can't combat progress," he said, "and we might as well hitch on to it."

Preference for American players in his pictures was expressed by the producer, who added that the exchange of British and American talent was a progressive step. The cost of color, he asserted, is holding up its use, but it will come into its own. He added it was a good thing progress on color was slow as the mistakes are not so costly.

He believes television is close, but it will be some time before the idea will hold the attention of the public for more than an hour. He sees variety skits among the first programs. He is also in favor of eastern production because of its proximity to the stage and change of climate. The only reason major producers are not moving east is because of their large investments, he said.

Lasky is considering making one picture at the Korda studio in London next summer. He declared Mary Pickford will not return to the screen next season. He praised her no end, holding she was "a delightful partner." Lasky says he has produced well over 1,000 pictures since 1914.

Only Two of Warner Jersey Houses Dark

Only two of the 51 theatres operated by Warners in northern New Jersey are closed. The group is under the supervision of Don Jaycocks and is said to be the most profitable of all the zones.

The dark houses are the Montclair, Montclair, and National, Jersey City. They have not been opened for film attractions for years, although the first house has had stage attractions intermittently from outside interests.

He made no comment on colors when another reporter asked him about triples.

Sydney Cohen Rites Draw Many Friends

Funeral services for Sydney S. Cohen, former exhibitor leader, who was fatally stricken Dec. 12, were held yesterday at Central Synagogue, of which he was a trustee. Rabbi Jonah B. Wise officiated, assisted by Cantor I. H. Weinstock. Burial was at Union Field cemetery, Long Island.

Cohen, who headed the M. P. T. O. A. from 1920 to 1924, and was chairman of its board in 1925 and 1926, is survived by a son, Richard Sydney; a daughter, Dorothy Louise; two brothers, Benjamin and Clarence Cohen, and three sisters, Mrs. Eva Konheim, Mrs. Estelle Frankel and Mrs. Grace Solomon. In recent years he was occupied with a diversity of theatre, retail store, philanthropic and educational activities. He was a partner in Artco, which has a managerial contract with Howard S. Cullman, trustee of the Roxy. No change in management will be made as a result of his death, Cullman said on Saturday.

In addition to scores of personal friends from within and without the industry, the following organizations with which Cohen was associated were represented at yesterday's services: The Educational Alliance, the Grand Street Boys' Ass'n., Alumni Ass'n. of the Boys' Club, E. A.; Pilgrim Lodge, No. 890, F. & A. M., Central Synagogue Brotherhood, N. Y. Rotary Club, Samuel Tischner Society, Metropolis Country Club and Surprise Lake Camp.

mean the end of the "open shop" in eastern laboratories.

Eastern studio workers have been almost 100 per cent I. A. in the past. Therefore, the current "closed shop" drive will be of less significance there than in the laboratories. The eastern move is designed to bring about the same "closed shop" conditions in studios and laboratories here that develops on the west coast from the recent settlement of the I.A.T.S.E.-I.B.E.W. jurisdictional dispute.

Confirmation that the I. A. would actively support its locals here in their "closed shop" drive was given on Saturday by Richard Walsh, a vice-president of the I. A.

Changes Coming, Leaders Assert

Music a Help Abroad, Says Mary Pickford

By MARY PICKFORD
President, United Artists

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 15.—For a long time it was felt that the value of motion pictures as a universal language died when silent pictures went out and sound pictures came in. This is not necessarily true. Music will help to make the screen our great ambassador once more.

Except in Asia and certain parts of Africa, music on the screen is quite universally understood and appreciated. In fact, even in the Orient, there is a tendency toward the acceptance of our jazz and classical offerings, even though this may be out of curiosity at present. I am told that our American musicals are very popular in foreign countries. I am sure, too, that success has come to those pictures in which music has been a definite part. It is only reasonable to suppose, therefore, that as time goes on, music will assume an increasingly important place in production.

When incorporated in the plot structure of a picture, music usually heightens the dramatic effect or serves the equally important purpose of relief, thus increasing the entertainment value of the production. Wherever it is logical, music will be included in the Pickford-Lasky Prod. If any prediction may be offered for 1936, possibly it is that music will play an increasingly important part in production.

Warner Says Ground Gained Must Be Kept

"A Midsummer Night's Dream," which brought Shakespeare to the screen as a dramatist and Max Reinhardt as a director.

Not merely our company, but the entire industry has benefited, and will benefit, by the larger respect and interest won for motion pictures by this production. It was emphatically an experiment, but, just as emphatically, it has proved to be a success and has carried the whole industry a long stride forward in public esteem. In 1936 we must all hold the ground that has been gained and try to win more. I believe we shall succeed.

Praises Improved Standards In Product; Opposes Doubles

By W. S. BUTTERFIELD
Michigan Theatre Operator

MIAMI BEACH, Dec. 15.—Fifty years' experience in the show business, and the last 20 years in the motion picture end of it gives me a little right to prognosticate for '36. Exhibitors have everything to be thankful for. In the first place, the agitation that was created by the women's clubs, the churches and the fanatics (?) bore good fruit, for they soon proved to the producer that he would have to make better pictures or go out of business. They took the advice and they are now making, as Will Rogers would say, something healthful and well worthwhile looking at, for I have seen not less than 15 pictures in the last three months that are, to my way of thinking, masterpieces.

Without a doubt, the producer will continue to make these kinds of pictures and with the wide screen and the new improvements in the making of color pictures, we are going to see bigger and better pictures for 1936. With the idea that everybody within the industry will bear and forebear with each other and try to live up to the rules and regulations laid down by their own associations, it will not be hard to look for respectable profits in '36. While a good many of the circuits are paying back taxes and back rents to landlords, should prosperity continue and get better, it won't be long until we have these things behind us. Our business is distinctive and it only needs showmen to run it, not financial leaders. Of course, theatrical business has always been asking for financial aid because it is very speculative, but with the influx of motion pictures, it grew so rapidly that the banks and the financiers were forced to take over management.

Personally, I am against double billing. It encourages the making of too many pictures and when you have to make a whole lot of pictures, you are bound to make 50 per cent of poor ones. I am positive that the average theatregoer is satisfied with two hours of entertainment and I'll debate the question with any exhibitor who says he has to give them three hours. The exhibitor's motto should be: "Not so many pictures, but bigger and better ones." I have always said that a conference of the leading exhibitors and producers of the United States would do more to better our business than anything that can be created by any one faction.

Here's for harmony and better pictures, and, above everything, more profit for '36.

Releases Showing Vigor, Says Zukor

By ADOLPH ZUKOR
Chairman of Board, Paramount

It has been said many times, and with complete truth, that there are no ills of the business that cannot be cured by good pictures.

Although I do not think the industry is displaying any symptoms of illness, I do believe that the unusually large number of big box-office pictures which are slated for release in the new year will give the industry added vigor and strength during 1936.

Other companies also are producing and will continue to produce extraordinarily good entertainment. Inevitably this means profits for both the producers and the exhibitors and a prosperous year during 1936.

Goldwyn Predicts Upset of Dualling

By SAMUEL GOLDWYN

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 15.—The new year should witness a revolution in the whole scheme of double-bill programs. The public, now trained to expect double-bills, no longer will accept one fairly good picture and one bad one. They want two big pictures on the same program if they are to go to the theatre.

Continuance of the present practice of including one bad film on every double-bill program is like feeding poison to the public and thus to the entire industry itself. The bad pictures are creating such dissatisfaction that they tend to ruin the better films.

The result is inevitable. Since double bills are now the accepted practice everywhere, the producers must raise their level and satisfy that demand for two really good pictures on every bill or suffer the consequences.

Sheehan Sees Big Year If Care Is Used

By WINFIELD SHEEHAN

I have made a careful survey in America and England and predict that from the standpoint of profits the year 1936 will be one of the most successful in the records of the industry. The producing companies and theatres will each share in the increasing business.

Based on a conservative and practical analysis, I believe the number of persons purchasing admission tickets at picture theatres in America—average weekly—will be 75,000,000, an increase of 15,000,000 weekly over any previous year.

The entertainment and technical quality of pictures produced in Hollywood has made remarkable progress. In 1929 the talking picture and the sound track were new to film makers. The past six years have shown and developed amazing progress in production and 1936 will record a new high quality mark for box-office attractions. It looks like the biggest year on record for the picture business.

Republic to Add Talent

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 15.—Republic Pictures will add at least 10 players to the contract list after the first of the year in order to build a stock company which will add name strength to Republic features and to give opportunity for borrowing name players from other studios.

Already, Republic has under contract Barbara Pepper, Ann Rutherford, Evelyn Venable, John Wayne, Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette and has Lew Ayres for two pictures.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 15.—General Service Studios are being painted both inside and out in anticipation of a busy production season in 1936. Harold Lloyd is scheduled to start a picture there early next year, and the plant is also used as production hearquarters by Walter Wanger and Edwin Carewe.

(at 12:45 noon, Thurs., Dec. 19, 1935)

SO WHY NOT do it with everybody in the industry at the Third Annual Christmas Luncheon of the A. M. P. A., where it'll be a big pleasure yet? Tickets are only $2 each, so get enough for all your friends. They've got to eat, too, don't they?

P.S. Don't forget: You have a luncheon date at the Hotel Astor on Thursday, Dec. 19!

Receivership Hits 2 Pathe Natan Units

PARIS, Dec. 9.—Two Pathe Natan subsidiaries have gone into receivership. They are the Omnium des Spectacles and Societe de Gerance des Cinemas Pathe, the two concerns constituting the Pathe Natan circuit of 150 houses.

Omnium des Spectacles had been formed to handle 65 houses owned by Pathe Natan as well as 85 independent spots. Business had been good and the company had a net of $66,000 yearly, but it had taken over the debts of Sofrexci, a circuit of five big houses in southern France, two in Marseilles, one in Nice, one in Nimes and one in Toulouse. This operation cost 4,000,000 francs and was to have been paid in drafts on Pathe Cinema and Pathe Consortium, the last named the distributing concern.

Pathe Cinema and Pathe Consortium are being managed by judiciary directors as the drafts were not paid.

What the reorganization will bring forth is a subject of speculation.

"David Copperfield," which has been showing since Nov. 20 in the original English version at the Cinema Edouard VII is an outstanding hit. Certain Clean Films Presage Year of Gains

Thinks New Audiences Assure Results

By C. C. PETTIJOHN
General Counsel, M.P.P.D.A.

During 1935 motion picture entertainment gained many new customers. They were people who wanted clean, wholesome, red-blooded motion picture entertainment, but not questionable comedy, vulgarity or unintelligent smut.

Because the industry hopes to make pictures as good or better than the 1935 type, the business is due for a year of real prosperity in 1936. And good pictures will benefit from the audience which it has been proved exists for them.

Let us hope that the trade, generally, may be impressed, during the next year, with the fact that it is in the business of making, selling and exhibiting motion pictures and not dealing in chinaware, baby carriages and lucky chances.

John D. Clark, W. Ray Johnston, B. B. Kahane, Sam Katz, M. A. Lightman, Hal Roach, A. W. Smith, Jr., and H. H. Thomas expound their views on page 6 today.

Thelma Todd Found Dead in Her Auto

Los Angeles, Dec. 16.—Thelma Todd, blonde comedienne who resigned as a school teacher at Lawrence, Mass., nine years ago to enter the Paramount School of Acting at Astoria, was found dead today in her automobile in the garage at her home. She had been missing since Saturday, following a party at the Trocadero.

Police called it homicide first, but later said death might have resulted from natural causes. It is known that she had received threatening letters demanding money over a period of months. Recently a man was arrested in Astoria as alleged author of some of the notes.

Chaplin's Film Set at Rivoli Jan. 15 or 22; 12 Weeks Seen

"Modern Times," the new Chaplin feature, has been booked into the Rivoli beginning Jan. 15 or 22. All agog over the deal, it was enthusiastically claimed for the picture yesterday that it will play 12 weeks at this house, will not be spotted into any other theatre in America aside from Fox West Coast and that the Rivoli has guaranteed $125,000 on the run, thereby outstripping seven competitive bids.

Donahue & Coe will handle the outdoor advertising campaign and plan to use 300 billboards along railroad rights of way between New York and Boston, Buffalo and Philadelphia.

Local Houses Get Set for Holidays

All Broadway theatres and major circuit neighborhood houses are preparing for their biggest holiday season, dating in top-notch attractions for both Christmas and New Year's weeks. With all schools and colleges in recess during the 10-day period, theatres along the Main Stem are expecting overflowing business.

The Capitol has dated "A Tale of Two Cities" for both weeks, while the Music Hall on Thursday starts a 10-day run of "The Littlest Rebel," starring Shirley Temple. "Ah! Wilderness" is slated for the Center beginning Christmas Day. "The Bride Comes Home" and Casa Loma Orchestra will be the combined stage and screen attraction at the Paramount during the two holiday weeks. Paul Ash and band will be the feature at the Roxy for nine days, starting Dec. 25. The Strand will have "Captain Blood," the Rivoli will hold "Show Them No Mercy," and

Yates May Purchase Carr Republic Share

Hollywood, Dec. 16.—Trem Carr's interest in Republic will be bought out by Herbert Yates if current negotiations between Carr and Yates go through, it is understood here. This deal includes Carr's personal service contract as well as his financial holdings in the company.

There is a strong possibility the deal will be closed here tonight. Under the new setup, W. Ray Johnston, president, will remain in New York in charge of distribution. Moe Seigal one of Yates' men, will fit into the setup. However, it is improbable that he will succeed to Carr's post in the company.

It is understood the terms of the purchase include the stipulation that Carr remain inactive for one year. There is a possibility that Monogram may be revived after that period, however, as Carr and Johnston and franchise holders still own the trade name of that company, which now is in the process of liquidation.

Judicial Test of English Methods of Trade Is Seen

By BRUCE ALLAN

London, Dec. 16.—Clarification of the legality at large of agreements covering current trading methods in the industry here, plus ramifications which conceivably may hold up delivery of product, is expected on Thursday as an outgrowth of an injunction sought by Gaumont Super Cinemas against the Kinematograph Renters' Society.

Gaumont and the K.R.S. from which Twentieth Century-Fox recently resigned although other distributors, American and British alike, have not, have been at cross purposes over booking combines. The distributor's organization has held, citing the recent deal, never consummated, between Gaumont and the H. and G. Kinemas, that ownership of theatre properties must be thoroughly established by stock control or face suspension of service by its members.

Gaumont Super Cinemas, in its action, charge the K.R.S. with restraint of trade and have engaged three famous King's counsel to represent it. The men are Sir Patrick Hastings, Sir William Jowitt and Lionel Cohen. The Gaumont subsidiary also has launched proceedings against the individual members of the K.R.S. as an alternative in the event the case against the association itself fails to produce what is regarded in the trade as a test decision.

Exchanges Ask New Hearings On Sales Tax

Lawyers Say They Have More Precedents

Legal representatives for local exchanges yesterday applied to the city finance department for a new hearing on the local film companies' contention that the city sales tax is not applicable to film rentals. Action on the request is expected within the next few days. Film attorneys are reported to have new legal precedents to present to the city in support of their arguments against the levying of the sales tax on exchange revenue.

A hearing on the taxing of rentals was held by the city comptroller's office several weeks ago and no decision has been made by the officials yet on the law involved in the proposed taxation. An assessment against the United Artists' exchange revenue for $20,100 and interest was sent to the exchange recently, however, for the first two and one-half months period the city sales tax has been in effect.

Lynch Through with Para.; In Florida

S. A. Lynch, former head of Southern Enterprises and advisor to the Paramount trustees on reorganization of the company's theatre properties since 1933, has concluded his work and left over the weekend for his home in Florida. Lynch's retirement from Paramount was predicted by Motion Picture Daily on Nov. 11.

After the Paramount reorganization last June Lynch was requested by John E. Otterson, president, to remain for the completion of a plan of reorganization for Olympia Theatres, the company's New England subsidiary. Lynch had been in retirement for a number of years prior to assuming his advisory work for the Paramount trustees and so far as could be learned has no active plans for the immediate future.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 16.—Hollywood press correspondents who in the future are granted studio credentials by the Producers' Ass'n. must show a circulation of 50,000, it was decided Thursday at a meeting of the studio publicity directors at the Hays office.

Return "Dream" to Loop

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—Marking a procedure rarely followed in that the downtown roadshow run was broken, B. & K. are bringing "A Midsummer Night's Dream" back to the Apollo for two additional weeks beginning Christmas Day.

Warners experienced resistance to the original Loop booking. Eventually, however, the picture was spotted into the Apollo for one week. It was then held for a second and then a third which ended Sunday night with the house fully sold out.

As a result and despite the break in the run, B. & K. have now determined to bring it back. The Apollo engagement is understood also to have influenced a deal whereby the picture will play the Great States circuit downstate.

EXCUSE THE HORSE LAUGH, MR. SKIPPIT!

MR. SKIPPIT, prominent man about town and Park Avenue prowler, tells us he can't see why we spend so much time and money filming "those silly Westerns." MR. SKIPPIT, it seems, has a yen for the "Drahma".

Well, SKIPPIT, old boy, the answer is that WESTERNS are going over bigger this year than when Bill Hart used to gallop over the back pastures in the old days. Fans want Westerns. But they want well-acted Westerns. They want Westerns with all the trimmings of a big production.

Paramount, to do a little quiet boasting, was wise to this early! Hence the ZANE GREY series and the HOPALONG CASSIDY series, all big-time pictures, all new-style Westerns...and all box-office aces.

Wish we had room, MR. SKIPPIT, to quote all the nice things said by the trade papers about "Bar 20 Rides Again," the latest "Hopalong Cassidy"...and "Drift Fence," the latest Zane Grey. We suggest that you see some of these Paramount class Westerns, MR. SKIPPIT, we know you'll be entertained... and you'll also learn why so many theatres have discovered that induced her to enter an Elks' statewide beauty contest. It happened to be the time when Paramount was looking for pupils. Buddy Rogers, Josephine Dunn and others were her classmates. Her comedy talents became manifest at once.

Her first film was the school picture, "Flaming Youth." When the Long Island studio closed she went to the coast. Her rise had been steady since. She had been featured by all the major companies and for some time she had been starred in Hal Roach shorts with Zasu Pitts and later with Patsy Kelly.

She was under contract to make eight two-reelers with Miss Kelly as co-star. The fifth, "All-American Toothache," had just been finished. By the terms of her deal with Roach she was permitted to make features for other companies, but Roach had the first call on her services.

She is survived by her mother, Mrs. John S. Todd of Lawrence, Mass., who was visiting on the Coast.

Paramount Fee Case Review Authorized

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday granted leave to Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine and Cook, Nathan & Lehman to appeal from Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe's order which resulted in large reductions in the fees sought by each for their services in the Paramount reorganization.

Judge Coxe reduced the allowance to the Root Clark firm, which was counsel to the Paramount trustees, by approximately $500,000, and that of Cook, Nathan & Lehman by approximately $150,000.

Tobis officials state that this new company does not intend to take up production on a large scale. Its project is to utilize the relatively quiet production period from January to June, when most studios are not in use, in order to produce about four or five standard size films, which will then be offered in Germany and abroad at the beginning of the following playing season.

Ampa Analysis for Ad Awards Started

Definition and classification of exploitation and publicity are now being discussed by members of the Ampa board in connection with the proposed annual awards by the organization. As soon as the line is drawn between the two, details will be announced by Gordon White, president.

At one of the recent organization meetings White stated he had conferred with advertising, publicity and exploitation heads of the various companies and they had expressed approval of the plan. However, the executives held that before the plan is put into effect, exploitation and publicity should be clarified.

No business will be discussed this week, the meeting being devoted to the annual Christmas Party. Instead of staging the affair at Jack Dempsey's, the regular meeting headquarters, the Astor will be the scene of festivity this Thursday. Proceeds will be turned over to the Film Daily Relief Fund.

Seek Films for Use In Oklahoma Schools

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 16.—Difficulty in securing films for use in schools has caused representatives of various groups here to organize a Motion Picture Council to see what can be done about it.

The groups represented are the Parent-Teachers Ass'n, Y.W.C.A., Y.M.C.A., Council of Jewish Women, Rotary Anns, Girl Scouts, First Presbyterian, First Christian and St. Luke's Methodist Churches. Paul Herring, Y.M.C.A. boys' secretary, is president.

Backers of the group contend they are not in competition with theatres, although their plans call for presenting newsreels and selected features in schools at 10 cents admission. The proceeds are designed to buy film equipment for school use.

Pat McGee, manager for Standard Theatres, denies any responsibility.

"I don't own the pictures," he says; "I merely rent them, and I've spent the last 25 years trying to get the good ones—not always successfully."

"Speaking Paper" Is Given English Test

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—"Speaking paper," an invention of an Argentine engineer, was recently demonstrated in London, according to a report from the American consulate general in London to the U. S. Department of Commerce.

By means of this paper, it is possible to present a record of speech, music, or any other sound in as handy a form as the daily newspaper. It is claimed that the invention will create a new industry, which will produce "speaking books," sell the equivalent of 12-inch phonograph records, and will also permit newspapers to print an actual record of a public speech, concert, or play which its readers could reproduce in their own homes.

The system, called the Fotoliptofono, works more or less on the principles of a talking machine. A sound track is registered on a celluloid negative by means of a microphone and oscillograph. From this impression a block is made from which is printed the "speaking paper," a series of close parallels of jagged black lines.

The paper is then placed in the reproducing apparatus, the subject of the recent demonstration. A piece of paper about the size of a single newspaper sheet was fitted onto the cylinder of a machine resembling the early Edison phonograph and a photo-electric cell retranslated the black lines into impulses which issued from an ordinary portable wireless set as speech, song, and music in turn.

It is reported that negotiations are in progress looking to the production of "speaking paper" by English gramaphone companies.

Independents Reaching Own, Says Johnston

By W. RAY JOHNSTON
President, Republic Pictures

In my entire association with the industry, I have rarely been privileged to witness so warm a response to independently-made pictures on the part of the nation's showmen as is being given them at the present time. Entertainment value alone remains the sole test of merit, and pictures that are able to satisfy this audience demand will continue to show profitable returns.

Patrons have never been fundamentally interested in the "antecedents" of a production. If a picture has genuine merit—if it entertains all types of picturegoers—it is certain to meet with the approval of audiences. It does not matter, from the popular point of view, where the picture was produced, or by whom. Just so long as its story is worth telling and its acting realistic, the average audience will be satisfied. That outstanding stars have their drawing power is obvious, but these 'star vehicles' form just a small portion of the world's motion picture entertainment program.

In every production department—acting, writing, direction—talent of the first order is now abundantly available. With these resources there is every reason to look for an increasingly fine standard of independent production, unhampered by the limitations which in the past have set these pictures in a separate, and sometimes lower, class.

Up to Hollywood, Is Kahane's Slant

By B. B. KAHANE
President, RKO Studios

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 16.—I consider the outlook for 1936 very satisfactory. Good pictures have received good box-office returns this year and outstanding productions have done exceptional business. This is all we have a right to expect. It is our task to produce more good pictures and less bad and mediocre ones. If we can "hit" with some "smashes" we know from this year's experience that the box-office will respond. If we fail to make product that appeals to and entertains the public, we must suffer the consequences.

Views '36 as Best Since '32 and '33

By JOHN D. CLARK
General Sales Manager, 20th Century-Fox

The New Year looks to me more promising by far than the past three or four years.

I have just completed a trip around the United States and Canada. It is my observation that business conditions have generally improved. The theatre business has definitely improved, and with the better product now being released by many companies, I can see nothing ahead—at least in the immediate future—other than a great year for this industry in production, distribution and theatres.

Banner Year Ahead Predicted by Roach

By HAL ROACH
(Producer for M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 16.—Sure, 1936 will be a banner year for the industry and for all other lines of business in so far as that matters. It doesn't take the seventh son of a seventh father to prophesy progress and prosperity for the ensuing 12-month period. Just look around you. Do you see any empty theatres where good pictures are offered? Have you heard any exchange men or exhibitors bellyaching recently?

Men are at work and their women folk want to see movies. So do their kids. It looks like the year will find us all with those "two cars in every garage and a chicken in every pot" that we heard so much about a few years ago.

Three of Bay State Petitions on Time

BOSTON, Dec. 16.—Only three of the eight initiative petitions circulated recently have been filed with Secretary of State Frederic W. Cooke in time for action for the 1936 Legislature which convenes Jan. 2.

One of the three seeks to do away with pari mutuel horse and dog racing that have been legal here for one season. It was headed by William Eddels of Revere and carried 21,771 signatures. Under Massachusetts law 20,000 signatures are required to put an initiative petition before the Legislature. If not acted upon there favorable to the petitioners, an additional 5,000 names will suffice.

For Firmer Control, Stories Which Fit

By A. W. SMITH, JR.,
Eastern, Canadian Sales M'g'r, Warners

Rather than prognosticate what 1936 may have in store for the industry, I choose to state certain results that I hope may be accomplished during the new year. Here they are:

1. A firmer control of the industry by and within itself.

2. An arrangement by and between the different studios that will place in a particular story the star best qualified to play in it.

3. The cutting down and eventual elimination of double feature programs.

Business Upturn to Aid, Believes Katz

By SAM KATZ
Associate Producer, M-G-M

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 16.—Business has shown considerable improvement throughout the year 1935 with indications for a continuation of that improvement. Hollywood is doing its share in planning attractions so that there is every reason to believe that 1936 should prove increasingly profitable to our industry.

Ohio Reports Steady Gain in Employment

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 16.—Reports of improved employment conditions throughout Ohio, characterized as approximately the boom days of 1929, continue to filter through from various situations.

The Cleveland Chamber of Commerce statisticians estimate factory workers will receive a total of $25,000,000 in wages for December, compared with $16,000,000 in the corresponding month a year ago. The Merchants and Manufacturers' Ass'n. of Toledo announce a gain of 42 per cent in employment last week among 51 representative firms contrasted with the same week of 1934.

The Canton Chamber of Commerce claims that city led the entire state in employment gains over the last three-month period, bringing the number of workers to 92 per cent of the all-time peak in 1929, when 20,217 were employed, while Youngstown industrial officials predict steel production will, during December, reach the highest point in the last five years.

Thomas Looks For Ind'p'ts Best Season

By H. H. THOMAS
President, 1st Division

In 1936 the fact that any major picture is better than the most skillful effort of the leading independent no longer is true.

The old-line companies, in turning out quantity B pictures while neglecting to improve quality, have created an overproduction of this product and made it a practical possibility for exhibitors to select adequate programs for double features and still buy only a small part of the yearly output. This will eventually eliminate block-booking.

Exhibitors, too, are coming to a realization that in coping with the majors, who exact a heavy percentage of gross receipts they are confronted with the fact that the margin between overhead and receipts is alarmingly small.

The independents are in an enviable position to give the best value in entertainment to fill exhibitor needs. They will continue to improve their product, which will contribute materially to making 1936 the best year exhibitors have yet seen.

Envisions Little Change Next Year

By M. A. LIGHTMAN
President, Malco Theatres

MEMPHIS, Dec. 16.—There probably won't be any material changes in 1936. I think the industry is on the verge of a new order of things, but I doubt seriously that the time is that close at hand. We will no doubt plod along through 1936 pretty much as in the past.

I do believe that all companies are finally realizing that the only way to get any real money is with outstanding box-office attractions, and, as a result, they should all strive to make a few more "hit" pictures. As a matter of fact, it is necessary that this be done. Under such conditions, I am sure that we will all be very happy with the outcome of 1936.

MYRTLE BEACH, S. C., Dec. 16.—B. B. Benfield has started a new $40,000 theatre on Ninth Ave.

New Union Will Air Objectives Tonight

Plans to extend the film examiners' and shippers' union to all branches of exchange employment are understood to be discussed tonight when local film employes will gather at a mass meeting of Local 20,043 at Hotel Times Square.

In a circular distributed by the organization, known as Film Exchange Employes Union, "every worker in the industry is requested to attend this meeting.

"Many prominent speakers from the field of labor will address our organization," the printed matter reads. "Many new angles of great importance to our organization will be introduced."

Although it was reported Local 306 would take an active part in furthering the union, officials denied this yesterday stating the organization has in no way pledged its support, nor is it interested in any way.

Jack Teitler, a member of Local 306, is said to be a moving figure in organizing the union, but is said to have no official standing in Local 306. Bob Murray of RKO is president of the Film Exchange Employes.

It is understood that shippers of the various film trailer and poster renting concerns have been approached and will attend tonight's session.

Loew Dropping Duals For "Mutiny" Only

Deviating from its dual feature policy adopted the latter part of September, Loew's will single feature "Mutiny on the Bounty" in 49 local theatres. The M-G-M special will run a full week.

The picture is currently showing in 11 theatres, including the Tri-Boro, Astoria, and the Pitkin and Kings, Brooklyn, and will open Friday in 38 other houses. For the first time in the history of the theatres, the Tri-Boro, Pitkin and Kings are day-and-dating with the State.

It is understood M-G-M will insist that "Mutiny" be played alone in theatres other than the Loew circuit.

Eugene Picker, chief booker for the circuit, yesterday stated he could not predict whether the single feature plan will be continued on other important M-G-M attractions.

Nine Arbitrations Scheduled for Week

Activity at the New York Film Board this week will take a sudden spurt with nine arbitration cases listed. Five are scheduled to be heard tomorrow and four others will be tried Friday.

Louis Nizer will represent distributors in each instance. All complaints have been filed by exchanges for alleged breach of contracts. No case has been heard in two weeks. The last was the famous "Top Hat" complaint of Louis Gold of the Rivoli, Newark.

Sunday Shows Banned

SANFORD, N. C., Dec. 16.—The Board of Aldermen has adopted an ordinance prohibiting any shows or amusements here from 12:01 A.M. Sunday to midnight Sunday night. The ordinance also prohibits shows and amusements between 11:30 P.M. and 5:30 A.M. during the week.

IATSE Submits Plan For Coast Theatres

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 16.—The I.A.T.S.E. is submitting a plan to the local I.T.O. whereby union men will man all non-affiliated houses in Los Angeles.

The I.A.T.S.E. plan will be considered by the I.T.O. executive committee, which will then turn the plan over to the entire membership for vote. A similar plan was recently adopted in St. Louis, a portion of Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

K. C. Deal Delayed

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 16.—Negotiations between local theatres and Harland Holmden, third vice-president of the I.A.T.S.E., who is in charge of the local operators, has been delayed again for some days due to the illness of Holmden at Cleveland.

Wiseman Is Allowed Appeal in Para. Suit

Sir William Wiseman, partner in Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and former Paramount director, was granted leave by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday to appeal from an order of Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe's holding that the trustees of Paramount Publix have the right to subpoena him for an examination before trial of their recovery actions against former directors and officers of the company. Progress of the trustees' actions has been held up pending Wiseman's appeal. No date for a hearing of the appeal was set.

N. O. Hears Reports Of Admission Boost

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 16.—Rumors are current of an agreement between downtown houses to raise matinee prices for week-ends.

It is argued that inasmuch as times are better, there is no reason why theatres should not take advantage of the pickup.

Basson Heading for Re-election at 306

Reelection of Joseph D. Basson as president of Local 306 appears certain as opposition forces fail to campaign to any extent against the incumbent. Alex Polin and Ben Norton were nominated for the post on Dec. 4, but indications yesterday showed a strong majority who will vote tomorrow for Basson.

Opposition among the candidates for other offices is spirited. Voting machines will be employed for the all-day election tomorrow. Ballot casting starts at 9 A.M. at Palm Gardens. Closing hour has not yet been set.

Union Silent on Suit

No statement will be issued by Joseph D. Basson of Local 306 in connection with the suit for $650,000 filed in the New York Supreme Court last week by Times Square Theatre Co., Inc., until papers are served the defendants, it was stated at union headquarters yesterday.

The action is regarded by the union as a nuisance suit and similar to one filed some time ago, with minor changes.

K. C. Independents Form Giveaway Pool

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 16.—Seventeen independents have agreed to form a giveaway pool to compete with the Bank Night pool operated by the Fox Midwest, according to E. Rolsky, president of the I. T. O.

Additional independent operators may join, but the group will not delay its plans for other exhibitors to decide whether or not they will join.

Rolsky said members of the group hope to have the plan operating in a week or 10 days.

Walter Reade has leased the State, Trenton, for 20 years from Ogden D. Wilkinson. Aggregate rental is reported at $500,000.

Hill Names Deitch To St. Louis Post

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 16.—Leto Hill, supervisor of the St. Louis Amusement Co., has named Joseph Deitch, now with the A. H. Blank circuit in Des Moines, as chief booker of the 20 local houses. Deitch assumes his new duties Dec. 23. He succeeds Bess Schulter, who recently resigned to operate her two neighborhood theatres.

Morris Plessner, formerly neighborhood theatre advertising contact for the Star-Times, has replaced Al Zimbalist as advertising, publicity and exploitation head. Zimbalist has gone to New York on another job. Plessner for some time was associated with Skouras Bros. when they operated theatres here.

Hill returned from New York yesterday after three days.

Al Zimbalist, formerly director of advertising, publicity and exploitation for the St. Louis Amusement Co., has joined the Cinema Circuit in a similar capacity, according to Max Cohen. Cohen is associated with Arthur Siegal, stepson of Albert Warner, in the operation of about a dozen houses in the New Jersey and New York vicinities.

"Kittens" Seattle Hit

SEATTLE, Dec. 16.—Walt Disney's Silly Symphony, "Three Orphan Kittens," is starting out to challenge the local record of "Three Little Pigs."

The short was moved from the Fifth Avenue to the Music Box for an extended run, being billed with "In Old Kentucky."

The Rogers' feature will be taken off this week, but "Three Orphan Kittens" will be held over for an additional week.

Finney to Seattle

PORTLAND, Dec. 16.—Walter Finney has transferred to the Liberty, Seattle, following the sale of the Roxy at Tacoma to John Hamrick.

Short Subjects

"Pathe Topics No. 2"

(Radio)

The three episodes of this offering are packed with amusement and thrills. The first, "Emotion," is made from newsreel clips, and under various listings there are to be seen a very proud pretzel bender, a pair of sweepstakes winners and a holdup victim. All have a very humorous aspect and should please. Part two deals with modern fencing and Olympic teams are shown at practice. The fine points of the sport are shown and effective slow motion photography reveals highlights. The last part has some of the finest spectacular photography of the year. It portrays scenes in the Bavarian Alps of a skiing camp. It is appropriately titled "On the Wings of the Wind." With fine symphonic musical accompaniment the camera follows the action introducing new angles and effects. A worthwhile effort which will please. Production Code Seal, No. 0233. Running time, 18 mins. "G."

"Spinach Overture"

(Paramount)

Another swell Popeye cartoon. These subjects seem to carry considerable weight with grownups as well as children. The other night at the local Paramount, an audience, which nearly filled the theatre, went for this number in a big way. Popeye is seen competing with a bushy-haired husky, twice his size, in an amateur orchestra contest. It looks like bells for the iron-muscled sailor until he downs his can of grass. After two gulps, the sailor is unbeatable, and of course, walks off with the honors. Production Code Seal, 0594. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Screen Snapshots No. 4"

(Columbia)

Footnoted as "A Will Rogers Memorial Tribute" this Snapshots issue embraces screen characters who in recent years have passed from the scene. Some of the very last appearances of Lilyan Tashman, Lew Cody, Roscoe Arbuckle, Ernest Torrence, Russ Columbo, Gordon Westcott, Marie Dressler and Sam Hardy are shown. Rogers' last polo game before he started his fatal journey and the renaming of the Uplifter's Field in Hollywood as a memorial to him brings the effort to its end. Production Code Seal No. 1,695. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Tuned Out"

(Radio)

Ruth Etting sings as she acts out a somewhat ordinary story. Herbert Rawlinson and Vernon Dent assist as her husband and radio sponsor, respectively. The story concerns Miss Etting's success as the Dixie "songbird of the airways." Unknowingly, her husband sends her a fan letter and, suspecting something, she plays up to him by substituting her pianist. After the usual business of the almost unfaithful husband being tricked, Dent and Rawlinson engage in some critically humorous dialogue which will appease audiences together with Miss Etting's warbling. A fair farce. Production Code Seal No. 1,122. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Widow from Monte Carlo"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 16.—Comedy should be stressed in this tale of a lonely and beauteous widow who gets tangled up with social climbers.

Dolores Del Rio is pursued from Monte Carlo to London by Warren William, in spite of the fact that she is engaged to a farcically cold nobleman, played by Colin Clive. Also in hot pursuit of Duchess Del Rio is Louise Fazenda, who, not satisfied with having Herbert Mundin's millions, also wants titles at her parties.

Miss Del Rio slips away from her straight-laced family for one day's innocent fun at a beach concession with William, then writes a letter telling him goodbye forever. Miss Fazenda steals the letter and uses it to blackmail Miss Del Rio into attending her party. A wildly funny sequence of Miss Fazenda in the whirling barrels, jiggling slides and chutes of the fun house draws five minutes of howls. Warren Hymer scores as a slugnutty crook who is determined to steal back the letter while the ball is in progress. E. E. Clive is laugh-provoking as the guardian of the widow and Colin Clive does a good job as the fiance.

Director Arthur Greville Collins keeps the tempo at a good speed. The screen play is by F. Hugh Herbert with dialogue by Charles Belden and George Bricker from the play by Ian E. W. Mason. Bryan Foy supervised. The comedians' work is the best angle to stress unless the stars rate high in your territory, then a combination is in order.

"Collegiate"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 16.—With girls and gags, music and dancing, lots of farce and plenty of novelty, this freshly treated collegiate yarn is catchy entertainment. It is well mounted, colorfully modern in atmosphere, with specialty features carefully woven into the story motivation. The show concentrates on lightness and gaiety.

Happy but financially embarrassed playboy Jack Oakie inherits a girl's school. Abetted by his pals, Ned Sparks and Lynne Overman, and staked by forgetful Joe Penner's bankroll, Oakie declares a new deal in education. Out go all the moss-backed seminary ideas and in come a brand new flock of theories. Betty Jane Cooper is hired to give dancing instruction. Mack Gordon and Harry Revel teach the efficiency of modern music. Courses are instituted in the arts of makeup, personal charm, how to wear swank clothes and all popular indoor and outdoor sports. A revelation to the student body, the seminary is a great success. Oakie finds romance with his demure, but thrilled secretary, Frances Langford, and Penner in love with modern college maid Betty Grable.

Fun, music and novelty are things to sell. Name values are adequate as the players click nicely in line with the established screen characters. The Gordon and Revel numbers are pleasing. Based on Alice Duer Miller's "Charm School," the yarn is smartly adapted by Walter De Leon and Francis Martin and cleverly directed by Ralph Murphy.

Looking 'Em Over

"Sweet Surrender"

(Rowland Prod.-Universal)

Showmanship elements have been combined shrewdly in this musical—Frank Parker's radio draw; Tamara's name value as a dancer; Abe Lyman and his band; a shot of Jack Dempsey and his restaurant; scenes on the Normandie, and several sumptuous stage settings.

The story falters in spots and there is a sequence of war shots designed to build up an emotional effect for a peace song by Parker that fails to jell, but on the whole the picture is eye-filling and tuneful.

Parker loses a radio contract by ignoring his sponsor's wife and rushing to a theatre to see Tamara's closing performance. This introduces a big ballet number. Tamara breaks her contract with her manager to go abroad on the Normandie in disguise. Parker and his manager leave on the same ship. Arthur Pierson, a smart crook, notices the resemblance between his girl and Tamara and sets out to get the dancer's letter of credit and passport by having his girl impersonate her.

Parker's romance is a bit mixed as he pursues the phony Tamara and develops a fondness for the real one, who is masquerading as a school teacher. A style show and a masquerade ball are presented on the ship.

Without her passport, Tamara is arrested upon arrival in France and her impersonator accepts an engagement at the Opera Comique. Before the performance starts Tamara gets there. Parker meets her backstage later. In his anxiety to build up production values Monte Brice, the director, has crowded one big scene after another in a way that leaves his story gasping for air.

Parker's singing voice registers excellently and he is an attractive screen personality. Tamara is an alluring figure. And Lyman's music is a decided asset. The story was done by Herbert Fields and the screen play by Charles Bethlen, John V. A. Weaver and Edward C. Lilley. Songs were contributed by Arthur Swarstrom, Jack Huber, Neville Fleeson and Maybel Wayne.

Manipulation Of Columbia's Stock Charged

J. L. Loeb Files a Suit for $200,000 Here

Charges of pool manipulations, improper dealings with bankers, falsifying records of stock purchase transactions and misappropriation of profits and bonuses were made in a complaint filed in the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday on behalf of John L. Loeb against Columbia Pictures Corp., Harry Cohn, president; Jack Cohn, vice-president and treasurer, and Joe Brandt, former president. In his complaint, filed by the law firm of Wollman & Wollman, Loeb seeks $200,000 damages.

In an affidavit requesting examination before trial of the defendants, Loeb sets forth the facts of his complaint as follows:

"I was induced by the defendants

Session on Mexico Situation Delayed

A meeting of foreign managers of major distribution companies which was scheduled to be held at the M.P. P.D.A. yesterday to hear a report by A. L. Pratchett on industry conditions in Mexico was postponed until tomorrow. Pratchett, who is the Paramount representative at Mexico City, was unable to complete his report in time for the meeting which goes over to Thursday.

Major Frederick L. Herron, in charge of foreign activities for the M.P.P.D.A., said yesterday he had not been notified of any major company's intention of withdrawing from Mexico as a result of the new stringent tax legislation in force there. Reports that Warners had come to such a decision, however, but had not notified the Hays organization, could not be verified. Neither Joe Hummel nor Sam Morris of the foreign department was available.

Hutchinson Is Made Foreign Head for Fox

Walter J. Hutchinson, managing director for Twentieth Century-Fox in England, yesterday was officially named general foreign manager for the company by S. R. Kent, thereby confirming recent predictions. He will succeed Clayton Sheehan, who resigned a few weeks back.

Hutchinson is a veteran with Fox. In fact, he is the oldest executive of the company in point of service, having been with it since the early days. He organized all the Fox branches in the Far East and in Australia and New Zealand before being placed in charge in England, where he has been for 11 years.

He will return to England soon to remain until his successor has been chosen and installed in London, and probably will come back to New York in March.

In a short formal statement Kent expressed his pleasure over being able to find a man within the organization to fill the important foreign post.

Ascap Case to Go Off Court Calendar Soon

The Government's anti-trust suit against Ascap will be taken off the Federal court calendar here on Jan. 7 with leave to reinstate the case on notice to the defendants, it was learned yesterday.

While this action does not close the case, it is interpreted by those close to the litigation as indicating that the Government may permit the case to lapse unless new circumstances arise to impel its continuation. The recent resignation of the Warner music subsidiaries from Ascap is regarded by many as a contributing factor to the Government's latest move in the case. With Warners already negotiating with national broadcasters for the company's music catalogue, many copyright attorneys are of the opinion that it would be next to impossible for the Government to prove a monopoly case against Ascap.

Trial of the Government's case was opened last spring and adjourned in

New Personalities a Need; Boom Seen, Pitfalls Feared

By JOSEPH M. SCHENCK
Chairman of Board, 20th Century-Fox

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 17.—One of our big tasks for 1936 will be to augment our box-office drawing powers in the way of securing and developing new screen personalities. This is still a business of personalities.

But the new year, I am sure, will see a wider extension of the policy of exchanging stars which we inaugurated with the formation of Twentieth Century Pictures. Variety of casts is as vital as variety in WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—From the standpoint of gross intake the portents are propitious. Business is definitely on the upgrade and there is no reason why this trend should not continue for at least two years. But by that time the credit of the United States will have reached the breaking point, and unless unemployment has been absorbed in the meantime, we will face another economic upheaval worse than the one we have just been

Trem Carr Resigns His Republic Post

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 17.—Trem Carr has resigned from Republic and has sold out his interest in the company to Herbert J. Yates. The deal was officially closed today. M. J. Siegel becomes executive vice-president, succeeding Carr.

"The policies I have pursued successfully for many years were different from those now employed by Republic," he said, "and I could not consistently remain with the company."

It is reported that Carr received $500,000 for his five-year personal service contract and his company holdings. Under the deal Carr has agreed not to engage in independent production for a year and a half, but there are no restrictions on a major company affiliation.

John Wayne, under contract to the Trem Carr Pictures Corp., will con-

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

UNITED Artists is out to do a job on the Chaplin feature and many exhibitors, whether they want Charlie or whether they want to keep his "Modern Times" from the competition, are going for it. In this instance, going for it means percentage deals on terms as fancy, if not fancier, than any which have been asked by a distributor in some time—perhaps as far back as "City Lights." Tied into the deal closed by George Skouras for a first run at the Rivoli, beginning in mid-January, is the report the guarantee is $125,000 on a 12-week run. This is supposed to indicate how it is going. . . .

Only the other day the yarn was about and ready to fall on ears willing to listen that U. A. had sought a $250,000 guarantee against 50 per cent of the gross from the Paramount on an eight-week run. You can believe it or not—we are saying nothing about our own reaction to this careless bandying about of young fortunes—but the unassailable fact about the Paramount deal is that it never went through. Between guarantees and deals whispered about, plus advances set up and consented to by U. A. distributors in those points where the company does not maintain its own exchanges, Chaplin will have a whopping gross before his picture is 60 days old. . . .

The circumstances behind the split between Trem Carr and Republic trace to the obvious difficulties in endeavoring to maintain a double-headed studio control. Carr long has been head of production for Monogram, which led into Republic; he and Ray Johnston have been partners for years. In the effort inaugurated by him to bring further stability to the independent field, Herbert J. Yates, president of Consolidated and general mentor for Republic, had his troubles in finally adding Nat Levine and Mascot to the fold. When it came to pass, there were Carr and Levine to fit into the final picture which had to be drawn when the tremors coincident upon forming of the new company were eventually shaken down. The choice fell to Levine. And so Carr withdraws, probably to join a major studio. It was not so long ago that he was offered a sweet contract by Sam Katz to join Metro as a B picture producer. Trem, however, stuck to his partner, Johnston, and by so doing turned down an arrangement which would have paid him approximately $125,000 a year. . . .

Ben Hecht, regaling reporters in Chicago the other day, remarked he had selected the East as the production seat of his next picture because "the smartest people ain't in charge" in Hollywood and "everybody in Hollywood is nuts and drunk."

Now, point by point:

Astoria, as the scene of the impending Hecht - MacArthur epic, might have something to do with the fact that the team gets its financing from Erpi which controls the Eastern Service Studio there and wants to keep it occasionally busy.

The "smartest people" may not be in charge on the coast and to say "everybody" is either "nuts or drunk" is to say a lot, but it took Hecht and MacArthur to produce "Once in a Blue Moon." Ask Paramount for the painful details, if additional facts should be necessary. . . .

Minister in Spain Can Apply Film Ban

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17. — Spain's Minister of Interior has been authorized to prohibit the exhibition of every class of films which tends to misrepresent historical facts or to impair the prestige of Spanish institutions or personalities, according to a report to the U. S. Department of Commerce.

The authorization was published in the Gaceta de Madrid Oct. 27 and provides for the application of the ban to films produced by companies exhibiting films in Spain or abroad.

Marxes Re-Signed

Hollywood, Dec. 17.—The Marx brothers have been signed to a new M-G-M contract. The story will be an original and most of the material will be tried out on audiences on personal appearance tours, as was done with "A Night at the Opera."

Allan Jones, young tenor, also has been given a new contract.

Building Up Jersey Allied, Newbury Aim

Building up the organization is the first aim of Lee Newbury, newly elected president of Allied of New Jersey, he stated yesterday as he took over the reins forsaken by Sidney E. Samuelson after six years.

"I am going to try to keep up the interest in the organization. I have no definite program, but I first intend to feel my way around," he said. Newbury hasn't set a date for the first meeting, but will after conferring next week with the new board of directors. The new president intends to contact every exhibitor in northern New Jersey and will be accompanied by Samuelson on his tour. The ex-president returns from Bermuda on Dec. 24.

"I intend to follow the principles of Samuelson as near as possible," Newbury declared, praising the former head of the unit for his conscientious work during his tenure.

Newbury was inducted into office aboard the Queen of Bermuda, following elections. He stated he has been a member of the organization for 15 years, harking back to the old days when the association was known as the M.P.T.O. The new president asserted he was not in favor of taking the post, but after several consultations accepted it.

to purchase so-called warrants on April 17, 1933, for the purchase of voting trust certificates for shares of the common stock of the corporate defendant. These warrants were afterwards rendered valueless by the acts of the individual defendants who at all times were in complete control of the corporate defendant and all of its affairs."

Loeb explained that the papers have not been served yet upon Harry Cohn, although many efforts have been made and are still being made to serve him. The answers are, in substance, general denials of the material allegations of the complaint.

Charge Banker Agreement

"The three individual defendants," Loeb's affidavit continues, "in the beginning of 1929 entered into a plan to enrich themselves at the expense of those who could be induced to purchase certificates including warrants. In March, 1929, the individual defendants, pursuant to that plan, entered into an agreement with Goddard & Co., bankers, in which the defendants caused the charter of the corporate defendant to be amended so as to authorize the issuance of 300,000 shares of no par value common stock and 25,000 shares of no par value preferred stock and on March 22, 1929, the defendants entered into an employment contract with Columbia Pictures Corp. whereby Jack Cohn and Harry Brandt received a weekly salary of $1,000 each and Harry Cohn $1,500 a week. Pursuant to the plan, the individual defendants in negotiating the agreement with the bankers did not faithfully serve the Columbia Pictures Corp., but favored their own individual interests in dealing with the bankers. The defendants entered into certain codes with themselves and manipulated the market prices of the common stock.

New Stock Issue Claimed

"On April 1, 1930, the defendants caused the defendant corporation to enter into a second agreement with the bankers whereby the individual defendants agreed to cause a voting trust agreement to be entered into with the Bank of America, National Assn., a depository, and themselves as sole voting trustees. They deposited 70,000 shares of common stock owned by them though their names did not appear as the owners. This was to maintain control of the corporation for their own personal aggrandizement for a period of 10 years from April 1, 1930. Under the second agreement with the bankers, the defendants caused the Columbia Pictures Corp. to issue an additional 50,000 shares of the common stock."

Loeb further explained that he read the statements set forth in two prospectuses of Columbia and relied on these statements to purchase from the bankers on July 28, 1930, voting trust certificates for 6,300 shares of common stock at $32 per share. He said he paid the bankers $66,150 for that transaction. He further charged that Jack Cohn and Brandt bought for their own account certain shares of Class A stock of the Fox Theatres Corp., which in time became practically worthless and that they eventually falsely stated to the defendant corporation that they had purchased the stock for the defendant corporation and received large sums of money in return.

Loeb also charged that the defendants retained for themselves large profits and bonuses and that jealousies and quarrels arose between the individual defendants. He pointed out that Brandt later withdrew from the corporation and that the defendants, Cohn, acquired his stock.

The motion made by Loeb for examination before trial of the defendants was set for Jan. 9. Nathan Burkan filed the answers of the defendants.

Cochrane Denies Ad Intended in "Susan"

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 17.—R. H. Cochrane, vice-president of Universal, has sent a spirited reply to Fred Wehrenberg's protest against a closeup of a Ford car in "The Affair of Susan."

It wasn't "deliberate advertising," Cochrane wrote, because long before contracts contained provisions against advertising Universal had rejected advertising offers "because it was the decent thing to do," and had adhered to the policy for 25 years.

"I saw 'The Affair of Susan,'" the letter continued, "when it first reached this office, and I detected nothing offensive in the use of the automobile because the story called for it, and I am quite certain that most of the fans and exhibitors of the country who have seen the film feel as I do about it. However, since you have registered an objection, the closeup shot particularly mentioned comes out."

Roxy Finance Report Turns Out a Mystery

Mystery shrouds a financial report issued by Amott, Baker & Co. for the Roxy in which it was stated the theatre showed a net profit of $152,730 for the 48 weeks ended Nov. 14. This was said to have been before bond interest, fees and taxes and was compared with a net profit of $5,844 for the year ended Dec. 13, 1934.

At the offices of Proskauer, Rose & Paskus, attorneys for Howard S. Cullman, trustee of the theatre, it was stated yesterday that no report had been made or filed. It was added that no auditors' checkup will be made until the end of the year. The same office could not identify Amott, Baker & Co.

less than two weeks to November. A second postponement to Jan. 7 was taken next. Details of the new delay, which ultimately may mark the ending of the case, will be worked out later this week at a conference with Federal Judge John C. Knox, to be attended by attorneys for the Government and Ascap.

As Warners continued its negotiations for the licensing of radio broadcasters reports were current that the company would not levy a music tax on exhibitors using Warner pictures. Ascap has almost definitely indicated that it will not reduce the music box tax to exhibitors as a result of the withdrawal of the Warner firms, but neither that organization or Warner officials would make a formal statement yesterday on the policy to be pursued.

It was also reported that the Warner licensing rates being asked of broadcasters amount to 40 per cent of the Ascap rates for sustaining programs and two per cent of a networks' gross for commercial programs.

The Ascap board is scheduled to hold its final meeting of the year tomorrow.

tinuing a checkup on the books of about 144 theatres in the local territory with no indications when the job will be completed. Hallgarten & Co. is said to be interested in underwriting a preferred and common stock issue to be divided among exhibitors whose houses are acceptable.

Weisman has been a pivotal figure in the independent circuit. Several months ago he drafted a plan for acquiring the houses, but exhibitors did not respond because of the clause which provided for their contribution to a fund of $100,000. Under the new plan, theatre owners will not be asked to contribute financially, but instead will be given stock.

Equipment reorganization and that of Paramount Publix, both of which were begun some time ago. The pending reorganizations of the Paramount theatre subsidiaries, M. & P. Theatres and Olympia Theatres, will also be explored by the committee, it was said.

Harley L. Clarke, former president of Fox Film, who was scheduled to testify before the committee yesterday on both the Fox and G.T.E. reorganizations was excused until tomorrow to permit Garsson and Meyer Kraushaar, attorney for the committee, to complete their questioning of Paramount officials begun Monday in closed hearings. John D. Hertz, Paramount director and partner in Lehman Bros., which has investments in Paramount, RKO, Twentieth Century-Fox and Warners, in conjunction with the Atlas Corp., was on the stand both Monday and yesterday. He will be followed today by Adolph Zukor, John E. Otterson and members of the Paramount board, Garsson said.

The questioning of Clarke tomorrow will also be during a closed session, but the hearing will be opened to the press and public when Kennedy, former SEC head, testifies on Friday.

AN ALLIANCE PRODUCTION

U. A. Executive Hails Rebirth Among Ind'p'ts

By A. W. KELLY
Vice-President, United Artists

I suppose you will be flooded by the deluge of optimistic forecasts for 1936.

We are all optimistic in this business, and for the past several unfortunate years, even when things looked mighty discouraging, I know that your annual symposium of forecasts was full of the words of far-seeing prophets who predicted sunshine beyond the clouds.

What are they going to say this year?

Things are so very much better and the outlook so splendid that there scarcely can be any doubt that 1936 will fulfill the vision that has been forecast in your columns for the last several years.

One of the most encouraging things that I see ahead is the rebirth of the independent theatres and the great activity among independent producers. There never has been and there never will be a monopoly of brains in this business or in any other business.

Expert showmanship in the theatre and in the studio will still be the greatest contributor to the advancement of our business, and with better times bringing increased rewards for intelligence and hard work, it looks to me more than ever like a fair field for all and special favors for none.

American producers, who evidenced their world viewpoint in 1935 by turning out more pictures with universal audience appeal than ever before, will take another step toward internationalization in 1936 by extending their production activities abroad.

This will have the immediate effect of making London, one of the ranking cosmopolitan cities of the world, an important production center, second only to Hollywood. In my opinion, a better grade of product will result from this division of the production burden.

Loew's Sees 250,000 For Orphans' Shows

Loew's estimates 250,000 orphans will see the Christmas shows arranged for their benefit throughout the circuit. Forty-five cities will be included. In New York alone it is figured that 50,000 free tickets will be distributed. In some instances the films will be shown in hospitals for cripples.

In Cleveland, Toledo, Washington, Baltimore, Columbus, Boston, Louisville, Nashville, Atlanta, Syracuse, Rochester, Kansas City, St. Louis and other spots the circuit is playing Santa Claus in cooperation with newspapers and institutions. In a half dozen cities toys are being collected.

Encouraging Signs Noted For New Year

By MAJOR ALBERT WARNER
Vice-President, Warners

Prospects have never been more encouraging for the industry than they are today as we stand on the threshold of the New Year. The general quality of pictures reached a new high average level in 1935 and I am confident that this progressive improvement in the standards of writing, acting, direction and production will continue.

We now enlist as a matter of course the cream of the world's creative talent and the screen offers to these originative minds a scope that is boundless, an art that moves freely in time and space and unifies all the other arts. Great pictures are coming.

Box office receipts have proved in the past year that the public is eager to welcome first-rate screen entertainment. The business of all of us is to furnish films of the highest quality. Prosperity for the industry will follow.

Myers Warns Over Pitfalls of Boom

through. Inflation, repudiation and chaos usually follow in the wake of an empty treasury.

While the prospects of increased net earnings in 1936 are rosy, these will not keep pace with gross receipts. The present recovery has the aspects of a boom with its concomitants of high living costs, high operating costs, and the temptation to expand not wisely but too well. Also the States are prowling about for more revenue; and if the processing tax is declared unconstitutional, Uncle Sam will be out with his blackjack. When the Government "spends its way to prosperity," someone must pay.

The moral is that we must now apply the lessons of our recent experience; we must treasure the good things that come to us in 1936, consolidate our positions, strengthen our reserves, and perfect our organizations. Any recklessness in 1936 may be rued in 1939. Those who are planning mergers, expansions and other get-rich-quick devices may well consider the thin ice on which we are skating and ponder the lessons of 1929. Production should be increased to meet the mounting demand; but theatre construction should be held in check as theatres are enduring and will outlast the boom.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Dec. 17.—The Criterion has installed a new marquee at a cost of approximately $2,000.

Family Surprise

New Orleans, Dec. 17.—Warren J. Sales, owner and manager of the Garden, determined a few days ago to surprise his family. He bought a new automobile. His idea was to drive it up to the house, toot the horn and invite all to pile in for a spin.

All went well till a few blocks from home. Then a pre-war flivver jammed the shiny new car. Damage conservatively placed at $150.

Grainger Is Bullish Over '36 Business

By JAMES R. GRAINGER
Gen'l Sales M'g'r, Universal

With the increase of attendance at theatres throughout the country, which naturally reflects itself in better film rentals for producing and distributing companies, and as I can see no indication of such attendance diminishing in the near future and in view of the fact that all companies have made rapid progress in turning out better box-office pictures, I look for 1936 to be a banner year for our industry, and that covers all branches—production, distribution and exhibition.

Stresses Need for New Personalities stories, as there has been a tendency in the past year to use players in the same cast combination too often. Color will receive further consideration with a good possibility of becoming an important factor in production.

The production situation, of course, is to a measure dependent upon theatre attendance. But there was a great improvement in that direction the past year and I look to an even greater jump in attendance for the year 1936.

Hamrick Takes House

SEATTLE, Dec. 17.—John Hamrick has acquired ownership and management of the de luxe Roxy in Tacoma, formerly owned by Jensen-VonHerberg circuit. Ned Edris, city manager for Hamrick in Tacoma, is a partner in the new theatre company, to be known as John Hamrick Tacoma Theatres, Inc. Edris will supervise the operation of the new theatre together with Hamrick's Blue Mouse, Music Box and Temple in that city. The new company is not affiliated with the local Hamrick-Evergreen circuit.

New Exchange Union Discusses Program

More than 50 employes of local exchanges met last night at the Times Square Hotel to attend a meeting of the recently formed Film Exchange Employes' Union. Several speakers discussed the plans of the organization and sought to have each exchange represented 100 per cent in membership. Initiation fees are $2 a year with dues $1 annually. Bob Murray of RKO is president.

Similar organizations are said to have been formed in St. Louis and Chicago. An attempt to organize film examiners and shippers in Minneapolis some time ago failed.

GTE Groups Allowed Appeal in K. C. Case

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 17.—Attorneys for General Theatres Equipment bondholders have been given permission here by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals to take their case into this court. The appeal will be based upon U. S. District Judge Albert L. Reeves' denial of the bondholders' petition to enter into the bankruptcy action involving Fox Rocky Mountain and Fox Midland theatres.

The case will be set down for hearing in Kansas City during the March term provided the appeal transcripts are filed with the court by Jan. 10.

Chain Store Tax Is Aim of N. O. Group

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 17. — Merchants here have started an agitation for enactment of a chain store tax at the coming session of the Legislature. Stores here are more than 50 per cent owned by outside concerns, it is said, and considerable backing for the bill is expected.

What effect, if any, it will have on theatres remains to be seen.

Fight Games in N. O.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 17. — The Times Picayune today deleted references to Bank Night and Buck Night from advertising, contending it is unlawful to mail publications with such material. Mrs. A. S. Tucker of the Better Films group claims the chance games turn theatres into gambling houses, and said her organization may make a national issue of the point if the Coliseum distributes $400 tomorrow.

BOSTON, Dec. 17.—The Massachusetts Council for Legalizing Lotteries was chartered here today under state law. Mrs. Oren Cheney Sanborn, society leader, will seek public support for the movement. The plan calls for proceeds to go to charity.

"The Ghost Goes West"

(London Films-U. A.)

LONDON, Dec. 17.—This film has effective satire, broadening frequently into the realm of farce. Rene Clair has handled the ingenious story with great humor and imagination.

A penniless Scottish aristocrat sells his ancestral castle to an American millionaire who transports it piecemeal to New York. The family ghost accompanies the stones and haunts the liner. The news is flashed to New York. On arrival, there is a fine travesty of a civic reception, with an empty car reserved for the ghost and other farcical scenes due to the desire of two rival magnates to tieup the ghost for publicity purposes.

A love story links the young Scot and the American's daughter with the ghost helping. There are many original touches including conversations of the ghost with his disembodied father in limbo, Scottish clan warfare, the American love of antiques and the ballyhoo which is equally well satirized.

The picture looks like one that has American appeal. Robert Donat is excellent as the ghost and modern descendant and Eugene Pallette is next best as the American millionaire father. Technical qualities at their best are scenes in which the castle is re-erected in a Florida palm grove with modern improvements.

The premiere performance at the Leicester Square theatre here tonight was attended by Queen Mary. ALLAN

Looking 'em Over

"For Love of You"

(Celebrity)

This newest importation of Celebrity has as its chief feature, which at the same time becomes a selling point, Franco Foresta, whose tenor voice is excellent, and who uses it to good advantage against a background of the canals of Venice at carnival time.

The story is inconsequential, having to do with the jealousy of his wife displayed by the singer and the efforts of the comedy team of Arthur Riscoe and Naunton Wayne, English players, to give her a good time despite him. The wife is played by Diana Napier.

The film in its entirety is made up of the complications, occasionally amusing, in which the two find themselves as a result of their attempt to cheer up Miss Napier, his singing, and the lively, gay and tuneful background of the Grand Canal. Selections are heard from "Othello," by Verdi; "The Pearl Fishers," by Bizet; Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci" and Offenbach's "Barcarolle." The theme song, "For Love of You," by Franz Vienna, is really tuneful and well sung by Foresta.

Eventually, as a result of the boys' efforts, the singer is cured of his jealousy, realizing that his wife loves him and that he has been making her unhappy. Carmine Gallone directed the film from a story by Selwyn Jepson.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 61 minutes. "G."

Short Subjects

"Cock O' the Walk"

(Disney-U. A.)

Something to write home about. Disney has created a prizefighting rooster riding down Main St. on a truck and a boxing ring doing his stuff. A hen deserts her admiring rooster friend to blink coyly up at the fighter. They go into a dance with tango music sounding a lot like La Cucuracha, and the fun begins.

There are big chorus numbers. Eggs do their stuff in the nests and hatch out dancing chicks. Ducks join in in formations. It's a laugh-packed travesty on musicals. Production Code Seal No. 1,227. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Broken Toys"

(Disney-U. A.)

Worth billing with the feature, especially during the holiday season. Grand entertainment for children and just as certain to please the grown-ups. The color effects are gorgeous. Toys answer a bugle call to service and the repairs begin. Something resembling W. C. Fields is brought to life. Zasu Pitts is filled with sawdust and becomes Mae West. Stepin Fetchit is pulled together, with lively music and dancing, and the whole troupe finally marches off to an orphan asylum to bring cheer to the inmates. Production Code Seal No. 1,680. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

Lubitsch Sees New Trends in Coming Films

Color, Player Changes, Musicals in Offing

By ERNST LUBITSCH
Managing Director of Paramount Production

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 18.—This year, I believe, will see a number of important developments in the cinema, chief among them an increasing use of color, a revamping of stars' personalities and a new trend in film musicals.

Of course, the principal trend, as always, is toward better pictures. As our industry grows older we learn more about the making of pictures and I feel that each year has seen a very real improvement in production methods that are reflected in

No IBEW Men To Be Hired In New Spots

Circuits Make This Part Of the IATSE Deal

No I. B. E. W. men will be employed in the construction and operation of new theatres planned by major circuits, it is learned, as a result of an agreement reached recently by vice-presidents of the various crafts affiliated with the A. F. of L.

About 120 members of the I. B. E. W. returned to their former theatre jobs after the settlement of the jurisdictional dispute between the organization and the I. A. T. S. E. However, where a major circuit takes over a theatre from an owner employing I. B. E. W. men, these workers are to stay on their jobs under the new management. The recent jurisdictional squabble is understood to have involved about 4,500 I. A. members. About 70 I. B. E. W. men involved were employed in Chicago theatres, a handful in St. Louis and Detroit and a number of others in less important key cities.

Hits Bottle Cap Ads

St. Louis, Dec. 18.—Many exhibitors printed advertising matter on the backs of the one and five-mill milk bottle tops used for payment of the sales tax.

Rumors that W. Ray Johnston, president of the company, was also about to withdraw were officially denied yesterday by Johnston himself who, in a statement, declared his status remains unchanged. The statement had this to say:

"W. Ray Johnston, president of Republic Pictures Corp., today announced that Trem Carr had resigned as president of Republic Prod., Inc., a production affiliate of Republic Pictures Corp. Mr. Carr has already sold his interests in both companies. His resignation has been accepted to take effect at once. Nat Levine assumed complete control of Republic

It'll be an industry turnout, that Ampa Christmas party at the Astor today, take it from the committeemen in charge—Paul Benjamin, Marvin Kirsch and Al Sherman.

Radio Men Get Warning Upon Use of Music

Ascap-Warner Row Still In Air, Says N. A. B.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Reporting that negotiations for the use of copyrighted music after Dec. 31 had reached an impasse, the National Ass'n of Broadcasters today cautioned its members not to broadcast any musical number on or after Jan. 1 unless they have a license to broadcast that number, or a sufficient guarantee of indemnity from a satisfactory source.

Ten days of negotiation by the association's board of directors have been fruitless, it was stated, and broadcasters have been told they are facing an emergency which must be solved, if only temporarily, by the end of the year.

"Various elements in this situation have been changing almost hourly and giving every evidence of continuing to change even more rapidly," it was

ITOA Talks Plans For Third Circuit

Formation of a third circuit to compete with Loew's and RKO in Greater New York was discussed yesterday at a meeting of I. T. O. A. members at the Astor. Harry Brandt, president, acted as chairman and insisted that a new combination of independent theatres was definitely under way.

Definite signs of an increase in game nights were indicated by exhibitors who contended that their only way to combat major circuit competition was to play the various games several additional times a week.

Efforts to have Loew's and RKO discontinue game nights and duals will be made by independents, it was stated yesterday. Unaffiliated theatre owners

Frank Walker Gives Up Government Post

Alverson was named acting director of the N. E. C. for the time being.

Reports that Frank C. Walker would retire from Government service to assume operating charge of the Comerford circuit followed the recent death of M. B. Comerford in an automobile accident but were denied at the time by Walker.

M. E. Comerford, head of the circuit, was seriously stricken last winter and has not fully recovered. Because of these circumstances it is felt that Walker was impelled to return to take charge of the business of which he was treasurer and general manager before joining President Roosevelt's recovery administration. It is expected that his time will be divided between the New York and Scranton, Pa., offices of the circuit.

"We are willing even to hike our admissions if Loew's agrees to do the same," the exhibitor said. "Loew's can make the third circuit or it can break it," the theatre man added. "It all depends on whether it will go single features and drop games."

Paul Moss, license commissioner, talked to the members in connection with the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies. A total of $4,800 was pledged yesterday, Walter Reade contributing $2,500. It is expected $10,000 will be contributed as the organization's share. The next meeting will be held Jan. 2.

Looking 'em Over

"Captain Blood"

(First National)

This is a big time show handled in a big way. It falls easily into the heavy money division.

The swagger, the glamour, the road to high adventure and romance penned in the Rafael Sabatini original have been caught effectively and thoroughly by Michael Curtiz. The producer, apparently recognizing the breadth and sweep inherent in the material, has gone the limit in transferring it from the pages of the novel to the screen in terms of images that arrest.

In point of production investiture, "Captain Blood" ranks in the front rank of Hollywood's recent efforts. It has the colorful background of 17th century England and the tropical West Indies, swashbuckling cavaliers and desperate-looking pirates, cutlasses and flintlocks, frigates riding the waves in a stirring series of beautifully photographed seascapes.

There is action, plenty of it, and adventure and gore; a salty tang that sets the blood atingle and enormously effective battle scenes. The picture, too, has a long and splendid cast from Errol Flynn, tall, clean-looking and good-looking Englishman as Blood; pretty Olivia de Havilland as Arabella, the romantic foil; Lionel Atwill, as the cruel Colonel Bishop, as well as Robert Barrat, Ross Alexander, Forrester Harvey, Guy Kibbee, David Torrence, Maude Leslie, Frank McGlynn, Pedro de Cordoba, George Hassell, Harry Cording, Vernon Steele, Leonard Mudie, Ivan Simpson, Jesse Ralph, Gardner James, Holmes Herbert, Donald Meek, Hobart Cavanaugh, Henry Stephenson, Basil Rathbone, J. Carroll Naish and E. E. Clive.

The narrative, no doubt familiar by this time, tells of how Peter Blood, warrior, turned physician, is innocently enmeshed in the unsuccessful rebellion of the Duke of Monmouth against King James; of Blood's banishment to the West Indies, there to be sold into slavery; of Miss de Havilland's attraction for him and Blood's ultimate escape aboard a marauding Spanish ship which bombards the town of Port Royal in Jamaica.

Blood and his men, hunted men turned hunters, become pirates along the Spanish Main under a Blood-imposed code which bars off the ravishing of women. His trail and that of the heroine, of course, cross. Comes love, Blood to the second rescue of Port Royal, his pardon by the new king, William, and the former buccaneer's appointment as the governor of the island.

Flynn, hitherto in secondary roles on the Warner lot, here gets his chance for big things. In a part which calls for no outstanding histrionics, he makes a dashing figure—so dashing, in fact, that women playgoers from this point on will no doubt prove numerous enough to make him in demand. This reviewer is afraid another matinee idol is on the way up.

Production Code Seal No. 1,542. Running time, 119 minutes. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Chatterbox"

(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 18.—Concentrating practically all the interest on Anne Shirley, this is a pleasing comedy-drama. The locale is rural New England and New York. It is the story of a country girl with her mother's ambition to achieve stage fame, a destiny denied her parent.

Locked out of her home by a jealous bumpkin suitor, George Offerman, Jr., in a way that makes it appear her stern grandfather, Edward Ellis, is responsible, Anne runs away. She hides in Phillips Holmes' New York-bound auto. Upon being discovered, she pleads with him to help her.

In New York, Holmes, egged on by a boarding house keeper, Margaret Hamilton, persuades Producer Erick Rhodes to give the girl a chance. The show, which Anne supposes to be a serious drama, turns out to be an audience-panicking farce. Heartbroken, the girl rushes from the stage to be reunited with Ellis, who, in the meantime, has staged a grand comedy boasting sequence with Granville Bates.

Homeward-bound, Holmes is found hiding in the car. He pleads

Greenthal Returns Oozing Enthusiasm

Enthusiastic over the number of pictures now being completed at the U. A. Studios, Monroe Greenthal, publicity, advertising and exploitation director, returned from the coast yesterday. He had a lot to say about "Strike Me Pink," "Little Lord Fauntleroy," "Modern Times" and "These Three."

Greenthal brought back with him some of the music Charles Chaplin has written for "Modern Times." The U. A. executive stated that a number of publishers are making efforts to get Chaplin to consent to publication of the musical numbers. Broadcasters are also anxious to play the tunes, Greenthal asserted.

Samuel Goldwyn and his wife will leave the coast en route to Europe for a vacation and conferences with Alexander Korda upon completion of "These Three" with Merle Oberon. Chaplin may come on for the opening of his picture at the Rivoli in January. The film in its present footage runs 150 minutes.

On the same plane with Greenthal were Charles MacArthur, Mary Taylor, Lynn Farnol and Countess de Frasso.

"Two Cities" on Air

Members of the cast of "A Tale of Two Cities" will broadcast scenes from the picture over a NBC hookup, with WEAF as the New York outlet at 7:30 P.M. Saturday night. Hugh Walpole will introduce the program. Those participating will be Edna May Oliver, Ronald Colman and Reginald Owen. Henry Stockwell will sing. The picture goes into the Capitol Christmas day.

Tilly Losch Signed

Federal Tax On Payrolls Starts Jan. 1

Employers in the industry having eight or more workers beginning Jan. 1 will be subject to a tax for unemployment insurance and old age pensions, says Motion Picture Herald, out today.

The assessments are under the Social Security laws passed at the last session of Congress, and apply to all employers. Immediately, the levies will be made in nine states and the District of Columbia, and Government officials expect other states to conform to the Federal laws within a few months.

Saying that the great majority of theatre men are either unaware of the far-reaching scope of the legislation or do not know what it means to them as employers, the Herald gives a comprehensive outline of the regulations.

Levied on Entire Payroll

The Federal taxes for unemployment compensation are levied on the entire payroll in New York and other states. For 1936 the tax will be one per cent of the payroll, increased to two percent in 1937 and three per cent for 1938 and thereafter.

The tax for Federal old age benefits is based on wages paid up to $3,000. During the calendar years 1937 to 1939, the rate is one per cent on employers and a similar rate on employes; for the years 1940 to 1942, the rates are 1½ per cent; for the years 1943 to 1945 they are two per cent; 1946 to 1948, two and a half per cent; and for the years following Dec. 31, 1948, they are three per cent.

The states having unemployment compensation laws and which are immediately affected are New York, Wisconsin, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, California, Oregon, Washington, Alabama and Utah. These states and the District of Columbia where such laws have been enacted represented 35 per cent of the entire payroll of the country, and the states which are expected to adopt such legislation in the next few months will bring this total to more than 50 per cent, according to A. J. Altmeyer, member of the Social Security Board.

Unemployment compensation is provided for in the Federal Social Security Act.

Radio Men Warned On Use of Music

declared in the association's report, made public here today.

"The best information which can be obtained at this time seems to indicate some doubt as to whether or not contracts for renewals with Ascap (guaranteeing substantially the same catalogue) contain sufficient assurance of protection to stations desirous of broadcasting Warner Bros. music or the music of several other publishing houses formerly in Ascap. No one can now definitely state what copyrights will remain in Ascap after Jan. 1. It is impossible to know at the moment from whom it will be necessary to secure copyrights effective Jan. 1."

No IBEW Men To Be Hired In New Spots

I. A., arrived from Washington o Monday and plans to leave for the coast the end of the week to call a general meeting of the membership. Organization details and dues will be discussed. It is also said that former I. A. men who left the organization to join the electrical workers union will be reinstated at the coast session.

All major operator contracts must be approved by Browne before signing, it is said. Before Local 306 signed an agreement with RKO and Loew's last October, the 10-year arrangement was sent to Washington. Th pact provides for arbitration on new salaries every two years and specifically states that there shall be no lockouts, walkouts or strikes.

Arrangements with Skouras and Randforce are understood to have been completed by Local 306 whereby houses of each circuits in the same classification pay the same scale Heretofore, it is said, Randforce had been getting a reduced figure for the larger houses in the circuit.

It is said that Browne did not ask the A. F. of L. affiliates for the ruling against I. B. E. W. men on new theatres.

Clarify Union Deal At Producer Meet

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 18.—Pat Casey called a meeting of all producers and I.A.T.S.E. representatives here today and almost every phase of the closed shop agreement in studios was ironed out. The only crafts not entirely settled upon were soundmen and grips. Division of work among soundmen will be arbitrated between Tracy of the I.B.E.W. and George Browne, I.A.T.S.E. head, within 90 days.

The grips' difficulties will be settled within the next few days by Steve Newman, I.A.T.S.E. studio representative and a representative of the carpenters' union. The agreement brings projectionists, laboratory workers, property men and all branches of the camera department except first cameramen under I.A.T.S.E. jurisdiction. First cameramen will not have to hold union cards. Several problems pertaining to projectionists will be settled by Browne on his arrival here after Jan. 1.

Golden Quits Republic; No Johnston Move

Prod., activities. This does not in any way change Johnston's personal status with Republic Pictures Corp. or Republic Prod., Inc."

While Republic had nothing to say about Golden's successor and efforts to reach both Johnston and Herbert J. Yates were unavailing, the report was afoot that Budd Rogers would succeed to the sales manager's post.

Golden is understood to be set on his new affiliation, but is not prepared to talk about it.

Carr to Rest

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 18.—Trem Carr is very much pleased over his deal with Republic, he says. One of his first moves to carry out his agreement to stay out of independent production for a year and a half will be to take a two-month vacation trip to Europe. He hasn't had a vacation in 10 years, he says.

Monogram can be resumed, he says, and he wouldn't be surprised, he indicated, if it reappears in the independent field at the end of his retirement period. He has had three offers from major studios, he says, but will rest before deciding.

Fred Steele resigned today as Republic studio comptroller, and was replaced by Max Schoenberg, recently in the bookkeeping department.

with Anne for a chance. The climax is the promise of a happy farm home marriage. Miss Shirley handles the role with a fine artistry which augurs well for her future. Ellis, Bates, Hamilton and Offerman add much to the show's homy comedy values. Holmes appears ill at ease and Rhodes has little chance to display his known talent.

Produced by Robert F. Sisk, the picture is based on a play by David Carb, with screen play by Sam Mintz and direction by George Nichols, Jr. It is a suitable all-family attraction and should appeal in secondary and smaller houses. Production Code Seal No. 797. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

Lubitsch Sees New Trends in Coming Films

the films we see on the screens of the world.

This coming year will be no exception. Pictures on the whole are being made on a larger scale and likewise they are being made better. Mere bigness of production is naturally no guarantee of quality. But it must be remembered that the industry has no precedent to be guided by; it is comparatively new as industries go, and it is sailing uncharted seas. And I believe in general it is succeeding admirably in attaining the goal of world-wide, quality entertainment.

One thing that has impressed me deeply in my own years in the industry is that stars must keep changing their personalities if they are to remain stars.

As to color, I think its use in a natural way will be advanced considerably by a number of pictures now in production.

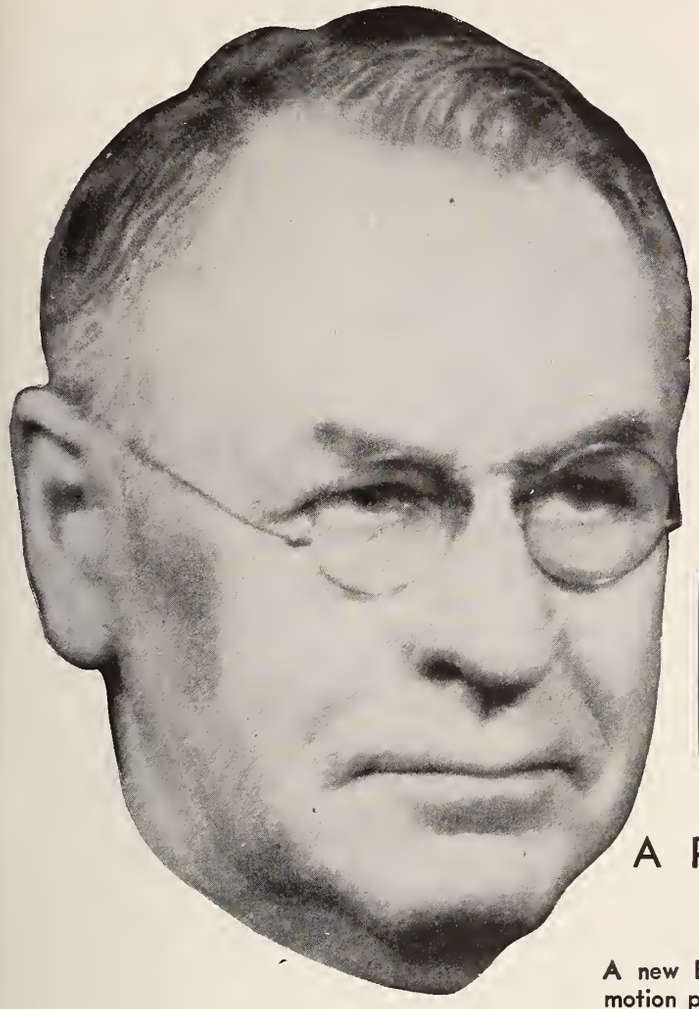
Musical pictures can hardly be called a new trend, but they are being dealt with in a new way. The increasing number of pictures containing so-called "better" music is a decided trend, as is the growing use of opera stars in leading roles.

Opera Problem Settled

I feel that the grand opera problem has settled itself. Grand opera, as such, can never be put on the screen, but excerpts from the better operas can be used effectively as sequences in pictures. Grand opera is an outworn medium and does not provide popular entertainment. I don't believe theatergoers want grand opera any more than they want Shakespeare, but they do want good music, well presented.

As for production methods, one new and marked improvement is a general abstinence from the use of photographic effects known as "tricks." The day is definitely near at hand when producers will depend entirely upon acting and direction to gain a desired effect, to the exclusion of tricks with the camera.

I feel I should be pardoned for expressing the belief that production in the future must depend more upon the director. Most of my own years in the industry have been spent as a director and the fact that I am now looking after the whole studio's production has not altered my opinion that the director is a most important factor in guaranteeing the success of a picture.



I am very happy over the industry's prospects. More people are going to the theatre; more and better pictures are being made. The future is exceedingly glowing.

ANSWERS ALL PROJECTION PROBLEMS!!

Sixth Edition of

A PRACTICAL GUIDE TO GOOD PROJECTION AND QUICK TROUBLE-SHOOTING

A new Bluebook by Richardson is always an event of signal importance to the motion picture industry. It is being issued at this time to meet the truly urgent demand of thousands of users of the old Bluebooks for an accurate, modern evaluation of the changes and refinements in the art and science of sound reproduction and projection including all the apparatus. Richardson's expert knowledge of the craft he has taught and followed for more than three decades makes this latest treatise, in the opinion of leading authorities, the most comprehensive, most useful projection manual ever published.

700 Pages of Text, Charts and Data

The new Bluebook contains 700 pages and 153 illustrations—photographs and schematics of every description. It is 6x9 in size with large readable type for easy visibility in the projection room under all conditions. It is entirely original from cover to cover, not a line of type from any of the many previous editions being used. Its low price of $5.25 and its handiness in one volume are among the many innovations.

1 IN ONE HANDY VOLUME
The new Bluebook is complete in one handy volume. It is a great improvement over the former expensive and cumbersome three-volume sets.

2 COMPLETE and UP-TO-DATE
The new Bluebook does a three-fold job: (1) it gives a detailed description of the construction, wiring and functioning of every piece of sound and projection apparatus used in a modern projection room. (2) It gives all the instructions for the operation and maintenance of this equipment and (3) it contains a complete trouble-shooting department as a first-aid in breakdowns.

3 QUICK-FINDING INDEX
An extremely simple but comprehensive indexing system makes the new Blue Book a truly great aid to working projectionists. Whatever problem comes up in the day's routine is covered on the instant with hardly more than the twirl of your thumb. Projectionists of long experience in the projection room will be first to appreciate this remarkable time-saver.

4 QUICK TROUBLE-SHOOTER
And it is, within its 700 pages, a practical trouble-shooter, which alone entitles it to a place in every projectionists tool kit.

Optimism Is Highlight of Big Ampa Christmas Party

By J. M. JERAULD

There was something different about the Ampa Christmas party this year—a subtle difference at first that became emphasized by repetition as speaker after speaker referred to it, whether seriously or lightly, in the blend of persiflage and thoughful discussion that always fills the programs of these affairs.

That difference was its optimism. It was expressed aptly by Will H. Hays in a couplet about the man gazing down tracks wondering what the engine does when it gets to the place where the rails meet, only to find they do not meet when he gets the viewpoint of the engineer.

"Clouds have cleared away from the heads of many," he said, "and they are clearing away for others."

The arrangements committee wasn't joking when it announced in advance

Federal Admission Tax Figures Rise Swiftly as Theatres Gain

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

Washington, Dec. 19.—Arrival of boom times for the nation's theatres was today reported by the Bureau of Internal Revenue with the announcement that admission tax collections in November totaled $1,866,915, a jump of $378,000 over October and more than $423,000 above November of last year.

The report for last month contrasted sharply with that for November, 1934, when a drop of $53,000 from October was announced.

For the five months of the fiscal year ended with November, the bureau reported, admission tax collections aggregated $7,119,811, an increase of $937,625 over the $6,182,186 reported for the same period last year.

See $130,000 for "Rebel" in 11 Days

Opening yesterday at the Music Hall, "The Littlest Rebel" will probably garner about $130,000 in the 11-day run. For the first six days the Shirley Temple picture is expected to take in around $40,000 and for the last five days the anticipation is that the picture will get something like $90,000.

"In Person" last week at the house ended with approximately $56,000. The Center with "Your Uncle Dudley" ended with about $10,000. "The Great Impersonation" at the Roxy was fair at $32,000, while the Palace was off with $7,000 on "Thanks a Million" and "Personal Maid." "Millions in the Air" was below the Paramount average, getting less than $10,000.

Keough Is Heard by Sabath's Committee

The Sabath Congressional committee continued its closed hearings on the Paramount Publix reorganization yesterday with Austin Keough testifying. Efforts will be made to open hearings on Pathe and RKO financial affairs today, as originally scheduled, according to counsel for the committee. Joseph P. Kennedy, former Pathe head, will be the first to testify if the hearing proceeds today as planned.

Part of the questioning of Keough at the closed hearing yesterday is understood to have been in connection with the reorganization of the Paramount New England theatre subsidiaries, Olympia and M. & P.

Para. Properties' Claim Is Expunged

A claim of $2,098,000 filed against Paramount Publix in its reorganization proceedings by Paramount Properties, west coast subsidiary, was expunged under an order signed yesterday by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe. Paramount held a counter claim against the subsidiary for more than $2,000,000. Expunging of the claim was provided for in a plan of reorganization for Paramount Properties which was consummated recently on the coast.

Judge Coxe also signed an order authorizing the settlement of a suit brought against A. C. Blumenthal by the Paramount trustees to recover on a financial settlement made with Blumenthal by Paramount in 1932, prior to the company's receivership. In that year Blumenthal instituted a bondholders' action against the company, which was subsequently settled by the purchase of his Paramount securities at par, although their market value was considerably less at the time. Blumenthal agrees to repay $3,750 to Paramount under the settlement of the suit brought against him by the Paramount trustees.

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday set Jan. 6 for hearing of the appeal of Sir William Wiseman, former Paramount director, from a ruling by Judge Coxe that the Paramount trustees had the right to subpoena Wiseman in their recovery action in which former officers and directors of Paramount are defendants.

D. A. Levy Elected Film Board's Head

David A. Levy, M-G-M branch manager for New Jersey, has been elected president of the New York Film Board of Trade, succeeding Moe Streimer of United Artists. The session was held at the Film Board's headquarters in the Paramount building. Edward Schnitzer was nominated for the post, as well as Streimer.

Robert Fannon of Republic has replaced Jack Bellman of the same exchange as first vice-president. Harry Decker, Warner Brooklyn branch head, is the new second vice-president, succeeding Fannon.

Jack Bowen, New York branch head of M-G-M, retains the title of treasurer, as does Joe Lee of Fox, sergeant-at-arms. Leo Abrams of Universal, who declined to run for the presidency, was elected secretary, a post formerly held by Levy.

No date for induction has been set, but this probably will be held the week of Jan. 13, as is the custom.

Due to illness of his mother, Henry Randell, Brooklyn branch head for Paramount, could not attend. Schnitzer and Streimer were reported on the sick list and, likewise, were absent.

File Plagiarism Suits

Two suits were filed in New York City courts yesterday by writers who charged that producers had stolen their stories.

Allen Caruthers of Queens brought a suit for $1,000,000 in N. Y. Supreme Court against RKO Radio Pictures, Inc. He charged that in 1923 he wrote "The Sooners." He says that the defendants plagiarized material portions of this in "Cimarron." He asks for an accounting and for surrender of all the supposedly infringed films.

In another infringement action, Francis Hackett brought a damage suit against Alexander Korda, producer, London Films, Ltd. and United Artists. In the complaint filed by Sammy E. Holtzman in the Federal Court, Hackett charged that on April 12, 1929, he wrote a book entitled "Henry VIII" which was copyrighted by Horace Liveright, Inc. The copyright was later assigned to him on Dec. 18, 1933. Prior to the production of "The Private Life of Henry VIII" by the defendants, he claims that his book was read by Alexander Korda. In 1933 the defendants produced "The Private Life of Henry VIII," using his copyright matter, his plot, characterizations and dialogue. He is asking for an injunction and accounting as well as damages.

Walker in Harness; Back to Comerford

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 19.—Frank C. Walker announced today he had returned to the vice-presidency of the Comerford circuit and that he plans no changes in personnel or policies. He will spend the bulk of his time in Scranton and the balance in New York, thereby, for the time being anyway, stepping out of the political scene in Washington.

Three on Broadway

"Dangerous" has been booked to open at the Rivoli Christmas Day. With "Captain Blood" at the Strand and "A Midsummer Night's Dream" continuing at the Hollywood, Warners will have three on Broadway next week.

the average public intelligence. The cold, box-office figures of the past two years prove that fact conclusively.

Formula stories, which have formed the great bulk of the untold thousands of pictures produced during the past decade, no longer will suffice. The so-called average picture no longer will do even average business. It takes an important picture to interest those who are now shopping for their entertainment — important stories played by important stars.

There are some 20,000,000 adults in the United States today who have graduated from high school during the past two decades.

Those 20,000,000 no longer can be lured through the doors of the country's theatres by mediocre attractions. They want intelligent, exciting entertainment for their money.

I do not mean that every picture will have to be based on one of the classics. By the same token the fact that a story has become a classic should not, and will not, keep it from the screen.

Many of the classics would not make exciting motion pictures and are not suited for the medium. Others are ideal.

I feel certain that 1936-37 will see a greater number of important pictures produced than during any other similar period and I am just as certain that there will be fewer of formula variety than in the past. And it will be the finest thing that could happen to the industry.

tate, credits due and maturing from American Tri-Ergon Corp. and other considerations sold in another block for $250,000, while a block of capital shares of Fox Chicago Realty Corp. brought another $5,000.

The sale was conducted by Paul M. Salsburg, president of the Atlantic County Bar Ass'n., as agent for All-Continent designated by former Circuit Judge Clarence L. Cole of this city. The latter declined to name whom he represented.

The All-Continent bidder, who declined to identify himself, was not opposed by any other bidder. Attendants at the auction characterized the prices as "a steal" and speculated as to reasons why the lone bidder did not hold his offers down to half the amount paid. No money or checks changed hands at the public sale, which led to the belief among those present that All-Continent would merely exchange the debts owed it by Fox for title to the securities it had bid in at the auction. It was assumed that Fox's indebtedness to All-Continent, thus, was in the neighborhood of $855,000.

Federal Judge William Bondy yesterday took under consideration an order directing William Fox to submit to examination on his financial status, to be conducted Jan. 6, in Toronto, by attorneys for the Capital Co., a San Francisco theatre holding company which holds an unsatisfied $297,000 judgment against Fox, based on a theatre lease. Fox, who has been cited for contempt of court by Judge Bondy for failure to answer a subpoena served on him some time ago by Standard, may purge himself of the contempt citation by complying with the terms of the order as they may be when signed by the court.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Riffraff"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, Dec. 19.—There's a lot of entertainment in this and just as many good selling angles. With a lusty comedy beginning it opens with as much hectic excitement as a bunch of exploding fireworks. It slows down in the middle when turning tensely dramatic and winds up with a real human interest sock. The action is vivid; dialogue sharp and pointed. Both qualities are exactly what would be expected from hardboiled waterfront fisher folk, the characters with which "Riffraff" deals.

Jean Harlow is queen of the canneries; Spencer Tracy the best of the tuna fishermen. Each is that way about the other, but both demonstrate their affection by trying to show which is the bigger heel. Tracy, settling a strike, marries Jean and then gets delusions of grandeur. Turning labor agitator, he is bounced from the union and fired by boss Joseph Calleia, who has a yen for Miss Harlow.

Running out on his wife, he hits the hobo jungle camps. Miss Harlow returns to the waterfront hovel of her father, Roger Imhof, and her sister, Una Merkel. Jailed for a theft which she had hoped would help Tracy, she escapes after her baby is born. Jean and Tracy both return to the waterfront at the same time. Through the kindness of J. Farrell McDonald Tracy gets a job as watchman on an oil tanker and makes a hero of himself frustrating a "Red" plot to dynamite the ship. Brought together with Jean, who has been in hiding, he is delighted with his child and happy that she must return to the pen, after which both can make a fresh start.

Tracy and Miss Harlow are glove-fitting in their respective roles and are aided by excellent comedy and dramatic support accorded by Calleia, Miss Merkel, Imhof, Mickey Rooney, McDonald, Paul Hurst and Vinc Barnett.

The picture is based on a story by Frances Marion and is done in her colorful style. She collaborated with F. W. Haneman and Anita Loos on the preparation of the punchy screen play. J. Walter Rubens' direction assures that where vigorous, meaty, but human, entertainment is appreciated "Riffraff" should place.

an example of no repetition of any one idea can be found in the 14 top Warner pictures to be released within the next four months," Sears declared.

In order of release, the films are "Dangerous," "Captain Blood," "Ceiling Zero," "Petrified Forest," "The Story of Louis Pasteur," "Colleen," "The Singing Kid," "Anthony Adverse," "Sons O' Guns," "Charge of the Light Brigade," "Green Pastures," "Hearts Divided," "Walking Dead," and "Over the Wall."

"The whole industry can be proud of itself for its handling of musicals," Sears added.

"Today the public is not surfeited with musicals which are here to stay." He gives as his reason the fact that about eight are released a season, or on an average of one every six weeks, which, Sears holds, gives theatres a chance to vary and balance programs.

Sears conducted individual sessions today with District Manager Carl Leserman and branch heads. S. Charles Einfeld, advertising, publicity and exploitation director, conferred with the men last night. Discussions were held tonight on the program for the next six months.

Sears, Norman H. Moray, Leserman and Einfeld plan to fly to Chicago tomorrow for talks with B. & K. officials. They will return to New York on Monday.

Ascap's Rates As Is Under Proposed Deal

five years for exhibitors accepting the long term pacts is offered by Ascap by way of a compensating benefit for loss of the Warner music, variously estimated to comprise from 15 to 20 per cent of the Ascap active catalogue. The five-year pacts to be offered could be canceled by exhibitors on one year's notice.

Heretofore, the Ascap contracts with exhibitors have been for one-year periods and have been automatically renewable unless canceled by either party.

The renewal of the publishers' memberships for five years includes the music companies controlled by M-G-M, Paramount and Fox, in fact all of the Ascap members with the exception of the retiring Warner companies. The action also marks the withdrawal of a number of publishing companies from their position of seeking a one-year renewal of their Ascap membership, which was believed to have been for the purpose of observing the results obtained by Warners from independent licensing. The holdouts, included Leo Feist, Robbins, Irving Berlin, E. B. Marks, Carl Fischer and G. Schirmer.

Jack Bregman of Robbins was elected an Ascap director at yesterday's board meeting, filling the vacancy created by the resignation of Herman Starr, Warner vice-president. This gives M-G-M its second representative on the Ascap board, Jack Robbins being the other.

members that they are at liberty to book at will until the January hearing.

The action was heard in Chancery Court before Justice Eve with Sir Patrick Hastings appearing for the plaintiffs. He asked an injunction against K.R.S. and 30 individual firms to restrain them "from directly or indirectly preventing the members booking films to the plaintiffs" for the three London theatres controlled by H. & G. Kinemas, Ltd., which are the hub of the controversy. The plaintiffs are charging the K.R.S. with restraining trade and that each and all of them were using unlawful means to prevent films from reaching theatres.

B. Morton, K.C., appearing for the defendants, said the plaintiffs had filed evidence only on Wednesday and that he had had no time to prepare his answer. He added that his clients, for reasons which would be put in evidence, had not been supplying the disputed theatres with product since October.

A. J. Gale and Phil Hyams of H. and G. Kinemas, were accepted as agents empowered to make bookings under the respite until Jan. 21.

all the tickets had been sold. Tables yesterday were arranged in balconies. Crowds stood outside and tried to argue their way into the Astor ballroom. Not more than half a dozen of the industry leaders and stage and screen figures who had promised to attend failed to do so.

The party, as usual, was held by Ampa and the Film Daily Relief Fund.

The entertainment was wisely arranged so that it preceded the speaking. Ralph Stone's radio orchestra played for a half hour, with solos by Verna Carega and Frances Nola, and songs from Donald Heywood's vocal orchestra of colored singers.

Gordon S. White, Ampa president, sounded a keynote when he said the party "reflected the gathering momentum of prosperity" before he introduced Jack Alicoate as toastmaster.

Alicoate went right at the job and said that "lest there be some misunderstanding about the fact that those present had work to do and because the place was bulging with stage and screen and industry personalities" they would be limited to three minutes each with a whistle when they had 30 seconds to go and a gong when their time was up. Lew Lehr was the only one to get the whistle and just missed the gong.

Tony Sarg Is First

Tony Sarg was presented first because he "exemplified the spirit of Christmas."

Sarg admitted that he does the industry a service each year by staging the Macy parade, a newsreel feature.

Alicoate eyed the list of celebrities on his left and began talking about Lee Shubert's "meal ticket," a "promising young man who was still promising to pay him $360 he had owed him since the Army-Notre Dame game."

Howard Dietz responded by pointing out what a pleasure it was to do that kind of business with a Gentile.

Many hundreds had received relief from the Film Daily Relief Fund, he said, "and many hundreds more were clamoring every day for relief from the Film Daily.

"The Film Daily has been an institution in this industry ever since I have been in it," he went on. "In fact, the industry has been an institution ever since I have been in it. The Film Daily started as Wid's Weekly many years ago with three pages of news and one page of advertising and now Alicoate had built it up to three pages of advertising and one page of news, and most of that news is about an impending golf tournament. It has an ABC circulation—Alicoate's Big Count.

"And there's another daily in the field—MOTION PICTURE DAILY—edited by a man whose name sounds like an Indian's whazzis—Red Kann. It's the same thing in different type. It has a great circulation manager. He sends the paper wherever you happen to be—Palm Beach, Hollywood, Atlantic City, Europe. He never takes the names off the list and the paper is forwarded. I get about seven MOTION PICTURE DAILIES a day."

"If Goethe was right that a man can express only that which is within himself," Alicoate retorted when Dietz had finished, "Dietz must be full of applesauce, sawdust and bologna."

Zuckor Gets Ovation

Martin Quigley was introduced as the dean of trade publishers.

"He's not as old as he looks," Alicoate explained; "it's only because he is serious."

"This annual event is a highlight of the year's activities in the industry," Quigley said. "It is to me a definite expression of a remarkably fine side of this industry. The Film Daily Relief Fund is to me a recognition of the fact that attainment of major and minor success must be attended by an element of luck. For those who have not had this luck the fund goes to their aid. For those who have a share in extending this aid it is a satisfying experience."

Alicoate dropped his banter in introducing the next speaker.

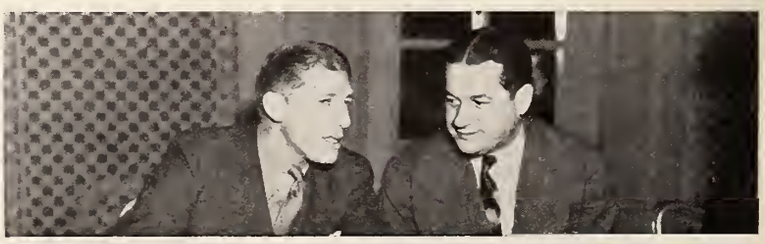
"If a man's riches can be measured by the number of friends he has," he said, "the man I am about to present to you is the richest man in this business. I present Adolph Zukor."

Zukor arose and bowed and received an extended ovation.

Lew Lehr tried his speech both ways —in his famous dialect and in his best Manhattanese. He was right in the middle of a story when the whistle blew, but it did no good.

Nizer in Good Form

Louis Nizer was in splendid oratorical form. He likened the party to a Christmas tree where the industry hangs its heart each year and recited a number of cases where the Film Daily Relief Fund had brought comfort to those in need during the year. He rendered an accounting, he said, "without cold figures and statistics."



Councilman-elect Charles C. Pettijohn of Harrison, N. Y., explained how he managed Alicoate's campaign last year and Alicoate lost.

"This year," he went on, "Alicoate was my manager and I won. That shows Alicoate's a poor candidate and I'm a good manager, and also a good candidate in spite of a bad manager. I can't explain it, because the women vote in Harrison. I see my boss here and also the chairman of our Entrance of Briskin into the company is regarded in line with the company's plans to add manpower. He has already conferred with McDonough here. The duties of both men will be defined by Spitz during his fortnight's stay on the coast.

Briskin will not produce himself under his new assignment, but will most likely act as general manager, while McDonough will assume the assignment of executive head.

Production plans for the balance of this and the first part of next season's program will be discussed by Spitz, Briskin and McDonough when the three meet at the studios next week.

Block Was Re-registered

Percy N. Furber, president of Trans-Lux Daylight Picture Screen Corp., denies his company has filed application with the SEC to register a new block of shares, as reported in MOTION PICTURE DAILY on Dec. 3 from its Washington bureau.

"Under the name of Rowe and Co., Archie M. Andrews had deposited in the Central Hanover Bank and Trust Co., 168,852 shares and these were purchased in February of this year—68,000 shares being purchased by our company and the balance by private individuals," he declares. "Owing to the uncertainty of what the new regulations created by the SEC meant, our board at first decided to cancel the 68,000 shares purchased and so notified the Curb Exchange, but at a later date when the SEC regulations were made a little clearer our board decided to merely put the stock back into the treasury. Before doing this, however, we had to request the Curb Exchange to re-register the 68,000 shares and the SEC had to approve of the registration, which was done. Your statement mentions 60,000 shares and that they are in addition to the 785,160 shares already registered, whereas it is 68,000 shares and only a part of the 785,160."

Furber also states Leslie E. Thompson, president of the Trans-Lux Movies Corp., does not participate in the profits of the company, as reported. Faulty telegraphic transmission was responsible for the latter error.

Grainger to Hollywood

James R. Grainger, general sales manager of Universal, yesterday left with Mrs. Grainger for Hollywood on his decade-old custom of spending the holidays with his son, Edmund. He expects to spend a week at the studio after the first of the year on the balance of the company's current schedule and preliminary discussions on the 1936-37 program.

ing a sealed verdict after 12 hours of deliberation.

The defendants were: M-G-M, Columbia, Vitagraph, Universal, Fox, Educational, United Artists and RKO. Friedman had alleged the defendants had conspired against him in restraint of trade by withholding film service from his theatres in Sharon and Farrell. He contended the Pittsburgh Film Board of Trade referred the matter to a board of arbitration, which decided against him. He contended the arbitration clause in the standard contract he signed was illegal. He contended he was compelled to quit business when the distributors stopped his film supply.

Distributors Not to Quit Mexico Field

ico have adopted an arbitrary policy which is proving the chief stumbling block in the distributors' efforts to resume normal operations. The action of the unions has kept Mexico City offices of the distributors closed since mid-September, despite the contention that only a minority of the organized workers favor a strike and national labor laws in Mexico require a majority vote on a strike.

Pratchett's report, however, offered encouragement on the basis of the Mexican government's willingness to aid in effecting a settlement and for this reason no action is being taken by the distributors on a withdrawal from Mexican operations.

Attending the meeting, which was held at the M.P.P.D.A., were George Weltner, Paramount; Mort Spring, M-G-M; Joseph Seidelman, Columbia; Robert Hawkinson, RKO; C. A. Kirby, Universal; Joseph Hummel and Karl McDonald, Warners; Irving Maas, Twentieth Century-Fox; Thomas Mulrooney, United Artists, and L. J. Wooldridge, Educational.

Pratchett leaves for Philadelphia today to visit a son attending school there and will return to Mexico City shortly.

Court Orders Fox To Answer Queries

An order requiring William Fox to submit to oral examination as to his financial status on Jan. 6 was signed yesterday by Federal Judge William Bondy on the application of the Capital Corp. of San Francisco, which holds an unsatisfied $297,000 judgment against Fox.

The examination may take place at Toronto, where Fox is now said to be under medical attention, or at any other place mutually agreeable to the attorneys involved. Fox has been cited for contempt of court for failure to answer a subpoena served on him by the Capital Corp., but may purge himself of the citation by appearing for examination on Jan. 6. If he fails to do this, sentence for contempt will be designated by the court, it was said.

At Atlantic City on Thursday title to negotiable assets owned by Fox passed to All-Continent Corp., which is controlled by Mrs. Fox, at a public auction, for $855,000.

Basson Choice Means Pushing Union Merger

Local 306 Head Had This As Campaign Issue

Sweeping endorsement of Joseph D. Basson's administration at the election of Local 306 Wednesday means early action on amalgamation of the three operators' unions in the local area, it was stated yesterday. One of the highlights of Basson's election campaign was the promise of quick action on the Allied, Empire and Local 306 merger.

Alex Polin, who competed with Basson for the presidential post, was vehemently against the coalition of unions and so expressed himself in campaign literature.

With the union's endorsement of his policies, Basson plans to get down to work without further delay. Of the 1,850 members, 1,630 voted. This figure is said to be the largest recorded at an election and indicative of renewed interest among members. Frank Pircher won as treasurer in a close contest with James Ambrosio, with 681 votes to Pircher's 733.

The executive board, in addition to

Vice-President of Production, Warners

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20. — Coming events cast their shadows before them.

As the end of the year approaches one's thoughts naturally turn toward the new year and the inevitable question, "What will the New Year bring?"

There are no hard and fast rules to guide one in making predictions as to the trend in motion pictures during 1936. News events of the day, topical stories, great economic upheavals, disasters that erupt like volcanos without warning, may en-

Ascap Trial Is Taken Off Court's List

Future Moves Believed To Be Indefinite

The Government's anti-trust suit against Ascap was marked off the Federal court calendar yesterday subject to reinstatement on notice to the defendants.

As stated in MOTION PICTURE DAILY of Dec. 18, this action does not mean the abandonment of the case by the Government, but is interpreted in some legal quarters as indicating that the Attorney General's office may drop the case unless new developments in the near future impel its continuance.

The withdrawal of the Warner music subsidiaries from Ascap, effective Jan. 1, is believed to have influenced the Federal action and, if the

First Pix Theatre Open; Plan Others

With the opening of the first Pix theatre in White Plains recently, plans are under way to expand in suburban territories, John Clarke, president of Pix Theatres, Inc., stated yesterday. Several units are contemplated in the local area, but no definite sites have been selected.

"The reaction of the first Pix unit has been excellent," Clarke said, "and we intend to feel our way before making further moves."

All Pix units will seat 300, Clarke stated. In the White Plains theatre, RCA apparatus and an air conditioning system have been installed. E. S. C. Coppock, general manager of Pix, is managing the first unit with L. D. Macgonigal as assistant.

"Our theory is that there is a place for a small high grade theatre, even if it plays second and third run," the president of the company asserted. Parking space is provided at the first theatre, located at 355 Mamaroneck Ave. Admission prices are 35 cents for afternoons and 55 cents evenings.

Lavarre-Warner Suit Rulings Announced

In connection with a suit for $50,000 damages brought by William Lavarre against Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., the Appellate Division of the N. Y. Supreme Court handed down two rulings yesterday. In the first decision the court said: "Order denying defendant's motion for summary judgment unanimously affirmed with $20 costs and disbursement charges." In the second decision the court ruled, "Order granting plaintiff's motion for examination before trial of the defendant unanimously modified. The date for examination is to be fixed."

These appeals were taken from orders in the Supreme Court. According to the complaint, Lavarre, who is a novelist and scenario writer, charges that prior to Sept., 1932, he was engaged by the defendant to prepare a story for William Warren entitled "Bedside Manner." He later finished two other stories for production—"The Fated Woman" and "Gambling Lady." He is suing to recover for value of his services for which, he says, he has not been paid.

A suit for $500,000 damages was filed in Federal Court yesterday by Du-Art Film Laboratories, Inc., and Arthur Gottlieb against Consolidated Film Industries, Inc. The complaint further charges that the defendants obtained the work for themselves from Universal. No answer has been filed as yet.

Short Subjects

"Simple Simon"
(Celebrity)

A Simon that is not so simple, but on the contrary the reverse as he is chased about this clever and pleasing effort in the ComiColor cartoon series. The start has Simon angling for a fresh pie with his pet duck from the second story of his rooming house. Discovered, he is thrown out and, while wandering, sees a parade of Mother Goose characters going to a fair. He pauses and samples the wares of a sweets peddler. He has no money and is chased by the owner. At the fair his duck wins a contest and the judges seek the owner who thinks they are after him. Afer more exciting chase he is caught and given the prize money. Colorful, exciting and well-done, this is good entertainment. Production Code Seal No. 1,620. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Humpty Dumpty"
(Celebrity)

Another of the ComiColor series, this has the same high degree of merit as preceding numbers. With new and clever twists and fitting lyrics it tells of a modern descendant of the famous egg. While it has the usual villain stuff, a new angle is used. There is the romance of two eggs and their billing and cooing on a omelet spoon backgrounded with a dancing chorus of eggs. The villain snatches the heroine and drops her into boiling water where she gets hard boiled. The hero has the same good luck and comes back to annihilate the villain who, falling from the stove, breaks open after being burnt and a collection of skunks issues forth. A worthwhile and genuinely entertaining offering. Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

Kay, from the American, Troy, has been transferred to the Ritz, Albany, replacing Robert Rosenthal, resigned. Jack Swartout, formerly at the Griswold, Troy, an independent house, gets the American.

Walter League, from Paramount, has replaced Walter McDowell, resigned, at the Palace, Jamestown. Dell Evans, from the Warner New York office, replaces Joe Leese as assistant contact man at Albany. Leese comes to New York. Henry Earle, until recently with the RKO Strand, Syracuse, is now assistant to William Haynes at the Stanley, Utica.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Ceiling Zero"
(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.—Here is a film to delight the hearts of showmen. It is swift, telling drama every inch of the way and is given compelling human qualities by a splendid cast. Strong appeal both for men and women is woven into a tale of love at an airport.

James Cagney brings brash gusto to a part of a daredevil pilot and relentless girl chaser. Two men only have his loyalty—Pat O'Brien, superintendent of traffic at the air line, and Stuart Erwin, fellow pilot.

Cagney feigns illness to keep a date with a student flyer, June Travis, sending Erwin in his place. Bad weather closes down, and Erwin, attempting to land with his radio out of commission and the ceiling zero, with a fog hanging on the ground, crashes to a spectacular death. The film ends with Cagney grounded, taking a mail plane against orders, testing new ice breaking equipment and crashing after radioing important information.

O'Brien, warmly human, reaches new heights of audience appeal. Gary Owen, as pilot made dim-witted by a crash, and Isabel Jewell, as the domineering, adoring wife of Erwin, drew individual applause for superb scenes at a preview.

Every supporting part stands out, due to the work of Barton MacLane, Henry Wadsworth, Martha Tibbetts, Craig Reynolds, Richard Purcell, Carlyle Moore, Jr., Addison Richards, Edward Gargan, Robert Light, James Bush and Pat West.

Howard Hawks' direction deserves high praise for its tension, speed and dramatic emphasis. Commander Frank Wead made a brilliant screen play from his play of the same name.

Emphasize the danger-packed exploits of pilots on and off the ground and the romance.

Production Code Seal No. 1,709. Running time, 95 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Fang and Claw"
(Van Beuren-Radio)

Always interesting, at times exciting, and produced with an expert knowledge of showmanship values—these are usually the characteristics of Frank Buck's jungle films. This one is no exception. It is excellent child entertainment, and also has a definite appeal for adults, particularly those who have not seen his preceding films.

Buck's future problems as a producer will consist largely in finding new stunts for animals to perform on their native heaths, or is it veldts?

In this one he captures three pythons in three different ways, each more exciting than the preceding one. First he grabs one by the tail and pulls it out of some bushes with the help of his native boys. Then he throws a burlap bag over its head and grabs it by the neck while they tie it on a pole. A second python is shot out of a tree and dropped into a net. A third entwines itself around the head guide and is unwound with plenty of struggling. Buck knows how to build up his scenes.

Tigers are captured in various ways and one is lowered over a cliff. A rhinocerous with an injured ear is operated upon. A crocodile is tied to a pole after much lashing about. In one sequence a tiger pursues a native into his cabin and then up a tree before being shot.

There are the usual comedy touches with bears and monkeys.

Buck's narrative runs through most of the film, with orchestral accompaniment to fill in the silent places and build the effects.

The photography by Nicholas Cavaliere and Harry E. Squire is excellent, and Winston Sharples did a good job on the music.

Production Code Seal No. 0,736. Running time, 68 minutes. "G."

"Curiosity Shop" Here

"The Old Curiosity Shop," produced from a script by Margaret Kennedy and Dexter Fellows, with a new youngster, Elaine Benson, 14 years old, in the lead, will open at the World tomorrow. The scenes were made in the actual locales described by Charles Dickens, it is claimed.

Ascap Trial Is Taken Off Court's List

resignations become permanent, few legal minds see any possibility of a continuation of the trial of the anti-trust charges against the society. However, if the Warner companies renew membership in Ascap within the next few months, the same sources believe that the Government will continue the trial. The official reason given for striking the case from the calendar is that it is being done to provide time in which to complete stipulations of facts which, agreed to by both sides, would shorten the trial if and when it is resumed. However, attorneys for Ascap assert that it should not take more than six weeks to complete the stipulations and postponements of the trial have been taken twice for longer periods without striking the case from the calendar. A good portion of the stipulations has already been completed.

The agreement to strike the case from the calendar was made yesterday at a conference with Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard attended by Arthur Schwartz of the Nathan Burkan law firm, counsel for Ascap, and C. W. Roberts, representing the Attorney General's office.

Warners yesterday stated that the services of "about 50" persons mainly in the professional and arranging departments of the company's music publishing subsidiaries would be dispensed with after Jan. 1 as a result of the Warner resignations from Ascap. It was stated that the move is made necessary by the elimination of the "old-fashioned" methods of song-plugging, "especially on the radio" and the loss of the music publishing companies' Ascap revenue.

The Warner statement added that heads of the music publishing departments affected would be retained, together with certain key men, and that in the future the music publishing enterprises would be conducted as an "independent and self-sustaining business." "Until the new basis on which these companies will be conducted has been firmly established," Warners said, "it is obviously necessary to make all possible retrenchments."

The Warner companies affected are Harms, Inc., M. Witmark & Sons, Remick Music Corp., T. B. Harms Co., and their subsidiaries.

Fourteen Theatres Pool K. C. Giveaway

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 20.—Fourteen independent theatres have entered a pool agreement whereby they will offer $100 in cash giveaways each night under the Sweepstakes plan, beginning sometime within the next week or two. Under the plan, which was designed to meet Fox Midwest competition with Bank Night, the "award" accumulates $100 each night a winner is not present in any of the 14 theatres.

A conference telephone system is being installed and will enable rapid dissemination of the name and address of the winner from the theatre where the drawing is held to the other theatres. Advertising via trailers, handbills, etc., is being worked out, and a special wording will be used in newspapers. Fox Midwest now uses "Special Added Attraction Tonight" to call attention to its Bank Night. Something of this kind will be used by independents. Newspapers are not allowed by postal authorities to print a definite statement regarding a cash giveaway. This gives independents two more units in Kansas City, Mo., than Fox Midwest.

The theatres, listed in the order in which they will conduct the drawing, are the Murray, St. John, Lindbergh, National, State, Admiral, Central, Prospect, Westport, Ritz, Baltis, Strand, Roanoke and Sun.

Pool theatres will not conduct money giveaway promotions other than Sweepstakes after the start, but probably will continue premiums at least until contracts run out.

Goldwyn to Use Rotos

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20. — Monroe Greenthal has won Samuel Goldwyn's agreement to use half-page rotogravure ads in 24 newspapers for "Strike Me Pink." The plan is to place the copy for Jan. 12, approximately a week before the film is generally released.

Hollywood Pictures Win Point in Suit

Five judges of the Appellate Division of the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday handed down a ruling in which motion to consolidate two suits against the Hollywood Pictures Corp. was denied. The judges unanimously affirmed with $20 costs a ruling of the lower court to the same effect. The plaintiffs in one action are Alexander Marks, and Louis Geller, who brought a stockholders' action against Hollywood Pictures Corp., Hollywood Film Exchange, Jack Bellman, Louis Schneider and Samuel Friedman.

In this action the plaintiffs seek to compel the defendant to account to them for their official acts as officers and directors of the defendant corporation. The plaintiffs claim they are owners of 25 per cent of the capital stock of the corporation. In the other action, a stockholders' suit is brought by Jack Bellman, Samuel Friedman and Louis Schneider against Adolph Pollak, Alexander Marks, Louis Geller and Hollywood Pictures Corp. The court ruled that these suits are not to be consolidated as the issues involved are dissimilar. The suits are pending on the Supreme Court calendar.

1,000 Use Sweepstakes

About 1,000 theatres throughout the country are now featuring Movie Sweepstakes, Joe Vergesslich, general manager, states. He recently returned from a tour of the country and holds that more theatres today are playing various games than ever before. William E. Raynor is the New York manager.

Warner Sees Higher Ideals During 1936

tirely change an established trend in motion pictures.

But, based upon observations of the type of motion pictures and the way they have been received by the public and press during the past year, I venture to say that the trend in 1936 will be toward finer pictures, finer in thought, purpose and production.

Motion pictures themselves, radio, the automobile, the newspapers, have served to spread enlightenment throughout the world to such a degree that the public is ready for bigger and finer screen entertainment.

No longer can anyone use the much-abused saw that the mentality of the public is that of a child of 10. Any producer who attempts to cater to an audience with the mentality of a child of 10 will have a rude awakening when the returns on his pictures are in.

Hammond Patents New Sound Device

mond has been working for the past eight years, incorporates automatic variation of amplification in parallel with the sound itself, in contrast to the present linear type of amplification which remains at a constant degree, although the subject matter may vary from pianissimo to fortissimo. A second important element excludes parasitical noises which form scratchy sounds as a background at times for most reproduction.

It is held to be of definite value to film recording and also film rejuvenating. When it reaches a stage of development permitting distribution Hammond expects it to be available in a small device costing perhaps no more than $15, which may be attached to present reproducers.

British Showings Gain

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20. — During October the British Board of Film Censors passed 213 films, of which 64 were 3,000 feet or longer and 149 shorter, according to a report to the U. S. Department of Commerce.

This was an increase of 39 pictures over October, 1934. In the latter period, 67 pictures over 3,000 feet in length were passed, and 107 pictures less than that length.

Films Taking Long Stride Forward–Hays

Says Technical, Social Artistic Values Gain

By WILL H. HAYS

Technically, artistically and socially, motion pictures continued, in 1935, the steady advance they undoubtedly will maintain throughout the year ahead. Progress in these things is to be desired, but our chief source of gratification is that motion pictures took a long stride forward in entertainment value, the chief function of this industry.

ASC Voids 5-Year Pact with Studios

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 22.—A.S.C. executives formally announced the voiding of the five-year pact with studios at two meetings here Friday night, one of first cameramen, the other of second cameramen and still-men. It was predicted A.S.C. would have a closed shop agreement similar to that of the I.A.T.S.E. on first cameramen.

U. S. Says Dropping Ascap Case Merely Postponement

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Removal of the Ascap case from the court calendar was said by officials of the Department of Justice today to be due to inability of counsel to agree upon a stipulation and is merely a postponement of the trial.

Lawyers for both sides have been engaged for some time in an attempt to draft a stipulation which would cover the facts in the case, and save the time and expense of putting witnesses on the stand to present such matters.

Inability to come to an agreement is understood to be due in large measure to the uncertainties as to the result of the withdrawal of Warners from the music organization. Officials in Washington denied that the latest action in the case meant that it would be dropped, explaining that delays frequently occur in the preparation of stipulations, the facts of which must be acceptable to both sides.

British Films Feel Decisive Shift in Year

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Dec. 13.—In a longer retrospect than is at present possible 1935 will probably be seen as one of the decisive years in the stabilization of the British market. It was a period in which many developments reached something like finality and which may have set the pattern for trade events for many years to come. Certainly 1936 offers no immediate prospects of change to compare with those which faced the industry, and particularly the importer, in January, 1935.

In April the maximum obligation which can be imposed on distributors under the existing Films Act came into force in the form of a 20 per cent quota of British films. In October the exhibition quota reached the same figure. There, failing further legislation, the matter will rest until the Act expires in 1938.

Definitely, the serious character of his British film obligation has been realized during 1935 by the American importer. With a British film to sell or to shelve for every four American pictures in his program, he has at last decided that shelving simply will

New Hearing Is Called in Sale Tax Row

The city finance department on Saturday granted the request of the local exchanges for a new hearing on the department's attempts to apply the city sales tax to film rentals and set Jan. 10 for the hearing.

It is understood that at that time attorneys for New York distributors will offer new arguments on why the sales tax should not apply to local exchange revenue derived from theatres in New Jersey, up-state New York and other localities outside the city limits. Arguments have already been made by the exchange men against application of the sales tax to film rentals originating within the city, but no decision has been made yet by the finance department as a result of that hearing. It is believed, however, that the city will hold this revenue to be taxable and distributors are prepared already to appeal the decision.

Thus far the city has levied a complete assessment only against the United Artists exchange and this is being contested by the distributors as a test case. The assessment was for $20,100 and interest and was levied against the entire revenue of the exchange, regardless of whether it originated outside the city limits, and covered a two and one-half months period.

Legal Battle On Merger of Unions Seen

Independents Seeking to Protect Contracts

Despite pre-election promises made by Joseph D. Basson, president of Local 306, for quick action on amalgamation of Empire, Allied and Local 306, legal moves are reliably reported to be pending which will forestall such an alliance.

Independent circuits holding long term contracts with Empire are understood to be viewing a possible merger with no relish, it is stated. The reason is said to be that benefits under the Empire pacts would be wiped out if that union is permitted to come under dominance of Local 306, an I.A.T.S.E. affiliate.

The several legal actions are reported pending in Kings County

Giveaways in Bronx Are Hit By Conviction

Chance games in local theatres met another setback in Special Sessions when three judges in the Bronx found the Tremont guilty of violating the lottery laws. This is the second conviction in county courts, the first having been handed down two months ago against the Winthrop, Brooklyn.

Barnard Zimmetbaum, operator of the Tremont, had been arrested Aug. 16 for featuring "Dough Nite" and distributing cash awards. The case had been pending in Special Sessions until last Friday when District Attorney Samuel J. Foley of the Bronx moved for trial.

Confirming MOTION PICTURE DAILY's story several weeks ago, the district attorney told the three judges that he and the police would "unquestionably bear down on theatre owners who conduct these lotteries." Assistant District Attorney Walter X. Stanton said there were a number of similar cases pending in the Magistrates' Court. Melvin Albert of Weisman, Quinn, Allen & Spett represented the exhibitor.

Sentence on the Tremont will be handed down Jan. 3, following which an appeal will be taken to the Appellate Division. Hearing on the Winthrop appeal is set for Jan. 6.

Several weeks ago Judges Murphy, Noland and Gresson in Manhattan Special Sessions dismissed a Bank Night complaint against Harry Harris' Washington. Assistant District Attorney Goldman in this instance recommended such action, holding at the time that there had been no violation of the lottery laws.

Louis Weber, attorney for Skouras Theatres, recently was successful in having a Bank Night complaint against the Academy of Music thrown out when it came up before Magistrate Anna Kross.

Opening date, tentatively set for Jan. 16, will most likely be put back to Jan. 27. It is expected that the first week's take of the Chaplin picture will better $70,000.

"Broadway Hostess" at the Strand in six days took in about $7,000.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 22. — Maurice Conn has bought Sig Neufeld's half interest in Ambassador Pictures, leaving him sole owner. Production already has started on the Peter B. Kyne story, "Black Gold" with Russell Hopton directing. The cast includes Frankie Darrow, Roy Mason, Berton Churchill.

Review Board Picks Year's 10 Best List

Cocalis some time ago acquired the Riviera, Brooklyn, which had been operated by Randforce. The deal is said to have annoyed Randforce which was negotiating on a new lease. A similar occurrence is reported to have taken place in connection with the Park, Newark, a David Weinstock house. Weinstock is a partner of Brandt and recently filed suit in Chancery. Springer is understood to have been at odds with Cocalis on the Beacon Theatre deal.

Five independent houses played "Call of the Wild" with the Fox Benton on Dec. 15. Scarlet Fever Hits Omaha Yule Trade

OMAHA, Dec. 22. — Threats of a blighted Christmas and holiday trade are staring showmen in the face as scarlet fever cases spread over the city.

Health authorities made an appeal to the Ministerial Union to keep down the number of special meetings and church gatherings until the epidemic was brought under control.

Carl Dreher Again Named Award Judge

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 22.—Carl Dreher, Radio sound recording director, has been named for a fourth term as chairman of the judges' board for scientific or technical Academy awards by Nathan Levinson, chairman of the Academy Technicians' Branch.

Those appointed to the board are: John Arnold, Farciot Edouart, Harris Ensign, Virgil Miller, William Rudolph, Lloyd Goldsmith, Burton F. Miller, S. J. Twining and Gordon S. Mitchell.

Each studio equipment company and technicians in the industry has been invited to submit nominations for devices, methods or equipment which have been developed during the past year and might be eligible for a scientific or technical achievement award.

Nominations will go before the Academy board for consideration.

Legal Battle Seen On Merger of Unions courts and if papers now being prepared are signed they will definitely preclude a merger of the three operators' groups.

Alex Polin, who ran against Basson for the presidency of Local 306, vehemently opposed a merger in his campaign literature. His contention was that the union cannot take care of its own unemployed. Notwithstanding the parceling of work to a number of the men, several hundred members have yet to be given permanent jobs, it is said.

It is figured that both Allied and Empire have a good percentage of men on the unemployed lists and that if the unions were combined such a move would add to the Local 306 unemployed.

Guild Elects Faragoh

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 22.—Francis Faragoh has been elected vice-president of the Screen Writers' Guild, replacing Nunally Johnson, who was forced to retire due to press of duties.

ly belongs to our schools, although entertainment pictures always are contributing to education by bringing to the doors of the least traveled of our people the great literature and music of the world and the great actors. The least privileged now may know all foreign lands and the ways of other peoples.

The business of religion is chiefly the province of the churches, although frequently motion pictures are made which have exceptional religious value.

The business of social service is principally carried on by many worthy institutions formed for that purpose, although motion pictures, by furnishing relaxation and amusement to the peoples of the nations of the earth, are of vast social service.

For all of this, the essential business of the motion picture industry of today is the production, distribution and exhibition of entertainment. That is the objective for which we constantly must strive. By the success of that effort we must stand or fall.

Therefore, with high hope and confidence we look forward to a future which promises us pictures of constantly increasing entertainment values. They will be of every type and complexion suitable to the screen. They will run the gamut from buoyant comedy to the dramatic heights attained by the great writers and composers. But, whichever and whatever they may be, they will contain the laughter and tears, the calm moments of beauty and the tense moments of suspense which go to make thrills and drama and provide the essential factor entertainment.

Queen Mary sees premiere of film. "The Ghost Goes West," comedy, achieves triumph. The famous French director Rene Clair's first English film, "The Ghost Goes West," which had its premiere here tonight before Queen Mary, was a triumph for all concerned.

The performance placed another feather in the cap of Alexander Korda, London film producer, while the young actor Robert Donat gives one of his best performances in the dual role of an eighteenth-century ghost haunting a Scottish castle and the ghost's twentieth-century descendent. The play is taken from the story by the American writer Robert E. Sherwood.

Mr. Clair delightfully blended his Gael theme, rich in satire, at the expense of bo Scotland and the United States. Eugene lette came from Hollywood to play the of the American purchaser of Glourie Ca which he transplants to Florida com with the ghost. The heroine, Jean Park is from Hollywood.

One of the most amusing touche play is the New York reception, Lindbergh's, for the ghost, who ach toriety on board the ship bringing to America. Reaching a new mark ing comedy.

he story, originally written by Lajos Biro d transferred to the screen by Robert E. erwood, is a brilliantly written satire, aided y the superb direction of Rene Clair, the gorgeous settings of Korda's brother and the beautiful photography of Hal Rosson.

The cast is as brilliant as the other picture ingredients, with Robert Donat adding new laurels to his career as a picture star in the dual role of a modern and a historical Tristram. Jean Parker is both beautiful and accomplished in the chief feminine role, and Eugene Pallette is a delight. These standouts were ably supported by Elsa Lanchester, Everley Grega, Patricia Hilliard and an unusually fine acting cast.

The picture is a cinch smash and will move
Korda and his London Films a step higher on the amusement ladder.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY

"The Ghost Goes West" has effective satire, broadening frequently into the realm of farce. Rene Clair has handled the ingenious story with great humor and imagination.

A penniless Scottish aristocrat sells his ancestral castle to an American millionaire who transports it piecemeal to New York.
The family ghost accompanies the stones and haunts the liner. The news is flashed to New York. On arrival, there is a fine travesty of a civic reception, with an empty car reserved for the ghost and other farcical scenes due to the desire of two rival magnates to tieup the ghost for publicity purposes.

There are many original touches including conversations of the ghost with his disembodied father in limbo, Scottish clan warfare, the American love of antiques and the ballyhoo which is equally well satirized.

The picture has American appeal. Robert Donat is excellent as the ghost and modern descendant and Eugene Pallette is next best as the American millionaire father. Technical qualities at their best are scenes in which the castle is re-erected in a Florida palm grove with modern improvements.

THE Film DAILY

New Korda Film Scores. "The Ghost Goes West," produced by Alexander Korda of London Films and directed by Rene Clair, scored a triumph on its premiere here Tuesday night before a royal audience that included Queen Mary. The picture, a hilarious comedy, has a cast headed by Robert Donat, who makes a hit in a dual role; Jean Parker and Eugene Pallette. Story is by Robert E.
Sherwood, and United Artists will distribute the film.

British Films Feel Decisive Shift in Year

not do. The "quickie" is not dead, but it is certainly dying. The prevailing American practice is to make or buy British pictures at a reasonably low figure, but at one which implies some degree of screen merit. Many of these pictures will lose money, but they will not be 100 per cent losses.

Back in the early summer a distinguished British industry figure, Simon Rowson, discussing Films Act revision before an exhibitors' conference, argued for a minimum cost clause for British films. Current policy on the part of American firms has already nearly made this enactment unnecessary. The importer is trying to make his British film an asset instead of a liability. One of the interesting things which may be revealed during 1936 is the extent to which American firms, committed to British production, will try to make these films fit for America.

The British market, which further improved with gradually bettering national conditions in 1935, is undoubtedly, in relation to number of theatres, the most remunerative in the world for good pictures. The practically universal operation of the system of percentage booking, under which the exhibitor pays an average of 40 per cent of receipts for his program—and 50 per cent in the case of the real big things—means that the distributor probably gets more per seat for a box-office success than in any other market in the world, not excluding the U. S.

Took Big Grosses

American producers took very big grosses out of the British market in 1935 and there is no reason to think that they will fail to do so in 1936. With all that can be said of the astonishing progress of British production—and all that is said on that point is true—it is a fact that the American film is still the most important item in motion picture entertainment in the United Kingdom. Without definite figures, comparisons would be dangerous; it is a fact which few practical film traders will dispute that when British producers can achieve with any regularity success equaling that of, say, "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," it will be time to declare that the British film has achieved predominance in its own market. Individual British films score comparable successes, but American producers, as a group, undoubtedly contribute a much greater proportion of British box-office champions than native firms.

There is, therefore, no serious danger that in 1936 the American industry need fear, in Great Britain, a depreciation of the values on which it has built its goodwill. British films are succeeding, in the main, strictly in proportion to the extent to which they acquire these American values in stars, directors and writers.

The market does, nevertheless, present some unusual problems of a strictly commercial nature. The quota situation means that one-fifth of available dates are compulsorily filled with British films. The American distributor has open to him, for American films, only 80 per cent of the market; the practical effect is much the same as if he were allowed to book only to 3,200 of the Kingdom's 4,000 houses. He approaches this artificially restricted market with a product compulsorily diluted by 20 per cent of British films. To these difficulties of marketing are added the further one that, whereas the earning powers of big pictures tend to increase, due to the public's willingness to patronize them even in very late runs, the programmer becomes a more and more difficult problem. Where it is a question of just filling a date the second-rate British picture is apt to get the business; it is not much worse as entertainment than the American, and it helped the exhibitor with his quota.

On the assumption that American distributors desire to exploit the United Kingdom like the United States as a 100 per cent market, it appears that the ultimate solution will be the production in Hollywood and London of films good enough for distribution throughout the whole of American and British theatres. Though there is frequently a violent reaction against any suggestion that Hollywood schedules should be reduced or the principle of centralization at the coast even questioned, it is probable that 1936 will see definite movements in that direction. Of special interest is the possibility of further cooperation between British and American companies on the lines which recently made London Films partner of United Artists.

It is a leading fact of the situation that the American producer wants the whole of a market which, with the removal of the Entertainment Tax on the cheap seats and a definite improvement in public buying power to encourage enterprise, will be a bigger source of revenue in 1936 than in any previous year in history.

Some Are Good

Some of these film polo players are good and some are not so good.

Take John Hay Whitney, f'rinstance. He's good. The U. S. Polo Ass'n has raised his rating for the year from four goals to five goals. That puts him up in the first six classifications, the highest being 10. John Hertz, Jr., is not bad. He raised from the no-goal group to one.

Then comes John Mack Brown. Last year he shot a goal, but this year 12 months of riding netted him a lot of exercise, but no score. The same was true of Spencer Tracy and Walter Wanger.

And Darryl Zanuck isn't even listed, showing what too much big game hunting will do to a polo player.

No Appeal Foreseen In Sharon, Pa., Case

There is little likelihood of an appeal being taken from the verdict last week of the Pittsburgh Federal jury awarding Samuel Friedman, Sharon, Pa., triple damages of $24,000 and attorneys' fees in a conspiracy case against five major distributors, it was said on Saturday.

Spokesman for the defendant distributors said that no legal precedent was involved as the contracts on which the case was brought are no longer in use. It was added that the judgment involved probably was not large enough to warrant the expense of an appeal.

Building Upon Gains Coming, Says Laemmle

Sees 1935 Improvement Continuing in '36

By CARL LAEMMLE
President, Universal

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 23.—All that I can see for 1936 is a continuance of the increased amount and character in the moving picture business during the latter part of the current year. I see this improvement all along the line for our industry. Other businesses in almost every line are improving, their leaders are optimistic and conditions in their business circles undoubtedly warrant confidence. People in general, neither because of the New Deal nor in spite of it, are feeling more encouraged. They are spending money more freely and they must have this money or they would not be able to spend it.

A friend of mine in the automobile business has been amazed at the ST. LOUIS, Dec. 23.—Determined to win the civil suit pending against Warners, Paramount and RKO in the Federal Court here, Attorney General Homer S. He has just appointed Walter Rice of the Government's staff in Washington as assistant prosecutor for the equity hearing, definitely scheduled for Jan. 6, on an application for a temporary injunction against the three respondent companies for allegedly refusing to sell F. & M.'s Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central.

Harold L. Schilz, who assisted Hardy in the criminal action, is being retained for the second action and it is understood several other Government attorneys from the Capital also will arrive here the end of next week.

Hardy was here on a secret mission for several days last week, presumably conferring with Harry C. Arthur, chief Government witness, on preliminary matters in connection with the equity suit.

Big Circuit in Market For Houses—Friedl

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 23.—Minnesota Amusement Co., Paramount's northwest theatre subsidiary, is preparing to launch an expansion program throughout Minnesota, North and South Dakota and western Wisconsin, John J. Friedl, operating head, disclosed today.

Acquisition of theatres through outright purchase, partnership arrangements or leasing will be considered, it was said. Friedl has been looking over various possibilities in the territory preparatory to discussing deals which would further enlarge the circuit of 78 houses. It was stated that Minnesota Amusement would not enter any situation to the detriment of an independent exhibitor already established, but would negotiate only where present operators are interested in dis-

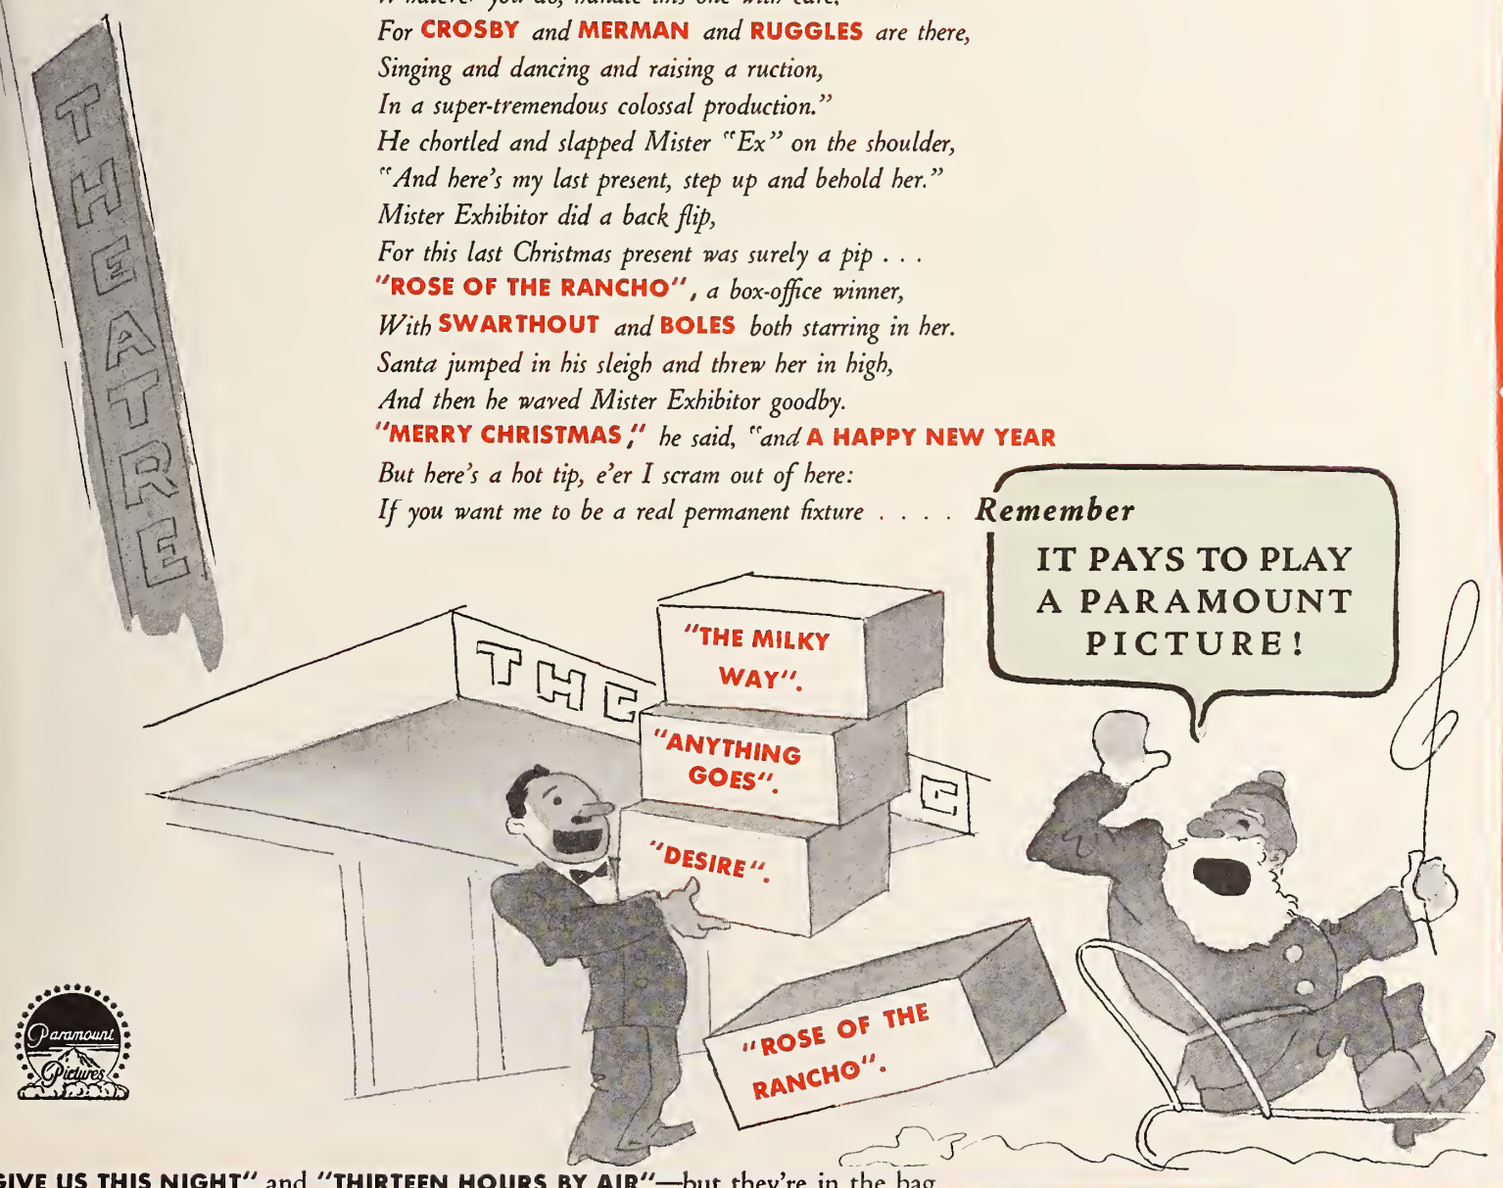
"AND THE SAME TO YOU!"

An Exhibitor's
NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS



(With apologies to an old time Script Writer named Moore)

'Twas the night before Christmas, in fact, pretty late,
And Mister Exhibitor sat counting the gate.
He was adding his cash with the greatest of care,
Hoping an extra two bits to find there . . .
When out in the foyer there arose such a clatter,
He opened the door to see what was the matter.
But the night was so foggy, so gloomy and dark, he Stepped back and switched on the lights on the marquee.
When what to his wondering eyes should appear,
But a high-powered sleigh and eight streamlined reindeer.
Mister Exhibitor widened his jaws:
"Am I going nuts, or are you Santa Claus? . . .
Either this is a gag that beats all creation,
Or I'm just a mug who don't know exploitation."
The little gink grinned like a Pepsodent ad.
"When you see what I've got, you'll think you are mad."
He reached in his bag, a convincingly neat trick,
And out came tumbling MARLENE DIETRICH . .
Then Santa, that jolly, pot-bellied old trouper,
Reached in again and hauled out GARY COOPER.
"There's a present which you and your fans will admire:
These two together in the smash hit 'DESIRE'"

Note: We ran out of rhymes before we got to "TRAIL OF THE LONESOME PINE"

Santa laughed till his buttons near popped from his vest,
Then he reached in the bag and out came MAE WEST.
"And here", he went on, "is a honey for you, Mae and McLaglen, the pic . . . 'KLONDIKE LOU'."
Then out from the back of the little red sleigh,
Santa pulled a big package marked "THE MILKY WAY".
He ripped off the wrappings and, you've guessed it, of course,
Out came HAROLD LLOYD with a peroxide blonde horse.
Then, smirking a bit like a sawed off old gnome,
Santa pulled out a package, "THE BRIDE COMES HOME" . . .
"Here", he said, "Pal, grab this in a hurry,
For inside you'll find COLBERT and MacMURRAY.
And already the critics are starting to laud it
As the best thing that's ever happened to Claudette."
Then Santa whooped like an opera-house tenor,
And out of his pack came tumbling JOE PENNER,
With OAKIE and LANGFORD and poker-faced SPARKS
Ready for all kinds of "COLLEGIATE" larks.
Santa looked at his ticker, and scratched his round nose . . .
"I must get along . . . but here's 'ANYTHING GOES' . . .
Whatever you do, handle this one with care,
For CROSBY and MERMAN and RUGGLES are there,
Singing and dancing and raising a ruction,
In a super-tremendous colossal production."
He chortled and slapped Mister "Ex" on the shoulder,
"And here's my last present, step up and behold her."
Mister Exhibitor did a back flip,
For this last Christmas present was surely a pip . . .
"ROSE OF THE RANCHO", a box-office winner,
With SWARTHOUT and BOLES both starring in her.
Santa jumped in his sleigh and threw her in high,
And then he waved Mister Exhibitor goodby.
"MERRY CHRISTMAS," he said, "and A HAPPY NEW YEAR
But here's a hot tip, e'er I scram out of here:
If you want me to be a real permanent fixture . . . .

Federal Staff Is Bolstered At St. Louis

in the criminal action, also are respondents in the civil proceedings. They are under subpoena, as are the 35 others, for the Jan. 6 hearing. It is understood that about 25 additional witnesses will be summoned by the Government the end of this week. It is reported the process servers will get busy on Friday.

In addition to the individuals to be brought here, the Government is reliably reported planning to subpoena a batch of new records and files held by Warners, Paramount and RKO. The new data will supplement that sought in the criminal action.

The reason for the new records is said to be for the purpose of bringing the equity action up to date. When the criminal suit was heard, only records for the three years to Jan. 11, 1935, were permissible because the indictments embraced this period. However, in the second suit no time limit is provided.

Federal Judge Joseph West Molyneaux of Minneapolis intends to start the equity hearing on Jan. 6, it is stated, and will not brook any delays, it is understood.

Rice Record Impressive

Rice has had a wide experience in anti-trust actions. Several years ago he successfully prosecuted 66 defendants in New York for violating the Sherman anti-trust law in connection with the poultry business. Of the 66, 20 were sent to jail. He also represented the Attorney General in an equity suit against the Sugar Institute, Inc., a case which lasted almost a year. He won a conviction in this instance. Rice represented the Government in the famous Jacob Schechter poultry case which resulted in the dissolution of the NRA.

In the poultry-NRA action, Rice was successful in trial court and was sustained by the Circuit Court of Appeals but subsequently the Supreme Court reversed the lower courts.

An interesting sidelight in Rice's entrance in the preliminary injunction proceeding is that he will again oppose Frederick H. Wood, who was counsel for Schechter in the poultry-NRA case. Wood is co-counsel with ex-Senator James A. Reed for Warners in the local matter.

Beverage Giveaways Cause Chicago Stir

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—Beverage giveaways in theatres have caused varied reactions here, with clergymen, women's clubs and others protesting. The excitement began when the Shakespeare inserted an ad in a South Side community paper, informing patrons a bottle of brandy would be given to some purchasers of tickets and free beer would be provided for others.

Coming at a time when theatres are making all kinds of church and welfare tieups for children's shows, gathering of toys and provisions and other holiday moves, it caused a sensation.

The Ministerial Ass'n. immediately sent a protest to the paper.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Professional Soldier"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 23.—This is a 1935 fairy tale, its technique combining the Mack Sennett fun-making theory with the éclat of a Lubitsch production. It looks to be audience entertainment that will have audiences, particularly kids, volubly demonstrating their appreciation. Besides the worth of the lead names it has plenty in the way of a novel story idea, unusual backgrounds and unique situations to inspire colorful and effective exploitation. Some idea of what to expect may be gleaned from the facts that a pair of Rolls Royces are used in a chase sequence and the only excitement stimulators missing are a horse and battleship.

The locale is a mythical kingdom with the U. S. Marine Corps hymn its chief musical accompaniment. Victor McLaglen, professional soldier, is hired to kidnap the monarch as part of a revolution and plot. He finds the king to be Freddie Bartholomew, an alert youngster who thinks McLaglen and his pal, Michael Whelan, are Dillinger and "Baby Face" Nelson. Going through with the plot, which rings in an inconsequential romance between Whelan and Gloria Stuart, McLaglen's problem is handling Bartholomew, who, dressed in a football suit, wants to play baseball in cricket style. Getting the youngster to believe his tall tales of soldierly bravado, he makes good on the latter, when, escaping from jail in true low comedy style, he carries a flaming machine gun to wipe out most of the rebel army and captures the rest. He restores the king to his throne and another medal is added to the ton he already wears. The band plays "From the Halls of Montezuma."

The picture is played for smart semi-burlesque amusement in that spirit. McLaglen and Bartholomew turn in swell performances. They are ably supported by Constance Collier, Whelan, Stuart, C. Henry Gordon, Lumsden Hare and Walter Kingsford. It is based on the Damon Runyon yarn. The Gene Fowler, Howard Smith screen play is a deft mixture of whimsey, comedy, drama action and hilarity. Tay Garnett's direction effectively transfers these qualities to the screen.

Production Code Seal No. 1,778. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

"The King of Burlesque"

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 23.—Twentieth Century-Fox is hitting a handsome stride in musicals with its second tuneful film ringing a positive bong on the well-known bell.

Not satisfied with the sure profits of the dime trade in cheap burlesque, producer Warner Baxter risks his fortune in one mad gamble and moves to Broadway over the protests of his partner, Jack Oakie, and with the encouragement of soubrette, Alice Faye. Baxter, as the undisputed king of lavish musicals, is ebullient with success and self-satisfaction until he meets socialite, Mona Barrie, who is reduced to some very lavish rags from her former riches.

Then wild yearnings for the proper people stir his heart of gold and he sends Miss Barrie's fiance, Charles Quigley, to Italy to study singing. Miss Barrie, hard pressed for money, consents to a marriage with the king of burlesque and straightaway inspires him to stage three arty flops and leaves him when he is ready to draw from the breadline. Miss Faye takes Gregory Ratoff out of a sandwich board, pays him a dollar a day to pose as a millionaire "angel" with her bankroll and Baxter makes his comeback with true love triumphing and the audience glad of it.

Oakie was never funnier than in his Jolson imitation and crying jag scene. Arline Judge, determined on marriage, is a perfect foil for the rapid-fire buffoonery; Baxter makes the extremes of the mood count; Miss Faye scores in the song and dance numbers; Miss Barrie is charming and convincing as the social registerite, and Dixie Dunbar draws individual applause in a dance. Deserving high praise in the supporting cast are Herbert Mundin, "Fats" Waller, Nick Long, Jr., Kenny Baker, the Paxton Sisters, Shaw and Lee, Keye Luke and Gareth Joplin.

James Seymour adapted the screenplay from a story by Vina Delmar. Gene Markey and Harry Tugend contributed the dialogue that is generously packed with laughs; Sidney Lanfield's direction gets the full value from the comedy and Sammy Lee's dance numbers are impressive.

Associate producer Kenneth MacGowan is responsible for one king that can take a full house.

Production Code Seal No. 1,777. Running time, 87 minutes. "G."

Short Subjects

"Lucky Stars"

(Paramount)

Pictured in threetone Technicolor the camera has captured a series of pastel-hued landscapes of the South. Presented in their natural shades, the various settings are breath-taking and awe-inspiring. Also included are scenes of a Fox hunt which relieves the tension of awed patrons. Unquestionably, a soothing tonic for any program. Highly recommended. It is classified as a Paramount Variety. Production Code Seal, 1,602. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Hunter's Paradise"

(Columbia)

The killing of a tiger, the slaughter of game birds, a roundup of kangaroo in Australia for future shoes and finally the roping of a mountain lion out west, most of which have been seen in newsreel shots, lend little of a new quality to this effort. There is a novel shot of a Seminole Indian capturing an alligator barehand but on the whole it appears rather bloodthirsty. Production Code Seal No. 1,672. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

Missouri October Sale Tax $866,000

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 23.—The Missouri one per cent sales tax brought in $866,000 for October, approximately $37,000 more than in September, the first month.

Missouri, in spite of the fact the sales tax is living up to what its proponents promised for it, is still in the financial woods. The half million a month relief load, the one-third of all general revenue going to the schools, etc., give rise to the conviction, according to Forrest Smith, state auditor, that the state will barely break even by the end of the year.

Expansion by Minnesota Is Being Planned

cussing a sale, lease or partnership deal with the circuit. Adequate finances have already been assured to underwrite any expansion move that may be made, according to Friedl.

"We are in the market for theatres," he said, "because we feel the time propitious for extending our activities. No 'aggression' against established exhibitors is contemplated, nor will any be tolerated," he said.

In addition, a number of houses of the circuit are to be improved. The Grand, Minneapolis, second run, will be closed Jan. 1 for remodeling. Other houses improved recently include the Miner, St. Cloud, Minn.; Orpheum, Minot, N. D.; Oklare, Eau Claire, Wis.; Avon, Winona, Minn.; Empress, Rochester, Minn., and Time, Mankato, Minn.

Y. Frank Freeman, Paramount vice-president in charge of the company's theatre department, said yesterday that he knew of no planned expansion program for Minnesota Amusement Co., but that he assumed that if desirable theatres were available on the right basis deals would probably be made by the circuit from time to time.

"The only activity involving the circuit that I know of now," Freeman said, "involves remodeling of some of the theatres."

health. Former NRA Administrator Hugh S. Johnson is reported to have been contacted by letter in the west and has not been heard from as yet. A third possibility is George Z. Medalie, former U. S. District Attorney of New York. With the post will go a salary, it is understood.

The purpose of retaining a prominent figure is believed to be preliminary to a move on the part of the independents to wage a battle with the circuits over double bills, games and admission prices. Unaffiliated exhibitors in the local area are reported incensed no end since major circuits instituted duals all days of the week in first runs and in addition to cash giveaways via games.

Garsson said that the Sabath committee would continue its current study of film company reorganizations in closed hearings and that it was unlikely that any open hearings would be held until after Jan. 1. The committee's current studies include the reorganizations of Paramount Publix and its New England theatre subsidiaries, RKO, Pathe and the Twentieth Century-Fox financial reorganization.

New Rialto Opens Tomorrow

The New Rialto, on the corner of 42nd St. and 7th Ave., opens tomorrow on the site of the old Rialto. The opening attraction will be Frank Buck's latest, "Fang and Claw." Arthur L. Mayer will operate the new house as he did the old.

Modernistic in design both outside and inside, the theatre's color scheme is blue gold and terra-cotta. An intimate house with no balcony, it seats 750. Smoking is to be permitted throughout the house. It has the most modern equipment, including the latest in sight lines and acoustics. An innovation is an electric seat indicator, which may be seen upon entering the house. There will be an additional box office and entrance on the subway floor below.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Song of the Saddle"

(First National)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 23.—Here is a western to delight the fans who like villains thoroughly bad, heroes triumphantly good and plenty of thrilling riding. For good measure, there are two catchy melodies for Dick Foran to warble.

The tale starts with Foran's father shot before his eyes by a couple of evil hirelings in the pay of the local bad man. George Ernest, as the boy, and Bonita Granville, as his childhood sweetheart, score in these introductory scenes which set the stage for the romance between Foran and Alma Lloyd. While growing up, Foran treasures the determination to avenge his father's death and eventually does so after plenty of the hard riding, near disaster, double-crossing and unmitigated wickedness so essential to a good western.

Charles Middleton, Eddie Schubert and Monty Montague are the double-dyed villains. Julian Rivero, Pat West and Bob Osborne play Foran's loyal pals, and good in supporting parts are Kenneth Harlan, Victor Potel, Addison Richards, William Desmond, James Farley and Myrtle Stedman. Louis King's direction keeps the routine tale moving at a good speed. William Jacobs wrote the story and screenplay. M. K. Jerome and Jack Scholl did music and lyrics for "Vengeance" and "Under the Western Skies," both excellent. Bryan Foy produced and made a very good showing for a film in the low cost bracket.

Production Code Seal No. 1,557. Running time, 63 minutes. "G".

Wanger Gets a Musical

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 23.—Walter Wanger has closed a deal with Jack Robbins for the screen rights to the musical comedy, "The More the Merrier." The production has not had a legitimate stage run.

No cast or director have been set. Camera work will not get under way for some time, due to precedence of other productions.

John Hamrick and Frank L. Newman, Sr., directed the affair, and Al Finkelstein and Roy Brown of Evergreen's Portland office were among the theatre executives present.

Film Row men in attendance included Jack Burke, Guy Maxey, Herndon Edwards, A. M. Goldstein, Harold Harden, Ed Lamb, L. J. McGinley, Guy Navarre, J. T. Sheffield, L. A. Samuelson, Ed Walton, Neal Walton, Butch Wingham and the bookers from the exchanges represented by the above executives.

Fox Gets Leave for Appeal on Subpoena

a subpoena served on him some time ago by the Capital Co. of San Francisco, which holds an unsatisfied $287,000 judgment against him for liability on the lease of the Fox, San Francisco. Attorneys for the Capital Co. have been endeavoring to question Fox on his financial status as a result of his alleged inability to satisfy the judgment. The former film head is said to be under the care of physicians at Toronto. Judge Bondy ruled last week that Fox could purge himself of the contempt charge by submitting to examination by Standard's attorneys on Jan. 6 at Toronto or some other mutually agreeable location.

Edward Golden to Cohen—Batcheller

Invincible sales have been handled by the First Division sales staff alone. Golden's appointment will not alter the existing distribution arrangements with First Division, but will add a direct sales effort applied exclusively to the product of the two companies, augmenting that supplied by First Division, it was said. The two companies release between 20 and 24 features annually.

Golden had been sales head of Monogram Pictures since its founding and continued in that capacity when the company was merged with other independent producers to form Republic Pictures late last winter.

Greatest 12 Months Stir Hope—Feist

By FELIX F. FEIST
Gen'l Sales M'g'r, M-G-M

The greatest 12 months in production have come during a period of material improvement in business conditions. Repeatedly during this period theatre attendance records have been broken. Not infrequently, grosses have attained new highs.

The history of production has been a record of steady betterment through the years; no recession would reasonably be expected in the next 12 months, even if elaborate plans did not already indicate an even more successful season than any which the producers have yet initiated. Nothing stands in the way of this except the nuisance demands for second features.

The upturn in business in 1935, while not spectacular, has been of international scope and sufficiently definite to manifest itself even in remote places and slowly responding lines of commercial activity. There is steadily accumulating evidence of restoration of confidence, of willingness to spend money more freely and of increasing ability to spend.

The door is being opened for the ushering out of Bank Nights, china nights and games of chance and the entrance of admission prices better suited to the superlative quality of the entertainment which is being offered. Production is steadily forcing a return by the theatre to the business of selling and exhibiting motion pictures.

Cocalis Issues Denial

Sam Cocalis declares that he is not interested in any theatre site near Laurence Bolognino's Ogden in the Bronx and never has been.

If he should choose to expand, however, he says, he can see no reason why any of his competitors should get excited about it, as he will carry out his plans without consulting any of them.

"I was decent enough to call up Frisch & Rinzler and tell them the owner of a Brooklyn property had offered it to me," Cocalis said, "and they apparently called a meeting to make threats. Hereafter I will carry out any plans I have without consulting anybody."

Seaford House Burns

WILMINGTON, Dec. 23.—The Palace at Seaford, Del., was destroyed by fire early this morning at an estimated loss of $50,000. The blaze was discovered near the projection booth.

The house was renovated about two years ago. It was owned by the Seaford Investment Co. and operated by M. J. McDermott and Elisha Ryan.

Gains Stir Up New Optimism, Says Balaban

By JOHN BALABAN
Chicago Theatre Operator

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—In predicting what we anticipate in 1936, I am happy to inform you that our organization is quite optimistic. We are finishing the year 1935 with a substantial improvement over 1934. Our plans for 1936 include an appropriation of approximately $300,000, which will be spent by the Balaban & Katz and Great States circuits for the reopening of some theatres which have been closed for several years, as well as the rehabilitating and modernizing of a good many of our properties. You realize, of course, that we could not undertake such a tremendous expenditure without feeling reasonably optimistic. We are also building at this time a new theatre in Aurora, Ill., one in Edwardsville, Ill., and the new "Will Rogers" Theatre in Chicago.

Merchants throughout the state report healthy business. Factories are reopening, unemployed are returning to work and rehabilitating and modernizing of other businesses is taking place as it is in our industry.

The number of outstanding box-office pictures that were produced during the year just ending are as well known to you as they are to me, and in attempting to anticipate and make a prediction for the coming year, I must naturally assume that the studios will do their share again in delivering to us a reasonable number of outstanding box-office successes.

Warner to Build 6 Washington Houses

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—Harry M. Warner announced over the week end that Warners will build six new houses here at a cost of $4,000,000. Construction will begin in six weeks. This will make a total of 20 theatres in the Washington area to be operated by the company.

Plan Bank Night Test

BOSTON, Dec. 23.—Bank Night is to be allowed to operate here until a court test has been made on both the state and city anti-lottery laws as a result of a petition of George S. Ryan, attorney, to Mayor Frederick Mansfield. One exhibitor is to be arrested to get the case into court.

Olsen Big in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 23.—Olsen & Johnson, appearing at the Ambassador, upped the average at the house last week by $3,000, garnering $13,000 for the week.

Report Trailers Out

Chicago, Dec. 23.—A number of suburban theatres are understood to have dropped the use of trailers because of complaints by patrons that too much time is taken up by announcements of coming attractions.

New High for Films on Way, Asserts Sears

More people will see pictures during the next year than during any similar period in the history of the industry, says Gradwell Sears, in charge of western and southern sales for Warners.

This will be due largely to the excellence of pictures, he says.

"The united effort of all producers toward better product," Sears asserts, "obligates all distributors to see that pictures reach the public ably sold and makes it necessary for them to see that relations with exhibitors and the public, newspapers and centers of influence, should be of the best to build a solid foundation for future films."

"Mutiny" Holds Up 5th Portland Week

PORTLAND, Dec. 23.—"Mutiny on the Bounty," held for a fifth week at United Artists, secured another $6,000. This was over par by $1,000.

"Whipsaw" at the Broadway also proved strong draw with $6,000, over normal by $1,000. "In Person," featured at the Orpheum, meant $6,000 for the box-office, over the usual by $1,000.

Ideal Oregon weather was a factor in a better than normal week.

Total first run business was $28,000. Average is $24,700.

Estimated takings for the week ending Dec. 14:

"WHIPSAW" (M-G-M)
BROADWAY—(1,912), 25c-35c-40c, 7 days. Gross: $6,000. (Average, $5,000)

Building Upon Gains Coming, Says Laemmle

money people seem to have to buy automobiles. His business is fully 100 per cent over last year. This man has delivered in the last two months more new cars than he did in nine months in 1935. When people can buy automobiles they can buy entertainment and they are doing that and they will continue to do it more and more. In spite of the fact that this is going to be a very hectic political year, politics has never had any serious effect on attendance. It has been my experience that election years have increased interest in the theatre rather than the reverse.

If there is any particular trend, I think it will be toward biographical and historical films. I am sure that every company will try out subjects of this character next year.

Personally, I fear that the music cycle is on the wane, which is a pity because the proper use of music in films is one of the most natural adjuncts to the moving picture and 1935 seemed to indicate that we were just acquiring a new appreciation and realization of this fact.

"Mutiny" $11,500 Montreal Holdover

MONTREAL, Dec 23. — Pre-Christmas distraction did not disturb "Mutiny on the Bounty," heldover attraction at the Palace, which rang up $11,500 during the week ending Dec. 14 after a first week of $15,000. The feature was held over for a third week and is continuing until Christmas Day.

"Stars Over Broadway" and "Frisco Kid" proved a good brace at the Capitol, the take being $10,000, or better than par. Loew's grossed the same total on a combo bill which had "Two Sinners" as Picture No. 1. "A Feather in Her Hat" headed the screen fare at the Princess for a result of $6,000.

Chief opposition to the film theatres is the new French revue at the Stella, musical stock at His Majesty's and either a professional or amateur hockey feature at the Forum each night.

Total first run business was $40,500. Average is $41,500.

Estimated takings for the week ending Dec. 14:

"STARS OVER BROADWAY" (W.B.)

Depinet Looks For Pictures Topping Past

Box Offices to Reflect Gains in Business

By NED E. DEPINET
President, RKO Dist. Corp.

There are two things this industry can never do without—shows and showmanship. They are not separate entities, but as dependent upon one another as Siamese twins. Each year productions grow better and with them a more critical public. Each year showmanship must grow keener in order to provide the resources with which producers may make these constantly demanded better shows. Pictures must pay their own way, they must be profitable to exhibitor and producer. You can't cut

Kent Denies Deal Is Set; Admittedly On

Sidney R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox, on Tuesday denied MOTION PICTURE DAILY's Hollywood story in that issue which stated the company's deal for purchase of the Chase Bank's interest in National Theatres Corp. had been closed, thereby making Twentieth Century-Fox 100 per cent owner of the theatre corporation. He also denied through Felix Jenkins, general counsel of the company, that Lawrence Stern of Stern and Co. of Chicago is acting for the purchaser.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 25.—The understanding here was on Monday evening that the Twentieth Century-Fox deal with Chase for National Theatres was set, only lacking the usual ironing out of minor details. The story was a general release from the studio

Defense Will Ask Dismissal At St. Louis

Move to Be Based Upon Legal Precedent

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 25.—Defense counsel in the Government's equity suit against Warners, Paramount and RKO on an application for a temporary injunction for allegedly refusing to service F. & M.'s three theatres here will move for dismissal of the action when it comes up for hearing before Federal Judge Joseph W. Molyneaux on Jan. 6, it is learned.

George S. Leisure, New York counsel, who, with Jacob M. Lashly, local attorney, represented Ned E. Depinet and RKO Distributing Corp. in the criminal proceedings, made a request for dismissal before Federal Judge George H. Moore on Nov. 12, the day after a jury acquitted all indicted parties in the misdemeanor case. Judge Moore at the time held the matter in abeyance.

With the selection of Judge Moly-

St. Louis Case May Last 6 to 8 Weeks

Hearing on the Government's petition for a preliminary injunction against Paramount, RKO and Warners for allegedly withholding first run films from the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central in St. Louis is expected to last from six to eight weeks, according to legal opinion.

This estimate is based on the intention of the Government to go over the same ground covered in the criminal action in addition to the period from Jan. 11, 1935, the day indictments were handed down, to the present date.

Theatre Men Fight WPA Project Here

Protests have been registered by the League of New York Theatres and Theatrical Protective Union No. 1 against the proposed Federal theatre project here. It is understood that the WPA has virtually completed arrangements for leasing the Manhattan, Broadway and 43rd St.

Dr. Henry Moskowitz, executive adviser to the league, has written to Frank Gillmore asking Equity to bar its members from the proposed theatre, but Gillmore says the Equity Council has taken no action as yet.

Schenck Bullish

Nicholas M. Schenck

"I feel that the notable recent increase in picture patronage is primarily a reflection of superior product rather than anything else," declared Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, Inc., and M-G-M on Tuesday. "A good many pictures have been produced during 1935 of which the industry may be proud. I believe the outlook for 1936, both from the standpoint of production and patronage, is most promising."

Canada Suits On Copyright Go Under Ban

TORONTO, Dec. 25.—The Canadian Performing Rights Society cannot take legal action against licensees or others for alleged infringement of musical copyright or for alleged violation of license agreement until Feb. 28, according to an order issued by Fernand Rinfret, Dominion Secretary of State, which prohibits the society from entering legal prosecutions.

The restraining order is linked with the recent judgment of Judge James Parker, the commissioner appointed by the Federal Government to investigate complaints from theatres that the society's fees were excessive. His decision was that the tariff of 20 cents per seat per year for theatres, as introduced by the society last January. was excessive and exhibitors are not required to pay more than the previous rate of 10 cents per seat before Feb. 28, under the latest Government order, or until a possible order-in-council is put through by the Dominion Government before that date to settle the issue.

It is understood that Secretary of State Rinfret is studying the Parker report with a view to bringing down amendments to the Copyright Act at the next session of Parliament.

RKO Creditor Claims Cut to $2,618,198

Stipulations Subject to Approval of Court

Seventeen creditors' claims against RKO, which were filed at a total of $3,212,283 will be allowed at a total of $2,618,198 under stipulations entered into between the creditors and Irving Trust Co., trustee in reorganization for RKO.

The stipulations are subject to Federal court action after a hearing to be held before Judge William Bondy on Jan. 13, at which any opposition to the allowance of the claims by other creditors of RKO will be heard.

Among the stipulations proposed for allowance is the claim of S. L. (Roxy) Rothafel for alleged breach by RKO of a personal service contract. Roxy's claim was filed at $231,500, plus the value of 10,000 shares of RKO Class A stock, and is proposed for allowance at $179,271. Another large claim proposed for al-

The new five-year music license agreements with Ascap, which the society was recently authorized by its board of directors to offer to exhibitors, will be available for the many whose current contracts with Ascap expire Jan. 1, it was stated on Tuesday.

The new long term agreements were authorized following the renewal of all publisher memberships in Ascap, with the exception of the Warner companies, for a five-year period. The pacts are cancellable on one year's notice and will be made available to

AFA Dickering for Standard Pact Use

Negotiations have been started by the American Federation of Actors with vaudeville and night club bookers to get them to use the new A.F.A. standard contract. The pact has been brought up to date by Ralph Whitehead, and has a clause specifying that the artist is "a member in good standing."

Bookers accepting the contract will have to restrict themselves to A.F.A. members and the A.F.A. in turn will protect bookers against contract jumping.

Starting New Year's Day, the Fox, Missouri and Ambassador will return to a matinee change at 7:50 P. M., instead of 6 P. M. Last fall subsequent runs agreed with F. & M. to hike admissions if the change in matinee time should be made, but the plan was never carried out by the unaffiliated exhibitors. As a result, F. & M. is going back to its former operating schedule. The Fox and Ambassador change at 7:30 will be from 35 cents to 55 cents, while the Missouri will be from 25 cents to 40 cents. The Grand Central will not be reopened, due to lack of quality product.

Chicago Not Cutting Trailers, Says N. S. S.

National Screen Service on Tuesday took exception to a Chicago dispatch reporting a number of suburban theatres there had dropped trailers because of complaints by patrons that too much time had been taken up by announcements of coming attractions and declared its books would show almost complete representation for its trailers in that city.

"There have been objections raised in Chicago and elsewhere, however, to the so-called 10-foot strips made by local trailer companies and laboratories which have been used in some instances in addition to the regular trailer," an executive stated. "If any Chicago theatres, therefore, are dropping trailers, it is this which they are cutting out."

Xmas Day this year was notable, among other things, for the pre-release openings of 'CAPTAIN BLOOD', newest Cosmopolitan Production from Warner Bros. Portraying perfectly the swashbuckling pirate of Rafael Sabatini's great novel is dashing ERROL FLYNN, who threatens to become, according to this paper's reviewer, 'another matinee idol'. Other notables in the cast of this 'big time show superlatively directed by Michael Curtiz' are Olivia De Havilland, Lionel Atwill, Basil Rathbone, Ross Alexander, Guy Kibbee. exhibitors as rapidly as current contracts expire. While offering no reduction in the prevailing music licensing rates the new contracts do guarantee exhibitors holding them against further increases in the rates during the five-year period.

Little reaction for or against the new pacts has been in evidence in exhibitor circles, even among exhibitor leaders who had hoped for a reduction in the Ascap rates as a result of the withdrawal of the Warner music from the society's catalogue Jan. 1. The attitude toward the new pacts appears to be that they may offer exhibitors some slight benefit and probably no new inconvenience.

Indications are that no organized campaign for reductions in the Ascap rates will be made by exhibitors, the more or less general feeling being that the music licensing fee for theatres is wholly unjustified and action in opposition to it should be confined to its complete elimination rather than to efforts to obtain a partial reduction.

Defense Will Ask Dismissal At St. Louis

neaux by Presiding Justice Kimbrough Stone of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, RKO has made public its intention to query the legal status of the civil case in view of the previous not guilty verdicts. Paramount and Warner counsel will join in the move later, it is said.

RKO bases its request on the citation in another case where a Federal Judge dismissed a suit pending for a temporary injunction after a jury unanimously had voted for acquittal. Additional citations will be introduced by joint counsel for the defense on Jan. 6, it is understood.

Russell Hardy, prosecuting attorney, plans to put the same witnesses who were called in the criminal action on the stand again in the civil suit. He also intends to call a number of other witnesses, it is said. The Government intends to try the equity hearing as a new case.

Counsel for Warners, Paramount and RKO, in seeking the dismissal, will hold that the testimony for the equity case will be a repetition of the criminal trial. However, the Government intends to go beyond Jan. 11, 1935, the date covered in the indictments.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"No More Yesterdays"

(Columbia)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 25.—A serious problem drama, this is essentially a woman's picture. Impressive in character, slow moving dialogue is the interpretive medium as the action is noticeably played down. Told both as a straight story and in retrospect, this formula show aims at sympathy for the leading player.

With her lover killed in the war, Ruth Chatterton, is compelled by her father, Lionel Atwill, to raise the child, Marian Marsh, as her sister. Miss Marsh, grown up, is about to marry Robert Allen when she becomes infatuated with Otto Kruger. Although Atwill favors the match, Miss Chatterton endeavors to frustrate it, only to have Kruger attracted to her. Atwill, desperate as he sees this interference with his plans, has Miss Chatterton committed as a mental patient. The climax adjusts everything as Kruger effects Miss Chatterton's release, marries her, and the daughter, Miss Marsh, returns to Allen.

Convincingly acted in the spirit of the story, the picture's appeal is directed mainly at the more serious-minded audience contingents. Kruger's and Miss Chatterton's fans may find much to please them. General audiences, however, are apt to find the picture too deep and complicated to hold sustained interest. It is a Schulberg production. The story is an original screenplay by Joseph Anthony directed by Marion Gering.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"The Judgment Book"

(Beaumont)

A story of the lawless west, of a group of cattle owners who ruthlessly dominate a town and its ranchers, this independent production tells of the small town editor who saves the town from the ranchers. Featuring Conway Tearle as the only possible selling name in the cast, the picture may be satisfactory as the second half of a double feature program, since it has at least a portion of the expected western action.

With Bernadine Hayes, Tearle handles the comparatively minor romantic aspect of the picture, which is from an original magazine story. Tearle comes into the town after the death of his uncle, who had willed him the newspaper. He soon learns that the paper as well as the town has been operated at the dictation of the rancher group, and when they atempt to intimidate him he determines to clean them out. Miss Hayes is the daughter of the old printer whom Tearle finds working for the paper.

With their help, and using the assistance of other citizens who had been terrorized by the ranchers, Tearle eventually succeeds in clearing the town, the film ending with the completion of the romance between Tearle and Miss Hayes.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Variety Club Chatter

Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, Dec. 25.—More than 1,000 children from local institutions were guests of the club's annual Christmas party in the Hall of Mirrors of the Netherland Plaza. In cases where it was impossible for children to attend, gifts were sent to them.

BLACKSTONE, magician, appearing at the RKO Shubert, entertained the juvenile guests. There were 12 reels of cartoons and comedies, and a short vaudeville show, after which presents and candy were distributed from a huge Christmas tree. Use of the Hall of Mirrors, transportation, and, in fact, everything entering into the arrangement, were donated. HARRY J. ("POP") WESSEL, president-elect of the club, was in charge.

BILLY BEIN, on the sick list for several days, has recovered sufficiently to again circulate about the club.

JOHN A. SCHWALM was a recent visitor at Columbus, combining business with pleasure.

Des Moines

DES MOINES, Dec. 25.—Des Moines Variety Club will entertain hundreds of shut-ins the morning of Dec. 27 at a Christmas film party at the Paramount. G. RALPH BRANTON is director of the program which is to include stage and screen presentations, candy, fruit and surprises.

More than 200 automobiles will be provided to bring the guests, also street car transportation for those able to come by that route. Names are being obtained from institutions, relief agencies and through telephone calls.

Serving with BRANTON on the committee are W. E. BANFORD, L. MCKECHNEAY, LOU LEVY, HARRY HIERSTEINER and CHICK FRIEDMAN.

Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 25.—The Fox orchestra furnished entertainment, W. A. SMITH, chief of Missouri and Kansas G-men, furnished the education, and everyone bought their own lunch. L. J. "STENTORIAN" M'CARTHY banged the gavel, while SAM NASTER and JOHN MUCHMORE picked up the splinters.

Personnel of the orchestra was all-FOX: MORRILL MOORE, his son, GENE MOORE, SAM NASTER, ROY CATO, JERRY BAKER and BILL GALL.

G-Men—SMITH called them "investigators"—come from all walks of life, Variety members were told; and some of them are even former theatre managers. A film man (name withheld) with a worried frown on his face, asked SMITH what chance there was of the fingerprints of two persons being identical. SMITH reassured him: one chance in 1,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000.

Kings for Dec. 21 were: FRANK RITTER, A. A. RENFRO, CLARENCE SCHULTZ; Dec. 23: J. C. TAYLOR, E. C. RHODEN, and J. C. NICHOLS; Dec. 28: CHARLES SHAFER, MAX ROTH, ED SHANBERG, and for Dec. 30: JIM STATES, SAM STALL and TOMMY THOMPSON.

Variety Club's tieup with the Kansas City Star on the Milk Fund bowling tournament is resulting in reams of publicity. Besides news stories, the Star each day carries a list of all prizes offered.

FRANK HENSLER of M-G-M and ERNIE MEHL of the Star are handling the tournament.

CHARLES ESTERLY, CURLY WILSON, BUDDY HARRIS and BILL FORMBY are now members of the club.

Omaha

OMAHA, Dec. 25.—The midnight to 3 A.M. program over WOW for the Variety Club Christmas funds brought in more than $200, CHARLES SCHLAIFER, chairman of the drive, has estimated.

ORVILLE RENNIE, assistant manager of the Omaha, a former vaudeville artist, was program arranger and had JOAN OLSON, orchestra singer, as headliner. A number of other acts were included.

Variety Club will open charge accounts in any specified department store for furnishing clothing to all of the 40 inmates of the Hattie B. Munroe Home for Crippled Children. The offer is for a year, but will probably become a permanent gift of the club.

In addition, Variety will furnish the present empty playroom with toys and gadgets. This, too, will become a permanent chore for the club.

The foregoing announcement came on the heels of preparations for a huge Christmas ball, held at the Paxton Hotel. The proceeds went to the World-Herald Good Fellow fund, and the Bee-News free shoe fund.

CHARLES SCHLAIFER, advertising manager for A. H. Blank theatres, was general chairman. He estimates that about $2,000 was raised through the ball. The hotel donated the use of its main ballroom and Paul Christensen's orchestra.

Assisting SCHLAIFER in the program were EVERT CUMMINGS, BILL MISKELL, TED EMERSON, JOHN GILLIN, EDDIE SHAFTON, WALTER GREEN and REGINA MOLSEED.

Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 25.—More than 500 baskets of food were distributed to the poor the three days preceding Christmas by Tent No. 13, Chief Barker Earle Sweigert says.

JAMES P. CLARK has been named chief barker of Tent 13 for 1936.

Other officers are: First assistant chief barker, TED SCHLANGER; second assistant, Doc LEVY; secretary, JACK GREENBERG; treasurer, BEN AMSTERDAM.

Officers will be installed Jan. 12 at a dinner.

OSCAR NEUFELD has resigned.

A new record was set by the Christmas Fund Committee, under AMSTERDAM's direction. All theatremen in the territory worked with him to supply food, cans of groceries, etc., for the needy.

"Person" and Show Are Fair In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 25.—A combination of bad weather and the usual pre-Christmas slump sent grosses down. Not one house came anywhere near average. The Stanley made the best showing with "In Person" and Phil Spitalny's girls' band. The take was $16,500.

None of the others, however, had anything to cheer about. The Penn got off to a fair start with "The Frisco Kid," but business fell off during the last half and the gross slipped to around $10,000. "Mr. Hobo" managed to hold up the Alvin to $4,000, which happens to be a couple of hundred dollars better than this house has been doing with double features of late. The Davis continued to take it on the chin, with "Kind Lady" and "Two Fisted" unable to better $3,000, while "Annie Oakley" at the Warner wound up just under $4,000.

Total first run grosses were $37,400. Average is $44,500.

Estimated takings for the week ending Dec. 19:

The INVISIBLE RAY

Says Product Will Reflect Public Pulse

By DARRYL F. ZANUCK
Vice-President of Production, 20th Century-Fox

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 25.—In the year confronting us to a greater extent than ever before the production of pictures will be attuned to the beat of the public pulse.

Life has never been more interesting—no day passes without its momentous event. In the headlines of every edition of the newspapers we meet the individual drama of great triumph and cruel tragedy. Accordingly, as the world goes in 1936, so, in my opinion, will pictures go. At the same time an interest is being developed in the historical field of the American scene.

This, I believe, is one of the definite trends of the new year. America, through the eyes of the film camera, is becoming a topic of interest to Americans and, for that matter, to the rest of the world. As a matter of fact, Europe has been more forward than our own country in perceiving an interest in the outstanding characters and events of our past; many of the most interesting biographies and accounts of this country's past have been written by foreign authors.

The search for and development of new players is also one of the vital problems of the coming year. As in the past, progress in this direction will be made.

Coast Theatres Shift

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 25.—Changes on the theatre map continue.

C. B. Sturdivant has bought the Glendale in Glendale, Ariz. Burgess Conley, who operates the Crystal in Porterville, Cal., opened the Rialto in East Bakersfield last week. J. J. Franklin, new circuit head, opened his new Kings in Honolulu a week ago. Wade Loudermilk has leased the Roxy in Buckeye, Ariz., from the builder, Harry Nace.

The Long Beach Building and Loan Ass'n. has taken over the Peralta and all film contracts from Carl W. Young.

Hoffberg Closes Deal

J. H. Hoffberg Co. has closed a deal with Paragon Film Exchanges, Inc., Atlanta, for distribution of Buster Keaton's "An Old Spanish Custom" in that territory. Contracts also have been set with Sack Amusement Enterprises for Texas, Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico, and with Hollywood Film Exchange for Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia and Virginia.

Plaudits

Providence, Dec. 25.—Lawrence Tibbett scored such a personal hit here in "Metropolitan" that audiences at all performances broke into applause at the conclusion of his every vocal effort. When one considers that Providence has been called a "frigid town" this is praise.

"Mutiny" Tops Philadelphia in Second Run

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 25.—"Mutiny on the Bounty" again proved itself to be one of the biggest draws of the season, getting $6,000 for its first week of its second downtown engagement at the Arcadia. With the exception of "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo," which upped the Fox average a trifle with $15,000, the rest of the town was low. Competition from department stores was reflected in the grosses.

The Stanley had a hard time with its musical films, "Millions in the Air" limping to $10,000. "Coronado" followed. It was yanked after four days to an estimated gross of $4,500. "The Bride Comes Home," originally slated for a Christmas Day opening, started at the Stanley Sunday, the first regular opening of a film on Sunday in this city.

Avoid Errors Of Past, David Loew Suggests

By DAVID L. LOEW
Vice-President, Roach Studios

We all suffer from the other persons' mistakes in this business, and if the people in this industry will learn from their experiences and be careful to make fewer mistakes, so that they will be in a better position to take advantage of the opportunities that are sure to present themselves this coming year, we of the industry will have a boom year.

"Cafe," Show Pull $2,250 in Lincoln

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 25.—The combination vaudeville and film bill at the Orpheum last week was the only entertainment on the row to survive the bear market at the box-offices. Depinet Looks For Pictures Topping Past off the roots of a tree and expect it to bear fruit.

I look for 1936 to bring forth more big attractions than any year of motion picture history.

General business conditions throughout the country are vastly improved and this improvement is being reflected in box-office grosses. There is a definite spirit of optimism everywhere and all industry is finding new courage to build, reconstruct depression-torn organizations and expand markets.

The industry will naturally benefit by increased employment and the greater purchasing power of the public. But beyond this normal and inevitable improvement, I see a great opportunity for show business to firmly establish itself and its markets by better merchandising by larger, more intensive and constructive advertising and a revival of that essential showmanship which creates new and consistent patronage. Pictures will improve so long as there is demand for improvement and money with which to make them.

BLUEBOOK of PROJECTION

Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith

WE sincerely appreciate this authorized unsolicited statement from Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith on F. H. Richardson's new Bluebook Projection. We know that you will be interested in the frank opinion of this recognized authority who as Past President of The Society of Motion Picture Engineers did so much to further the cause of projection and projectionists.

IN every field, there are a few books which must be regarded as "classics" and important guides by the workers in that field. Richardson's "Bluebook of Projection" compresses between its covers substantially all the information and guides which motion picture projectionists need. The projectionist who makes himself thoroughly familiar with the contents of this book and constantly applies his knowledge in the projection room can hardly fail to do a good job and to command the respect of his fellow workers and employer. In their own interests, projectionists should not hesitate to avail themselves of such a mine of information.

THE convenience of using Richardson's "Bluebook of Projection" is greatly increased by a novel and helpful indexing system which the author has developed. Preceding each chapter are a series of numbered questions which adequately cover the subject matter of that chapter. In the chapter itself, the answers to the questions are preceded by the corresponding number. Accordingly, the projectionist can readily check up his knowledge of the subject material of each chapter before and after reading it; and can return to these questions at any time to make sure that his knowledge of the subject is still complete. This indexing system is a fine method of "perpetual self-examination."

Better Films Industry Aim, Declares Levy

UpturnBrings Expansion Of Plans, He States

By JULES LEVY
Vice-President, RKO Dist. Corp.

Better pictures, year after year, is the goal of our industry. We all recognize the fact that they are the medicine for ailing box-offices and the nourishment on which our business must feed. Only if they constantly improve in quality and attraction value can producers and exhibitors survive. It is the joint responsibility of studio and theatre to see that they do improve. That can be accomplished only by increasing the earning capacity of each and every picture that is produced.

Encouraged by the general business revival that is evident everywhere, producers this coming year will undoubtedly bring to the screen more big pictures than ever before; I know that the plans of our company are more ambitious than one dared dream a year ago. Nineteen hundred thirty-six promises to be a definitely prosperous year for theatres. The tension of the worried years of the depression is rapidly giving way to a spirit of optimism and courage.

Theatres will be the first to benefit by the public's eagerness to spend.

Drops Bicuspids, Cuts Tax

By CLARENCE LINZ

Washington, Dec. 26.—Dental bridge work to replace teeth knocked out in making a fight scene, expenses incurred in physical training and the cost of wigs and makeup are all deductible in the income tax returns of film actors, it is held by the U. S. Board of Tax Appeals in passing on an appeal of Reginald Denny from income tax deficiencies of $6,497 imposed upon him by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

A deduction of $9,545 claimed by Denny as representing advertising and miscellaneous expenses incurred in entertaining was disallowed for lack of evidence to establish that such entertainment was an ordinary and necessary business expense, as was a deduction of $675 representing the cost of an automobile presented to Joe Torrillo, on the ground that the recipient was not in Denny's employ, but did him favors.

A loan of $11,000 made to Denny by Universal in 1925, to be paid the following year in the event the company did not exercise an option to continue to employ him, was held to be income in 1926 when his contract was renewed. Denny was also allowed a deduction for operating expense and depreciation of a plane he purchased for personal use in 1924 and converted to commercial use the following year, for the period it was commercially used.

Vincent Made Head of Board For Republic

Already Identified with Yates' Companies

Walter W. Vincent, head of the Wilmer & Vincent circuit, yesterday was elected chairman of the board of Republic Pictures Corp.

He is a vice-president of Consolidated Film Industries and a director of Setay Corp., another H. J. Yates company. Presumably, he will represent the Yates' interests in Republic. The post of chairman of the board has been unoccupied since the formation of Republic last summer through the consolidation of Monogram Pictures with several smaller independent companies. W. Ray Johnston is president of Republic.

Vincent is treasurer of the M. P. T. O. A. and a member of the organization's board of trustees. His election was described by the company as preparatory to expansion plans for the new season. His wide experience in exhibition will enable Republic to reflect the theatre owners' viewpoints in future production plans, Johnston said.

Serlin Is Named to Eastern Para. Post

Oscar Serlin, eastern talent scout for Paramount, has been designated to act as liaison in the development of the company's plans for eastern production, it was stated at Paramount yesterday. Serlin will work under Russell Holman, who continues in charge of eastern production. His new duties were described as those of a "clearance or contact man."

John E. Otterson, Paramount president, recently stated that three of Paramount's 65 for next season would be made in the east, but it is understood the number may be increased when the eastern production plans become definite.

Midwestern Grosses Bumped by Blizzard

Blizzards and sub-zero weather in and around Cleveland, Kansas City, Chicago, Des Moines, Omaha and Minneapolis on Christmas dented box-office grosses in first run theatres in those towns, according to home office circuit executives.

With ideal weather in New York, business at Broadway and neighborhood houses zoomed Wednesday. All local theatres report intakes far above average.

Golden Urges Film Men to Avoid Courts

By E. A. GOLDEN
Gen'l Sales M'g'r, Chesterfield

As the New Year approaches, much will be said and considerable will be written of a prophetic nature concerning the industry. It almost suffices to say that the public will accept from the industry anything worthwhile the industry offers. No single factor will welcome and acknowledge progress more than motion picture patrons.

There is, however, one significant activity in our industry in which the patrons play little if any part, and in which they have little if any voice. I have in mind the time, thought and money expended by the industry in the courts of this and foreign countries. It is high time that the individuals comprising the industry should treat with all matters and make negotiations impartially and justly. In short, I most earnestly suggest that during the New Year an honest effort be made by all of us to keep out of courts.

Every time a case is tried, one side is right and the other is wrong. Why should we have to resort to juries and judges to decide matters for us when we have a right to know, and I believe we do know, more about the merits and justice of the case than the judge and jury combined?

We have sufficient intelligence and ability to do things right and we should do them fairly and equitably. If this procedure were followed, a tremendous amount of money could be saved and we would live in a happier and more pleasant atmosphere with our fellow men.

Buy New Equipment

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 26.—Ed Ebele of Twentieth Century-Fox, has authorized purchase of approximately $50,000 worth of electrical equipment. Walter Strohm, head of the electrical department, is discarding 400 15-inch mirror type sunspots and is installing 400 Mole Richardson Jr. special spotlights. The latter is a new lamp, and Twentieth Century-Fox is the first studio to put them in use.

Al Levoy of Republic has closed a $15,000 deal with the same equipment firm. This is in preparation for a heavy production schedule at Republic.

Charter Two Companies

ALBANY, Dec. 26.—Phoenix Film Co., New York City, has been formed here by E. Silver, H. Katz and S. Oliver Levy.

Opticolor, Inc., has been chartered by Ernest E. Baldwin, Ernest A. Bigelow and Harold D. Beatty.

Industry Leap Year Seen by Edward Small

By EDWARD SMALL
V.-P., Reliance Pictures

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 26.—This will be the industry's Leap Year. It will be the year in which the producers will leap into a new prominence. It will be a year of daring, of experimentation; a year in which all taboos will be forgotten. For years we have been told that sea pictures are not box-office. Along came "Mutiny on the Bounty." It has been hammered into us that political stories won't draw a cent. Darryl Zanuck produced "Thanks a Million." War stories are poison, they've told us. M-G-M gave us "Rendezvous."

It's a wonder anything has been produced, with so many taboos. I believe that in 1936, Hollywood will wipe these off the slate and will bring to the screen many taboo subjects. But they will be box-office, because their treatment will be box-office.

While color will not be universal, it will be more widely used. Television might be perfected. The down-to-earth story, the operetta, the biography will be the three most important types of entertainment in 1936.

Tri-States Trying Stage Shows Again

LINCOLN, Dec. 26.—Stage shows are getting a new lease on life in this territory. Tri-States will use them after Christmas for three-day stands at Moline, Ill.; Davenport, Cedar Rapids and Waterloo, Iowa.

There is some talk that Omaha and Des Moines will later split a week and that Sioux City will get them for three days, but these plans depend on union negotiations.

Ohio Managers Shift

AKRON, Dec. 26.—Managerial shifts are numerous in this territory.

Ernie Austgen, former Loew manager, gets the Cuyahoga Falls house now under construction. Kenneth Reid, manager of the Dennison Square, Cleveland, has been succeeded by J. M. Anderson of Indianapolis. Jack Trott, former assistant at the Pitt, Pittsburgh, gets the Capitol at Wheeling.

William H. Ryan has been made treasurer of the RKO Palace, Columbus.

Mulqueen to Biddeford

BIDDEFORD, Me., Dec. 26.—Harry Mulqueen, former manager of the Maine, Waterville, has been made manager of the Central here by M. & P. Mulqueen succeeds George Friary who has been transferred to the Broadway, Chelsea, Mass.

Delays Hepburn

Hartford, Dec. 26.—Katharine Hepburn is not a strong enough draw in her own home town to compete with Charles Dickens in the opinion of James F. McCarthy, Warner Strand Manager.

Scheduled to open Christmas Day, "Sylvia Scarlett" has been postponed for two weeks while "A Tale of Two Cities" does a week at the Poli and an expected holdover engagement at the Palace.

St. Louis Witness Calls Begin Today

new witnesses will be served. This, because the civil action will cover a period longer than that incorporated in the misdemeanor trial last October and November.

Milton B. Arthur may not be brought on from the coast, as in the previous case. He appeared, but was not called.

New York attorneys for distributors involved will arrive here about Jan. 3, three days before the date set for the hearing before Federal Judge Joseph West Molyneaux of Minneapolis. Hardy and his assistants are due from Washington about the same time.

More Than 11,000 At Albany Drawing

ALBANY, Dec. 26.—More than 11,000 people packed the four Fabian theatres, the RKO Palace, Grand, Hermanus Bleecker Hall and Leland Monday night when 13 prizes ranging from a floor lamp to a Ford were distributed.

The drawing took place on the stage of the RKO Palace with the other theatres connected by means of a four-way hookup installed by the N. Y. Telephone Co., while the voice was carried out through the house amplifiers.

Other Albany theatres reported playing to almost empty houses.

Albany House to Reopen

ALBANY, Dec. 26.—The Follies, operated by Waterfront Amusement Co., Max Rosnick, manager, which had been running musical variety, but closed abruptly last week, is to reopen soon as a straight picture house. This is the former Majestic, adjoining the Leland on South Pearl St.

Lesser Classifies Film

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 26.—The production lull at the Sol Lesser unit until the first of January is to be turned to good account by Edward Gross, production manager. A library of stock shots and sounds is being made up from the storage vaults. The plan is to sell this footage to other producers of westerns. Adrian Levy is handling the classification.

Sirica Sons Take House

WATERBURY, Dec. 26.—Michael and Andrew Sirica, sons of the recently deceased A. E. Sirica, operator of the Capitol, have taken over the operation and management of the house.

Producer Aim To Be Higher, Berman States

By PANDRO S. BERMAN
Associate Producer, RKO

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 26. — Although the past season has brought to the screen many outstanding films, every major studio and every producer undoubtedly will be aiming higher still in the coming year. To stand still in the industry means stagnation and ruin and this is more true at the present time than ever before.

Audiences are more critical today than at any time in the industry's annals. They are insistent on story quality and acting ability. They are no longer content to see old favorites read their lines or walk through their parts. Proof of that fact is shown in the warm reception accorded in 1935 to many newcomers with ability and ambition, and in the success of pictures with strong story background.

In general, I believe production in 1936 will lean toward three types of films: features emphasizing music, dancing and gay comedy; mystery plays intriguing the imagination, and pictures that demand fine dramatic performances by stellar players.

The success of many musical pictures during the past year indicates a definite and growing public interest in this attractive type of film fare. Mystery stories, whether on the screen or inside magazine and book covers, have always been popular and unquestionably always will. And there is a definite demand for pictures that have strength and depth, that tell a positive story, that are finely welded together and that require real acting ability.

All of which means keener production competition than ever before, and that competition, naturally, means better pictures and greater benefits in the coming year to all concerned—to the studios, to the theatres and to the public.

Hearing Expected on St. Louis Fox Soon

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 26.—Present indications are that the Federal court hearing on final plans for reorganization of the Theatre Realty Co., owners of the Fox and adjacent property, will be held about the middle of January. In the meantime the property is being administered by Former Supreme Court Judge James T. Blair and Former City Collector Edmond Koeln as Federal trustees.

The theatre is being operated by F. & M. under the terms of an agreement made some months ago with Blair and Koeln, who at that time were state court receivers.

Short Subjects

"The Case of the Lost Sheep"

(Universal)

The cartoonist here took liberties with the old story of Little Bo Peep and her lost sheep, with the sheep pictured as runaways, and their pursuit by Humpty Dumpty and Oswald as motorcycle policemen. They steal and eat too many pies and the result is that they are glad when they get home again. It rates as an average cartoon, which should be entertaining for the youngsters. Production Code Seal No. 1469. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Going Places No. 17"

(Universal)

An interesting number of the series, in which are seen the roof beauty parlor of a cosmetic company on the roof of its New York building, the business of making cloth out of the wool of the Angora rabbit, the forbidden city of Peiping, China, and the Temple of Heaven, where Chinese emperors were crowned years ago. Of average quality in the group. Production Code Seal No. 0672. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Pompeii" on Dual $10,000, Montreal

MONTREAL, Dec. 26.—The Capitol held the lead with a dual bill headed by "The Last Days of Pompeii," the take being $10,000.

Loew's, with a combination of two features and a vaudeville unit, registered $10,500 which was par. Feature No. 1 being "Jalna."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Pace That Kills"

(Willis Kent Prod.-State Rights)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 26.—A morbid melodrama dealing with the dope traffic and how the scourge enmeshes innocent youngsters on the threshold of maturity, this film preaches a warning to transgressors and in spots is so brutal that it seems destined to set a pace that kills for the exhibitor and his box-office.

The film shows one of the most gruesome sides of debased existence and is likely to keep customers away with the exception of those spots where sensational exploitation will drag in a certain clientele as has been done before.

The story revolves around a couple of kids, a brother and sister, fresh from the country, who inadvertently get in with a gang which takes them to the big city where they become addicted to drugs. From here on the yarn runs the gamut, with Chinese joints, cocaine and opium addicts, and other underworld activities forming the background of the plot which ultimately stretches its tentacles into society.

Direction by William O'Connor is all right. Performances are good in spots with Lois January, Noel Madison, Sheila Mannors, Lois Lindsley, Dean Benton and Charles Delaney contributing the important performances. Jack Greenhalgh was the photographer.

Reviewed without code seal. Running time, 64 minutes. "A".

Looking 'Em Over

"Western Frontier"

(Columbia)

Routine western action material, this may prove satisfactory as the second half of a dual bill where the patrons still like western yarns on the screen. It is the kind of film which is more apt to please the youngsters.

Ken Maynard is starred, with Lucille Brown, Nora Lane and Robert Henry featured in support. The film opens with a prologue sequence, showing the death in an Indian raid of the parents of a small boy and girl, each of whom wears half of a map tattooed on the forearm. The boy is rescued, the girl taken by the Indians.

Years later, Maynard, the boy, is requested by the marshal to bring in a gang in a neighboring town, headed by a blond woman. With a fake medicine show, he gains unsuspected entree to the town and meets Miss Lane, opening the way for the expected romantic angle of the story. His identity is learned and the rest of the film is devoted to the efforts of the gang to "get" him, and his efforts to keep clear of them and bring about their capture, in which he is ably assisted by his horse, Tarzan. Of course the gang leader is his sister, a fact he learns in the closing minutes. In the climax gun-battle she is killed and the romance completes the film. Albert Herman directed.

Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 57 minutes. "G."

"The Lady in Scarlet"

(Chesterfield)

There is somewhat more than the usual amount of humor and entertainment in this mystery film than in the usual run of such independent product. With something of a "The Thin Man" idea, the entertainment derives from the wise-cracking secretary and first assistant of the amateur detective. The detective is Reginald Denny and his secretary Patricia Farr.

Although the mystery is fairly well developed and the actual murderer hidden from the audience, the greater part of the entertainment lies in the conduct of the investigation by Denny and Miss Farr. When an antique dealer is found dead in his home there are a host of suspects, including his wife, Dorothy Revier, whom Denny knows; his assistant, James Bush; Jamison Thomas, seen often with Miss Revier, and his daughter, in love with Bush and threatened with disinheritance.

Denny wanders into the case by accident and from there on pursues his investigation in almost a casual, good-humored fashion which is effective. Miss Farr is attractive and entertaining. Eventually, of course, after a number of audience-misleading situations, Denny hits upon the murderer.

Production Code Seal No. 1,626. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Crime and Punishment" had a fair run at the Broadway, grossing $4,000 in six days to tie average.

Drop Civic Theatre Plan

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 26.—Plans for the combined civic theatre and auditorium, for which a Federal grant of $1,569,000 was approved by President Roosevelt Nov. 12, have been abandoned, according to the W.P.A. and local Chamber of Commerce, sponsoring the project. The grant was contingent upon $300,000 additional being contributed locally, but it now develops that nearer $600,000 will be necessary, and this amount cannot be raised through popular subscription.

RKO and RCA Deal Extended At Music Hall

Profit Arrangement Set For Two Months More

A two-month extension of the agreement under which RKO and RCA are given a participation in operating profits of the Music Hall was completed yesterday and will be submitted to the Federal court here for approval. The current agreement expires Dec. 31 and the extension continues it to Feb. 29.

Under the agreement, which originated on Sept. 1, 1934, when Rockefeller Center and RCA took over the Music Hall lease from RKO and assumed the operating management, RKO and RCA jointly receive $500 per week from the initial operating profits of the Music Hall. An initial

Aylesworth Resigns NBC Post; Lohr In

Merlin H. Aylesworth yesterday resigned as president of National Broadcasting Co. and Lenox R. Lohr was elected his successor at a meeting of the NBC board.

Joseph P. Kennedy has been retained to develop a plan of recapitalization for R.C.A.

Aylesworth will remain with NBC as vice-chairman of the board, a newly created post to which he was elected yesterday. David Sarnoff is chairman of the NBC board. Aylesworth gave as his reason for resigning the NBC presidency the increased demands of his new duties as chairman of the board of RKO. Aylesworth resigned the presidency of RKO recently to take over the new post, at which time Leo Spitz became the new RKO president.

Lohr, the new NBC president, was general manager of the Chicago Century of Progress.

Sees Moment At Hand for Price Boost

But Warns of Cost of Making Pictures

By N. L. NATHANSON
President, Famous Players Canadian Corp.

TORONTO, Dec. 27.—I look forward with optimism to the coming year, expecting not only an increase in theatre attendance, but also a great improvement in product.

Looking forward with optimism, however, we should at the same time look back to what has occurred during 1935. Admission prices have been deflated to a level not in keeping with the values we are giving to the public. Realize that theatre patrons can sit in comfortable seats for two or three hours and view entertainment that has cost producers anywhere from $200,000 to $2,000,000, at a price of 15 cents and sometimes 10 cents. The price level of our industry must be judged by its lowest charges. I think it is in the interest of exhibitors generally throughout the United States and in Canada, and the industry as a whole, to consider whether we cannot at this time raise the admissions

"Rebel," $86,000, First Week at M. H.

Grossing $86,000 in the first week, "The Littlest Rebel" at the Music Hall bids fair to chalk up a take of approximately $150,000 in the 11-day run. On Monday, "Magnificent Obsession" opens. The last five days of "A Night at the Opera" at the Capitol tallied $19,600 and the first two days of "A Tale of Two Cities" garnered $17,200.

"Coronado," at the Paramount for five days, ended with around $8,500. The first two days of "The Bride Comes Home" took in $17,000. Glen Gray and the Casa Loma Orchestra appear on the stage. Last week, Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians were the stage attraction.

The Palace tallied about $9,000 with "Frisco Kid" and "Seven Keys to Baldpate." The Roxy, on five days of "1,000 a Minute," got about $18,000.

New Republic Setup Splits Sales Forces

Republic Pictures sales are split into two divisions with Budd Rogers as general sales manager for the eastern division and Jack Fier sales manager for the western division under the executive realignment following upon recent changes within the company.

Republic sales formerly were handled by Edward Golden, who resigned from the company last week. At that time it was stated that Rogers would head the company's sales department, but the appointment of Fier, former head of sales for Mascot Pictures, follows the decision to divide sales duties between the two territories.

The new executive setup just completed has Walter W. Vincent as chairman of the Republic board; W. Ray Johnston, president; Nat Levine, vice-president and president of the subsidiary Republic Prod., succeeding Trem Carr, resigned, and E. H. Goldstein, vice-president. Departmental heads in addition to the sales heads are Norton V. Ritchey, general manager of the foreign department; Morris Goodman, sales manager, foreign department; Edward F. Finney, director of advertising and publicity; Nat K. Loder, treasurer; Sam Hacker, manager of contract department; John S. Harrington, manager of print and accessory department; Rus-

Shirley High Draw of Year, Say Showmen

Exhibitors Rate Rogers, Gable 2nd and 3rd

Little Shirley Jane Temple, six and one-half years old, was the biggest money-making star of the year from Sept. 1, 1934, to Sept. 1, 1935, according to the vote of independent exhibitors of the nation, recording their choices, based on results at their box-offices, in the annual canvass conducted by Motion Picture Herald, out today. Exhibitors were asked to list the 10 players whose films drew the largest attendance at their theatres during the year.

In order of their ranking, the players who followed Shirley were: Will Rogers, Clark Gable, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, Joan Crawford Claudette Colbert, Dick Powell, Wallace Beery, Joe E. Brown, James Cagney. (The majority of exhibitors listing them reported Astaire and Miss Rogers as a team.)

Only theatres without producer or distributor affiliation were questioned. Six players this year won their way to the first 10 from widely scattered

Saland's Deal with Derr-Sullivan Off

Negotiations on a new production setup whereby Joe Brandt and Nat Saland would finance E. B. Derr and Charles Sullivan have fallen through, it was stated yesterday by Saland who returned from the coast. Jesse J. Goldburg was interested in the deal. Saland would have financed part of the production for the print work.

Brandt is due from the coast around Jan. 5. Saland arrived yesterday by train with C. King Charney, American distributor of Agfa, who plans to remain in New York until Jan. 10.

Reports from Chicago that a meeting of the above interests was scheduled the middle of January in that city were denied yesterday.

RKO and RCA Deal Extended At Music Hall

rent participation of $700,000 per year next is paid to Rockefeller Center, after which a second joint payment of $24,000 per year is made to RKO and RCA, which is applied to retirement of RCA's advances of working capital for the Music Hall made during 1933 while it was being operated by RKO. Thereafter, Rockefeller Center is entitled to an additional $100,000 as rent. If funds then remain over operating costs, a first $200,000 is divided on the basis of 60 per cent to Rockefeller Center and 40 per cent to RKO and RCA, and a second $200,000 would be divided 50 per cent to Rockefeller Center and 50 per cent to RKO and RCA.

RKO does not participate in the leasing or operating of the hall and thus has no obligation in the event of operating losses.

A separate agreement under which RKO Service Corp. performs certain management functions for the Music Hall for a weekly fee based upon a percentage of average gross receipts of the house also expires Dec. 31. An extension of this agreement to Aug. 31, 1936, rather than for a six months' period as reported in Motion Picture Daily yesterday, is being proposed for court approval. The service fees received by the RKO subsidiary under this agreement are estimated at $1,500 per month.

The two agreements and the product deal between RKO and the Music Hall comprise RKO's entire interest in the Radio City theatre.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Three Live Ghosts"

(M-G-M)

Hollywood, Dec. 27.—Excellent acting of a cleverly modernized story adaptation by C. Gardner Sullivan plus the intelligent directing of H. Bruce Humberstone combine to make this hilarious comedy of misadventures acceptable entertainment. The production should draw well in sections where it is the show itself rather than glamorous names which attract the audience. "Three Live Ghosts" has many pleasant moments.

Locaied in London after the Armistice, "Three Live Ghosts" is held together by the accomplished work of Beryl Mercer, which should have patrons talking.

Three soldiers return to England to find themselves listed as dead. To Miss Mercer, the mother of one, the arrival of her son, Charles MacNaughton, is a happy event, but at the same time an unfortunate occurrence, since it cuts off her insurance money. Recognizing Dick Arlen as a missing American for whom a huge reward has been offered, she plans to make up for her loss of insurance money by turning him in. Even the pleadings of MacNaughton and her realization that a romance is growing between Arlen and Cecilia Parker fail to stop her.

The mother treasures a quantity of jewels given her by Claude Allister, a shell-shocked kleptomaniac, but she is less enthusiastic about the baby which he has brought along as part of the loot. The police arrive and move the whole crowd along to the station house. There Arlen is revealed not as a fugitive, but as the heir whose estate is offering the reward for his return. After a third degree wallop Allister is uncovered as a nobleman who has stolen his own jewels and child.

The finale shows Allister home again in his mansion, in the best of health and reunited with his family. Arlen and Miss Parker are together again and the financial destinies of Miss Mercer and MacNaughton are assured under Allister's patronage.

Humberstone's direction holds the picture constantly within the realm of easy understanding. It gives the audience many opportunities to applaud the work of Miss Mercer and MacNaughton and accentuates the effective work of Arlen, Nydia Westman, Dudley Digges and Robert Greig. The picture has considerable entertainment quality and possesses much interest-creating showmanship to excite attention.

Looking 'Em Over

"Frontier"

(Amkino)

Alexander Dovjenko has heavy-handedly laid on a thick coating of anti-Japanese propaganda in this latest importation. The production, as a whole, is slow-moving, and where the drama leads to a bit of action what takes place is most obvious.

The narrative concerns the building of a new city, Aerograd, in a portion of Siberia where White Russian refugee-plotters are hiding. Loyal collective farmers becoming aware of a plot to prevent the starting of the new city, set out to subdue the plotters. Interwoven there is an aviator who flies about, stunts aimlessly and supposedly rescues an American flier who has been forced down. He takes part when a mockery of a battle occurs. The defending collective leader must kill his boyhood friend and, leading him into the woods, he does. A Japanese of the Samurai class, who is at the head of the rebellion, is caught by the aviator and is roughed up. The ending in the spectacular style displays the Soviet air corps in a series of newsreel shots duplicated in different camera angles. The mass parachute jumping that made the front pages some time ago is again seen.

Obviously thrown in Japan's face, the political significance of the film is designed for Soviet Russia's sympathizers. However, the masses of filmgoers will not be drawn in by this one, for the dramatics are too long drawn out, heavily emphasized and so lack entertainment quality.

No production code seal. Running time, 83 minutes. "A."

"Another Face," one of the two features which opened at the Palace yesterday, was reviewed Nov. 13 under the title "Two Faces."

Chicago Takes Hit

Chicago, Dec. 27.—A blizzard and sub-zero weather caused Christmas grosses to fall to a new 10-year low.

B. & K. and Great States report their takes about $20,000 under last year for all houses.

Ten below zero is hurting grosses in what is ordinarily considered the best week of the year.

Lee Foresees "Boom" Year For Theatres

By ARTHUR A. LEE
V. P., Gen'l M'g'r, G. B.

I believe 1936 is going to be the "boom" year of all years for the exhibitor.

The Government, banks, industry, business, all are putting money into circulation. The moviegoer and those who want to be moviegoers are going to get their share. So is the exhibitor.

I believe the circuits are going to expand heavily. Not so much in building as in acquisitions and pools.

I believe the industry is going to expand internationally as never before. This goes for production as well as distribution.

I believe that during the coming year our industry is going to undergo some of the most drastic changes it has yet seen—and that these will all be for the good of the entire industry.

Nathanson for Hike In Theatre Tariffs

to our public in keeping with the increased prices which they are paying for other commodities.

A note of warning to the producers—every exhibitor is interested in the cost of productions which he exhibits, and 1936, I believe, will show a tremendous increase in production costs over any year in the history of our industry. Producers, artists, directors and writers must realize that the box-offices of the country are the final judges of what expenditures can be made, and I see definitely that it will not be long before the returns will be insufficient to meet the increased demands of the producers because, in turn, of their increase in costs.

In Canada we are looking forward also with renewed hopes and a spirit of optimism for a betterment of industrial conditions, which we hope will reflect itself in an improvement in our own particular business.

Rosenberg Heads Club

SEATTLE, Dec. 27.—Al Rosenberg, Hamrick-Evergreen executive, has been elected president of the Northwest Film Club. He succeeds L. J. McGinley of Universal, who was elected vice-president. Ed A. Lamb of RKO-Radio was reelected secretary-treasurer.

New trustees of the club are Paul McIlhenny of M-G-M, Al Bloom of Universal, Roy Cooper of Sterling Theatres, Hugh Bruen, president of the M.P.T.O. of Washington, and Ben F. Shearer.

4-Way Prediction Includes Return of Outdoor Picture

By WALTER WANGER

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 27.—The industry will witness these major developments during the coming year:

1.—The great outdoor picture will return to the position it occupied in the hey-day of the industry. The use of the new three-color Technicolor process will speed this return.

2.—The "removed unit" system of production will be adopted more and more by the larger companies. Under this system, producers will be encouraged to operate their own units, pick their own subjects, develop their own players, writers and directors, and by working independently, will each be able to deliver four to ten pictures a year. The combined product of several such producers will comprise the major part of a company's program for the year. Under this system the large companies will receive all the benefits of independent production and through the aggregate of product delivered to them by their "removed units," will be able to retain the advantages that come from large scale operation.

3.—Closer working relations will be established between producers here and abroad towards the end that through careful exchange of writers, players and directors, pictures made in this country will definitely anticipate the needs of a world market, and pictures made in Europe will more closely approximate American requirements.

4.—The coming year will witness a definite development in merchandising consciousness on the part of the producers. Instead of waiting until a picture gets under way or is almost completed, trained experts, skilled in the science of merchandising pictures, will be called in to discuss the merchandising possibilities of each subject long before it goes into production so that the merchandising plan may be decided on well in advance and developed during the actual filming.

The coming year looms gloriously. Its promise for the producer will mean tangible fulfillment for the exhibitor.

Reduced Color Film Is Perfected—Dowd

Reduction of 35mm color and sound films to 16mm has been perfected for commercial and non-theatrical use, according to Mervyn R. Dowd, president of Color-Art, Ltd., who has just arrived from the coast with the first two subjects of the new development.

Miniature sound projectors for reproduction of the 16mm color and sound films are now on the market, Dowd holds, with Ford and Pontiac the chief users. Single coated and ordinary panchromatic stock is used for the 16mm pictures.

Dowd left last night for Philadelphia and a number of other cities to demonstrate the new films and will return after the first of the year.

Joe Oolahan, Cincinnati branch manager, and Gardner have been presented fitted leather traveling cases. The offices involved were Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati.

Mayer, Strickling West

Louis B. Mayer and Howard Strickling yesterday left for the coast on the 20th Century. They plan to return about the first of February.

Zeidman Switches

First release of B. F. Zeidman Corp. will not be "St. Elmo," as planned, but "Angels in White."

Reverse License Ruling

The Appellate Division has reversed a N. Y. Supreme Court ruling that License Commissioner Paul Moss has the right to summarily suspend a theatre license because of an obscene show.

The appeal was taken by the Holly Holding Corp., owner of the Republic, playing Minsky's burlesque.

Exhibitors to Take Stand on Music Taxes

Committee Will Meet to Oppose Dual Levy

A meeting of the exhibitors' national emergency committee to oppose the prospect of a dual music tax on theatres as a result of the withdrawal on Wednesday of the Warner music publishing subsidiaries from Ascap will be called in the near future, according to Walter Vincent, chairman of the committee.

Vincent said that while no notice that Warners would levy a tax on exhibitors for music used in its pictures had been received by the committee, large circuits or individual exhibitors, it was believed advisable to call a meeting to discuss possibilities of the situation and probable policies which might be required. He said that the meeting would be held as soon as arrangements could be made for the attendance of all members.

Warners' policy on a theatre music tax will be made known today by Herman Starr, vice-president. It was unofficially reported on Saturday that the company's policy would not involve an increased music tax on exhibitors using the company's pictures.

Stage Shows Return In Two K. C. Houses

The Orpheum opened with "Dodsworth," and the Empress, a burlesque house, with "Broadway Scandals."

The Orpheum opening bill will be followed by "Three Men on a Horse," and probably will be used for the roadshowing of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" which definitely has been set for late January. However, "Dream" may play at Ararat Temple.

Kennedy plans to return to New York in about 10 days to begin his RCA assignment and has established business headquarters for his new work in the RCA Building, Rockefeller Center. He said he was unable to estimate the length of time required to complete the RCA assignment.

Production Falls; No Shorts in Work

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 29.—A decline in production was noted here last week. For the first time in many weeks all of the companies were dark as far as short subjects were concerned. There were 41 features shooting. The previous seven-day survey showed 45 features and four shorts before the cameras.

Nineteen pictures are awaiting the gun with the arrival of the New Year.

In the feature classification Columbia had three pictures working, three being prepared for a start within two weeks, and four in the cutting room,

Paramount Sues on Cartoon Reduction

Paramount and Exclusive M.P. Co. on Saturday filed suit in Federal Court against Benjamin Leder, doing business under the name of Leader M.P. Co., for alleged infringement of copyright. Phillips & Nizer are attorneys for Paramount in the matter.

In its complaint, the defendants claim that Exclusive M.P. Co. has an exclusive contract with Paramount for reducing 35mm cartoons to 16mm, for which Leder has no agreement. It is stated, in substance, that Leader M.P. Co. is infringing on Paramount's copyright by reducing the cartoons to 16mm without permission.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THE changing picture at NBC, by early calculations, is traceable to David Sarnoff. He and M. H. Aylesworth have not and do not always approach the same problem through the same eyes. That's one factor. Another is the comment credited to Aylesworth as far back as last summer that he was placing his bets, which is one way of figuring futures, on the Odlum-Lehman syndicate and RKO. Now, without prior indication that things would happen as quickly as they did, he steps down from the presidency of NBC to make way for Lenox Riley Lohr, military man and onetime manager of the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago. More or less, this automatically concentrates Aylesworth's activities in RKO. . . .

For reorganization purposes, ostensibly, Joe Kennedy has been brought into the RCA situation. In the light of the original sale of FBO which, in turn, led into RKO and the business dealings between Sarnoff and Kennedy as of that time, the circumstance is not without its humorous aspects. Kennedy says he will step out when this job—he describes it as a temporary affair—is finished. Whether he will or won't is a matter to be best disposed of when the time arrives, not before. About RKO, Leo Spitz is active. Sam Briskin will handle the studio with J. R. McDonough set back a peg, or maybe it's a couple. But this is not all. Spitz either has closed or will shortly, unless unforeseen hitches develop, with Manny Cohen and Ben Schulberg each to head units on the RKO lot. These are the next scheduled steps. . . .

It is always "the movies" that have to be cleaned up, as if the job since the production code had its teeth sharpened has not been a notable one. There is the editorial pounder of the Ann Arbor Daily, for instance, who cites the case of a sixteen-year-old Texas boy who "was perfectly normal and well-behaved until last Saturday night when he came home to report he had seen a movie in which there had been a lot of shooting" and thereafter embarked on a one man crime wave.

"A survey of children's games will show that they do not play 'Congress' or 'school'; their make-believe runs to more vigorous pursuits; 'cops and robbers' and 'soldier.' There is already too much of the spirit of violence in their amusements. It must not be encouraged by highly dramatic pictures," goes the published comment.

The conclusion, therefore, is "either the movies must be cleaned up or the children must be barred from pictures of a lower nature."

This space reminds, as it again suggests, that a first method begins in the home where children are supposed to be trained anyway. Sins of the parents may be visited on the children, but why their shortcomings on the film industry? It has enough troubles as matters stand. . . .

The assumption, an obvious one, is that the Loew circuit bought "Scrooge" for Christmas bookings. It may be a problem in available prints, but the facts in the case are that, under the regulation system of booking prevailing in those parts, a number of Loew houses will not get the picture until somewhere along January 10 and others later when all that is left of fond Yuletide remembrance is a pile of accumulated debts. An Easter cartoon last year went the same course, drawing attention to a long prevailing practice among large circuits that might well be submitted to contemplation leading into change.

This poises no brief for "Scrooge" or any other attraction, neither is the criticism centered on Loew's. The point is that any large circuit, abetted by its buying power, should be elastic enough in its operations to shift bookings in a manner that will bring maximum results for its theatres and the film they have contracted to play. . . .

James F. Bender, an instructor in public speaking at the College of the City of New York, is keen for the appointment by the industry of a speech supervisor empowered to pass on pronunciation and articulation of players and to clear up their speech handicaps as well. Bender feels such a supervisor should have authority comparable with that of Will H. Hays and suggests as a likely candidate for the job Walter Hampden, the actor.

The instructor, however, does not go far enough. He fails to suggest a method of making the public understand all of this purity once it is made available. . . .

New Theatres, Improvements Gain Steadily

Theatre construction and renovation continue to gain in a number of key spots, and reopenings are outnumbering closings almost everywhere.

In New England there has been a gain of about four per cent in the number of houses open during recent months. Warners have been especially active of late in putting houses back into commission. The Strand at Newburyport, Mass., is the latest.

Another new house has been started in St. Louis. It will be called the Apollo, will be located on DeBaliviere Ave., and will be operated by the Apollo Theatre Corp., headed by Joseph Litvag.

Transfers and reconditioning are widespread in the Kansas City territory. New RCA sound has just been installed in the Rex, operated by W. A. Middleton and G. E. Gebhart, Iowa Falls, Ia.; Swan, Columbus, Neb.; Mary Lue, Marshall, Mo.; Crystal, Ellis, Kan.; Opera House, Oberlin, Kan., and the Iowa, Cedar Rapids, Ia.

Year of Sure Gain Is Seen By J. R. Rubin

By J. ROBERT RUBIN
Vice-President, Loew's and M-G-M

The industry looks forward to a year of assured promise. I believe the most welcome satisfaction to be derived from 1935 is the strongly furnished evidence that pictures of striking artistic merit are commanding more and more responsive audiences. I think that, both technically and artistically, film companies are now in a better position to meet the demand for superior entertainment than on any previous New Year's since the inception of the industry.

Lichtman Predicts "Tremendous" Year

smooth sailing ahead, there's no reason in the world why 1936 shouldn't be a tremendous year for pictures, from every standpoint. As long as film companies can deliver fine attractions as consistently as they have done the past several years, the American public is going to provide handsome and ever greater patronage.

Present Giles Painting

BOSTON, Dec. 29.—An oil painting of the late George Giles, circuit operator and M.P.T.O.A. official, has been presented to Allied Theatres of Massachusetts, Inc., which he headed at his death a few months ago. The painting was done by Louis Chiarmonte, artist at Loew's State.

Register Theatre Title

ALBANY, Dec. 29.—The words "The New Yorker Theatre" have been registered as a trade mark in the office of the Secretary of State by Armac Amusement Corp., 226 West 42nd St., New York. The mark is to be used on labels on theatrical devices, advertising matter, etc.

Arrange Florida Scenes

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla., Dec. 29.—Arrangements have been made here for using the sponge fishing fleet in scenes for Republic's "20 Fathoms Under." Armond Schaefer, director, and Wellyn Totman, writer, looked over the location.

Lynch Goes to Newton

BOSTON, Dec. 29.—Jeremiah Lynch has been made manager of the Paramount in Newton as a result of an M. & P. shift. He replaces Thomas Wall, who has been transferred to the Paramount in Needham.

Yates Confident

It is my opinion that during 1936 the industry will make substantial progress and will enjoy greater prosperity than in any previous year.—Herbert J. Yates, president, Consolidated Film Industries, Inc.

Hammons Foresees Showmanship Back

is for showmen to have the courage to return to a straight selling of quality entertainment, without bargain sales and without novelty "come-ons."

In spite of all sorts of handicaps, the short subject has made gains in the last year. Never before have more big names been presented through the one and two-reel pictures. In 1936 the showman who gives up the uneconomic practices of double features and off-screen devices, will find plenty of material in the short subjects with which to build up fine quality shows.

I have never lost confidence that the exhibitors of America would eventually return to first principles of showmanship. I believe the public is ready for this now. Improvement in our own business in the last six months would seem to support my belief that most exhibitors are eager to get back to the balanced show. How much of this return to first principles comes about in 1936 is up to the exhibitors of the country.

Good features, in my opinion, never needed bargain selling. Certainly the fine pictures of today do not call for it. All the industry needs to assure itself a great 1936 is good show building, good showmanship.

Acquires Old Chaplins

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 29.—Ray Olmstead has bought eight old one-reel Charlie Chaplin comedies made by Keystone from Screen Attractions, Inc., of New York, and will release them through California, Arizona and Montana. Olmstead is the manager of Principal Prod.

Form Two Companies

ALBANY, Dec. 29.—New incorporations here include:

Exhibitors Confidential Inspection Service, Inc., by Regina Hochberg, Edward S. Welch and Max Oppenheimer, and Carstrongers, Inc., by Arold Dumey, Sidney Kramer and Herman M. Kaback.

Profits with Big Pictures Ahead--Weeks

By GEORGE W. WEEKS
Gen'l Sales M'g'r, G.B.

In facing the coming year, we, in the motion picture business, can take a measure of solid comfort. For I believe the present upturn in business may be taken as a yardstick for what we can expect in 1936.

I believe that the new year will mean some of the biggest box-office profits in our history. A new and keener sense of showmanship. More outstanding productions. Vast progress in methods of distribution.

For we are definitely on the eve of a new era in business. Based on hard facts and common sense. With eyes on a wave of national and international expansion. For the world wants to be, and can afford to be, entertained by good movies.

"Rose" Does Well In Omaha, $4,600

OMAHA, Dec. 29.—It might have been worse, meaning that pre-Christmas slump, in the opinion of local managers. One house, the Omaha, with "So Red the Rose" heading a double bill, managed to get over par on a $4,600 take.

The Brandeis, with "Seven Keys to Baldpate" and "The Calling of Dan Mathews," and the Orpheum with "Mr. Hobo" and "Three Kids and a Queen," were within shooting distance of normal.

N. E. Veterans Celebrate

BOSTON, Dec. 29.—It's the season of anniversaries. Ralph L. Ripley, manager of the M. & P. Codman Square, Dorchester, is celebrating his 43rd consecutive year in the theatre business. He has been associated with but four companies in this time, he states.

Nathan Ross of G. B. is completing his 25th year as a film salesman in New England. Victor Morris this month celebrates a quarter-century as manager of Loew's Orpheum.

"Promising," Is Bernhard's '36 Prophesy

By JOSEPH BERNHARD
President, Warner Circuit M'g't

Undoubtedly the incoming year is the most promising since theatre business began its decline four years ago.

Many towns that have been industrially stagnant for the past few years are showing lively increases in both payroll amounts and numbers of people employed.

The general tone of product has improved and will continue to advance as the public shows a greater willingness to support a higher level of entertainment.

These factors, which are re-shaping the course of our business for the better, assure a profitable 1936 if we continue to remember the practical economies learned in the past.

Business Holds Up In Houston Houses

HOUSTON, Dec. 29.—A normal amusement week was checked up here with the weather fair and balmy and the streets thronged with the biggest crowd of Christmas shoppers since 1929.

"Whipsaw," at Loew's State, "She Couldn't Take It," at the Majestic, and "Stars Over Broadway," at the Metropolitan, hit par with $7,000 each for the week. The latter picture started slowly, but developed good matinee business over the week-end.

"Rhythm" Top As Seattle's Takes Slump

SEATTLE, Dec. 29.—With a combination of the Christmas slump and playing time cut down to make room for new bookings, grosses were in a bad way. The only attraction to get near par was "Old Man Rhythm," which took $3,150, down by $350, at the Rex.

Total first run business was $26,700. Average is $33,500.

"Java" and a Show $3,000, Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 29.—Christmas shopping knocked the props out from under theatre grosses, only one house making a showing that looked anything like a profit. The Criterion, with a stage show for four days, and "East of Java" on the screen garnered $2,600. Normal for seven days is $3,000.

"The Rainmakers" was the only other attraction to make much of an impression. It pulled $1,500 at the Capitol.

"Millions in the Air" and "East of Java" pulled a good $5,000 at the Rialto, up by $1,500.

"The Return of Peter Grimm" and "To Beat the Band" proved to be a weak dual at the Brown, grossing $1,900, or $100 below par. "Happiness C.O.D." at the National, assisted by Major Bowes' Amateurs No. 2, were responsible for a nice gross of $3,300, $300 over par. Considering the pre-Christmas slackening, this figure is not bad.
